Employers Revealed Using Thugs to Maim Unionist Organizers

SENATORS TOLD SPY SYSTEM FORCES LABOR TO STRIKE IN SELF-DEFENSE

Heber Blankenhorn of NLRB Shows Federal Laboratories as "Holding Company" for All Sorts of Vicious and Violent Anti-Union Activities Certain to Cause Strikes and Bitter Resentment.

Washington, D. C.—Heber Blankenhorn, of the staff of the National Labor Relations board, nearly stopped the show by his testimony before the senate subcommittee which is probing the industrial spy system.

"Federal Laboratories," said Blankenhorn, "is a sort of holding company for all anti-union and strike-breaking activities. Employers can buy almost anything from that one concern.

"Item 1, tear gas.

"Item 2, a squad of deputy sheriffs.

"Item 3, any required number of experienced stool pigeons.

"Item 4, one Liberty league lawyer."

From Senator La Follette in the chair to the policeman at the door, the whole room laughed. And the deadliest part of the joke is that Blankenhorn had already given testimmony which proved the joke true.

Blankenhorn began with quotations from witnesses before other hearings, showing that many employers are willing and anxious to hire thugs to "put that labor organizer in the hospital." He pointed out, as other witnesses have done, that the chief cause of the bitterest strikes is the industrial spy system, and next to that the hiring of professional thugs.

"The Akron strike is an example of this," he said. "That was unpremeditated. The union did not take charge of the strike until it had been on for three days. The whole population resented the spying and thug hiring of the rubber companies and approved the strike.

"The strikers knew just what they were up against. A year before, in 1935, there was a threat of a strike in all the rubber plants. The managers of these plants got together and hired the most notorious of all the strike-breaking agencies, that of Pearl Berghoff. Berghoff proposed a 'new idea,' to form a Law and Order association. He got $25 a day for each 'operative' and Sheriff Fowler was to get the usual kickback of one dollar a day from each deputy sheriff. But the expected strike did not materialize."

City Learns Lesson

"Leo and I got drunk as hell," Blankenhorn read from a book which might be called the memoirs of Pearl Berghoff. "George Williams was sick

Edwin S. Smith, member of the NLRB, made the following statement to the La Follette senate subcommittee investigating industrial spying.

"I have never listened to anything more tragically un-American than stories of the discharged employes of the Fruehauf Trailer company, victims of a labor spy. Man after man in the prime of life, of obvious character and courage, came before us to tell of the blows that had fallen on him for his crime of having joined a union. Here they were—family men with wives and children—on public relief, blacklisted from employment, so they claimed, in the city of Detroit, citizens whose only offense was that they had ventured in the land of the free to organize as employees to improve their working conditions. Their reward as workers who had given their best to their employer was to be hunted down by a hired spy like the lowest of criminals and thereafter tossed like useless metal on the scrap heap."

BIRTHRIGHT REGRETS

Wm. C. Birthright, general secretary-treasurer and acting general president of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of North America, a familiar figure at meetings of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, will be unable to attend the convention this year, due to official business in Washington.

In a letter Mr. Birthright expresses his regreta and states that it will be necessary for him to be in conference with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, on the dates the state federation is convening.

Memphis Editor Boasts Record Of Many Angles

Kelley Family a League of Nations Affair—And All Are Union.

HORACE KELLEY

Horace Kelley, editor of the Memphis Labor Review, claims an unusual record.

His father has three sons. The father and sons are all members of organized labor, and represent four crafts: Machinists, Railway Clerks, Butchers and Printers.

He has two sisters, both of whom married men who are members of trade unions.

All six of these men work in different cities, in three different states, and all of them are members of the Masonic order, some of them having held high offices in this fraternity. Some of them belong to the Knight Templars, Scottish Rite and Shrine.

If this isn't enough of a record, add the facts that one of Mr. Kelley's brothers married a French-Canadian nurse while he was in the navy during the world war, and she is an active communicant in the Catholic church; the other brother married a Jewess, who attends the synagogue regularly, and Mr. Kelley married a red-headed Methodist.

Mr. Kelley is a member of the Typographical union, the American Legion, the chamber of commerce, J. O. U. A. M., active in various bodies of the Masonic order, official and choir member of the Methodist church, president of the Memphis Club of Printing House Craftsmen of America, partner in the composition firm of Kelley & Jamison, and editor of the Labor Review.

Right to Organize Must Be Protected, Says Pres. McCann

Present Day Bosses Still Believe in Feudal System.

Labor Will Have to Fight for What Advances It Hopes to Gain.

The present attempt of many employers to prevent their employes from organizing for the purpose of collective bargaining and improving their conditions of employment is a continuation of the practices of the feudal lords and masters of the dark ages. At that time when workers became aged, or were so bold as to have ideas of their own or should fail to obey the mandates of the masters, they were physically punished, tortured and often put to death. With the advance of civilization this changed little, for the present practice of some employers is to turn the aged out to slowly starve and fire those who dare to disagree with them, thereby causing them and their families to feel the pangs of hunger, forcing them to become subservient and docile, willing to accept the wages and conditions of employment offered. Man's natural instinct when oppressed is to band together for protection and thus the ancient workers' guilds were formed. These were the forerunners of the present labor union. As workers formed organizations for their protection the employers also formed organizations to combat activities and demands made by their employers.

We have arrived at a stage of intelligence in the world's progress where it is agreed tnat mankind is entitled to strive without interference for all of the necessities of life. Unless this be accepted for the individual, perfect freedom becomes non-existant, if interference by the employer to the extent that the employes are

According to Mr. Foley, the organizations enlisted under the state association have had a most successful year, and during the meeting to be held next Sunday a complete report from every section of Tennessee will be made to the delegates, and plans will be formulated for the activities of this body for the ensuing year.

During the session of the state association International Representative Richard Walsh, of the United Association of Plumbers, Steamfitters and Allied Crafts, will deliver an address of interest to those engaged in this calling.

"PLANS ALL SET TO ENTERTAIN THIRTY-NINTH CONVENTION OF TENNESSEE FEDERATION OF LABOR

Highlight Will Be Tuesday Evening When Annual Banquet Will Provide a Few Speeches and Lots of Fun.

Kidnapings, Legislation and Politics Expected To Be in Limelight—Election of Officers Last on Program Wednesday Afternoon

Chattanooga labor is on its toes, waiting for the first delegates to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor to reach the city limits Sunday. This is the first time the Dynamo City has had the privilege of entertaining that august body since 1930. From all reports, the sessions this year will see more delegates attending than has ever been the case in the history of the federation.

The entertainment committee of Chattanooga Central Labor union has worked hard. It is believed the results will be gratifying. Sunday afternoon there will be a committee to greet the visitors when they arrive at the Patten hotel. On Monday afternoon there will be a fleet of automobiles with union drivers at the hotel to take the guests on Lookout mountain. After going through Point Park, and wondering why in heck the incline car doesn't ever cut loose and run wild into Georgia, the motorcade will proceed to Rock City, where a sight will be seen the like of which is hardly duplicated in this country.

From the mountain Old South will throw its plant open for inspection and at the wind-up those who like it cold right out of the vats will retire to the basement and enjoy a mug. It is likely that the ear will be pleased with some sure-enough quartet note-tickling.

Tuesday evening is the night of nights. The annual banquet will be in the Patten ballroom. The toastmaster, it is hoped, will be a person who ought to know his stuff. He has been in Tennessee long enough to remember when the Mississippi was a mud-puddle. A floor show and orchestra will put on a show that should remind the delegates of the occasion in Memphis several years ago. The usual splendid Patten menu will show our visitors how we eat here, and Mother's bread, union labor's pride, will slide down gullets with a call for more.

Chattanooga Label league has provided for the ladies. This live-wire organization, only one year old, will gather all the ladies together Tuesday morning and take them to Signal mountain for a chance to see the natural beauties there and eat lunch in the Forest room of the hotel. After lunch bridge will be lightly indulged in, acquaintances made and renewed, and union label talk tossed about.

There will be caucuses a-plenty. It is rumored there will be politicking. It has happened before. Not only federation politics, but state politics. The best methods of kidnaping, the easiest way to be beaten up, will be recounted by various organizers, and the nicest method for inhaling tear gas will be recited.

Yes, the convention will be interesting! Chattanooga laborites will be welcomed on behalf of the city by our own Bob Cooke, and then on by the rest of us either by set plan or individual taste. Go to it, visitors, enjoy yourselves.

Capital City Sends Veterans To Convention

"Punch" Clark, John Caudle and Gerald Foley Win in Field of Eight.

Sweeping aside all opposition, and making a run-off unnecessary, W. C. Clark, John W. Caudle and Gerald Foley were the winners from a field of eight candidates in the annual election for delegates to represent the Nashville Trades and Labor Council in the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, to be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., on May 4, 5 and 6.

Good-natured rivalry existed during the entire meeting of the Council, which had the largest attendance in several months, and when the smoke of the battle had cleared, announcement was made of the winners, with Thomas Hanson, of the Electrical Workers; Miss Mary Lynn, Garment

Observance of Contracts

Collective bargaining and the observance of wage agreements is the fundamental principle of the organized labor movement. Failure on the part of trade unionists to observe this principle strikes at the very roots of bona fide trades unionism.

The importance of this policy recently arose in Englad in connection with an unauthorized or unofficial work stoppage by the employes of a garage of the London Passenger Transport Board, with which the Transport and General Workers' union has agreements. The grievances of the men were in process of being adjusted by the executive council of the union. Despite these negotiations, the men took the matter into their own hands and quit work.

Ernest Bevin, president of the union, issued a statement declaring that the action of the garage employes was "without authority from the union," and was, therefore, "a breach of the rules and constitution of the union." In warning against the practice of unauthorized strikes and the necessity of observing union agreements, Mr. Bevin said:

"The union holds a number of agreements with the London Passenger Transport Board which have been negotiated through the machinery voluntarily accepted on both sides.

"It is the duty of the union to see that these agreements are observed.

"The union and the members have certain responsibilities as well as certain rights, and regard must be had to both.

"The issue that now confronts us is whether the union shall be allowed to function and carry out its agreements, or otherwise.

"We would again warn all our members against being misled into following a course which can only result in weakening their organization, jeopardizing their agreements, and bringing into disrepute the machinery for negotiation which has been built up over a period of years and has been effectively used on their behalf.

"The members now out are instructed to return to work and others to continue at work."

The position taken by Mr. Bevin in regard to the sacredness of trade union contracts was emphasized by the 1935 convention of the American Federation of Labor, which approved a declaration by the Federation's executive council that "when contracts are finally negotiated between the representatives of employers and of employes, it becomes the duty, in fact, the obligation, of all parties to signed agreements to comply with said agreements, to carry them out and to maintain them inviolate." The council added that all wage agreements negotiated, accepted and signed "represent solemn covenants that cannot be disregarded and violated without sacrificing reputation, standing and honor."

Wisdom

Bigotry is a disease of ignorance, of morbid minds; enthusiasm of the free and buoyant. Education and free discussion are the antidotes for both.—Thomas Jefferson.

What Next!

Rice planting by airplane is the latest in agriculture, it being reported that a large part of California's 120,000 acres of rice will be sown from the air this year. Seed is caught in the propeller stream and sowed evenly in 65-feet strips. By old methods, planting 30 acres took a day; by the airplane method 40 acres takes 8 minutes.

General Wage Increase Essential

Gov. Lehman, of New York, is trying hard to put through a state social security bill. It has already passed the state senate; but in the assembly, a group of reactionaries is doing its best to block the bill, or to emasculate it if it cannot be blocked.

Doubtless the leaders consider this good politics—Lehman was elected on the democratic ticket while a majority of the assembly is republican. In reality, it is likely to turn out the stupidest kind of politics. But at the very time that Gov. Lehman was appealing for his bill over the radio, an incident occurred in New York which should make that state unanimous for old age protection, which is a part of the social security bill.

A woman, eighty years old, was found starving in a shack, without either light or fire. She had cut the laths out of a plastered wall to make a fire; but that resource had been used up. The neighbors had done what they could for her, but her furious resentment of anything that looked like charity had pretty well tied their hands. Some days passed without her being seen, and the neighbors went to the police, who promptly summoned an ambulance.

No community is fully civilized in which such a thing is possible. Under the social security bill, it would be impossible. The old woman would have received a pension, meager, to be sure, but enough to keep her warm and decently fed; and with no taint of charity.

If Gov. Lehman will capitalize that incident, the reactionary interests who are fighting the bill now may slink to cover. From a distance, it looks like the governor's best chance.

How the Children Pay

Children from six to nine years of age average lighter in weight now than their predecessors of the same age five years ago. The loss of weight is particularly marked in children in the families of the unemployed, and in those other families whose breadwinner may have a job, indeed, but at very low wages.

Dr. Elda Robb, of Teachers' college in Columbia university, makes these statements in a report published by the National Federation of Day Nurseries; and backs up her statements with figures. She warns that underweight children usually means malnutrition; and that their whole lives will be skimped and hampered by the hardships they endure now.

"Eventually," she writes, "these children will pay for their present neglect in the form of bodily ailments, physical suffering and poor health."

Thus the depression, which was brought on by the maldistribution of the national income, takes its toll. Thus employers who refuse to pay living wages stunt the coming generation.

An Object Lesson on Social Security

Wage increases throughout industry are essential. In rising wages and shorter hours lies our only present hope of laying a solid foundation for business expansion and preventing an early collapse. — American Federation of Labor Monthly Survey of Business.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

When the government goes into court it generally does so with lawyers who are underpaid and who generally are not as good lawyers as those retained by corporations against whom the government is in litigation. This is too bad, but it is so. It probably will continue to be so, as long as corporations have that much money and as long as cleverness wins cases, rather than abstract justice.

Many court cases are won by wits. If the wits around the counsel table should get up and change places, the outcome of the suits would be reversed. That's the way it goes. That's one reason for losing a lot of cases. It is the same way when a poor man fights a rich man. The rich man gets the best and most lawyers.

It doesn't do any particular good to say that this is all wrong, although some day it probably will not be that way. By and large, even with all the unfairness, we get a fair average of justice out of the courts. Much more than was the case 100 years ago. The courts see that issues between rival property claims much more clearly. Too many of them do not yet see the rights of labor in their proper light. Their brains are fogged with traditions of master and servant. Recent impeachment of Judge Ritter doesn't mean a thing toward sweeping away those cobwebs, although the impeachment probably will be salutory in other ways.

The very strongest argument for an understanding of the rights of labor is the building of strong unions.

The late Chief Justice Taft, for some reason, once decreed that workers have a property right in jobs. That is fine doctrine, but it never will be the generally accepted doctrine unless labor makes it so. After all, law grows out of the changing of the people's collective mind. That is why very unpopular laws seldom are enforced. They die for want of support by the people, not for want of judicial attention. Fat pages in history prove that to be the case. But of course this doesn't change the fact that laws would get a better break if governments had better lawyers for their defense. Sometimes the courts nullify a law that really has public support. That is where lawyers count. There was tremendous hatred of the Volstead act. Nothing like that was true, for example, of NRA. The whole thing is quite a tangled matter.

But, when it comes to labor rights, including what we know as human rights, unions are the best of all possible defenses. Labor rights change with the change in the nation's way of life. Machinery brought the need for new rights. There is no need for collective bargaining where one family lives by itself on a remote farm, or where one man is by himself in a forest.

But the General Motors plant is not like a New England farm, or an Oregon farm, of fifty or more years ago. More change will bring more demands and need for new definitions of rights. Change will continue everywhere until all change stops. When there is no more water in flow the mill wheels will stop. But until then there must be struggle, action, alertness, organized intelligence and organized discipline. Unions must grow stronger—and stronger. Or else—.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What labor head is the latest to become a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor?

A.—Felix H. Knight, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, elected fifteenth vice-president several weeks ago.

Q.—What country was the birthplace of trade unionism?

A.—Great Britain.

Q.—When did postal service workers first begin organizing?

A.—Clerks in the postoffice at Louisville, Ky., organized in 1883 and by correspondence brought representatives of several offices together in Washington in 1884. This group was merely a loosely organized legislative committee and there was no national organization until 1890. In the same year, letter carriers formed their present national organization.

Abe—"Visits." That's nice of you, sure. And I will return them just as soon as I am strong enough. Now, I feel greatly relieved.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

IT STARTS Monday—the State Convention, you know—and be sure to make your reservation by Saturday for the luncheon that is to be given Tuesday at the Signal Mountain Hotel for the visiting ladies by the Chattanooga Label League. The ladies will meet at the Hotel Patten about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and proceed from there up and around Signal for awhile before lunch, so there will be time to show the visitors some of Chattanooga's scenery. And by the way—don't dress up, ladies, because we shall want to hike around a bit.

THEY KEEP POPPING up—these stores that have union-labeled merchandise, but if they don't advertise the fact how is a fellow to know? Palmer clothes has suits with the union label in them so don't forget to go by their store when you go to get that summer suit.

MR. MACK BALL, of the Meatcutters, was in the other day, showing a pair of shoes that he has worn every day for eight years. How's that for a record? He says he had them made in Boston all those years ago and they have never been half-soled, although they have been re-heeled six times. Yes, sir! They have the union label in them.

HAD A LETTER from the Ladies' International Garment Workers the other day, and they say they are starting an intensive campaign to get the union label back on cotton dresses. Though a majority of these goods are union made, they have not been having the label on them. But, now, if you go in a store to buy a cotton dress, see if it has the label—ask the clerk about it. Two ladies have already reported stores that have house dresses with the label on them.

A. F. of L. Reaffirms Support Of Non-Partisan Political Policy

Green and Morrison Stress Necessity for United Action by Workers to Elect Candidates Who Favor Legislation Approved by Labor and Defeat Candidates Who Oppose Such Legislation.

Washington.—In the 1936 campaign the American Federation of Labor will continue its policy of supporting candidates for office, regardless of their political affiliations, who favor legislation approved by labor and opposing the enemies of such legislation. This was made definite and clear in a letter regarding the non-partisan political policy of the A. F. of L. sent by President William Green and Secretary-Treasurer Frank Morrison to 109 national and international unions, 48 state federations of labor, 800 city central bodies and 35,000 local unions. The text of the letter follows:

"In conformity with instructions of conventions of the American Federation of Labor, decisions of the Executive Council and customary procedure, the non-partisan political policy which will be followed by the American Federation of Labor in the political campaign of 1936 will be transmitted and explained to you in due course of time and at the earliest possible date.

Importance of Labor Unity.

"The preponderance of opinion of the membership of the American Federation of Labor in favor of the pursuit of a non-partisan political policy has been expressed in a most definite way in conventions of the American Federation of Labor. They have repeatedly emphasized their opinion and belief that the political and economic interests of the working people of the country can best be served, for the present at least, through the pursuit of a non-partisan political policy.

"By following this course, the American Federation of Labor has succeeded in its efforts to blend into a common brotherhood and unite in a strong economic organization men and women of differing political opinions and beliefs. In a most practical and convincing way the workers, regardless of political oponions, have united in behalf of candidates for office who supported legislation sponsored and approved by labor, and conversely have opposed and defeated candidates for office who were known to be opposed to labor and to legislation favored by labor.

"It is the desire of the American Federation of Labor that the workers who accept and espouse the political and economic philosophy of the American Federation of Labor shall remain united both in its administration and activity. The cause of labor can be best served through united action made possible through the development of a sound constructive practical non-partisan political policy.

"For obvious reasons, labor should avoid division even in the pursuit of its political policies. Such division can be avoided if working men and women, loyal to the American Federation of Labor, will refrain from identifying themselves with any political movement designed to serve as a substitute for the non-partisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor.

Information Regarding Candidates.

"When the occasion seems appropriate, when candidates have been nominated, when it becomes publicly known who the candidates are, upon what platform they stand and what social, economic and political principles they espouse, the Executive Council, through its non-partisan political committee, will officially communicate with all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor advising them regarding the standing, qualifications and public records of candidates for political positions.

"The training and experience of labor and the lessons which it has learned, all lead to the conclusion that the highest and best interests of labor will be served through a strict and close adherence to the traditional non-partisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor."

PEACE PLAN ENDS TIE-UP ON SAN FRANCISCO DOCKS

San Francisco. — Shipowners and union longshoremen have accepted a peace plan offering a true in a deadlock which had stilled shipping in San Francisco and menaced operations on the entire west coast.

District and local officers of the International Longshoremen's association joined with representatives of the Waterfront Employers' association in signing the agreement. Federal Arbitrator M. C. Sloss also subscribed to the pact.

BANQUET PLANS COMPLETE

With the selection of the guest speaker, plans are now complete for the annual Federation banquet May 9. The arrangements committee has succeeded in getting just the type of speaker it was looking for; a real scholar, a real labor man, and a fascinating after-dinner speaker. He is Jesse H. Holmes, professor of history of religion and philosophy at Swarthmore College, and a member of the Philadelphia local of the A. F. of T. Delegates who heard him at the 1934 A. F. of T. convention are high in their praise of his speaking ability. His activities in behalf of worthwhile causes indicate that his words are backed by deeds.

It is important that every Federation member who possibly can be present at the banquet. If some other engagement conflicts the good union member will place the Federation banquet first.

BOARD MEETING MONDAY

The May meeting of the board of directors will be held at 301 Y. M. C. A. next Monday at 7 p. m. Board members are urged to bring in reports on the material recently sent to them.

A REAL LOYAL OATH

Those who think the loyalty oaths sponsored in several state legislatures by so-called patriotic societies are unduly restrictive on the rights of teachers should read this contract which a teacher in a small North Carolina school had to sign before she could get a teaching job in that town:

"I promise to take a vital interest in all phases of Sunday school work, donating all my time, service and money without stint for the benefit and uplift of the community. I promise to abstain from all dancing, immodest dressing, and any other conduct unbecoming a teacher and a lady. I promise not to go out with any young man except in so far as it may be necessary to stimulate Sunday school work. I promise not to fall in love, to become engaged or secretly married.

"I promise to remain in the dormitory or on the school grounds when not actively engaged in school or church or elsewhere. I promise not to encourage or tolerate the least familiarity on the part of any of my boy pupils. I promise to sleep at least eight hours each night, to eat carefully, to take every precaution to keep in the best of health and spirits in order that I may be better able to render efficient service to my pupils. I promise to remember that I owe a duty to the townspeople who are paying me my wages; that I owe respect to the school board and to the superintendent who hired me; and that I shall consider myself at all times the willing servant of the school board and the townspeople and that I shall cooperate with them to the limit of my ability in any movement aimed at the betterment of the town, the pupils or the school."

Labor Puts Woodmansee On Springfield School Board

Springfield, Ill.—Backed by the Springfield Federation of Labor and affiliated unions, R. E. Woodmansee, publisher of the Illinois Tradesman, the official organ of the federation, was elected to the Springfield board of education. All union members and their families were urged to support Woodmansee, with the result that he was chosen by a tremendously large vote.

Union Label Okay Or Final Kayo?

The smartest thing for independent merchants of this nation to do is to co-operate with American labor unions.

Organized workers are a better class of regular customers than unorganized workers, because they are more permanent residents in a community.

Labor unionists work shorter hours for higher wages, and consequently have more money to spend and more time in which to spend it.

More than at any other time since their organization, members of labor unions are demanding the products and services of their brother unionists. They will naturally patronize firms that display the union label, shop card and button.

Labor unionists have absolutely nothing in common with owners of chain stores, mail order houses and other non-unionized concerns that sell cheap foreign-made goods and the unfair products of chiseling and sweated industries of our own country.

Organized labor fully realizes that lower wages, longer hours and unemployment are caused by these monopolized, super-business concerns.

The local merchant has far more opportunity to increase his sales if he recognizes labor unions and sells union label merchandise. He at once eliminates cut-throat competition and price-cutting methods of chain stores and mail order houses. He will also pass prosperity around by keeping the money in the locality.

Co-operation with labor unions is the only hope for the independent merchant.

Small business should open its eqes before big business gives it the gong!

It's the union label "O. K." or the final "K. O."

KENTUCKY PACKING CONCERN IS HELD UNFAIR TO LABOR

Lexington, Ky. — The Lexington Central Labor Union and the Lexington Building Trades Council have circularized central labor bodies and Meat Cutters' local unions throughout the United States that the products of the Kentucky Independent Packing company, whose plant is located here, are unfair to organized labor.

Hosiery Workers Reduce Work Week to 45 Hours

Elizabeth City, N. C.—The Hosiery Workers' union here voted to return to work in the Elizabeth City Hosiery mills on the basis of a 45-hour week and the same piece rate scale which prevailed prior to the strike which was called when the management increased the length of the work week to 50 hours and no increase in pay.

The mill management agreed to compromise the dispute by reducing the work week from 50 to 45 hours, which the workers were urged to accept by a mediation board composed of Federal Conciliator John L. Conner, of Washington, Mayor J. B. Flora, Sheriff Carmine and a member of the police commission.

for two days. We could have made $250,000 out of that strike."

When the actual strike came this year an effort was made to use the Berghoff plan. But the workers and the people had learned all out the matter, and their resentment flamed so high that there was no getting away from it. Former Mayor Sparks tried to get a "Law and Order league;" men who would sign an agreement to "help us gang up for law and order, and tell outside agitators to get the hell out of this."

The scheme didn't work, and the strike was settled pretty much on the strikers' terms. But not until one Akron newspaper had warned the public in a front page editorial that Akron had "no room for vigilantes."

Children Gassed in Strike

Federal Laboratories, Blankensorn said, furnished the tear gas for the Republic steel strike at Canton. School children were gassed on that occasion, and corporation lawyers, some of them members of the Liberty league, defended such actions.

Robert E. Watts, assistant general counsel for the NLRB, told how the corporations "ganged up" to keep the board so busy with injunction suits that it could not do its work. Sixty-two suits, all drawn on the Liberty league model, were brought to enjoin the board in 21 districts. Of these, 34 have been decided in favor of the board, and 12 against it. Of the 12 5 were made by Judge Geiger, of the Wisconsin district, a notorious reactionary, and 3 by Judge Woodward, of Illinois, not so notorious, but apparently of the same mind. Four cases have been appealed to the Federal circuit courts, one of these is still pending and the other three have been decided in favor of the board.

Watts told some things about the famous Bradley Lumber company case which were overlooked in the first accounts. This is the case in which the company got an injunction from a county judge, and the representative of the NLRB adjourned the hearing to New Orleans, and took a bus load of witnesses with him. The Bradley company was working its men 40 hours a week under the lumber code when the supreme court knocked out NRA. Within three days the Bradley company raised hours to 60 a week and cut wages at the same time.

In spite of this constant harassment, Watts added, the board has taken up 870 cases, decided 476 of them, and issued about 200 complaints of the same general kind that were served on the Bradley company.

MORE ABOUT McCANN

prevented from using their rights given by the constitutional government perfect freedom does not exist.

Fundamentally we say no one has a right to deny his employes a privilege that he himself enjoys—the right to organize. Labor and capital are necessary for the continuation of our present system of industry, each being equally essential. The medium of exchange is also a necessary factor in the present system of industry and thus the employer is dependent upon his employes and the employes of others for the ultimate disposal of the product he manufactures. When the income of the employes for any reason is lessened the manufacturer finds the demand for his product correspondingly lessened. When this happens capital and labor alike suffer and social effects demoralize. People are compelled to lessen their power of consumption. They enjoy less of the comforts and luxuries of life and education is restricted. Thus poverty becomes the normal condition of a large portion of mankind.

Organized labor has contended that a more equal distribution of profits, a shortening of the work day and week, with child labor laws and adequate old age pension laws will greatly remedy this situation. These may be brought about by collective bargaining for more equal distribution of profits, and lessening of work hours, legislation to prevent children from being exploited in industry and legislation for the provision of old age pensions.

This country as well as foreign countries have suffered the effects of panics and so-called depressions. Labor has contended that this may be overcome by a more equal and steady flow from the manufacturer to the consumer. This can be brought about by increasing the purchasing power of the worker so that he will be able to turn to purchase his pro rata portion of that which he helped to produce. This can be accomplished only by complete organization of workers, which is rapidly taking place.

Workers of the southland especially are more union conscious at this time than ever before. Trade unionists everywhere should preach the gospel of organization and assist the unorganized worker in every way possible, for in this manner we may achieve organized labor's ultimate goal. Organized labor came through the late depression scarred but intact. The depression taught us a lesson, it taught us not to expect things to be handed us on a silver platter, it taught us to fight for our rights. Labor day has survived the depression. We are better entrenched, better prepared, not only to battle for existence, but to further our policies.

MORE ABOUT CAPITOL CITY

Workers, and M. F. Nicholson, Machinists, being named as alternates, Miss Lynn and Mr. Nicholson being tied for honors.

Mr. Clark, financial secretary of the Nashville Trades and Labor Council, a member of the Painters' union, has been honored for many years in the labor movement. He is a veteran unionist, being the oldest living member of the Nashville Trades and Labor Council, also member of the Davidson county court, a member of the Tennessee legisature and numerous other official titles, all of which our own "Punch" wears with dignity, and never fails to raise his voice in the interest of those he loves so dearly and represents so capably.

John W. Caudle, financial secretary of Barbers' union No. 35, and sergeant-at-arms of the Nashville Trades and Labor Council, is also a veteran unionist. Through his activities his organization keeps in the march of progress and is numbered as one of the outstanding locals of the city. John is an orator of no mean ability. While he does not claim to be a "silver tongue," yet when he arises to speak he commands attention and always has something worth-while to say. He will be heard, we predict, on more than one occasion during the meetings of the state convention. John will make the trip to Chattanooga on the railroad. For further information ask him about it personally.

Gerald Foley, president of the Nashville Building Trades Council, business agent of the Plumbers' union, and also chief executive of the Tennessee State Association of Plumbers, Steamfitters and Allied Crafts, like the other Nashville delegates, hardly needs an introduction. He has attended conventions of the Tennessee Federation of Labor for many years, and is always on the job and laboring for the interests of the organized workers of the state. His administration as president of the Nashville Building Trades council has put this organization forth as a leader, and while he prefers to negotiate with employers on a friendly basis, and usually does, yet if the occasion arises, Gerald can be just as hard as the next one. Mr. Foley is a tried and true unionist, well-equipped to represent his organization at all times.

Yes, the Nashville Trades and Labor Council will beard from at the Chattanooga convention of the State Federation of Labor.

Scores Industry for Failure to Fully Aid Recovery, at Meeting for Herbert Morrison, British Labor Party Leader.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking as chairman of a meeting held here in honor of Herbert Morrison, labor party member of the British parliament, charged American industrial leaders with failure to lend full co-operation toward solving the unemployment problem.

Mr. Green said that, although industrial leaders still resist introduction of the six-hour day and five-day week, he believes that such a denouement is near at hand.

Mr. Morrison, who, besides being a member of the British parliament, is also chairman of the London County council, spoke in behalf of the League of Nations and the formation of labor political parties by the wage-earners of all nations.

Labor Governments Urged.

He said that the League of Nations is the only great potential, workable agency to enforce peace in the world today. Its imperfections are but reflections of the imperfections of the governments making up its assembly and council, he said, and he advocated the substitution of working class governments in order to make the league function fully and effectively for peace.

He deplored the weakness shown by the League of Nations in handling the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, and censured the present British and French governments for their lack of firmness.

No Immediate War Danger.

He said that he believes there is no immediate danger of a war between major powers, but that there is a prospect of another great war within from three to five years.

Mr. Morrison has been mentioned as the probable next premier of Great Britain in the event that the labor party comes back into power in England.

AUTO WORKERS OPEN SECOND CONVENTION

South Bend Meeting Will Consider Low Wages Paid in Motor Vehicle Industry.

South Bend, Ind.—By direction of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor the second convention of the international union, United Automobile Workers of America met in convention here on April 27 in the Jefferson Plaza grand ballroom.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, attended the convention.

The union was chartered by the Executive Council in August, 1935, with jurisdiction embracing "all employes directly engaged in the manufacture of parts (not including tools, dies and machinery) and assembling of those parts into completed automobiles but not including job or contract shops manufacturing parts or any other employe engaged in said automobile production." American Federation of Labor officials claim that under this jurisdiction 98 per cent of those employed in the automobile production industry are eligible to membership in the international union.

The call for the convention was issued by General President F. J. Dillon and General Secretary-Treasurer Ed Hall.

Among the purposes of the convention the call included the following: "This convention is convened for the purpose of electing all international officers, terminating the probationary period of control, together with the consideration of other business which may legally and properly be submitted to the convention."

It was expected that the convention would give serious consideration to the report on the automobile industry recently published by the United States department of labor. This study is entitled "Wages, Hours, Employment and Annual Earnings in the Motor Vehicle Industry, 1934," and appears in the Monthly Labor Review for March, 1936. The following findings are made:

"Workers in the motor vehicle industry, including both automobile and automotive parts plants, earned an average of approximately 75 cents an hour during 1934. Their annual earnings from individual plants, however, averaged less than $900. One-third of the motor vehicle employes worked throughout the year. One-fourth of the employes had less than six months work; another quarter worked six to ten months."

It was also found that "The women in automotive parts plants earned an average of $615 outside of Michigan, $507 in Detroit, and $514 in Michigan plants outside of Detroit."

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Magazine of Rich Brands U.S. Steel Ruthless Union Wrecker

Organization Founded By Elder Morgan Grinds Down Workers in Defiance of American Principles, Magazine Article Declares

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Fortune, the de luxe magazine which costs a dollar a throw, prints in its current issue an article on the labor policy of the United States Steel corporation which will be long remembered and quoted —if the steel corporation lasts.

The article is at once a blue print and a picture; and ranks high on both counts. The blue print is found in the mass of facts and figures. The picture is in the writing which makes you fairly see the steel workers coming from their unlovely homes and filling the grimy streets on their way to work. But the most revealing fact and utterance in the article, the thing which gives in a sentence the mental measure of the managers of the steel trust, is that those managers count the building of comfort stations and urinals as "social welfare work."

Men who could do that may be expected to fall over their own feet in entering the Pearly Gates.

Employes Outnumber Strength of U. S. Army.

"In 1935," says the article in beginning, "the United States army had a strength of 138,000 men. That was some 60,000 men fewer than the number of people who worked for the U. S. Steel corporation in the same year. And 1935, you will remember, was no big year for steel. A big year was 1920, when the corporation had on its payroll some 267,000 workers. That figure, too, put the U. S. army in the shade; it was greater by some 70,000 than what remained of the country's armed forces two years after the World war had ended."

More kinds of men than steel workers work for U. S. Steel. The Fortune article lists "electricians, bricklayers, watchmen, spies, nurses, storekeepers, rent collectors—all go to make up the corporation's immense and elastic payroll."

Payroll Shown In Wide Swings.

"Elastic payroll" is right. In the first year of its existence, the steel trust had 168,000 men. The number in succeeding years ranged between 147,000 and 270,000. At present, about 196,000 men are on the company's books—but only 77,000 are working full time. And when the members were highest, the steel trust was working men 12 hours a day, with from 18 to 24 hours on the

Jno. Hatcher Heads Tennessee State Painters' Conference

John Hatcher, Memphis, was elected president of the Tennessee State Painters' Conference at their annual meeting Sunday afternoon in the Hotel Patten, Chattanooga. Z. O. Hawks, Jackson, was elected vice-president, and T. O. Denham, Nashville, was elected as secretary for the third time, having held this office since the formation of the Conference three years ago.

The meeting of the Conference was well attended, and a large amount of business pertinent to this calling was transacted.

During the sessions, R. S. McCann, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor; C. C. Arthur, secretary-treasurer of the state body; W. G. Parkes, of Nashville, president of the Master Painters' State Council, and regional vice-president of the International Society of Master Painters, and O. S. Tislow, southern organizer of the Painters' International Union, made appropriate addresses.

Cooperation between the employers, employes and the public was stressed, and a resolution was adopted providing for federal and state legislation for the protection of the painting industry.

RIGHT TO PICKET IS ASSERTED BY FEDERATIONISTS

Rockwood Strikers Told by Convention Delegates to Conduct Legal Strike.

Management Urged to Meet at Conference Table to Adjust Differences—Conference Arranged for Afternoon With Labor Officials.

Acting in accord with a resolution adopted Wednesday, the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention convened in Rockwood Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to re-establish the right of peaceful picketing in Tennessee. This action was taken after notice had been served by a "vigilante" committee that picketing must cease and that "outsiders" must not come into the strike-torn town.

Outside of jeering and cat calls from the scabs in the mill, there was no disorder. Strikers were told by various speakers that the American Federation of Labor did not sanction violence, but that it was equally determined that the policy of southern mill owners in kidnaping, destroying picket line with guns and tear gas and other un-American activities would be opposed energetically.

Delegates and speakers, who had addressed the convention at Chattanooga this week, gathered at the home of Jim Hinds, who had taken a lead in the strike, and urged a crowd of some 400 strikers and citizens to be peaceful in their picketing and to beware of Communists, who were seeking "to disrupt your organization and thwart your plans."

Led by Capt. R. H. Thompson, chairman of the newly organized Vigilance Committee, the delegates from Chattanooga were met on the edge of town by a large crowd of strikers and citizens. Approximately twenty cars arrived.

OLD SOUTH BEER PERFORMED NOBLY

Delegates and visitors to the federation convention went away from Chattanooga with many pleasant recollections. One of these pleasures was the feature supplied by makers of Old South beer. On Monday afternoon, as the visitors were returning from the mountain sightseeing tour, the brewery escorted the unionists through its modern plant. After the inspection was made, a specially prepared sandwich and beer supper awaited them in the basement.

Not only that—from the beginning of the convention until the last hours the brewery provided a taproom where beer was served as a complimentary gesture of friendship.

Demand Made That Col. Harry Berry Be Removed From Office—Ask Continuance of WPA.

The Tennessee Federation of Labor, after a fiery word battle between advocates of craft and industrial unions comparable to that of the American Federation of Labor convention last year, Wednesday went on record in favor of the industrial type of organization.

Only after two hours of heated debate, in which industrial unionists were led by William Turnblazer, president of District 19, United Mine Workers of America, was a resolution petitioning the American Federation passed.

The resolution called attention to the fact that out of 39,000,000 potential union members in the country, only 3,500,00ᴜ were organized in the American Federation of Labor. It asserted that "the time has arrived when common sense demands a change in the original policies of the A. F. of L. Instead of craft unions, it added, "industrial organization is the only solution." It declared that industrial unionization did not propose to take away from the craft unions' membership.

Ringing Plea

In a ringing plea for his resolution, Turnblazer shouted that "I'm speaking for the unorganized workers of America, for those plants around Chattanooga that are denied the right to

The picture is sponsored by the I. W. O. Social club, and it comes highly recommended by New York critics both for its authentic historical treatment and its artistic merit.

Among the critics who acclaim Chapayeu as a cinema masterpiece is Walter Winchell, who says he sat "through the show three times to catch the love scene;" and Andre Sennwald, of the New York Times, who says it "makes its detonating appeal to the emotions . . . a walloping military drama."

Industry's Being Is Based Upon Human Happiness

George L. Berry Rouses Delegates When He Declares War on Selfishness and Greed.

First Day's Session of Convention Honored by Prominent Speakers Who Strike Keynote—Rockwood Kidnaping Must Be Punished.

Opening the first day's session of the 39th annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor Monday morning at 10:30 in the Patten ballroom, the largest group of delegates yet assembled indicated that organized labor of Tennessee is on its toes.

The convention was officially welcomed to Chattanooga in behalf of local labor through its president of the Central Body, Joe Dobbs, who in turn called for invocation to God by Rev. Sherrer. Our own "Bob" Cooke, city commissioner, made a very beautiful and earnest welcome on behalf of the city government, stepping immediately out of the role of city official into his more familiar characteristic as an old-time warrior in labor's ranks.

Thomas McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, sent thrills down the backs of his listeners when he dramatically told the state movement that the textile workers of the south intended to push on and on, and no matter what the resistance might be, they will never lose sight of their goal of more happiness for the toilers in the industry which he represented.

The real excitement of the morning session came when Major George L. Berry, international president of the Pressmen's union, made a bold declaration on behalf of labor for the humanitarian program sponsored by Franklin D. Roosevelt. Flaying the Liberty league, the "grass-rooters" and others of that stripe, the scrappy major in ringing terms said that the country shall not be returned to the old regime of piracy in business and industry that existed up to 1932.

"Industry has only one reason for existence," the nationally known Tennessean said, "and that is to make human life happier and easier." Prolonged applause greeted his personal declaration of loyalty to President Roosevelt. The major in a hushed tone told the delegates that in order to fully serve President Roosevelt he had passed by an opportunity to realize a long-cherished ambition to become governor of his state. He declared that re-election of Roosevelt took precedence over anything else in his life, and that he, along with thousands of other labor leaders and rank-and-file would not wait until election day to battle the Liberty league, but would carry the fight to them.

Mr. W. L. Kilcoin, personal representative of Secretary of Labor Perkins, brought a prepared message from her to the convention.

John A. Peel, well known in local circles, and vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, greeted the assembly, calling attention to the bloated salaries which various captains of industry extracted from corporations at the expense of their half-starved employes.

William Turnblazer, president District 19, United Mine Workers of America, in deadly tones, with jaw set, declared that "this kidnaping in Tennessee must cease," and presented a resolution to be forwarded to Gov. McAllister calling on him to offer a substantial reward for the arrest and conviction of guilty parties. The governor was told that the convention would await his reply to their demand while in session here. Mr. Turnblazer recited that the outrage just perpetrated against Matt Lynch in Rockwood, Tenn., was not the first instance of Tennessee employers to beat down unionization, and also called attention that none of these perpetrations had ever been punished and that the time has come when punishment must be meted out.

President McCann named the credentials and resolutions committee, the remaining committees to be named the following morning. There was no afternoon session, the delegates and visitors for the most part taking an automobile tour of Lookout mountain, winding up later at the Old South brewery. The management showed the visitors through their plant, and finally spread before them a splendid array of sandwiches and cold beer.

Truly, the first day's session of the 39th convention was a success, everyone seeming to have enjoyed themselves immensely.

FUN AND FROLIC HITS HIGH SPOTS TUESDAY NIGHT

Floor Show, Food, Wisecracks, Regale Delegates and Visitors to Convention.

WAS HESTER'S FACE RED!

Tuesday night was the time for the "playground of the federation" to hold full sway when some 250 delegates and visitors to the 39th annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor put their feet under the banquet tables in the main ball room of the Patten. Central Labor Union of Chattanooga was the host, and from comment heard the next day it seems that the affair was eminently successful.

Chattanooga worked hard to prepare an entertainment feature for its guests that would justify the pride which Lookouteers have in their home town. Old George Forbes (the "old" does not indicate age, but rather intimate respect) was the toastmaster. You know George. He's a show by himself when he's "right". He was "right" Tuesday evening. Immediately after the guests demolished the menu which the Patten's steward is famous for, Fire Marshal Hester's conscience burned him. Being a good marshal, he immediately ran down the source of the fire and exposed the 'firebug." No one was injured, although for a moment it looked serious.

All during the dinner Ellis Goodloe's orchestra tantalized the diners' rhythmic senses by playing a brand of "hot" tunes that kept feet tapping and shoulders swaying like the line in a minstrel show. The Goodloe brand of music makes mummies throw off their wrappings.

The post office quartet, composed of Walter Massey, W. C. Carter, W. W. Gross and Harold White, contributed with several selections that demanded encores.

When the last bit of Mother's cake, which was donated as a courtesy to the guests by the Union Baking Company, had been properly disposed of, tables were removed for as fine a floor show as any convention could view. Troxler-Martin, composed of local talent, clicked through their acts with a precision and accomplishment that satisfied the most particular patron of the theater. "Little Mutt" Ayres, son of "Big Mutt" Ayres, a motion picture unionist, was the hit of the evening with his singing. The little fellow, dressed in snappy looking white flannel and blue coat, stole the hearts of everyone with his remarkable voice.

George Roger's orchestra supplied the music for the floor show and special numbers as a courtesy to the labor movement. After the show Goodloe's music-makers played for about an hour as his bow to the convention, while dance-loving couples tripped about.

Comment heard from all sides indicate that, as far as entertaining goes, Chattanooga did very well.

"Machine Politics Cannot Be Tolerated," Delegates Shout as McCann Is Re-Elected by Acclamation.

Cuthbert and Clark Named Secretary and Legislative Chairman, Respectively, as 39th Convention Closes Wednesday—Largest Ever Held—Jackson Gets Next Meet.

The dictatorial hand of boss rule about the throat of the Tennessee labor movement was rudely thrust aside Wednesday afternoon in the closing hours of the thirty-ninth convention of the federation when R. S. McCann, of Memphis, was declared re-elected to the presidency without opposition by 168 wildly cheering labor representatives. In nominating McCann, D. S. Long, Johnson City, declared that the incumbent president had so far successfully withstood all sorts of persecution from Boss Crump, who was seeking to punish the courageous labor chief because certain "instructions" had not been heeded.

William Turnblazer, in seconding the nomination, said that "it is time all political machines must realize that labor is of average intelligence, that the federation reserves the right to name its own officers, pursue its own programs and be its own master. Let this convention here and now serve notice to any political power that organized labor of Tennessee must and will oppose any attempt to encroach upon its freedom and independence."

So culminated a bitter struggle extending over several months, during which time the labor movement watched with bated breath the attempt to remove McCann first as business agent of his local union, then as president of the Memphis Central Labor Union. Action of the convention, particularly the way it was taken, was a sharp ultimatum to all political machines that labor of Tennessee will remain free from outside dominance.

A. C. Kamin of Chattanooga was re-elected for his third term to serve as a member of the executive board for this district.

W. C. ("Punch") Clark of Nashville was selected as chairman of the legislative committee.

Jackson, Tennessee, was selected for the next convention city.

AUTO WORKERS REPORT 40,000 MEMBERS AS CONVENTION OPENS

Union Has Signed Agreements With 21 Plants, President Dillon Tells Delegates—Wages Increase But Lag Behind Manufacturers' Profit Gains, He Says

South Bend, Ind.—F. J. Dillon, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, told the second convention of that body in his opening speech that the union now has 40,000 members, and has signed agreements with twenty-one plants.

The convention learned also that the American Federation of Labor had spent $31,871 in maintaining its Detroit office to help and co-operate with the offices of the United Automobile Workers. This expenditure, Dillon told the gathering, "has made it possible for the internation union (U. A. W. A.) to assemble in this convention with a substantial reserve fund in its treasury."

Wage payments in the automobile and parts industry increased 32 per cent last year over those of 1934, Dillon said. But in the same time, net profits of the auto companies had increased 148 per cent. Capital still has a disproportionate share of the rewards of industry. Also, the heads of auto companies are not forgetting their own personal pocketbooks. Some of these officials, Dillon declared, are getting more than $200,000 a year.

"The annual wages of automobile workers, according to the only accurate figures available, those of the United States bureau of labor statistics, were less than $900 in 1934. In the parts plants, the average worker made about $775 in the year.

"Women factory workers average about $560 per year in the main auto plants, and only $464 yer year in the parts plants."

Part of this low yearly earning is due to part time employment, for the auto industry is the worst large business in the world for speeding up for a few weeks or months, and then laying off its workers. But a part is due to the other fact that auto wages never were as high as the public imagined, and have been drastically reduced in the depression.

A. F. of L. Control Relinquished.

Homer W. Martin, Kansas City, was elected temporary chairman unanimously after William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, formally relinquished control of the union to its 250 delegates.

Green recommended that permanent officers be chosen as soon as possible to succeed those he appointed tentatively shortly after the union was chartered. He advised prompt action "to clear the air" of intrenal differences.

Green critized organization insurgents before giving convention delegates complete control of the union of nearly 40,000 automobile workers.

Foley President State Plumbers

Gerald Foley of Nashville was elected president of the Tennessee State Association of Plumbers, Steamfitters and Allied Crafts at the annual meeting of this organization held in Chattanooga last Sunday. H. H. Kelly, Chattanooga, was elected vice-president, and Pat Hackett, Memphis, was the choice of the body for secretary-treasurer.

Tentative plans were outlined for work to be accomplished during the ensuing year.

Addresses were delivered by international representatives and state officials who were visiting the convention city.

Labor's Control of New Zealand

The first session of the New Zealand parliament under control of the organized workers, following labor's victory in the parliamentary elections, has made a vigorous beginning toward carrying out labor's campaign pledges to scrap the subversive policy of the former tory government and stimulate recovery by improving the economic conditions of the New Zealand masses.

One of the first measures introduced in parliament by the labor cabinet of Prime Minister Walter Savage was a sweeping bill affecting the hours, wages and working conditions of New Zealand toilers.

The measure requires the arbitration court to fix basic wages for both men and women workers in all industries covered by industrial agreements on a basis that must provide a reasonable standard of comfort for a family consisting of a man with a wife and two children and establishes the 40-hour week for all industries except where the court regards this as impracticable. Parties to existing agreements are given the right to apply for a reduction of their hours to 40 weekly. With regard to workers who do not come within the jurisdiction of the arbitration court, special measures will be provided to standardize their wages and hours according to the plan provided for other workers. Saturday work will be eliminated wherever possible.

Abolishing the former anti-labor government's policy of victimizing unemployed workers on relief with sub-standard wages and part-time work, the bill provides that all awards and agreements shall be applicable to relief workers, which gives them full-time employment at standard rates.

The measure also provides for preference for union members in filling jobs, with a definite provision which makes impossible the registration of bogus unions set up to defeat bona fide labor organizations. The government has already applied this union preference rule in connection with public works by issuing an order that every employe on a public works job must be a member of the New Zealand Workers' union, with authority given the union to police all jobs in order to see that the men get a square deal.

In accordance with the policy of the New Zealand organized workers, the government has re-established the principle of compulsory arbitration abolished by the recent anti-labor government, with the stipulation that all disputes on which no agreement is reached by the conciliation council will be referred automatically to the arbitration court for final decision.

The labor government has also introduced a bill making the administration of the state railway system a direct government responsibility, thus abolishing the railways board.

The New Zealand labor parliament was democratically elected by the voters with a mandate to secure for New Zealand workers and the people generally those inherent rights so long denied them by the anti-labor employer interests whose plan, enforced by their control of the government, has been maximum profits for those who own and operate industry regardless of the injustice imposed by this subversive policy upon the working industrial and agricultural masses of New Zealand. Working men and women in other countries will watch with interest the policies adopted by the New Zealand government, under direction of the parliament, to carry out the mandate.

When a man has but one chance out of a million, he is frequently so egotistical on the subject of his own luck that he thinks he has a real shot as a winner.

It is a day to mark on the calendar when the big dollar magazine, Fortune, comes through with an expose of U. S. Steel corporation labor policies that lays the whole dirty mess as bare as any labor paper could wish and much more completely than any labor paper could do.

That is what has happened. Fortune, the most pretentious and bulky of all our magazines, looking like the very essence of Wall Street, surely has taken U. S. Steel for a grand old buggy ride. International Labor News Service has very properly reported this to the labor press as real news. It looks as if U. S. Steel had somehow got separated from the good old herd of sacred cows. Fortune sicked a whole flock of investigators onto U. S. Steel and it came through with a red hot expose. Read it, all, if you can get a copy of Fortune.

Is labor in politics this year? It most surely is, but it isn't going to be led around by the nose. It is going to maintain its independence and make its votes felt where they will do most good.

The American labor movement will weigh the record of every candidate and those who have been unfaithful are going to get the shock of their lives.

A number of members of congress are marked for the scrap heap, where they belong. Washington is no longer a place for playboys. It is a place for the most serious kind of work in the interests of the people. Nonpartisan action makes possible the defeat of the unfaithful. They cannot crawl into office under cover of a party label. Think that over, ladies and gentlemen.

While Venezuela moves somewhat toward liberalism in the election of Gen. Lopez to succeed the late dictator Gomez, Mexico seems to have jumped plop into the category of nations suffering from overbearing dictators. American labor cannot observe without pain the ruthlessness of Cardenas, elected to be president, but turned dictator under the slogan, "I am the law."

The protest of President Green is a magnificent thing. It is true to the long record of American labor in battling dictatorships. So, add Cardenas to the list which includes Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin. But the Cardenas adventure is doubly a danger because it is a partnership with communism. A communist regime south of the Rio Grande would give the United States something to think about. Yes, plenty!

What a Jonah the Liberty league has come to be! Its owners no longer know what to do with it—and neither do they know how to get rid of it. It must be tough to have a trinket like that around the place. A good deal like having a bear by the tail. Well, those who are doing the holding on might take the advice of the humorous Magnus Johnson and look the situation square in the face. And let them see what they see.

PAY ENVELOPES REFUTE MILL BOSS' ASSERTION

Figures Show Tennessee Workers Received Starvation Wages Before Strike and Disprove Testimony of National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers' Official Before House Labor Committee.

Rockwood, Tenn.—Testifying before the House Labor Committee on the Ellenbogen textile control bill recently Earl Constantine, executive director of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, stated that he knew of no cases where hosiery workers drew wages of less than $6 and $8 a week.

A random collection of pay envelopes from the employers of Rockwood Hosiery Mills, Rockwood, Tenn., drawn by the workers just prior to the present strike prove that wages have gone down to below $4 a week in some seamless mills.

These Rockwood pay envelopes tell a tragic story of the degraded conditions under which these workers had to salve. The names of those who drew these pays are omitted for obvious reasons.

Deductions for Flowers

The deductions for flowers evidently indicate that a fellow employe died and the worker was obliged to show his or her sympathy by contributing to the cost of a wreath.

Deductions presumably are not always for services but are in the nature of fines or penalties enforced by the employer for "bad" work.

Roller Bearing Manufacturer Ordered to End War on Union

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ordered the Rollway Bearing company, Syracuse, N. Y., manufacturer of roller bearings, to discontinue a fight waged against organization of its employes.

After a hearing in which charges were made by Federal Labor Union 19492, the NLRB directed the company to:

"Cease and desist from any refusal to bargain collectively with the union.

"Cease and desist from discouraging membership in the union and from in any manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employes in the exercise of their rights."

Speaking of the forgotten man, the depression doesn't seem to have forgotten anybody.

St. Louis Filling Station Employes Ask 48-Hour Week

St. Louis, Mo.—Picketing of three filling stations operated by James O. Sampson was inaugurated by members of the Gasoline Service Warehouse Employes' union here as a persuasive measure in their demand for a working week of six eight-hour days with wages ranging from $95 to $110 a month.

Union officials said that they had been working between eight and nine hours a day and seven days a week. Sampson not only refused to sign an agreement with the union, but discharged seven employes at two stations. He said acceptance of the union's demand would require the hiring of additional attendants, and he just couldn't stand the expense.

Hubby—The bank has returned that check.

Wife—Isn't that splendid! What can we buy with it this time?

Machinists Make Imposing Gains

Contracts Negotiated With Employers in Five States. Wages Up, Hours Down.

Another imposing array of union agreements has just been negotiated by the Machinists' Union with employers in various industries in five different states, according to reports received this week at the organization's general office in Washington.

At San Francisco, Business Agent George C. Castleman signed a pact with the Building Material Dealers' Association, establishing an $8 a day minimum wage and a 35-hour week for automobile mechanics.

Castleman's report said the Draymen's Association is now the only large San Francisco industry which is not covered by an agreement for auto mechanics. Negotiations are about ready to start with it, he reported.

Signs Up Packers

Across the bay, in Oakland, Business Agent S. M. Jacobs negotiated an agreement with the Alaska Packers' Association providing a 90-cent hourly rate for machinists in the association's shop there and a seasonal salary for men employed in Alaska.

An increase of 5 cents an hour was granted by the agreement negotiated with the H. B. Price Boiler Works and the Hans Hansen Welding company, Toledo, by Business Agent A. M. Jurrus of that city.

In Philadelphia, Business Agent Charles Sehl secured an agreement with the Cuneo Eastern Press, Inc., for a 4-cent hourly raise now and 4 cents more at a later date. In the same city, Business Agent D. Davis negotiated a pact raising wages and establishing the 40-hour week at the Laneko Engineering company.

Hours Cut, Wages Boosted

Negotiations conducted between Business Agent Elmer E. Walker and the Key company, East St. Louis, Ill., ended in establishing the 40-hour week and wage raises ranging from 3 cents to 15 cents an hour.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What led to the formation of the New York State Federation of Labor?

A.—A fight against an anti-strike bill introduced in the state senate in 1864 led to the formation of the federation, then known as the State Workingmen's Assembly. The organization had its first convention in 1865, many of the delegates being Civil war veterans.

Q.—Were painters active in the early labor movement?

A.—Yes. They were active in the Knights of Labor from the beginning, but were among the first to break away from that organization and form a craft union. It was organized at Baltimore on March 15, 1887.

CHICAGO UNION WORKERS FORM BIG MIXED CHORUS

Chicago.—Emulating the successful International Ladies' Garment Workers' union's mixed chorus of 150 voices in New York City, which recently gave a concert at the New York Town hall, the Chicago joint board of the same union has set up a mixed chorus with seventy-five voices under the baton of Ben Pollock. The chorus, in special costumes carrying the union insignia, has participated in union meetings and demonstrations. A full program of songs for the May day demonstration of the union was given.

Federal Trade Board Floors Business Critic by Citing Record of Court Victories

Washington.—Stephen M. du Brul, one of the officials of General Motors, knows how to sympathize with the boy who tickled a mule's heels to see what the mule would do. He reported to the doctor and nurse that, "anyway, I found out;" and so did Mr. du Brul.

In a speech before an audience of more or less big business men, Mr. du Brul "went after" the federal trade commission. He denounced its investigators as meddling, and said:

"The fact that the commission has lost so many cases on appeal to the courts speaks for itself."

The FTC replied in an open letter to Mr. du Brul that its record in the matter of cases carried to the courts "does speak for itself."

"From Jan. 1, 1933, to date, thirty-one of the commission's orders have been taken to various circuit courts. The commission was affirmed in twenty-nine and reversed in two of these cases in the circuit court of appeals, but in the two cases in which the commission's orders were not sustained by the circuit courts of appeals, those courts were themselves reversed by the supreme court of the United States and the commission upheld. One case in which a circuit court of appeals sustained the commission was reversed by the supreme court.

"The net result is that in thirty-one commission cases taken to the higher courts, the commission has ultimately lost only one. That was by a 5-to-4 decision by the supreme court in a Section 7 Clayton act case not involving any trade association question, in which the circuit court of appeals had affirmed the commission."

Mr. du Brul has not yet answered the FTC's letter. The FTC doesn't expect that he ever will answer it.

REALSILK COMPANY UNION SIGNS 50-HOUR WEEK PACT

Indianapolis, Ind.—If evidence were hitherto lacking that the Realsilk Hosiery Mills' company union, here, formerly called the Employes' Mutual Benefit association but now masquerading under the euphonious name of the Workers' Co-operative union, is completely dominated by the mill officials it was made apparent by the announcement of an "agreement" under which the employes agree to work 50 hours per week despite the fact that the standard in the industry is 40 hours.

Employes will be paid time and one-half for overtime in excess of the 50 hours with the provision that time and one-half will be paid for overtime in excess of 40 hours only when it amounts to 90 excess hours in a six-month period. It also authorizes Saturday and Sunday work by providing for overtime from Saturday midnight to Sunday midnight.

Officials of the local union of the Federation of Hosiery Workers pointed out that under the agreement the company can work every employe an extra 10 hours a week without overtime rates provided it doesn't chisel more than 90 hours overtime in any six months.

'Tis easy enough to be brave and gay
When sunshine is flooding your pleasant way;
'Tis harder to smile when the clouds are black,
And heavy the cross on your aching back.
But sweeter the sunshine, after the rain,
And sweeter life's joy when it comes again;
After the grief and the toil and the tears.
After tomorrow, the happier years!

After having that extension telephone put in the bathroom, it only rings when we are out mowing the lawn.

Convention personalities among the ladies: Mrs. C. C. Arthur, of Knoxville, possesses a most pleasing quiet charm . . . Mrs. J. O. Nevill, of Nashville, is getting to be a convention "regular," and always makes a good addition to the crowd . . . It will take a long time, though, for anybody to beat the record of our own Mrs. Bob Cooke for attending conventions. "Cookie" has attended twenty-two conventions of the Tennessee Federation of Labor in the last twenty-three years . . . It's easy to understand, now, why the cosmetic workers in Memphis won that strike, after meeting Miss Helen Murray, their delegate. She's one of those broad-shouldered, good-looking "gals" who could hold her own in any scrap. And you should hear her sing "Dinah." (No, I can't guarantee that the song helped win the strike.)

Speaking of cosmetics—had a letter the other day from the Indiana State America. It is the American Chemical and Cosmetic company, and they manufacture the "Artisan" line of Federation of Labor about the only 100 per cent union-made cosmetics in cosmetics and the "Brisbane" line of barber supplies. Haven't found any in Chattanooga yet, but the Label league will get busy on that.

Had more lady delegates and visitors than ever before at a state convention. Our own textile locals were represented by Miss Ina Green, Mrs. Charles Puckett, Mrs. Myrtle Smelley and Miss Edna Brown.

You missed a treat if you failed to attend the luncheon that the Label league gave for the visiting ladies at the Signal Mountain hotel. There were 49 ladies present, and everyone of them seemed to be enjoying herself.

Sorry, but the editor has applied the blue pencil to all the nice gossipy items about the convention—better plan to go to Jackson next year so you won't miss anything.

Doll Makers Win 2-Day Wage Increase Walkout

Clinton, Mass.—Several hundred employes of the Freundlich company here, under the leadership of Doll Makers' Local Union No. 20020, won a good wage increase and other demands following a 48-hour strike. Although company officials were reluctant to sign a contract recognizing the union, they consented to negotiate an agreement with a committee representing the employes, which the union regarded as an advance in the interest of collective bargaining.

Under the agreement knockers and elastic men were given a 10 per cent wage increase. Joiners were awarded an increase of 4 cents on painted eyes in heads, 5 cents on moving eyes, and a 10 per cent increase on arms. Joiners on day work will be paid 45 cents an hour, and will join 144 to a gross with ban on repairing rejects.

Other provisions in the agreement provide that time and one-half must be paid for all work over 48 hours, with no overtime unless agreed to by the joiners, and no discrimination against any worker who participated in the strike.

In addition to the specific terms of the agreement union officials were elated at the dismissal of one boss, imported from New York, who was not only abusive but insulting in his remarks to employes in his department.

Confronted with the achievement of the strike under union auspices, the employes enrolled in the union in large numbers with the prospect that before long every employe in the doll factory will carry a union card.

U. S. INCOME TAX RETURNS SHOW BIG GAINS OVER 1935

Washington.—Internal revenue collections for the first nine months of the present fiscal year have reached the unexpected height of $2,657,000,000. On the basis of these collections, estimates are made that Uncle Sam will collect a total of $3,540,000,000 by the time the fiscal year ends on June 30.

On the 9-month report, this year has gained $186,320,000 over the same period of 1935. What makes this gratifying increase all the more remarkable is the fact that processing taxes have dropped $334,504,000 in the same period.

Income taxes for the nine months brought in $1,040,207,294. This is an increase of more than $242,000,000 over the yield of income taxes in the first nine months of last year.

Liquor taxes brought over $369,000,000, a gain of just under $69,000,000 over the receipts from this source in the same period last year. Tobacco taxes were well over $368,000,000; a gain of $31,464,000. Cigarettes are responsible for most of this, bringing in $311,778,000, a gain of $30,000,000 over last year.

In view of the loud cries of anguish from corporation lawyers and overstuffed millionaires, three taxes are of special interest. The capital stock tax this year yielded just under $94,000,000, a gain of more than $3,000,000 over the receipts of the same period a year ago. Estate taxes produced $152,000,000, and practically one-third of the total sum was gain over the previous year. And the gift tax, which stops or at least makes difficult evasions of the income tax, and which money-bags never weary in cursing, yielded $154,751,457, a gain of $87,119,478.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BANQUET RESERVATIONS POURING IN

Miss Katherine Signaigo, of the entertainment committee, reports reservations for Saturday night's banquet are pouring in at a record clip. Excellent entertainment is being arranged, including a speaker of national game, Prof. Jesse H. Holmes, of Swarthmore college.

It is hoped that the overwhelming majority of federation members will be present at this crowning festivity of the local. We must show this town that everything the teachers do is done in a big way!

DIRECTORS SCORE REPRESSIVE LEGISLATION

The board of directors' meeting last Monday night resounded with denunciations of the Hearst-Red network crowd who are trying to squelch civil rights in this country. The board passed by an overwhelming majority a resolution condemning a law restricting the academic freedom of teachers in the District of Columbia. Teachers are not radical as a group, but they do refuse to be the dupes of reactionary and fascist-minded propagandists.

INDUSTRIAL POLICY WINS

In a Tennessee Federation convention marked by spirited discussions but concluded in a spirit of harmony, industrial unionism was indorsed as the best method of organizing the unorganized workers of the south. The A. F. of L. has stood for this policy for some time, so teachers may share in the sense of victory over the passage of the resolution.

What Next!

A new fruit converter is said to produce orange and lemon juice that can be mixed with milk to produce a combination that will not curdle. Heretofore it has been impossible to mix citrus-fruit juices and milk on a commercial scale and prevent curdling. The new converter does such a thorough job of pressing that virtually the entire fruit is converted to juice. Food scientists say that the addition of citrus fruit juices to milk speeds up its digestibility.

Wife (on honeymoon)—Do you remember our first meeting?

Hubby (a dentist)—Shall I ever forget it? That heavenly afternoon when we were together for two hours and I extracted two of your darling little teeth!

They say "money talks." Why not make it "speak" for the union label, shop card and button?

TEACHERS' FRIEND NEW SECRETARY

Another big victory for the teachers in the convention was the election as secretary-treasurer of Brother T. R. Cuthbert, than whom the teachers have no better friend in the labor movement.

STATEWIDE TENURE INDORSED

The federation's own resolution on tenure passed by unanimous vote. The movement for statewide tenure is fully launched, and it won't stop until every teacher in the state has the same freedom from meddling politicians that this city and county now enjoy.

MORE ABOUT ROCKWOOD

A motion that a committee be named to determine if a conference could be arranged with the mill owners was made by Robert Childers, secretary of District 19, United Mine Workers. Put to a vote by President R. L. McCann, it was unanimously carried.

Capt. Thompson Speaks

Among those to address the strikers was Captain Thompson himself, who was given a big hand, although jeers greeted some of his statements during his short talk.

"You are welcome so long as you conduct yourselves properly," he told the convention delegates, who had come with the avowed intention of resuming picketing at the mill, which had been stopped by armed guards Tuesday.

"The business men of Rockwood have decided that if you want to picket peacefully you may do so," he said, and was greeted by cheers. But it was jeers that followed his assertion that the kidnaping of Matt Lynch, Chattanooga union organizer, was a hoax. Captain Thompson also denied that "paid detectives" had dynamited the town's water main, declaring that the guilty parties were known.

Defends Mill Officials

Captain Thompson also defnded the mill officials and declared that Manager Jim Huff had expressed himself as in favor of an eight-hough day, but that competition would not permit it. The mill, he said, lost $58,000 last year.

Re-elected to head the labor federation only yesterday, McCann told the strikers that he had come to bring them a message of hope and the promise of all the assistance the American Federation of Labor can provide.

Declaring that this is a "crucial period" in the history of American labor, George Googe, southern representative of the A. F. of L., blamed the economic maladjustment and suffering in America on a "maladjustment of the nation's intelligence."

"The United States has passed laws prohibiting employers from interfering with the rights of workers to picket and bargain collectively. The Supreme Court has upheld peaceful picketing as legal and the workers have a right to resort to this weapon," Googe said.

Violence Not Condoned

"Violation of law and disorders will not be condoned by the American Federation of Labor. Strikes are resorted to only as a last resort," he declared.

Mr. Googe was the first to propose that a committee representing the unions involved, the state and federal government, mill owners, the mayor and sheriff meet and seek a satisfactory settlement of the "chaotic and tragic situation."

Joe Timko, representative of the United Mine Workers, sounded the worning against the "chiseling in" of Communists.

"The A. F. of L. does not tolerate Communism and has long been the bulwark against Communism and Fascism," he declared.

Franz Daniels, organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, denied that the strike was caused by outsiders and urged that efforts to arrange a conference be made.

Meanwhile, the mill was operating at full force with armed guards at the gates.

MORE ABOUT U. S. STEEL

change of shifts.

The labor problem of the corporation is staggering, says the article, but—

"The corporation's attitude toward the problem is perhaps more staggering still. For the corporation's attitude toward the problem is that there isn't any problem."

Default of Social Bond Serious Matter.

In creating the steel corporation, the article says:

"Morgan the elder signed a bond for himself and for Judge Gary, and for all their financial and industrial heirs. That bond was a social contract that in return for the profits of managing their vast industrial empire, they would deliver to America, with interest compounded annually, a better way of life for everyone entangled with the enormous influence the corporation would wield.

"The default of a social bond is likely to be, as the world has now discovered, a matter of concern just as grave as the default of a financial bond. That is the point of view which leads Fortune this month to inquire whether the present management of U. S. Steel gives evidence of being a prudent trustee."

Corporation Scorns Dealings With Unions.

"The corporation," the article goes on, "has no dealings with organized labor. . . . 'We do not,' Gary wrote in his lawyer's terminology, 'confer, negotiate with or combat organized labor.'" Of course Judge Gary was a liar when he said that, and the only error that Fortune makes in the whole article is not quoting the proof that Gary lied. Here it is, from a resolution passed June 17, 1901, by the executive committee of U. S. Steel:

"We are unalterably opposed to any extension of union labor, and advise subsidiary companies to take a firm position when these questions come up, and say that they are not going to recognize it."

Labor's Charges Against Steel Upheld.

But the summing up of labor's charges against steel is splendid.

"It is charged with depressing wages and lengthening the hours of labor, with spying upon its workmen both inside the plants and in their homes, with debauching unions, corrupting union leaders, and with imperturbable aplomb, grinding down its workers day and night, . . . constantly menacing labor organizations. Above all, the corporation is attacked for suppressing any measure of democracy, not only in its plants but in the communities which it dominates; for denying free speech and the right of assembly to its employes; for intimidating workmen who are dissatisfied with their working conditions; for preventing in a thousand devious ways, that free expression of political belief that is a fundamental part of the American tradition."

Fortune finds all these charges justified, particularly the last. Electricians in the Chicago area report that the steel trust pays their trade wages 40 per cent below the union grade. The Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers have listed thirty steel companies in twelve communities which pay from 27 to 73 per cent below the union's scale. And on industrial tyranny, Fortune bluntly says:

"When liberals complained of the lack of free speech in the steel towns, they were merely discovering what steelworkers had taken for granted for twenty years."

In 1929, steel workers were stimated to earn an average of $33 a week. In 1923, they averaged about $13. Averages are deceptive, for laborers in the plate mills were earning $3.75 a week before the steel code was adopted.

Trust Takes Toll Of Most Living Costs.

"One hundred and sixty unskilled and semiskilled workers in Duquesne whose incomes were investigated were found to have earned an average of $368 for 1933. Six got less than $100; 47 fot less than $300. In steel towns, centralized ownership kept living expenses almost constant. In Gary, gas, light and water bills were paid to the same company—formerly a subsidiary of U. S. Steel—and nonpayment of a gas bill was penalized by turning off light and water as well as gas. In 1932, it was estimated by a Gary newspaper man that the water supply had been turned off for 5,000 families in a city of 100,000 inhabitants."

Fortune adds that rents in Gary—which was built by the steel trust—averaged from $6 to $10 a room, and that four families sometimes live in a three or four-room flat.

The "welfare work" of U. S. Steel is accurately measured by the comfort stations and urinals mentioned before. It also ranks companey-owned dwellings and boarding houses as welfare work.

organize, for those in Detroit, in Akron, for those poor devils in the steel industry controlled by the United States Steel Corporation."

Before the convention struck the industrial union snag, it lashed at the WPA and Col. Harry S. Berry in two resolutions.

It approved unanimously a resolution demanding that "this enemy to organized labor (Col. Berry) be removed from office." It condemned Col. Berry's alleged statement that the Workers' Alliance, an organization of unemployed workmen, had no right to exist as an "indirect attack upon the right of workers to organize."

Continuance of WPA

In another resolution the convention called for the continuance of WPA on a uniform national pay scale at the prevailing wage rates of skilled and unskilled labor. It deplores the discrimination in wage rates for the South.

Other resolutions called for a statewide teachers' tenure law; for Tennessee to ratify the child labor amendment; called for wider education to train labor leaders; asked senatorial investigation of working conditions in the lumber industry in the South; protested the exploitation of taxing power for the benefit of private industries; demanded a state law limiting women's and children's working days to eight hours at the maximum and a forty-hour week.

Resolutions Adopted

The convention devoted most of Tuesday afternoon to passing resolutions, chief among which were one indorsing President Roosevelt more strongly than a similar resolve adopted Tuesday morning, another condemning the city of Memphis for its action in placing a ban on union members among its teachers, firemen and building custodians; another calling for an amendment to the United States Constitution to permit Federal regulation of manufacturing, agriculture and mining.

The convention's action in denouncing Memphis' nonunion policy as "un-American," undemocratic and unjust, placed it squarely behind President McCann in his fight with the city administration. McCann, who is also president of the Memphis Trades and Labor Council, has waged war with the Memphis political organization for some months.

LABOR COUNCIL FIGHTS FOR LOWER LIGHT RATES

Moncton, N. B.—At the annual meeting of the Moncton Trades and Labor council, a movement was started to secure a reduction in the rates for electric light in Moncton district, on the ground the prevailing rates are exorbitant. The council also asked the city council to place the municipally-owned stadium arena under direct civic management instead of leasing it to private individuals.

Roosevelt Indorsed

Over the objections of a small minority, which based its opposition on constitutional grounds, the convention voted a second time Tuesday afternoon to indorse Franklin Roosevelt for re-election. To do so, the meeting suspended the constitution and by-laws of the State Federation. Debate over the resolution was heated, with William Turnblazer, author of the measure, backing it against the efforts of Paul Aymon and James Leahy to have it ruled out of order.

To a telegram dispatched Monday by the convention, Gov. Hill McAlister replied Tuesday afternoon that he "would take such action as the facts warrant" aften an investigation of the kidnaping in Rockwood recently of Matt Lynch, Chattanooga union organized, who was taking a leading role in the Rockwood Hosiery Mill strike.

In other resolutions, the convention:

TVA Indorsed

Voted again to indorse the Tennessee Valley Authority and is directors.

Recommended union organization of state, county and municipal employes.

Urged enactment of the Wagner-Sellenbogen housing law, with amendments to increase the immediate appropriation from $51,000,000 to $100,000,000, and the first bond issue from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

I. N. Ornburn, secretary of the union label committee of the American Federation of Labor, denounced John E. Edgerton of Lebanon, chairman of the Southern States Industrial Council, as being a "reactionary" and identified with the organization that kidnaped Matt Lynch.

He said that "the entire South is in revolt against leadership as practiced by Edgerton."

Discussing unemployment compensation in Tennessee, Paul T. David, president of a TVA union of government employes, said that "this matter is important enough to justify a special session of the legislature."

Mr. David recommended that the federation should "proceed immediately to draft a proper bill for introduction in the legislature, and should demand a special session just as soon as the bill is ready for introduction."

RUTHLESS GREED OF EMPLOYERS STARTLING WHEN STORY OF LABOR AND TOBACCO COMBINE IS TOLD

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

Some day someone will write the story of organized money in its exploitations of the farmers and tobacco workers of the south. It will be a story in which mercy plays little part, in which tolerance for human rights is but a phantom, in which the steady ruthless planning to get money and more money and power and more power strikes its steady, throbbing note, like the reverberations of a signal drum through a jungle.

Some day that story will be written. Parts of it have been put on paper and some of it between covers. But there remains to be written a great book which will constitute a revelation of a great phase of that peculiar American phenomenon that climaxed its fantastic structure in Coolidge's prosperity and backfired so startlingly in the Hoover era.

Misery Concealed Behind Ads.

Tobacco, exemplified in the Big Four, stood, almost as in a house apart, spreading over the land, hauling in its huge revenue. Tobacco, there it stands. And the alluring, expensive advertisements tell of the wonders of Luckies, Chesterfields, Old Golds and Camels, while the men and women that make them are denied the right to have unions, are shorn of every vestige of self-expression or of voice in determining the conditions under which they give service in the making of these non-union brands.

It would be a picture, indeed, if every huge advertisement of these non-union cigarettes should suddenly become transparent, allowing every purchaser to see the toiling, underpaid and unfree humanity from whose hands, in fields and at machines, the product flows to market.

Workers Forced to Take Relief.

The FERA thought it wise to peek behind these tobacco ads, and here is a part of the FERA report:

"This study shows the situation of the tobacco workers on relief in Virginia and North Carolina regions. Nearly half of them were receiving relief at the same time they were receiving wages."

That is taken from the report of an investigation made in 1934. In 1935, another inquiry was made, and here are some of the things found:

"The factor most significant in bringing tobacco workers on relief is under-employment. Workers in the families studied averaged only ninety-one days' work in the year.

Wages Miserably Low.

"Low wages are also an important factor. Average annual earnings were $144; only 12 per cent of the single worker households made as much as $300.

"The average weekly income in earnings for the 477 families in the sample studied was $3.02. For households containing only one worker, the average was $2.35; and for those with two or more workers, the average was $4.97."

Yet in those same years, the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company paid $30,000,000 in dividends, not to mention a rakeoff of unknown size to the insiders. This in a company which when formed in 1899 was capitalized at $2,100,000, was glad to sell a majority of its stock at par, and has no record of any further investment. And the Reynolds is merely the most prosperous, which also means the most ruthless, of the Big Four.

To say that such a contrast between wages and dividends is damnable is a feeble understatement of the case.

Bright Picture in Union Plants.

The reverse side of the tobacco picture is found in the union factories. The principal union factories are those of the Axton-Fisher Tobacco company and the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation. Their cigarette brands are Spud and Twenty Grand; Kool, Raleigh and Wings. Smoking tobacco brands include Sir Walter Raleigh, Dial, Catcher, Golden Grain, Bugler, Target, Kite and Old North State. Their products are the finest in every division.

Union men and women, with a voice in determining the conditions under which they give service, make these products. The Tobacco Workers' International union long since asked the labor press to help in the battle to overcome despotism in the tobacco industry. Perhaps the most effective way to help beat down despotism is to buy the products of fair employers.

Effective Weapon at Hand.

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor constantly urges the purchase of union-made products. Here is a weapon that every union member can use in beating down the resistance of one of the most highly entrenched divisions of bitterly anti-union big business. The labor press of America joins as a unit in calling upon all union members to aid in this struggle.

U. S. Judge Refuses Ban On Strikers Testifying

Camden, N. J.—Judge John Boyd Avis, in the United States Court here, refused to grant an injunction restraining striking employes of the Riverside Knitting Mills, Riverside, N. J., from testifying in a hearing held by the National Labor Relations Board to consider complaints filed by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union charging the concern with violating the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act, which guarantees the workers the right to organize and bargain collectively without interference from employers.

A large number of employes of the mill struck three months ago in a wages and hours dispute.

It was said the company's request for the injunction was the first of its kind on record, although other employers have sought judicial writs to restrain the Labor Board from conducting hearings.

Judge Avis also definitely refused to pass on the constitutionality of the Wagner Act, under which the Board is set up, despite a long argument made by counsel for the anti-labor company.

Smith got married. The evening of his first payday he gave his bride $14 of the $15 salary and kept only $1 for himself. But the second payday Smith gave his wife $1 and kept $14 for himself.

Bride (in injured tones)—Why, John, how on earth do you think I can manage a whole week on a paltry and measley dollar?

John—Darned if I know. I had a rotten time myself last week. Now, it's your turn.

"The boss isn't here, he's at work," a telephone operator reported, and for a moment we thought we were listening to Amos 'n Andy broadcasting.

Label League Entertains Visiting Ladies

Mrs. Blanche Goodman Eisendrath was the speaker at the luncheon given by the Chattanooga Label League Tuesday at the Signal Mountain Hotel. Guests of honor were wives and daughters of out-of-town delegates here to attend the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention.

Mrs. Eisendrath urged greater activity of women in supporting organized labor through such means as label leagues and auxiliaries. She stressed "patronage of the union label as a duty, not only of trade unionists, but of all who are sincerely interested in human progress."

Miss Ina Greene, Label League president, was toastmistress. Short talks were made by Mrs. J. O. Nevil, Mrs. R. O. Ross and Miss Mary Slate of Nashville, Mrs. C. C. Arthur of Knoxville, Mrs. G. C. Frazier of Memphis and Miss Hortense Spear, Mrs. Meyer Yudd, Mrs. T. R. Cuthbert and Mrs. J. R. Campbell of Chattanooga.

Philadelphia Die Makers Win Hour and Pay Strike

Philadelphia, Pa.—Around 100 employes of F. C. Castelli & Co., tool and die makers here, as the result of a strike declared early in February, won an agreement from the firm which includes recognition of the union, wage increases, a five-day and forty-hour week, discharge of strikebreakers, reinstatement of strikers, and equal distribution of work.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

WORKERS FOR DRASTIC ACTION UNLESS TEXTILE BILL PASSES

Strike Is Threatened If Mills Cannot Be Operated on Civilized Basis, as Sought by Ellenbogen Control Measure, U. T. W. Official Declares.

Washington, D. C. — "We are hopeful that the Textile Control bill will pass, and we believe adequate reasons for its passage are contained in the report submitted to the house by Congressman Keller, but we are preparing in the only way we know how to prepare, for its failure," said Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, and leader of the nation-wide 1934 strike.

"There is no real opposition to the bill anywhere except among the reactionary elements of the cotton and woolen textile industries. The elements that brought on the great strike and that fought the workers with every weapon they could command, only to fail, are the same elements that oppose this great step toward orderly industrial life and, as a matter of fact, toward better business and more secure profits for themselves.

Workers Losing Patience.

"I have been asked what will happen if this bill does not pass. There is no reason to beat around the bush. First, we shall do everything in our power to put out of office every man who does not definitely support the bill. This is no joke with textile workers. We are going into that job of defeating politicians who oppose this progressive measure just as seriously and vigorously as we went into the strike.

"But I am not sure we shall wait that long. I am not sure textile workers can or will suffer that long. I don't want to talk strike until I have to, but if I am asked to reflect the sentiment of the masses of textile workers as it is today, I must, in candor, say that it is for any lawful action that will end the present chaos. There is plenty of demand from the workers in the mills to tie up the industry if we cannot have it operated on a civilized basis. Our workers are hungry anyway, and that is what they are saying to us day after day. They cannot understand why it has taken so long to get this bill reported to the house, and they cannot now see why its progress the rest of the way cannot be achieved in short order.

To Ask Labor's Help.

"We shall appeal to every labor legislative representative in Washington and to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, for help in bringing about enactment of this vital measure. We believe that recovery hinges on this bill more than on any other possible legislative enactment. With the possible exception of retailing, no other business in the whole industrial picture contributes so much to unemployment, the ghost that stalks through our whole economic life.

"As for constitutionality, this bill IS constitutional and would be so as law. It is not in the same class as the Guffey act from a legal point of view. Its constitutionality rests upon entirely different grounds. There need be no plea to 'take a chance' on this measure from that standpoint.

"We shall use every possible means and make every effort to secure its enactment. If it fails, I have pointed to what I know can be expected. We can save and revive the great textile industry. If that is not done, then the reactionaries who have made it a disgrace will finish the job and make it a wreck."

S. J. Edwards Stores Declared "Unfair"

Butcher Workmen Say He Refuses to Maintain Union Conditions—Refused to Meet Central Body.

Definite action was taken last Monday evening at the regular meeting of Chattanooga Central Labor union when the dispute between S. J. Edwards stores and Local 600, Meatcutters, was aired. Representatives from the local union brought out that Mr. Edwards has in the past displayed the shop card in his meat markets, but that now he is not living up to the union conditions formerly enjoyed, both as to wages and hours.

Bringing their complaint before Central Body, the executive board attempted to secure a conference with Mr. Edwards. It is reported that at first Mr. Edwards flatly refused to meet with them, but finally set the day and hour which he would discuss the matter. Members of the executive board kept the appointment, but Mr. Edwards did not appear.

Request that the five stores belonging to S. J. Edwards be declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" was therefore granted.

All union members and their friends are urged to purchase their groceries and meats from stores that co-operate with labor.

Here's How Labor Indorsed Roosevelt In State Convention

Frequently during the recent 39th convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor enthusiasm for President Franklin D. Roosevelt rose to a high pitch. In order to definitely crystallize the sentiment of Tennessee labor for this great humanitarian and friend of the working people, the following resolution was formally drawn up and unanimously adopted:

"Greetings:

"The delegates of the 39th annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor pledge their united and wholehearted support to bring about the continuance of the work of Franklin D. Roosevelt, as president of the United States of America for another term. Your committee on resolutions believes that this year will be an important one in the affairs of the people of this nation. The question is whether Franklin D. Roosevelt will be permitted to continue as president of the United States representing the people and upholding humanitarian rights in preference to property rights; and whether security and progress shall be the watchwords of an enlightened democracy represented in the great work of President Roosevelt.

"We are for Roosevelt, the greatest humanitarian of our time. Against

STUDY OF LABOR SITUATION ON AMERICAN SHIPS ASKED

New York City.—The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has published a report, calling for an "expert survey" of the labor situation on American ships. The report was drawn by the chamber committee on foreign commerce, and is based on the studies of two other committees on the problem of securing greater safety at sea.

"There has been much discussion about officer and crew personnel on American ships and the difficulty faced by American shipowners and operators in obtaining competent crews because of the lack of continuous discharge certificates," the report says. "It is charged that the present certificates are susceptible of forgery, and in fact are freely bought and sold for the purpose of obtaining employment for untrained and incompetent seamen.

"Your committees believe that a thorough survey of the labor situation on American ships should be conducted by a competent non-political and non-partisan committee or commission with the hope of solving such labor problems as may exist."

Tennessee Federation Officers

The photographer snapped the pictures of most of the Executive Board of the Federation on the opening day of the convention, held here last week. Reading from left to right: President R. S. McCann (Memphis), George B. McNamara (Memphis), A. C. Kamin (Chattanooga), W. Clay McKenzie (Knoxville), D. C. Long (Johnson City), J. O. Nevil (Nashville) and W. C. Drummond (Jackson), were not present at the time of the group picture.

GREEN REVEALS EXPLOITATION OF WOMEN SINCE END OF NRA

Women Workers Hardest Hit by Abandonment of Code Standards, Labor Head Tells Women's Trade Union League — Rose Schneiderman Stresses Organization Need.

Washington, D. C.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech to the National Women's Trade Union League convention here, made some startling revelations of the plight of women workers since the outlawing of the NRA by the supreme court.

"In looking at the post-NRA situation as a whole," said Mr. Green, "women workers have been hardest hit by abandonment of code standards. Those who remained in employment have had their hours lengthened and their wages cut.

"I will give you a few illustrations from establishments which furnished their products to the federal government under contract:

"A large knit underwear mill in Tennessee employs 1,200 women and 500 men. This firm maintained a weekly code minimum rate of $12 through December, 1935, but raised its working daily hours to 10 and weekly hours to 57 for women. This firm handled during that time, a large order for the CCC and forced its workers to work at break-neck pace to have the order filled as rapidly and as cheaply as possible.

Miserly Pay Cited.

"A shirt factory in Maryland working under a government contract was paying in August, 1935, as low as 10 cents an hour with most of the women employes receiving only 2 or 3 dollars a week for 52 hours of work.

"In July, 1935, a garment factory in Pennsylvania working on a government contract employed the girls from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., which were the standard hours, but most of the time kept them as late as 8 p.m.

"The girls were paid as low as $3 a week for this time and refusal to work until 8 p.m. meant loss of the job."

Reactionary Courts Scored.

Rose Schneiderman, president, in a few extemporary remarks, paid her respects to reactionary courts.

"Today," she said, "the federal courts rule against any law that would give the government power to stabilize industry. So, we are driven back on the states. But the state courts are busy upholding the workers' inalienable right to starve.

"If we can organize the four million women in industry, we can pass our own minimum wage laws."

Like practically every speaker who has had experience in trade union work, Miss Schneiderman lamented the passing of the NRA. "It did a wonderful work," she declared. She complimented organized labor on the fact that it drew no sex lines in pay envelopes; but had always stood for equal pay for equal work.

Makes Stirring Report.

"We are a comparatively small group," said Miss Schneiderman. "We have about 500,000 organized women workers. Our chief constructive job is that of lifting up those below us."

It was here that she spoke of passing their own minimum wage laws, and the audience broke into strong applause.

The report of Miss Schneiderman is a stirring document. There is space for only part of it.

"When we adjourned in 1929," says the report, "none of us dreamed that it would be seven years before we were able to hold our next convention.

Spirit of Fascism Rife.

"You will remember that we met at the very peak of our so-called 'prosperity,' and none of us had any inkling of the desolate and heart-rending years that were before us. Neither did we dream of the strain and stress which the whole world was about to encounter.

"The deadly spirit of fascism is rife everywhere. The crumbling of the German republic and the establishment of the Nazi dictatorship is spreading race hatred and religious intolerance which can only be compared with mediaeval times."

Miss Schneiderman gives in her report a vivid picture of the distress of the depression, and pictures the plight of women workers at the beginning of NRA.

Wage Slashes Cited.

"Before discussing the gains which wage earning women made under NRA, I want to cite a few figure pointing to the awful slump that wages had taken before (during the depression). We know that the tendency has been and is for employers to move their factories from large industrial centers where unions are in control, to small rural communities where there is an abundant supply of cheap labor. In these small towns and villages, it was not uncommon to find

Postal Groups Sponsor Pictures

"Here Comes the Mail" to Show How Uncle Sam Works.

To Be Shown Here Sunday and Monday Evening at Dickinson High—Central and Red Bank Tuesday and Friday.

Under the auspices of the members of Local No. 192, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the motion picture, "Here Comes the Mail," which is designed to acquaint the public with the workings of the postoffice, has been booked for exhibition before local groups and organizations from May 17 to 22, inclusive. In addition to the main feature, the local presentations will be of added interest for they will include 400 feet of movie films taken at the Lawrence postoffice during the Christmas rush by Postmaster Charles A. Cronin.

Dates for showing of the film schedules Dickinson Junior High school Sunday and Monday evening, May 17 and 18, at 7:30. In addition to the picture, the postoffice quartet and the Letter Carriers' band will provide a program of music. Tuesday evening will see the show at Central High school and Friday will find it at the Red Bank school.

The main film, 1,100 feet in length and requiring 45 minutes to run, features activities in the St. Paul, Minn., and New York offices, illustrating virtually every phase of postal activity. The various "shots" show, among other things, the methods of carrying the mail—by train, truck, airplane, steamship, street car, motorcycle, dog sleds and conveyor belt. They display how the mail is handled from the time it is posted to the time of delivery, including the intricate processes of sorting, canceling and routing.

The size of the postal organization is indicated by a view of the New York postoffice, with its 10,000 clerks and 3,200 carriers; of the mammoth new Chicago postoffice building, and of the process of writing payroll checks in the St. Paul office, from which 10,000 are distributed each month. An idea of the base volume of mail is given by "shots" of the Christmas rush.

Still other scenes illustrate some of the difficulties in making good that well known slogan, "The United States Mail Must Go Through;" such as the train wrecks and winter blizzards. The St. Paul postoffice employes financed and produced the motion picture which was originally started two years ago. The scenes are from St. Paul, Washington, New York, Chicago and Minneapolis, with the Cronin "shots" added as an extra local feature.

Salaries of Corporation Heads Is Tremendous Load Upon Industries

SEC Listing of Big Pay Received by Railroad, Steel, Food and Other Executives Reveals One Important Factor in High Cost of Living.

By ELIOT HARRIS

Washington, D. C.—The High Cost of Corporations, one of the biggest elements of the well known high cost of living, is partly explained by the list of corporation salaries just given out by the SEC.

Leonor F. Loree, prize labor baiter of the railroad world, is drawing $135,000 a year from two railroads. As president of the Delaware & Hudson, he gets $90,000; and as chairman of the board of the K. C. Southern, he receives $45,000. The ICC and Joseph B. Eastman as coordinator of transportation have labored hard to get railroad top salaries reduced; but Loree still holds out, though no other railroad salary is now above the $60,000 mark.

That, however, is by no means the highest salary in the list. E. E. Crawford, president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Corp., drew $225,417 last year for salary, and, obviously for fear that he couldn't live in fitting splendor on such a sum, the company gave him a bonus of $90,000. That makes $315,417 to one man; and the tin plate industry in this country is protected by a tariff of one cent a pound—which is a tax on every housewife in the land. Somebody in congress ought to look into this matter.

Other Executives Highly Paid.

The McKeesport concern doesn't stop its high salaries with the president. G. V. Parkins, vice president, draws down $137,500 in salary, and $40,000 bonus. Ten directors of the company snoggled $383,867. The secretary and the plant superintendent got $35,333 each, and two unspecified employes checked out with $67,417.

All told, the top officials of McKeesport Tin Plate set the company back last year to the tune of $1,037,534. And, of course, the company took it out of the consumer, with extras.

Standard Brands, one of the bright ideas of the House of Morgan, in that dear 1929, paid Joseph Wilshire, president, $152,690. The two vice presidents got a little over $60,000 each. Eighteen directors got away with $155,790; and 18 unspecified officials collected $555,070. Also, Standard Brands paid out $165,862 to divers and sundry law firms. The total cost of the higher-ups listed by SEC in this corporation is $1,247,180.

S. O. Salaries High.

Standard Oil of New Jersey tops that, though its president gets only $125,000 a year. The chairman of the board last year got $112,500; two vice presidents, $90,833 each, and 12 directors — count 'em, 12—received $774,219.

The total "overhead" charges of the company through salaries listed by the SEC comes to $1,570,470. The high cost of gasoline is a mystery no longer.

Neither is the high cost of ribbons a mystery when one reads that the Century Ribbon Mills, Inc., paid its president last year $55,190; nor the high cost of ginger ale, when we find that the president of the Anchor Cap corp. got $55,833 last year, and the prexy of the Crown Cork and Seal Co. got $50,149. Even the expensiveness of tea is partly explained by the fact that M. H. Karker drew $105,847 last year in salary and $55,597 for bonus —$161,444 in all. Over the tea cups? You bet.

Big Fees Paid for "Services"

And matches. The Diamond Match Co. paid W. A. Fairburn, president, $100,000, and two vice presidents $26,000, and $25,000, respectively. Scratch that if you can.

Another revealing thing in these lists is the amount paid for "legal services" and "supervision," "management," and "fiscal" services. Thus, the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. pays its president $36,000, and its vice president $18,000; while Sullivan & Cromwell, special counsel, drew $55,417; Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, special counsel, $42,500; and North American Co., "fiscal and other services," $49,760.

The Electric Bond & Share Co. drew $74,856 from the American Power & Light Co. for "supervision and general services;" $92,666 from the Montana Power Co. for the same; $96,141 from New Orleans Public Service, Inc., for the same; and $98,332 from the Utah Power & Light Co. with the same blind explanation. E. B. & S. bobs up in several other places.

The high cost of corporations. It explains quite a lot. Dairy farmers have trouble in making both ends meet, the price they get for their milk is so low; but the Pet Milk Co. pays $109,745 to its three chief officials. And oil, and gas, and electric light, and every one of the billions of tin cans, pay the same kind of tribute.

The high cost of corporations.

NLRB WARNS UNION ORGANIZATION IS EXCLUSIVE CONCERN OF LABOR

Employer Must Observe Strict Hands Off Policy If Employes Seek to Organize, Board Declares in Ordering Philadelphia Concern to Rehire Men Discharged for Union Activity.

Washington, D. C.—The Protective Motor Service Co., Philadelphia, engaged in the business of transporting valuables in armored cars, has been directed by the National Labor Relations Board to rehire 18 drivers and guards discharged because of membership in the Lacal Union No. 470, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers of America.

The company also was ordered to post notices at its Philadelphia plant "stating that it will not discharge or in any manner discriminate against members of, or those desiring to become members of, the union."

In making public its decision, the NLRB issued a significant statement of its position on employer attempts to influence labor organization, declaring that "union organization is the exclusive concern of labor."

Union Men Threatened

The Protective Motor Service company had about 125 employes in October, 1935, when the Teamsters' Union began to make efforts to organize the company's drivers and guards. President Marsh of the company, issued a warning that those who persisted in union activities would be discharged. The group of

Civil Service Rules Not Violated

Because United States civil service rules prohibit federal employes from participating in political activities frequent inquiries have been made whether or not Labor's Political Conference will cause embarrassment to postal employes.

Labor's Political Conference is a distinct organization composed of voluntary affiliation by individual local unions, who of their own accord have sent delegates to the conference. Because of civil service rules, postoffice employes have not affiliated. The Central Labor union and the political conference are separate and distinct from each other. Postoffice employes are active members of Central Body, membership in which does not conflict with government regulations.

Boston Bartenders Oppose Liquor Selling to Minors

Boston. — The Bartenders and Hotel Employes' union, Local 34, of Boston, has gone on record as heartily in favor of elimination of conditions revealed in a recent address by Arthur T. Lyman, state commissioner of corrections. Lyman charged that the state liquor laws were being flagrantly flouted by the selling of liquor to boys and girls as young as 15 and 16 years old, in licensed taverns, restaurants, hotels, etc.

The union held a special meeting to discuss Commissioner Lyman's charges, and announcement was made that the local was willing to cooperate in any way for removal of such conditions. John J. Kearney, business agent of the local, said the local has pledged itself to campiagn for elimination of the selling of liquor to minors of either sex, wherever such practices were disclosed, and that no such violation had been reported in any place where the union men are employed.

Hosiery Workers to Conduct Great Organization Campaign

Philadelphia.—Decision to conduct a great national campaign to organize the entire hosiery industry was the highlight of the 25th annual convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, just ended here.

The union's regular field staff will be augmented by at least twenty-six additional organizers.

Funds which may total the one million dollar mark and which will finance the organization campaign, will be raised by a special organization assessment of 3 per cent of weekly earnings of the entire federation's membership. The dues system also was modernized by the convention which replaced the usual flat rate dues with a 2 per cent levy.

Emil Rieve was re-elected to the presidency of the federation by an overwhelming plurality over opposing candidates. Alexander McKeown was re-elected first vice-president by unanimous vote.

The race for the second vice-presidency was a spirited contest, with four nominees. In the run-off election, Edward F. Callaghan won the office.

RHODE ISLAND GOVERNOR SIGNS JOB INSURANCE BILL

Providence—Gov. Greene has signed the unemployment insurance system bill passed recently and has named a three-man commission to administer the law.

Both employers and employes will contribute to the fund to be deposited with the federal treasury. Employers will pay nine-tenths of 1 per cent of their 1936 payrolls, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1.8 per cent in 1937, and 2.7 per cent in 1938 and annually thereafter.

Employes will be taxed 1 per cent of their wages for the year 1937, and 2 per cent annually thereafter.

Benefits will be paid beginning in 1938, the maximum payment being for twenty weeks in any one calendar year. A man unemployed for more than one year at a time, could receive only twenty weeks' insurance, no matter how long or how much he had been taxed for the fund in the past.

Guard Freedom of Speech

It is neither desirable nor necessary that any portion of our properly treasured freedom of speech should be destroyed in order to allay the ravages of the disease of communism or any other ism. The soap-box orator should be given full sway, regardless of the length of his hair or the absurdity of his rantings. It is not so much the insurrection of the ignorant we need fear in this country; it is the laziness of the intelligent.—E. A. Hayes, former national commander American Legion.

Child Labor Must Go

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in his address to the National Women's Trade Union league, scored the exploitation of women and children since NRA was destroyed with a bitterness which he seldom displays. But nothing could be too bitter a denunciation for some of the things which Mr. Green told. For example:

"In an underwear factory in Baltimore, a 15-year-old girl was employed for fifty-two and a half hours a week. Her weekly pay check has been $5 for the full week. Her mother, employed in the same plant, formerly received higher compensation; but she, also, is now paid $5 for fifty-two and a half working hours.

"The total family income for 105 working hours during the week is $10."

In other words, as Mr. Green shows, two workers now in some trades are getting less than the minimum wage for a single worker while NRA codes were in force. NRA was miles from being perfect, but the sweated workers to whom it gave, for the first time in their lives, enough to live on decently look back to it as a summer too bright to last.

"Labor must not relent in its fight for the abolition of child labor," declared Mr. Green. "The only method by which we can oppose employers who profiteer on children is ratification of the Child Labor amendment, placing upon congress responsibility and authority to cope with the problem. All other ways are blocked by judicial decisions!"

The Blessings of Other People's Woes

At the cornerstone laying of a new health center in East Harlem, Mayor La Guardia, of New York, took occasion to recall some important social history. The first health center in that part of the metropolis was opened in 1921, and Gov. Nathan L. Miller, who was present, said to La Guardia:

"We must not overdo these things. This is paternalistic. We must not coddle people. Adversity is good for them."

To which La Guardia replied:

"Adversity is not good. Disease is not good. Exploitation is not good. No country that thrives on these things has a right to exist. That was my answer then. That is my philosophy today."

It is the philosophy of every intelligent person who sees facts with open eyes, and has enough intellectual honesty to admit the truth. Gov. Miller never would have said that adversity was a good thing for himself. In the reactionary's philosophy of life, it is always the other fellow who is benefitted by poverty, by bankruptcy, by youth without opportunity and age without safety from want. And the business of finding blessings in other people's hardships is a mean, stupid and above all a cowardly subterfuge.

N. Y. BUILDING SERVICE STRIKE REVIVAL FEARED

Attorney for Office Building Owners Advises Fight on Silcox Award.

New York, N. Y. — Renewal of the recent strike of the Building Service Employes union here, affecting around 40,000 men, was regarded as a threatening possibility following the action of the Realty Advisory board in sending a letter to affiliated realty owners charging that the wage award handed down by Ferdinand A. Silcox, chief forester of the United States, was unfair and invalid in parts, and advising them to take court action to protect themselves against it.

The action of the board which, with its 2,200 members, is the largest group of realty owners in New York city, was taken on advice of Walter Gordon Merritt, the board's legal adviser.

By the terms of the Silcox award loft and office buildings are divided into the following classifications: Class A, those with a gross area of more than 280,000 square feet; Class B, those from 120,000 to 280,000 square feet, and Class C, those of 120,000 square feet or less. In loft buildings the minimum wages fixed by the award for the three classes respectively are $26, $24 and $22 a week for elevator operators. In office buildings the minimums are: Class A, $28 per week; Class B, $26, and Class C, $24.

James J. Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employes union, said the action of the Realty Advisory board "is a violation of the obligation undertaken by the realty owners when they agreed, in response to the plea of Mayor LaGuardia, to enter into honorable arbitration proceedings," adding:

"The union stands by the award and will insist that the Realty Advisory board do likewise. In this connection, I wish to state that this is the first time within my memory that any group of employers ever tried to run out on an award which had full moral and legal basis, backed and sponsored by the mayor of the city and the general public."

NEW LOW RATES

Everyone can benefit from the new residence rates. Take for example a customer who pays a bill of $3 a month. Putting in an electric range and using electricity to the extent the average family does will make his total bill amount to $5.80 on the new rates. The difference of $2.80 is the cost of cooking. In many cases this cost will be even less.

This same customer can also add an electric refrigerator and with average use his total bill for lighting, cooking and refrigeration will amount to $6.30—or a total cost of only $3.30 for cooking and refrigeration combined. Think of it! Whether or not your bills run $3, you owe it to yourself to get all the facts on how you can benefit under these New Rates. Call at our office — or phone — for complete information.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Now take Mr. George Bernard Shaw—take him anywhere or at any time. But anyway, take him. And what have you? Principally an old gentleman who is trying to keep himself in the limelight without doing anything to deserve it. His bright remarks no longer are bright. His repartee has the accent on the middle syllabe and his wise cracks are just creaks.

George Bernard Shaw never has failed to take a crack at the United States—and the funny part of it a lot of yaps in the United States think there is some peculiar type of honor in being shot at by George Bernard Shaw. If you took off the Shavian whiskers you wouldn't listen to him two minutes. You'd walk away and wonder who was the nut you just left.

Time was when Shaw wrote piercing satire. But at that he never really wrote for the masses, as Dickens did—for while Dickens' English is classical, the masses understood his message. How many can honestly say the same of Shaw? Truth is that George Bernard Shaw is in good part the result of ballyhoo, puffed up, over-played and darned near played out.

The most recent so-called wise crack is that the League of Nations is almost as bad as the United States constitution. Rats! And rats! for George Bernard Shaw. Come out from behind your whiskers, Mr. Shaw, and let us have a look at a very mediocre ancient trying to keep fresh on stale jokes.

There wasn't any intention to devote this whole column to Mr. George Bernard Shaw, an Irishman who has lived in England because it was more suitable to his profession—which may also be interpreted to mean that England is a pretty good spot in which to live. But no finer subject looms on the horizon at the moment. The days of Androcles and the lion are gone and they are not going to return. And, in memory, even that wasn't so hot. But it's time we quit kow towing over an oldster who has become a globe-trotter, running around on royalties, bowling over cub reporters with his bewhiskered wit and grabbing over newspaper space that would be better given to the current strike or the problem of what to do about unemployment.

Try to find, during these years of depression, one solitary constructive thought from the mouth of George Bernard Shaw about unemployment. Try hard.

As a wise cracker Will Rogers was a giant, compared to Shaw—and back of his wise cracks there were ideas. Back of Shaw's wise cracks—there is Shaw.

The writing cult pats its own backs, mutually, each giving the other a boost—those among the elect, that is. Shaw has been liberally patted. But Shaw is not among those whose kind words adorn the blurbs about new writing jobs. The literary world, for Shaw, has been a one way street—and the yaps haven't tumbled to it yet. We behold today, in Shaw, a circus on the downgrade—and not a very good circus at that.

Buffalo Bill probably will stick closer to the heart of the American masses in memory and Barnum & Bailey and Ringling's is a better show by far today. And why this "critical comment?" Because there ain't no Santa Claus, that's why.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Convention hangover—One of the funny things about the convention occurred when the ladies were just ready to climb into the automobiles to go to the mountain. Three ladies rushed up to join the party and said that they were from Memphis, although they had not registered for the luncheon. When they found that the luncheon was not to be at the Patten but on the mountain, one of them exclaimed:

"Oh, I told my chauffeur to come back here."

After a few seconds, the words seeped through—felt sure that no lady who might be attending the Label league luncheon had a chauffeur. It turned out that the ladies were going to the garden club luncheon.

SPENT HOURS and hours selecting some wallpaper only to find that there was a "mistake" and that it did not have the union label imprinted on the border. Had no trouble, however, getting just what was needed at Sterchi's in the Hosch papers. There was no mistake this time, because I saw the label myself.

And one last headache—The funniest incident of the whole convention happened right after President McCann had just been re-elected by acclamation amid prolonged applause from the delegates who had arisen to their feet when McCann was nominated. After things quieted down some sleepy delegate who had evidently imbibed too much of something or other gained recognition from the chair and made a motion that the body elect Mr. McCann unanimously.

GOT some more wallpaper with the label right on it, at Parrent's, which was made by the United Mills. You're right—there is a union man doing the paper-hanging, too.

NLRB WARNS

men who attended subsequent meetings of the local despite this threat were dismissed as rapidly as substitutes could be found.

A hearing in the case was conducted on January 8, 1936, before Trial Examiner Walter Wilbur at Philadelphia. It was shown by testimony that the men who had been discharged were employes of from two to ten years' standing, whose work had always been satisfactory. President Marsh asserted at the hearing that he had dismissed them because he considered their failure to notify him that they were going to join a union an act of insubordination. He also declared that discussion concerning the union disturbed his nonunion men and that he regarded it to be his duty to protect his nonunion men from arguments on the subject. The board's decision makes the following comment on this position:

"That union organization is the exclusive concern of labor; that employes may advance that objective in any legitimate and orderly manner; and that they are entitled to the protection of the board if the employer interferes with or coerces them in the exercise of their right to organize, are elementary principles of the legislation under which this board is constituted.

Organization Up to Labor

"The open intimidation of employes in the exercise of this right with which this record is replete, is as incompatible with the policy of the act as respondent's persistent spying and other covert interference with the union activities of its men. It is for the employes alone to decide their method of organization and when the fact of its existence shall be disclosed.

"So long as efficiency is unimpaired, to discuss union problems on the company's premises, and in an orderly manner to urge nonunion men to join, is wholly permissible. It follows from the premise that the employer is under a duty not to interfere with the organization of his men, that he may not undertake to protect his nonunion labor from the persuasion of the union employes. To this principle the act recognizes no exception based upon supposedly fortunate conditions of employment."

Homer Martin Is Elected Auto Workers' President

South Bend, Ind.—The United Automobile Workers of America, in convention here, voted to retain its general headquarters in Detroit. The vote on headquarters was the first action on nearly 200 resolutions prepared for convention consideration.

William Schoenberg, A. F. of L. organizer, of Chicago, and John Anderson, Detroit, district representative of the Mechanics Educational Society of America, recommended organization of the union on an industrial basis, urging its membership be expanded to include all workers in the industry.

Both speakers warned against any action which might cause a breach with the A. F. of L.

Homer Martin, of Kansas City, Mo., was elected president, succeeding Francis J. Dillon, who served during the period of American Federation of Labor control.

Wyndham Mortimer, Cleveland, O., was elected first vice-president; Edward Hall, Milwaukee, second vice-president; Walter N. Wells, Detroit, Mich., third vice-president, and Geo. X. Addes, Toledo, O., secretary-treasurer.

The baby girl should never get what she wants by crying for it. The child will get plenty by that method after it's grown up.

GROWING...to serve the growing South

More than $38,200,000 was spent by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1935 in taxes, wages and plant additions, improvements and replacements to meet the demands for high grade telephone service in the section it serves.

Most of the thirty-eight million dollars found its way back into the avenues of trade in the South.

To care for the 55,950 new telephones added and the eight per cent increase in the volume of traffic, the Company increased its personnel, expanded its plant and made a substantial improvement in the quality of its service.

Over 1,200 people were added to the payroll, making a total of seventeen thousand now employed by the Company. These additional people are all residents of towns and cities in this section. The annual payroll was nineteen million dollars, an increase of almost seven percent over the previous year.

Taxes paid to federal, state, county and municipal agencies totalled over six and one-half million dollars, or about one-eighth of the total revenues received from telephone users.

Having maintained the service and met every responsibility cheerfully during the depression, telephone men and women are continuing their efforts to provide more and better service at the lowest possible cost during 1936.

women working 60 or more hours for $4 a week. In fact, in some places in Georgia, the median rate was found to be $2.95 a week."

"Median wage" is the wage paid to what may be called the "middle" worker. It is the wage with half the group of workers in question getting less and the other half getting more.

The report mentions that $8 a week in some industries was considered a munificent wage, and that it was the bottom level for the greatest numbers of women employed in retail trade.

Tells of NRA Gains for Women.

"There is no doubt that the women wage earners of the country were greatly helped by the NRA," says the report. "They shared the gains of all workers by the abolishment of child labor and homework, reduction of working hours and the guarantee of collective bargaining. The abolition of child labor meant the end of competition with a particularly low paid and helpless group."

Then, after describing something of the work of NRA and giving high praise to General Johnson, the report continues:

"Once again (after the death of NRA), we are back where we started. Child labor is again with us while adult men and women are unemployed. Wages are being lowered while the work load is increasing. Daily and weekly hours are being lengthened.

Organization Labor's Hope.

"Past experience has taught us that we cannot look to the captains of industry to solve the problem of the twelve and a half millions of unemployed. They had no plan during the darkest period of the depression. They have no plan today.

"We must not leave the welfare of our nation to chance.

"With the death knell of the NRA, there is only one recourse which the worker has to improve his lot, and that is organization into bona fide trade unions."

The twelfth convention of the National Women's Trade Union League—and the first since 1929—met in Washington on May 4. It was called to order by Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Frank J. Coleman welcomed the delegates for the Washington Central Labor union; and Joseph P. McCurdy, president of the Maryland and D. C. Federation of Labor, did the same for his fellow workers.

Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, invited the delegates to take tea at the Labor building the following afternoon.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

TEACHERS, DON'T FORGET TO:

1. Pay your dues immediately, if you have not already, so that you may receive The Labor World and keep informed on important developmemnts during the summer;

2. Notify the federation office what your summer address will be;

3. Pay that poll tax before June 1;

4. Fill out and turn in the questionnaire sent out by Mr. Bales and the legislative committee.

BE NONCOMMITTAL

Teachers should not let themselves be inveigled into indorsing or pledging support to any candidate at this stage of the game. It is to our best interests to wait until Labor's Political Conference has gone into the platforms and records of all candidates thoroughly. Then we can all act together, and not cancel one another's votes. When a candidate approaches us, let's say, "Go see Labor's Political Conference. When it indorses you, I'll be all for you. Until it takes some action, I'm neutral."

SUMMER BOARD MEETINGS

There will be an effort to hold meetings of the board of directors all during the summer. The meetings will be discontinued only when it becomes apparent that a quorum cannot be obtained.

SALARY SUIT STATUS

An order has been obtained by the attorneys in the salary suits to move the hearing from the Knoxville session of the state supreme court to the Nashville session. The Knoxville session convenes next fall, while the Nashville session is now in progress and will continue until May 22. However, the Nashville docket is crowded, and the salary suit hearing may be carried to the Jackson session which convenes immediately after the Nashville session. At all events the new court order seems to guarantee that we will get a decision before the summer is over.

BANQUET A HUGE SUCCESS

Miss Katherine Signiago, our peppy entertainment chairman, and her committee are to be highly commended for their splendid work in putting on the annual federation banquet last Saturday night. Music, food, speeches—all were swell. President Stanton E. Smith was in top form as toastmaster, the guests didn't make long-winded speeches, and Dr. Pipkin and Mr. Neblett made timely appeals for tolerance and academic freedom. It was a great night!

ELECTION RETURNS

The following were elected at the last general meeting of the federation:

(1) Central Labor union delegates: Stanton E. Smith, W. P. Bales, C. C. Burgner, J. B. Campbell, Virginia Munsey, Nancy Smith, Mrs. C. C. Burgner, J. B. Abel, J. Steger Hunt and Mrs. Sam Johnson.

(2) American Federation of Teachers delegates: Stanton E. Smith, C. C. Burgner and W. P. Bales; alternates, Nancy Smith, Margaret O'Grady and Mrs. Margaret Locker.

LABEL LEAGUE SURVEY

The Label league is aking a survey of Chattanooga merchandise and services to see which are the most deserving of support by local trade unionists. When the survey is complete a union buyers' handbook will be published and put into the hands of every union man, woman and sympathizer in town. Any information that you may have on union-label products or services should be turned over to the Label league for use in the new quarter-annual handbook.

WHERE WERE THE SUPER-PATRIOTS?

In Rockwood last week a picket line of striking hosiery workers advanced toward the street in front of the mill led by a boy who carried an American flag. Deputies met the workers and not only denied them their constitutional right to peaceful picketing, but wrested the flag from them, allowing it to drag in the dirt. To date there has been no protest from the D. A. R. or the Legion about this incident. Such silence makes us wonder a little about the patriotism of the super-patriots. Can it be that they will only defend the flag when it waves over millowners and representatives of the privileged?

INSPIRED BY TENURE BILL

A local trade unionist's daughter, aged 10, recently made this comment: "Papa, we have fifteen minutes when we can do as we please at school. It's while teacher reads the Times. Papa, does the union have anything to do with making it so she can read the paper at school?"

This column wishes to severely reprimand this little girl's teacher. She should read The Labor World.

us are the chambers of commerce, the Manufacturers' association, the Liberty League and the representatives of special interests who have exploited the people of this nation for many, many years. These forces must be defeated in their unholy purpose to re-establish their destructive rule over the destinies of the American people.

"The officers and delegates of the various local unions affiliated with the Tennessee Federation of Labor will go forward with Roosevelt fighting under his banner for re-election so he may continue to serve the best interests of the American people. We urge united action on the part of all of our members and the labor movement in general throughout the state and all other fair-minded citizens of our commonwealth to join together in this great battle for political freedom, social security and economic justice. As evidence of our sincerity of purpose, and to give effect to this action, your committee further recommends that the executive officers make such contributions, subject to approval of the executive board as may be necessary in support of this program. Your committee further recommends that the executive board be empowered to send out to all affiliated local unions and those local unions not affiliated a request for individual and voluntary contributions to be collected by the officers of the respective local unions and forwarded to the secretary-treasurer of the federation for use in this great battle which will be fought for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

"The committee further recommends that the secretary be authorized to send to each local union and those contributing a sufficient number of Roosevelt buttons to be given to the contributing member as evidence of their practical support of this great program of the re-election of that great humanitarian, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Let us go forward for Roosevelt and Recovery, for political freedom, social security and economic justice, and the committee recommends this resolution be given to the press, and a copy forwarded to each local union under our jurisdiction."

Labor Board Says Indiana Publisher Tried to Smash Pressmen's Union

Washington, D. C. — The decision of the National Labor Relations board ordering Edward E. Cox, Printer, Inc., publisher of the Hartford City News, Hartford City, Ind., to cease and desist from refusing to bargain collectively with Local No. 376 of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union contains instructive revelations concerning the intransigent tactics which anti-union employers all too frequently use in trying to impose reactionary policies on their employes.

In addition to printing and publishing the Hartford City News, which is a daily paper, the company also makes and distributes glassine and greaseproof wrappers, of which 1,250,000 pounds were printed during the last year, 90 per cent being shipped out of Indiana.

The decision points out that in July 1935, 18 union members employed by the company authorized Local 376 to represent them in labor disputes that might occur in the plant. The firm ignored a communication containing the information that its employes had chosen the union as their collective bargaining agent and requesting a conference. During the next few weeks officials of the union made futile efforts to persuade Jack Dolan and Edward E. Cox, Jr., president and treasurer of the company, to bargain collectively. Dolan is alleged to have said "he was not interested in recognizing the union, nor did he want to deal with them, or even the committee representing the employes."

While these fruitless negotiations were in progress a commissioner of conciliation of the United States Department of Labor vainly attempted to persuade the company to take a more reasonable position.

According to the labor board, the company not only refused to recognize the union as the representative of the employes of the pressroom, but "it also attempted to smash the union." The smashing method was inaugurated when Jack Dolan, president of the company, called Elwood W. Farr, secretary-treasurer of the union and a member of the union scale committee, into his office and suggested that Farr talk to the union members individually and ask them to resign from the union. The members refused to resign and voted overwhelmingly to continue their union activities. When this action was reported to Dolan he declared that it would be "a case of dog eat dog" from then on.

In addition to ordering the company to cease and desist from refusing to bargain collectively with Local No. 376, the labor board ordered the company union request of the union to bargain with it as the exclusive representative of the printing pressmen and their assistants employed by the company.

GEORGIA LABOR ASKS END TO WAR PROFITS

Atlanta. — The Georgia Federation of Labor has thrown its support behind efforts to take the profit out of war. Meeting in annual convention at Columbus, the delegates adopted a peace resolution, which said, in part:

"War, the demon of destruction which sets forces of destruction, death, agony and bloodshed sweeping over helpless and unhappy people, is generally conceived, planned and initiated with utter disregard for the rights of the people most vitally concerned, and has been used as a vehicle of enormous profit for a small group of cruel and selfish manipulators of public policy."

Preceding its anti-war resolution with the statement that "the world is in a state of unrest due to the abrogation of treaties by aggressive nations, repudiation of naval limitation agreement by others, and by open warfare between some," the federation asked that profit be taken out of war, that congress support "neutrality laws which embody a real neutrality," and "all available means to maintain peace have failed."

The federation further declared itself in favor of governmental operation and supervision of all phases of the nation's economic life in time of war, with profit eliminated.

Betsy Ross Bread To Use Union Label

Cameron & Barr Baking Company Signs Closed Shop Agreement With Bakery Workers' Union

Provides for Small Increase in Wages and 44-Hour Work-Week — Union Label To Be Used on All Products.

Members of organized labor in Chattanooga are congratulating the management of Cameron & Barr Baking company on their forward step this week when they concluded very amicable negotiations with Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Local 25 by signing an agreement which makes Betsy Ross bread 100 per cent union.

One other large bakery in Chattanooga, the Union Baking company, manufacturers of "Mother's" bread and cakes, has already been using the union label, and with the advent of Betsy Ross, citizens of Chattanooga are assured that there will be no shortage of a first-class union-made bakery product from now on.

Terms of the agreement give the employes an increase in wages and a reduction in hours from 48 to 44 per week. One week's vacation with pay each year is also granted. A board of arbitration is set up to provide for adjustment of any future disagreements without loss of time from work.

The Labor World congratulates the management of Cameron & Barr. We bespeak for them the cooperation and support of every unionist in this territory, and believe that Betsy Ross will blossom forth in unprecedented prosperity.

This agreement leaves only one bakery in Chattanooga of any appreciable size that is not manned by union men entirely. Although the Colonial bakery has a few of its employes who are members of the bakers' union, they have not yet reached a point where they can use the label.

BARBERS' STRIKE CALLED

New York City.—A strike of 16,000 barbers in Manhattan, the Bronx and a part of Queens, to join the 1,600 now on strike in Brooklyn, has been called. The strike call affects approximately 10,000 shops. The strike decision was announced by Anthony Merlino, strike leader. The barbers demand an increase in pay, a five-day week, four holidays a year and a 1 p. m. closing time on other legal holidays.

UNION SPONSORS TVA LECTURER

Acting upon request from Chattanooga Central Labor Union, the Tennessee Valley Authority has agreed to give from time to time lectures concerning the work, operation and goal of the Authority.

On Tuesday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock in Judge L. D. Miller's courtroom, Mr. Wm. C. Fitts, assistant general solicitor for the legal division of TVA, will discuss the history of the TVA Act. He will go back before the passage of the Act, showing the reason the Act was drawn up, what caused the need for it, and the general background for its existence.

The general public is invited to listen to the series, especially since the TVA work on Chickamauga Dam will mean so much to the community.

Mrs. Gordon H. Russell Succumbs Sunday in Miami

Mrs. Gordon H. Russell, formerly of Chattanooga, died Sunday morning of pneumonia at her home in Miami, Fla. She was formerly Miss Kate Hodges and was born and reared in Chattanooga.

She moved with her husband to Miami in 1912, where he acquired the Miami Weekly News, the official labor publication. Before going to Miami he was editor of Labor Monitor, the predecessor of the Labor World, the official organ of the Chattanooga Central Labor union.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell have many friends here. Her survivors are her husband; two sons, John and Charles Russell; a married daughter; seven grandchildren, all of Miami, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles A. Douglas and Mrs. Sue Gamble, both residents of Chattanooga.

The funeral was held in Miami.

And then there was the Scotchman who only bought one spur. He figured that if one side of the horse went, the other side would also go.

Free Press Signs Union Contract With Pressmen

Union Printers, Pressmen and Stereotypers Now Employed on Paper.

Officials of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 169 informed The Labor World yesterday that a contract signed jointly by the local and the management of the Chattanooga Free Press had been approved by the international office of the Pressmen's Union.

The contract with the pressmen, like the one signed several months ago with Typographical Union, provides for a 100 per cent pressroom as well as other union conditions.

Merchants as well as unionists of Chattanooga are congratulating the Free Press management for this action. Conferences leading toward the drawing up of the contract have been held for the past two months. Congratulations and cooperation to the Free Press by The Labor World are also extended. This make every paper in Chattanooga union made.

POTTERS' UNION JOINS LABEL TRADES

The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has adopted a new union label and has joined the Union Label Trades Department. The pottery industry is one of the numerous industries that has recently agreed to the use of the union label on its products.

Over 30 per cent of the pottery and chinaware sold annually in the United States is imported from Japan, where workers receive less than $4.00 per week for 60 hours labor.

Like all A. F. of L. insignia, the Potters' union label will assure the purchaser that the pottery manufacturer who displays it recognizes union labor conditions. It is also the best assurance that the crockery wares are made in America. This is the first time that the brotherhood label has been affixed to tableware and other pottery products.

The union label will be imprinted on the bottom of all pottery, together with the trade mark of the brand. It is an attractive design showing vases, dishes and other crockery. The shield of the United States appears below the words "Union Made," thus assuring that the pottery is American made as well as union made.

S. J. EDWARDS STORES LOSING UNION BUSINESS

Unfair Policy in Meat Markets Bring Out Union's Pickets.

PICKET ATTACKED FRIDAY; SCAB SPANKED SATURDAY

S. J. Edwards Employe Tears Sign from Picket Friday, But Gets Socked Hard When he Tried Again Next Day.

For a good many years claiming to be 100 per cent union, S. J. Edwards, owner of six grocery stores in Chattanooga, seems to be reversing himself completely. Mr. Edwards in the past has had union meat markets displaying the shop card of Local 600, Meatcutters' union. When new contracts were presented to meat markets Mr. Edwards' answer to the union was an extension of the number of hours in his store, representatives of the union say. In addition, he flatly refused to negotiate, they say.

As a last resort, the executive committee of Central Body was asked to see if they could not act as a mediator and settle the differences. Mr. Edwards refused to even discuss the matter. Result was that last Central Body meeting declared the Edwards chain "Unfair to Organized Labor."

Pickets were placed in front of all the stores last Friday. The Edwards store at Twenty-second and Dodds avenue must have felt the effects particularly bad, because one of the hired hands in the store, it is reported, came forth and tore the sign from the back of the picket, a little fellow.

Feeling that every dog is due the first bite, the picket went off without a scrap. He came back next day with a fresh sign and resumed his pacing back and forth. The warrior in the store, who must get almost $12 per week for his valuable services, sallied forth and tried to do his act again, it is asserted. Lo and behold, the little picket turned around and proceeded to give a first-class shellacking to his opponent, witnesses say.

Long years ago Mr. Edwards was a member of a local union in Chattanooga. At that time, old timers say, he was as energetic as any in an attempt to secure decent wages and working conditions. Since he has a small chain of six stores, however, unionists are wondering if Mr. Edwards is developing a chain store complex.

Of all the employes in the Edwards meat markets, only two forgot their obligation and became traitors. These two are Herman Barnes and George Hensinger, the business agent reports.

Nevertheless, members of Meatcutters' union announce that they will continue to tell their story to the public of Mr. Edwards' new policy of longer hours and non-union help. They ask all trade unionists to look for the union shop card in all meat markets and buy their meats only from union meat markets.

St. Louis Tailors Win Union Pact in 12 Shops

St. Louis, Mo.—An agreement for recognition of the union shop was signed by Local Union No. 11 of the Journeymen Tailors' Union with the 12 shops comprising the Merchant Tailors' Association of St. Louis following a strike which began March 31.

The contract runs for two years. It provides for a 10 per cent increase in wages effective next September 1, a 40-hour week with a maximum of 48 hours during the busy periods and elimination of home work. About 125 strikers returned to work under the new pact. The strike is still in effect in four clothing stores.

Man power will not be utilized unless workers and their families use their buying power.

Guffey Act Ruling Bars Congress' Attempt to Cure Labor Evils In Coal Mines

Davenport Mills Get Good Brokers Rating

Union Employes Get the Gate When They Refuse to Join Company Union.

Wages Paid Better Than Southern Average, But far Behind Eastern Worker.

The Davenport Hosiery Mills, Inc., one of Chattanooga's leading industrial plants, is given favorable rating in the May 14 issue of an analysis of stocks and bonds, distributed by Millard & Co., Inc., Chattanooga brokers.

That this company intends to keep their enormous dividend rate up is evidenced by brutal and cold-blooded discharge of their employes who are members of the American Federation of Hosietry Workers. Although this company has the highest pay rate of any hosiery plant in Chattanooga, the rate is yet far below similar classes of work in the hosiery centers of the North and East. Having less to fear from organization of their employes than any other sock factory in the city, it is hard to understand why the company has spent thousands of dollars in ruthless destruction of the hosiery local that got a fair foothold. This has been accomplished by discharge as fast as uncovered, and by the benevolent attitude toward a "Workers' Assiciation," which certainly is in "good graces" with management.

In fact, it is reported that "dues" to the "association" are taken out of pay envelopes by the front office. Prior to the organization of the real union in the plant there was "no need" for the "association." Immediately after advent of the A. F. of H. W. union, however, it became "urgently necessary" for the ice cream supper dummy union to "keep outsiders from breaking up the happy family."

Despite the problems of Davenport, and despite the very expensive strike two years ago by their workers, stockholders are doing very well.

A brief statement, headed "Davenport Hosiery Mills, Inc., common stock," reads as follows:

"The company manufactures women's silk hosiery exclusively, and markets its product under the nationally advertised trade mark of 'Humming Bird.'

"The company's net current assets have increased from $524,556 on January 1, 1927, to $912,888 on December 31, 1935. During this same period the company has reduced the amount of preferred stock outstanding from $1,000,000 to $736,100 and has paid dividends to its common stockholders aggregating $843,750.

"Few companies in any line of business have been so successful as this concern during the depression."

Productive Work "Local," Is View Of Highest Court

Federal Government Has No Control Over Hours and Wages, Says Ruling, Apparently Dooming New Deal Laws.

By George L. Knapp

Washington, D. C. — The supreme court, by a vote of six to three, has declared the labor provisions of the Guffey coal regulation act unconstitutional; and by another vote, of five to four, has thrown the entire act on the ash heap, on the ground that the labor provisions drag down everything else. This, in the face of the fact that congress expressly declared that the act could be separated into its primary purposes, and that if one of these were disallowed, that should not affect the rest.

The decision, written by Justice Sutherland, is one of the most astounding documents that even the supreme court has ever produced. In effect, it makes the court a jailer for congress, and a turnkey on every attempt to remedy industrial evils. It classes all productive work of any sort

CENTRAL LABOR UNION MEETS NEXT MONDAY

President Joe Dobbs calls attention to delegates to Chattanooga Central Labor union that next Monday is the regular meeting night for Central Body. Session will be called to order at 7:30 p.m. promptly.

Labor Heads Condemn Supreme Court Ruling

Washington, D. C. — John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said on the Guffey act decision of the supreme court:

"It is a sad commentary upon our form of government when every decision of the supreme court seems designed to fatten capital and starve and destroy labor."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"It is very disappointing. The decision emphasizes the intense need of organization among workers. We must rely on our economic strength. If we are unable to do something by law, then we are irresistibly driven to use our economic power."

PLASTERERS CHANGE TIME OF MEETINGS

Instead of meeting twice a month as heretofore, Plasterers' local union will meet every Saturday afternoon at the labor hall at 1:30. Officials urge that every member attend the next meeting to take care of very important matters.

Locomotive Engineers Take New England Strike Ballot

Boston, Mass.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has begun polling its members on the question of authorizing calling a strike of 3,000 enginemen on New England railroads.

The vote resulted from the use of Diesel-powered engines with only one man at the controls.

Roads involved are the Boston & Maine, Maine Central and New Haven and the Portland Terminal commpany.

Policeman — What's the trouble, sonny?

Sonny—Please, sir, have you seen a lady without a little boy who looks like me?

Let's have a new theme song, entitled. "Cut the Hours and Not the Pay."

A Friendly Letter With an Election Moral

Dear Friend Jack:

Just received your personal letter in which you ask me to vote for you for the office of_____. I'm awfully sorry, Old Top, but the fact is I'm one of those procrastinating guys who is always putting things off until tomorrow and then waking up to find tomorrow is gone and I have failed to take the necessary steps to qualify myself to vote.

Call me a dumb cluck, or whatever you will; I deserve everything you can think of offhand, for I have no good alibi to offer. The wife and I fully intended to register in the county registration books while they were in our precinct, then when they were moved down to the courthouse and placed in the main corridor for further convenience, but first one thing after another came up, and we kept putting it off.

I read in the newspapers, too, that the books were to be kept open last Thursday night to take care of the last-minute rush, and I told the wife when I went to work that we must be sure and go down after supper, or dinner, if you prefer to call it that, and she agreed with me. When I came home from work I was so tired that after supper I lay down on the couch and when I woke up both of us thought it was too late to bother about going down to the courthouse. The mother-in-law is registered, however, and she may be able to represent the family at the polls.

No, we have not paid our poll taxes, either; we kept putting that off just as we did the registration, but we may be able to vote in the general election next November —if I don't forget my registration and poll tax again.

I know you are going to throw it up to me that I am always shooting off my mouth about how things are run in public office and the need for good citizens to do something about it, and always stopping to talk with someone about the merits of the various candidates, but you know me, Jack; I just cannot seem to remember about getting registered and paying my poll tax, although I have lived in the South for years and I know all about such things.

Please don't rub it in too strong when we meet again, because I know that you know how I have been disqualifying myself that way for years.

Regretfully, BILL.

MORAL: Saturday, June 6, is the last day for payment of 1935 poll taxes by those who, unlike our procrastinating friend Bill, did not neglect to register. So take a lesson from Bill's absentmindedness and DO IT NOW—before it is too late.

Deceased

Passed away May 19, 1936, the Memphis Teachers' Union. Death resulted after several months suffering from a malignant disease prevalent in the southwestern corner of Tennessee which slips up on its victim over many years, so weakening the constitution that when pressure is brought to bear on the mind, resistance caves in. The disease, called "Crumpitis," breaks in a virulent form when the victim breathes an independent atmosphere. This germ attacked a prominent labor leader recently, but heroic inoculations by Dr. Organized Labor saved him from death, and he is now growing stronger. Past records show the mortality rate is exceedingly high, and because of a very weak heart, Teachers' Union succumbed.

Memphis Teachers' Union is mourned by some 75 relatives of the Union family residing in Memphis, and hundreds of cousins in Tennessee. Those believing in immortality say that after that section of Tennessee is made healthy for the Union race, Memphis Teachers' Union will rise from the grave.

Housing Shortage in Chattanooga

From reports received, it is apparent that the Tennessee Valley Authority will be forced to build a city at the damsite similar to Norris. Already employes at the dam are finding it difficult to find board and lodging in Chattanooga proper. So many homes that are already in existence need repairs in order to be habitable, and as a consequence those that do take in roomers and boarders in many instances have listened to the law of supply and demand and prices have gone up.

Other reports gleaned indicate that people who do not own their homes are being told to vacate by mortgage holders who wish to make necessary repairs and offer their property for sale. Especially does this seem to be the case of mortgage pools, etc., where they are overloaded with foreclosed property. By refusing to rent these properties, it is reasoned that people will be forced to buy and thus take the houses off of the hands of the "pools."

This forcing of people to buy their homes rather than rent them, if it works out that way, will of course benefit the community if prices on said homes are not used for profiteering. A community of home-owners is always better than a community of renters.

TVA in Knoxville was forced to build Norris City because Knoxville was unable to house the workers, either because of shortage of homes or because of distance. Unless Chattanooga prepares accommodations for Chickamauga dam workers that will be livable and within reach of pay envelopes, it appears that TVA here will have to build bunkhouses and homes at the dam also.

Supreme Court Decisions Unconstitutional?

The masses of this country do not have extensive training in the study of law. Even so, the man on the street does know that all law in this country is based on the constitution of the United States. That document is concise and brief. As to the duties and powers of the supreme court, it appears especially concise.

The man on the street, by reading the constitution, finds the first thing after the preamble says that "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of . . . ." Note particularly the first three words of this section says "ALL LEGISLATIVE POWERS."

Article 9, Section 2, defining powers of the supreme court, says, "The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and EQUITY, arising under this constitution . . " disputes between this country and other countries, between states, between a state and the nation, a state and a citizen of another state, or between citizens of different states, etc. The last sentence in defining its powers says, "In all other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations, AS THE CONGRESS SHALL MAKE."

The supreme court is secondary to congress. The court's function regarding laws passed by congress, its superior, is where congressional acts are ambiguous. In la wand equity it is a set precedent that where a written document is contested that any benefit of doubt shall be thrown to the side of the INTENT of the act.

Where laws of the land are concerned, the courts are only supposed to ENFORCE by judicial decree the enactments of congress.

From the past actions and decisions of the supreme court it appears that practically all social legislation passed by the representatives of 120 million people will be thrown on the scrap heap. The founders of this nation intended for congress to make the laws of the nation. The fact that the writers of the constiution devoted so much space to the powers of congress and less than 250 words to the supreme court indicates that they did not intend for the court to supersede congres.

This nation should be governed "by the people, of the people and for the people. Congress is composed of representatives of the people. Therefore the wishes of the people of this country, voiced in congress, should take precedence over nine elderly men who are even now exceeding the cloak of authority bestowed upon them by the constitution.

Teeth and Wages

Speaking to the Dental Society of the State of New York, Dr. H. H. Horner said that not more than 25 per cent of the people of the United States get regular dental care. "The greatest problem before the dental profession," he said, "is to find a way to make its knowledge and skill available. Society, too, must share in the responsibility."

Social workers have known for a long time that the first thing neglected in hard times is care of the teeth. But here is a statement from an authority that 75 per cent of the people fail to get proper dental care in ordinary times. Part of this failure is due to ignorance, no doubt; but a larger part is due to inability to meet the expense. Three-quarters of our people get wages too low to pay dental bills.

Dr. Horner made a convincing argument for steady employment and higher wages without knowing it.

Some Tax Dodging of Wall Street

In view of the pother now being raised about the proposed taxation of corporate surpluses—a favorite resort to give the insiders and the super-rich control of vast sums of money to which they have no title, it may be well to cite some of the examples of tax dodging uncovered by the Senate investigation of Stock Exchange practices, guided by Ferdinand Pecora. From Chapter 5 of the committee's report the following instances are taken:

"For the year 1929, the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. collectively paid about $11,000,000 in taxes to the Federal government. For the year 1930, seventeen Morgan partners, including J. P. Morgan, paid no tax and five paid aggregate taxes of about $56,000.

"For the year 1931, not a single Morgan partner paid any tax. For the year 1932, not a single Morgan partner paid any tax."

"For the year 1929 the partners of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. collectively paid about $1,900,000 in taxes. For the year 1930, four Kuhn-Loeb partners, including Otto H. Kahn, paid no tax. For the year 1931, six Kuhn-Loeb partners paid no tax, and the others paid taxes totalling less than $2,000. A similar condition prevailed in 1932."

The report tells some of the tricks of tax dodging; one favorite being the "sale" of securities to a relative to "establish losses," and buying them back at the selling price a little later."

Thomas S. Lamont, a Morgan partner, established losses of $114,807 by selling securities to his wife Dec. 31, 1930. He bought them back at the same price in April, 1931. He dodged taxes of $20,365 by this means.

Page after page is filled with other instances. Another trick is to do business through a personal corporation, which Wall Street calls "an incorporated pocket book." Albert H. Wiggin, of the Chase National Bank, formed six personal corporations for this purpose.

"What was the purpose of the creation of the Medfield Corporation?" asked Pecora.

"For the purpose of minimizing the tax on other corporations," replied Wiggin. Wiggin, by the way, made strenuous efforts to cut wages of workers in the depression while raising his own pay to $250,000 a year.

The reason why Wall Street is squalling about the proposed corporation tax is that it would make some of this tax dodging impossible.

COMMENT ON WORLD EVENTS

Mussolini is whooping like a Comanche chief over the "triumph" of an army equipped with all the modern instruments of war over a primitive people, armed at best with second-hand rifles, destitute of tanks and airplanes, practically destitute of artillery and far inferior in numbers. He is proclaiming loudly that the peace will be "a Roman peace," dictated by the "conqueror." What he means is probably that Ethiopia will be made an Italian province; and plans for the settlement and exploitation of the country are reported to be preparing already in Rome.

Yet the only thing that Mussolini has won with certainty—to date—out of this piece of land piracy is a prestige that will keep him for a while longer the dictator of Italy. That he has gained, and it might as well be recognized; in all probability the growing discontent with the fascist regime at home was the basic reason for this criminal raid.

The conquest of Ethiopia is miles from being complete. The Ethiopian army seems to be scattered. But for many years after their field forces scattered, the Algerians resisted the French. The "pacifying" of Morocco was another long job; not any too well finished yet. For years to come, even taking the victory at its fascist valuation, Italy must keep a large army in Ethiopia; and it is not easy to see how her finances can stand the strain.

As for settling the country, Italians have never colonized any country in which the pioneer work had not been done already. They have formed the second, third or fourth wave of migration—never the first; and these national habits have a way of persisting despite the fiats of dictators. Also, it has yet to be shown that any European people can form stable, self-sustaining communities within 5 degrees of the equator. The British in India, the French in Senegal, the Spaniards in Peru and Equador, the Dutch in Java—each and all are merely small ruling classes.

Yet all these peoples have had far more experience in colonization than Italy.

Walter M. Citrine, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions and general secretary of the British Trade Union Congress, has been swamped with anonymous letters threatening him with death for his courageous struggle against fascism.

These letters bear the earmarks of continuous nazi and fascist agitation in Great Britain and are often adorned with fascist or swastika markings. One of them reads in true gangster style after unprintable abuses:

"You are number one to be bumped off."

While Citrine declined to take these threats seriously it should be kept in mind that labor and socialist leaders in France and other countries have been physically assaulted by the fascist during recent weeks.

The Labor Chest for the Relief and Liberation of Workers in Europe says that according to trustworthy sources there are approximately 2,500 agents of the state secret police of Germany working in foreign countries. The cost of the service is estimated at 20 million marks or more than six million dollars a year.

The Central Labor union is sponsoring a series of lectures explaining the workings of teh Tennessee Valley Authority, with particular emphasis on the relation of the TVA to organized labor. The first lecture was held last Tuesday night, when Brother C. C. The next lecture will be on Tuesday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock, in Judge Miller's court room. W. C. Fitts will explain the legal side of the TVA act at that time. Denver Building Workers Strike

Denver, Colo.—Union workers on a federal construction project on May 12 led other organized building groups into a walkout that virtually suspended all construction activity in the city. Approximately 1,600 bricklayers, hodcarriers and common laborers were on strike. The unions charged that the contractors, a Chicago firm, adding a new wing to the Federal Customs Building failed to pay contract wages to labor.

Labor Urges President to Push Housing and U. S. Standards Bills

Roosevelt Asked to Use Influence for Passage This Session of Wagner-Ellenbogen and Walsh-Healy Measures — A. F. of L. Executive Council Rejects IFTU Affiliation.

Washington.—Organized labor has urged President Roosevelt to use his influence to obtain passage at this session of the Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill and the Walsh-Healey bill setting up NRA standards on work done under government contracts.

Labor's demand for enactment of the two bills was voiced by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and members of the executive council during a visit to the White House.

Green expressed "deep disappointment" because the Walsh-Healey measure had been delayed in the house judiciary committee and urged Mr. Roosevelt use pressure to bring the measure to the house floor.

Green said the Federation still hoped that the Wagner housing bill would pass at this session but declared it would "need very strong administration support."

He described the housing measure as "without question the most important piece of legislation before Congress today."

The A. F. of L. executive council, in spring session here, voted against joining the International Federation of Trade Unions.

"Europe is so disturbed nowadays," said President Green, explaining the executive council's action. "Labor unions have been wiped out entirely in Germany and their leaders sent to jail."

In France and Spain, he said, labor unions are "tying up with the extreme left." In Italy the unions have become Fascist and in Russia they are run by a dictatorship, he added.

By its action, the council postponed indefinitely rejoining the international group, which the American Federation of Labor left in 1916.

Green said that council also decided not to call a convention of the Pan-American Federation of Labor for the time being due to "very disturbed" conditions in Central and South American nations.

P. O. MAIL-EQUIPMENT SHOP EMPLOYES SECURE RESTORATION OF WAGES

Washington, D. C. — President Roosvelt signed the bill recently passed by Congress making the 40-hour week for postal employes without reduction in earnings applicable to the mail-equipment shops operated by the postoffice department.

These employes were included in the 40-hour week bill enacted by Congress last year that their weekly earnings must be cut to the extent of four hours' pay. The bill signed by the president gives the postoffice department authority to raise the pay scale per hour so that the per diem employes working 40 hours a week will receive just as much pay for a for a week's work as they formerly received for 44 hours work a week. The measure was made retroactive to October 1, 1935.

It was estimated that employes affected by the measures had suffered a loss in pay of over $15,000 since the passage of the shorter work week act.

The wage restoration bill was unanimously approved by the Senate and House committees on postoffice and post roads and passed both Houses without opposition. It also had the indorsement of Postmaster General Farley.

Wheeling Steel Company Is Ordered To Cease Company Union Recognition

Labor Board Also Instructs Concern to End Its Interference With Steel Workers' Union and Reinstate Discharged Union Worker.

Washington.—The National Labor Relations Board, after a thorough investigation of a complaint filed by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers charging the Wheeling Steel Corporation with violating the union's rights under the Wagner-Connery Labor Relations Act, ordered the corporation to withdraw all recognition from department councils and the general council as representative of its employes dealing with the company concerning wages and shop conditions at its Portsmouth, Ohio, plant.

The board found that the councils were initiated and controlled by the Wheeling company for the purpose of discouraging membership in the Amalgamated Association.

In addition to the ban on further recognition of the councils, the board ordered the company to end its interference with the affairs of the five lodges of the Amalgamated Association existing in its plants, and to reinstate with back pay William Patton, who was found to have been discharged because of union activity.

The works councils sponsored by the Wheeling concern are said to be typical of recent company union development whereby many such organizations have been changed in form to eliminate direct company participation.

Declaring that the councils are "labor organizations" which "do not, per se, involve participation or control by the employer," the board cited the financial and other support given them by the management. The company, it said, helps maintain a meeting hall in Portsmouth and permits councils to use its bulletin boards, a privilege which is denied the Amalgamated Association, adding: "Foremen bring pressure on the men to join the departmental councils."

Merger of Auto Unions Is Declared Certainty

Detroit, Mich.—A merger of the Automotive Industrial Workers' Association, independent union, with the United Automobile Workers Union, American Federation of Labor affiliate, is "now a certainty," Richard Frankensteen, president of the independent group, declared here.

Frankensteen's opinion was expressed when he announced that committee members of the A. I. W. A. had voted unanimously in favor of the unification of the two groups. The A. I. W. A. is the largest independent union in the automotive industry.

The vote was taken at a meeting of 16 committeemen elected by the central governing body of the organization.

"The merger," said Frankensteen, "is now a certainty in my opinion. The 16 committee members represent a majority of the local unions, and they registered a unanimous vote of approval."

Those attending the meeting included representatives of the American Federation of Labor's affiliate group and Arthur E. Greer, president of the Associated Automobile Workers of America, another independent.

HOUSING TERMED SOCIAL PROBLEM BY ARCHITECTS

Old Point Comfort, Va.—The Committee on Housing of the American Institute of Architects in a survey report made at the institute's sixty-eighth meeting held here, said housing should be recognized as a social problem equally important as hospitalization, education, police service or fire protection.

The committee recommended development of separate housing plans for families of low income, but opposed centralized control by the federal government.

Public aid to supplement private enterprise in providing dwellings for low income groups was recommended, with strict adherence to standards below which housing may not be occupied.

MORE ABOUT GUFFEY ACT

as purely "local," not to be disturbed by the national government.

"Evils All Local Evils" Is Sutherland's Dictum.

After acknowledging that the coal business is and has been in a rather bad way, Justice Sutherland says:

"The evils are all local evils over which the federal government has no legislative control. The relation of employer and employe is a local relation. The wages are paid for doing local work. Working conditions are obviously local conditions. The employes are not in or about commerce but exclusively in producing a commodity. And the controversies and evils, which it is the object of the act to regulate and minimize, are local controversies and evils affecting local work undertaken to accomplish that local result."

The quoted paragraph reads like something said in a grammar school debating society; but it is the official pronouncement of the highest court in the land. All the pertinent facts contradict everything which Justice Sutherland says.

Coal Business Is Everything But Local.

A vast majority of the coal mines of West Virginia, where the controversy arose, are owned outside the state. The management is outside, usually in New York; and no important decision—one changing working conditions, for instance—can be made without word from the central office. Probably 80 per cent of the coal mined in West Virginia is used in other states. Much of it is mined on orders from industries and dealers located in other states. The pitifully small pay checks may cross half a dozen state lines before they get to the workers. The workers themselves in many fields are organized in a union which covers the coal mining area of the United States, and whose headquarters are not in West Virginia.

Investment, management, control, market, workers—all are interstate in their most important relations. Everyone knows this — or should know it. But Judge Sutherland sweeps all these facts aside and declares the whole business a purely local affair.

Decision Seems To Doom Other Laws.

It is a decision which will be received with grief by every worker, and by everyone who is trying to remedy the ills of industry. It will be hailed with joy by the proprietor of every sweatshop and the exploiter of every group of helpless labor. Carried to its logical conclusion, it would destroy the Labor Relations Act, the Social Security Act, and nearly every other law by which congress has tried to prevent industrial peonage and social disaster.

The dissenting opinion of Justice Cardozo, concurred in by Justices Brandeis and Stone, is a masterpiece of judicial literature; and his summary of the coal situation which inspired the Guffey act is a marshalling of facts rarely equalled.

"Overproduction was at a point where free competition had been degraded into anarchy. Prices had been cut so low that profit had become impossible for all except a lucky handful. Wages came down along with prices and with profits. . . .

Plight of Industry Menace to Public

"During the 23 years between 1913 and 1935, there were 19 investigations or hearings by congress or by specially created commissions with reference to conditions in the coal mines. The plight of the industry was not merely a menace to owners and to mine workers, but it was and long had been a menace to the public. . . .

"Congress was not condemned to inaction in the face of price wars and wage wars so pregnant with disaster. Commerce had been choked and burdened; its normal flow had been diverted from one state to another; there had been bankruptcy and waste and ruin alike for capital and for labor.

"The liberty protected by the Fifth Amendment does not include the right to persist in this anarchic riot."

Complaints Crying Before They Are Hurt.

In the purely legal phases of the case, Justice Cardozo is equally telling.

"The opinion of the court begins at the wrong end (of the act). To adopt a homely form of words, the complainants have been crying before they are really hurt."

Cardozo held that the court should have considered the price-fixing parts of the bill, which he approves, instead of damning the whole act on the labor provisions, which might never have been invoked in practice.

Hughes Condemns Killing of Whole Act.

Chief Justice Hughes, while agreeing that the labor provisions of the act are unconstitutional, condemns utterly the action of the court in throwing out the whole law.

"Congress evidently desired stabilization through both the provisions relating to marketing and those relating to labor, but the setting up of the two sorts of requirements did not make the one dependent on the validity of the other. They are not so interwoven that they cannot have separate operation and effect."

D. C. Court Knocks Out Rural Slum Clearance.

On the same day that the supreme court denied, in substance, the right of congress to establish decent labor conditions in an industry affecting the whole nation, the court of appeals of the District of Columbia held it unconstitutional for congress to make provision for rural slum clearance. The clauses of the Federal Emergency Appropriations Act which sets up the Resettlement Administration were knocked out by the court in language so sweeping that it seems to nullify practically every effort of the New Deal.

"The fundamental question involved," says the court, "is the total lack of constitutional power in congress to put in operation through legislation a project such as is here contemplated. . . . The constitution will be scanned in vain for a power conferred upon the federal government to regulate housing or to resettle populations."

New Dealers retort that the constitution likewise will be scanned in vain for any power conferred on any court to nullify acts of congress. The government contention that the general welfare clause of the constitution covers the case was disallowed by the court.

ORGANIZATION PLAN FOR STEEL INDUSTRY OUTLINED BY GREEN

A. F. of L. Executive Council Will Have Full Charge of Campaign—Broadest Possible Industrial Policy Planned, With Jurisdictional Rights of National and International Unions Adequately Protected. Security Board Rejects.

Washington. — President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, by direction of the A. F. of L. executive council, in a communication addressed to the officers and delegates in attendance at the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, Canonsburg, Pa., set forth the plan and objective of the council in its campaign for organizing the workers in the iron and steel industry.

The text of the communication follows:

"It is the plan and purpose of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to carry out the instructions of the San Francisco and Atlantic City conventions of the American Federation of Labor to inaugurate a campaign of organization in the iron and steel industry. At each meeting of the executive council held since the adjournment of the Atlantic City convention special consideration has been given to these instructions and to the development of plans and policies designed to carry into effect the detailed and specific instructions of the supreme authority of the American Federation of Labor.

"The instructions given to the executive council by the conventions of the American Federation of Labor herein referred to were as follows:

" 'That the executive council shall at the earliest practical date inaugurate, manage, promote and conduct a campaign of organization in the iron and steel industry.'

"Preliminary steps to the inauguration of an organizing campaign were taken at the first meeting of the executive council which was held following the adjournment of the Atlantic City convention, at Miami, Fla., beginning January 15. The executive council makes the following stipulations in connection with the origination and execution of an organizing campaign in the iron and steel industry:

Jurisdictional Rights Protected

"1. In conformity with the decisions of the San Francisco and Atlantic City conventions, the executive council must exercise the right to manage, promote and conduct the campaign, and as hereinafter outlined. There can be no division in administration and conflict in authority recognized in the conduct and administration of the organizing campaign.

"2. The character of the campaign and the administrative policy pursued shall and must be in accordance with the organization policy of the American Federation of Labor as expressed and decided upon at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor. While it is the purpose of the executive council to apply the broadest and most comprehensive industrial policy possible, due regard and proper respect for the jurisdictional rights of all national and international unions will be observed in the execution of an organizing campaign.

Unconditional Contributions

"3. The executive council will accept contributions from national and international unions directly affiliated with the American Federation of Labor for the purpose of carrying on an organizing campaign, but said contributions must be made unconditionally. The executive council cannot carry out the instructions of the Atlantic City convention to 'manage, promote and conduct' this campaign of organization by accepting conditional contributions from any source whatsoever, and which the executive council deems in conflict with the instructions and intent of the convention action and with the organization policies of the American Federation of Labor.

"4. The organizing campaign will be launched and carried forward by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in cooperation with the Amlagamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the representatives of other organizations interested, affected and involved. The executive council will use such funds and assign such organizers as may be made available. All details in connection with the organizing campaign will be arranged through conference and agreement by the representatives of all the organizations who may be called upon to 'cooperate in the organizing campaign and who may be directy interested.'

Supreme Authority for Council

"The plans and purposes of the executive council and the stipulations upon which said plans are based are predicated upon the presumption that the executive council may be permitted to inaugurate and carry forward an organizing campaign in the iron and steel industry free from interference on the part of any group or groups either within or outside the jurisdiction of the American Federation of Labor."

Lumber Company Guilty Of Anti-Union Practices

Labor Board Orders Alabama Concern to Cease Discrimination Against Members of Sawmill Workers' Union.

The decision of the National Labor Relations Board requiring the Greensboro Lumber company of Greensboro, Ala., to observe the right of its employes to organize in a bona fide trade union for the purpose of collective bargaining, in accordance with the provisions of the Wagner-Connery Act, puts into the spotlight the practice of discriminating against union members in terms of employment—a favorite device used by the anti-union concerns to deprive working men and women of one of the elementary essentials of liberty.

According to the Labor Board, a local union of the Sawmill Workers, affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, was organized among the employes of the company last October. On November 9, two days after the local union asked the company to bargain collectively with it, the company closed down the mill, resuming operations partially on November 22 with one shift.

The board found that during the shutdown the company employed non-union labor exclusively to work in the yard and in the selection of employes to operate the one shift the company discriminated against union employes in the allocation of work.

The board ordered the company to cease and desist from interfering with, restraining or coercing its employes in the exercise of their right to organize, guaranteed by the National Labor Relations Act, and also to cease and desist from in any manner whatsoever discriminating against union workers in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment and thereby discouraging membership in the Sawmill Workers' local union or in any other labor organization.

SECURITY BOARD REJECTS ILLINOIS PENSION PLAN

Washington, D. C.—The Illinois old-age pension law was refused approval by the federal security board because of a number of fundamental variations from the rules required by the social security act with which state laws must comply in order to secure the federal contribution of 50 per cent of state pensions up to a maximum of $30 a month.

In a letter to Governor Horner, John G. Winant, chairman of the board, declared that no other state has submitted a plan "which contains provisions so restrictive in nature and so hampering to effective operation."

Among amendments necessary to bring the Illinois statute up to federal requirements, Mr. Winant included:

Establishment of state control through statutes fixing the minimum qualifications for employes of the county welfare commissions; elimination of the present five-year county residence requirement for commission employes; increased provisions for a "fair hearing" and provisions for prompt payment to the federal government of money collected from the estates of deceased pensioners.

Government Cement Plants Are Suggested by Ickes

Washington, D. C. — Confronted with a number of identical bids for large quantities of cement which the Public Works Administration is using at various points in the United States, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who is also public works administrator, declared that manufacturers have been able to get around laws designed to prevent monopolistic practices and to evade provisions designed to prevent collusive bidding.

As a practical method of dealing with the alleged manufacturers' "gang up" in price fixing and profiteering, Secretary Ickes suggested the advisability of the government establishing its own cement plants.

INDIANA COAL MINERS MEET

Terre Haute, Ind.—Union coal miners from throughout Indiana assembled here on May 11 for the thirty-fourth biennial convention of District No. 11, United Mine Workers of America. More than 200 delegates, representing approximately 150 local unions, attended.

TEXTILE UNION MERGER

London.—Members of the National Union of Textile Workers, the Amalgamated Society of Dyers and the Bolton Amalgamation of Bleachers and Finishers have voted overwhelmingly to amalgamate, which will bring into existence a single union with an aggregate membership of nearly 100,000. The annual delegate meetings of the three unions in May will make the preliminary arrangements for giving effect to the scheme of amalgamation.

The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Organized Labor Asks Governor To Call Extra Session of State Legislature for Unemployment

If State Does Not Act by January 31, 1937, We Will Lose $3,000,000 in This Year Alone, and Still More in Succeeding Years.

Calling upon Gov. Hill McAlister to call a special session of the legislature to pass legislation immediately which will put the state of Tennessee in position to receive $3,000,000 which it must pay to the federal government even if it does not participate in the unemployment insurance program now in effect, Tennessee Federation of Labor announces that such steps should be seriously considered.

A payroll tax of 1 per cent is now being collected by the federal government for the year 1936. If Tennessee does not establish an approved system of unemployment compensation, this entire amount will go to the federal government. If the state does not make proper provisions, 90 per cent of this tax will be kept in Tennessee and will be paid to unemployed citizens instead of being sent out to citizens of other states who have protected their interests. This amount will become larger each year as the payroll tax is increased to 2 per cent and then 3 per cent.

A copy of the resolution adopted by the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor held in Chattanooga may 4-6 has been forwarded to the governor. Every local union should at once petition the governor to take the action requested. The resolution as adopted says:

"Whereas, the federal government has levied in Title IX of the social security act a payroll tax, amounting to 1 per cent of the payrolls of certain specified employers in 1936, 2 per cent in 1937, and 3 per cent in 1938 and thereafter; and,

"Whereas, if an unemployment compensation system of approved type is established in the state of Tennessee, employers in this state who would otherwise be liable to the payment of this federal payroll tax may deduct their payments to the state compensation fund, up to 90 per cent of the federal tax; and,

"Whereas, it is estimated that the liability of Tennessee employers under the payroll tax above referred to will amount to approximately $3,000,000 for the year 1936, which amount will be due and payable to the federal government not later than Jan. 31, 1937; and,

"Whereas, if no system of unemployment compensation is in operation in Tennessee by said date, Jan. 31, 1937, this fund of $3,000,000 will be lost to the state of Tennessee and will no longer be available for the payment of benefits to unemployed persons in this state, with the result that the initiation of benefit payments in this state will be delayed at least one year beyond the date which otherwise would be possible; now therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Tennessee Federation of Labor in convention assembled this 5th day of May, 1936, go on record as urgently requesting the governor to appoint a special committee to prepare plans for a state unemployment system in co-operation with the federal social security board, such committee to include not less than three representatives of organized labor; and further be it

"Resolved, That the governor be requested to call a special session of the state legislature to act upon this matter so soon as the aforementioned committee may be able to report, in order that the federal payroll tax assessed for this calendar year may not be permanently lost to the state of Tennessee; and further be it

"Resolved, That the legislative committee be instructed to use every means to bring about the early establishment of a system of unemployment compensation in this state which will meet the needs of labor and will be approved by the federal social security board."

Roosevelt Club Gets Good Start On Signal Mtn.

Over 100 Members Enrolled at First Meeting Sponsored by Labor.

This week saw the first Roosevelt club formed in this immediate vicinity by members of organized labor. Sponsored by the non-partisan labor committee, headed by George L. Berry and John L. Lewis, citizens of Signal mountain, mostly members of the mine workers, elected Roy Bottomley as president, and Miss Cleo Files secretary.

The United Mine Workers of America, District 19, have a shipment of 30,000 Roosevelt for President buttons on the way, and it is believed that this shipment will be just a starter.

The Tennessee Federation of Labor at its convention in Chattanooga May 4-6 enthusiastically called upon its members to stand firm for Roosevelt and re-elect him over the opposition of the so-called Liberty league and other reactionary groups.

Examinations Open For Re-Employment Director

An open competitive examination is being announced for the position of director of the State Employment Service and National Re-Employment Service in Tennessee. Selection of director will be made from an eligible list to be established as a result of the examination.

With the holding of the director examination all positions in the Tennessee State Employment Service will have come under the merit system of appointment, as agreed upon between the Tennessee State Employment Service and the United States Employment Service in Washington. Last fall examinations were held and eligible lists established for all other positions in the public employment offices.

Application forms, announcements and information may be obtained from Dr. Ernest J. Eberling, Vanderbilt university, Nashville, who has been designated as special representative of the United States Employment Service to co-operate in the execution of the examination program. June 13 has been set as the closing date for filing applications. The examination is open to men only. All applicants must be legal residents and qualified voters of the state of Tennessee and must have been legal residents and qualified voters of the state of Tennessee at least three years within the five years immediately preceding the last date of filing application.

Minimum qualifications for admission to the examination are set forth in the announcement of this examination which may be obtained upon application to Professor Eberling. Competitors must have had a background of full-time paid employment definitely providing a knowledge of occupations and employment problems and practices such as is entailed in establishments and organizations in industrial, commercial, professional and labor fields. Qualifications for admission to the examination are as follows:

Special experience is defined as full-time paid employment within the last twelve years in work definitely providing knowledge of occupations and employment problems and practices such as is entailed in establishments and organizations in industrial, commercial, professional and labor fields. Three years of this experience shall have included supervisory or administrative responsibilities and have demonstrated ability in an executive capacity.

21 Railway Labor Unions Secure Five-Year Dismissal Wage Pacts

All Roads Will Provide Protection for Employes Discharged in consolidation of Lines and Joint Use of Terminals.

Washington, D. C. — The protection which the railway labor unions have persistently demanded for employes thrown out of work in railroad consolidations and terminal mergers was finally secured in an agreement signed here by George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, and H. A. Enochs, chief of personnel, Pennsylvania railroad, and chairman of the committee representing railroad management.

The agreement provides a scale of dismissal wages ranging up to one year's salary for employes who have been in the service 15 years or longer. At their option, employes will also be entitled to accept partial salary payments over a period of years. For employes who have worked 15 years the partial payments plan will provide 60 per cent of regular salary for 60 months.

Ban on Wage Reductions.

There is a provision banning wage reductions for employes who are shifted to other jobs in consolidations. In addition, payments will be made to workers who incur expenses in moving to new jobs, including living expenses for the transfer period. Workers must also be reimbursed for any losses suffered in the sale of their homes in such a move, and are protected against loss of equity to a fair extent if under a contract to purchase a home.

Runs for Five Years.

The agreement runs for five years, beginning June 18. It is subject to revision by mutual consent of both groups, but only after the serving of 60 days' notice.

President Roosevelt's orders to Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, to hold up unification of railway terminals in 11 cities until an agreement had been reached by the management and labor groups regarding management and labor groups regarding protection of the employes will probably be remanded

AFL Executive Council Declares Passage of Federal Housing Bill Is Imperative Duty of Congress

President Green Holds Court Decision Invalidating Resettlement Project Opens Way for Adequate Housing Program Authorized by Wagner-Ellenbogen Measure—Urges President Roosevelt to Make It a "Must" Bill.

Washington.—At the adjournment of the final session of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, President William Green issued the following statement on behalf of the council:

"The need for immediate enactment of the Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill is sharpened and made insistent by the recent decision of the United States court of appeals for the District of Columbia against one of the resettlement administration housing projects.

"This decision proves that there must be a clear-cut national housing policy, carefully designed and enacted by congress, before there can be any housing. It gives incontrovertible proof of the fact that housing cannot be brought in by the 'side door,' under any disguise whatsoever.

"The council deplores the decision of the court against the housing project in Bound Brook, N. J. This decision will throw needy New Jersey building trades workers out of employment once more. It will deprive thousands of families, living in congested unsanitary dwellings nearby, of an opportunity to live in decent quarters. But this unfortunate decision may in the long run help to throw light upon some of the dark corners of the 'housing problem.'

"Low-rent housing is one of the major issues confronting this nation today. No one has stated this fact more positively or more often than President Roosevelt himself. And yet,

Colonial Answer To Labor Is A Hot Bread War

Immediately After Betsy Ross Puts on Union Label, Colonial Comes Out With Larger Loaf.

It seems that the dear public is to be treated to bigger loaves of bread! Although other units in other cities of the Colonial Baking company chain have not as yet increased the size of their loaves, as far as ascertained, the Chattanooga branch has decided that the public "should get more for their money," or, as they term it, some of their excess profits should "be handed down to the consumer."

This decision by the Colonial Baking company, which has been non-union in its bakeshop, was reached almost immediately after Cameron & Barr Baking company came out last week with a union-labeled product. Hundreds of unionists look on this announcement by the Colonial as not so much a desire to give the dear public more for its money, but merely a subtle attack on any bakeries that sign union contracts.

Hundreds of the dear public have been heard to express a preference that any excess profits should be given to the employes in bakeries in the form of restoration of wage losses during the depression rather than a price war which, if successful, can only result in demoralization of an industry, and which will in turn force employes to take further wage reductions in order to further competitive price-selling.

$1,425,000,000 Federal Works Fund Predicted

Projects for Unemployed Women and White Collar Workers Allotted $85,500,000 Each—Jobless Youth Get $81,250,000.

Washington.—The tremendous responsibility which the federal government is required to assume in providing work relief for millions of jobless whom private industry refuses to employ is revealed by the $1,425,000,000 works fund section of the deficiency appropriation bill which has passed the house of representatives and is scheduled for prompt action in the senate.

According to plans, understood to have the approval of President Roosevelt, the entire fund will be under the direction of Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. The proposal is to have the relief money spent for projects in the following groups with the limitations indicated:

Highways, roads and streets	$ 413,250,000
Public buildings	156,756,000
Parks and other recreational facilities	156,750,000
Sewer systems, water supply and purification, airports and other transportation facilities	171,000,000
Flood control and other conservation	128,250,000
White collar projects	85,500,000
Women's projects	85,500,000
Miscellaneous work projects	71,250,000
National youth administration	85,500,000
Rural habilitation and relief to farmers	85,500,000
Total	$1,425,000,000

To give a certain amount of flexibility to this classification the president will probably be given authority to shift the various amounts up to 15 or 20 per cent.

Commissioner Jacobs Comes to Rescue Of Hungry Miners Report

Frustrates Efforts of Mine Bosses to Starve Employes Into Wage Reductions.

George Titler, representative of United Mine Workers for District 19, is loud in his praise for Commissioner W. E. Jacobs, of the state department of labor, for his co-operation the last few weeks with needy members of that union. Although mines in the southern district of Tennessee have signed union contracts and there is no strike on, the mines have been closed down.

As a result, families of the miners have suffered greatly. When attempts were made to get these families on the relief rolls, the mine owners succeeded for a while in having relief refused them because of "labor troubles," it is reported. It is believed the reason for this was the hope that the union would make a proposition, caused by hunger, to reduce their wage scale if the bosses would reopen the diggings.

A trip was made to Nashville to confer with the commissioner, who, according to Mr. Titler, went before the governor with their case. The result was overwhelmingly satisfactory. The commissioner and the governor ruled that the miners were entitled to relief, even if there had been labor trouble going on, and yesterday it is reported that families are gradually being put on the relief rolls.

We congratulate the labor commissioner for his prompt and effective intervention in this humanitarian effort to help feed hungry women and children.

TVA LECTURER NEXT TUESDAY SOUTHERN MAN

An "Interpretation of the TVA Act" will be the subject of the lecture sponsored by Chattanooga Central Labor union to be delivered next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in Judge Miller's court room. The speaker, Mr. William C. Fritts, is a southerner born and reared in Birmingham, Ala. He graduated from Princeton in 1927 and from the law school at Yale in 1929. He practiced law in Birmingham until he came with TVA two years ago, when he became a member of the TVA legal staff.

This will be the second of a series of lectures given by TVA at request of Central Labor union in order to familiarize citizens of Chattanooga of the entire set-up that is now operating in Chattanooga on the dam.

"BIG FOUR" OUTPUT AND PROFITS SOAR, WHILE JOBS AND WAGES FALL

Labor, Consumer, Shown Victimized In CIP Report

Big Companies Did Not Pass Reduced Production Costs on to Cigarette Buyers, It Is Revealed.

Washington, D. C.—Production and profits in the cigarette industry have soared in recent years, while employment and annual wages have dropped sharply, the Council for Industrial Progress, better known as the CIP, reports.

The CIP is one of the progressive organizations of the present day. It is also one of the most cautious in making positive statements. It consists of representatives of employers and workers alike; and no assertion is made in the name of the CIP unless it is able to stand any amount of fair criticism.

With this fact in mind, the report of the CIP on the mechanization of industry has a special value for that large part of labor which would like to see the Big Four companies routed from their present position of a virtual monopoly of the tobacco industry.

"In the cigarette industry," says this report, "production since 1920 has been more than doubled, while employment has declined. Annual wages per worker also declined, with the net result that in 1933 the net profits of the four largest companies exceeded the combined outlay for wages and domestic tobacco by the entire tobacco industry, except cigars."

The "four largest companies" are, of course, the Big Four—the American, R. J. Reynolds, Liggett & Myers, and P. Lorillard tobacco companies. Yet the ultra careful CIP re-

Federal Jury Indicts Three For Kick-Back Pay Scheme

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A federal grand jury here indicted three men for an alleged "kick back" said to have been imposed upon workrs progress administration employes by the Lafayette Concrete company, of New York City, with whom the defendants are connected.

It was charged that the company had a contract with the PWA for foundation on a public school building and agreed to pay carpenters $1.40 an hour and laborers 93¾ cents an hour. It was alleged the carpenters received only $1 an hour and laborers 75 cents. From 40 to 60 men were said to have been employed.

CLEVELAND UNION LEADER MURDERED

Cleveland, O. — Arthur Whitelock, business agent of the Ice, Coal and Water Drivers' union, was shot and killed when two men entered his home at night and began firing without warning. Police reported Whitelock was sitting in a rocker when his assassins entered. They immediately opened fire, and Whitelock was dead when detectives arrived. The men, unidentified, fled from the house and escaped in the darkness.

COMMUNISM INQUIRY VOTED.

Albany, N. Y.—Just before adjournment the New York legislature adopted the resolution sponsored by Senator John J. McNaboe with broad powers to investigate alleged communist activities in New York schools and colleges. Mr. McNaboe originally asked for $150,000 to finance the probe, but as finally enacted the amount was reduced to $15,000.

Life is what we make it for a time, but finally the children are old enough to make it even worse.

Washington Clerks Win New Scale in 35 Stores

Washington, D. C. — A new wage scale with $27.50 the weekly minimum salary for men and $16.50 for the minimum for women went into effect here in the downtown area through a new uniform agreement with Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, Local Union No. 262.

The new wage rates are an increase of $2.50 in the minimum for men and $1.50 for women. The uniform agreement takes the place of 17 old ones which varied in many particulars. It was negotiated through H. C. Wonderly of the Retail Clerks' union and a committee from the Merchants and Manufacturers association, and was hailed by union leaders as a definite step "to better their own welfare and to co-operate more effectively with organized business men of the city."

At first merchants refused to deal with the union for the new uniform agreement, but decided to negotiate when a strike was threatened.

In addition to definite wage increases the agreement provides a 48-hour week—six days of eight hours each—but during July and August the work week will be from Monday to Friday, without Saturday. If stores are open Saturday during July and August, clerks will be paid double time.

The former scale of a $25 minimum for men and $15 for women frequently included "extras" and commissions, but under the new agreement the commissions will be added, the new rates being only the minimum wage.

Auto Workers Vote on Merger.

Detroit, Mich.—Officials of the Automotive Industrial Workers' association announced that representatives of the local units had approved a plan to merge with the United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The association was organized here last fall following the first convention of the Automobile Workers' union. The new group was sponsored at that time by Father Charles E. Coughlin, the radio preacher.

Dismissal Pay Pact Is Praised by Green

Plan for Protecting Workers in Railway Consolidations Is Tribute to Collective Bargaining and Emphasizes Human Values, A. F. of L. Chief Says.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued the following statement regarding the achievement in collective bargaining as shown by the agreement between the standard railway executives for the payment of a dismissal wage to employes who are discharged in connection with railway mergers:

"The agreement entered into between representatives of the standard railway organizations and the railway executives, relating to consolidation and coordination of transportation facilities, represents an achievement in collective bargaining.

"The principle of employer obligation to workers displaced through consolidation and coordination is recognized.

"The human factor in the railroad industry and human values have been given, through this agreement, a status approximating that of property and financial investment. This marks a most historic development in the application of principles of collective bargaining and of an economic philosophy long evolved and expopnded by organized labor.

"The officers and members of the American Federation of Labor, not directly connected with the transportation industry, will share with all those employed on the railroad lines of the nation the feeling of satisfaction and pleasure they experience over the acceptance and application of this new agreement.

"The representatives of the standard railway organizations and their membership deserve the congratulations of labor and its friends everywhere upon the successful outcome of the collective bargaining negotiations which have been carried on over a long period of time.

"The stockholders and the management of the railroads of the nation will be equal beneficiaries with labor because of the stabilizing effect which this new agreement will have and of the settlement of a vexing problem which, if it remained unsolved, would have constituted a continual menace to the maintenance of industrial peace upon the transportation lines of the nation."

What Next!

The "Incassomat" is a new machine which receives notes, coins, documents, valuables of all kinds and delivers a receipt bearing a photograph of the thing deposited. The "robot cashier," which is being tested by British banking experts, is said to be proof against robbers and of especial value for receiving and keeping safe deposits after banking hours.

A new line of furniture is being made under the recently patented "Steelwood" process, in which thin layers of wood veneer are applied under heavy pressure to a steel core. The product has all the appearance of wood, is said to be very strong, and will not chip. It is claimed that "Steelwood" furniture permits savings of 25 per cent in production costs when compared with straight wood.

"AMERICAN CREATED" WORK

By Hon. Karl Stefan, M. C.

(The writer of this article is a member of the house committee on insular affairs, and has just returned from a journey through the Philippines, Hawaiian Islands, China and Japan.)

Secretary of Commerce Roper in his annual report recently stated that: "American industry and business can help by intensifying its efforts in the fields of research and invention. I believe that through creative work, a characteristic for which America is known throughout the world, we can create proper new needs, new markets and new employment. This will lead to safer prosperity and progress."

Americans who work with their hands and those who are skilled and trained should study this statement carefully. They should study it most curiously if they really believe that their "creative work" will bring back employment and prosperity. True, American "creative work" would bring back some semblance of employment and prosperity "if" that "American created" work were in demand and "if" that "American created" work were properly protected by "American industry" and "American business."

Standing on the docks at Nagoya, Japan, only a few weeks ago, I was amazed at the hundreds of crates and gigantic boxes of chinaware and other Japanese-made merchandise loaded into the hold of an American-subsidized vessel. Every crate and box was addressed to American industry and business, among them being the F. W. Woolworth and S. S. Kresge companies.

Today in Japan there is no unemployment. Men and women, boys and girls work unlimited hours at a few cents a day. They turn out manufactured goods by the shipload, much of which finds its way into the business houses of the United States. American imitated "created goods" are turned out in innumerable quantities.

As a result, press dispatches from Tokio show prosperity in Japan. In Tokio it is announced that "Japanese trade is at a favorable balance" (exports exceed imports). Not only is Japan capturing a gigantic amount of trade in the United States, which rightfully belongs to the workers of America, but she is slowly, steadily and surely capturing most of the trade which was once enjoyed by Americans in the Far East.

Untold numbers of "created" articles based on "American created work" which could be made in the United States and are now being made by slave labor in the Orient and sold to American men and women whose "creative ability" is unprotected at home. No American who believes that we should continue the American standard of living can agree that American labor will ever submit to competing with the labor of Japan, China or the Philippines.

Nevertheless, unless American labor is protected against the importation of the tremendous quantity of these very cheaply manufactured goods, our "creative ability" is of no avail.

The visitors to Japan today, if they are industriously curious, can find that in that prosperous country there are names of such cities as "Paris," "Berlin" and "U. S. A.," spelled in capital letters, marked on manufactured goods. The names of these industrial centers of Japan have had their uses in the sales of Japanese-made merchandise sold all over the world.

There are about 400,000,000 people in China today, unable to find enough food to go around. It is a mecca for those "industries" who search the earth's surface for cheap humanity. Here, for a few cents a day, human beings can be employed to work on "American created" goods which are shipped back to the United States to be sold to men and women who are looking for jobs. People in China who hold nets under the drains of ships to find something to eat, gladly work for pennies. Shall American labor compete with these "Coolies?" Every shipload of Japanese-made goods which can be manufactured in America means the loss of many jobs to American workers.

America today finds itself in a position of endeavoring to find work and food for millions of unemployed people. Work as well as charity should begin at home. Since this is so, American industry and American business must take steps at once to protect "American created" work.

With the assistance of American industry and business, cheaply made goods in China, and other Far East countries, come by the shiploads into American ports. American industry and business, with factories in China today employing slave workers, cannot lay claims to being the champions of the cause of high standards of American living. To qualify this statement, it should be said that cargoes of textiles are being shipped to China and other countries, by American business, which employs cheaply paid Chinese laborers to finish these goods. Then the goods are sent back to the United States for sale. The industries of America are in danger of being wiped out forever unless adequate protection comes soon.

The Far East will not be satisfied with the capture of the "finished-goods" business of America. American industry and business, which is now encouraging this foreign business because of cheaper humanity—beware! "We have reached almost the maximum of creating manufactured goods," Fukumoto, a Tokio newspaperman, says. "We now must become independent of the world in raw materials." Today the Far East, with the backing of certain powerful American interests, is waging a campaign to limit the use of American raw material.

This is but the beginning of a mighty campaign by the enemies of American producers to once and for all kill the American standard of living, and to take advantage of the present depression and this nation's misery to hammed down manhood and American resistance, in order that we be returned to the days when the labor of men and women could be bought on the auction block of slavery!

BERRY APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO SURVEY UNEMPLOYMENT

Industry-Labor Group Plans Up-to-Date Inventory of Works for Use in Drive for Jobs in Private Industry.

Washington. — George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, announced the appointment of a committee of the Council for Industrial Progress to develop an inventory of unemployment, with the object of determining currently why the unemployed are unemployed and to picturize the progress which private enterprise is making in providing work for the workless.

It was explained that the group, with equal representation of management and labor, will perform no original work in either research or collecting statistics. It will use existing government statistical agencies, including the bureau of labor statistics of the U. S. department of labor, the bureau of census, the United States employment service, and the various emergency agencies. The cooperation of industry will also be sought to get the industrial viewpoint.

The management members of the committee are: Paul S. Hanway, of the National Fiber, Can and Tube association; Henry Dennison, of the Dennison Manufacturing company, and Hector Lazo, of the Co-operative Food Distributors of America. It was said a fourth member will be named from the construction industry, where the number of unemployed workers is very large.

Labor representatives include: John P. Frey, president of the American Federation of Labor Metal Trades Department; M. J. McDonough, president of the A. F. of L. Building Trades Department; I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L. Union Label Trades Department, and George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

In explaining the purpose of the inventory, Mr. Berry said:

"The council's interest in unemployment and unemployment data arises from the insistent belief that the problem of unemployment belongs to industry and can best be solved by co-operative effort of management and labor to establish sound and equitable competitive practices—particularly with regard to wages and hours of work, and child labor—which will return to the market sufficient purchasing power to consume the products of industry.

"The problem has no political implications. The industry council, in its declaration of national industrial policy, has said that the market for industry products must depend upon the buying power of the people, and that surplus production and unemployment arise chiefly, if not solely, from the diversion of too great a portion of the national income from the consuming market into the investment field.

"Before the problem of gnemployment can be solved, we must have more exact data, and we must determine what factual information is required to make current knowledge of employment and unemployment most valuable to industry and to the government in rendering effective service. What industry needs to know about unemployment is what is happening now and continuously, not what happened eighteen months or two years ago."

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD MEETING NEXT MONDAY

The June meeting of the board of directors will be held in room 301, Y. M. C. A., next Monday evening, June 1, at 7 o'clock. All members are urged to be present, as several important plans for the summer are to be discussed.

GENTLE REMINDERS

1. Pay that poll tax immediately!
2. Send in your summer address to the office.
3. Check and mail your ballot on the amendment to the constitution of the A. F. of T. This is important.

COMMITTEES WORKING

Federation committees are numerous and busy these days. Aside from the standing committees there is a committee considering ways and means for the federation to take over the housing and operating of the county and city professional libraries. Another is marshaling support for adequate school library service. Another is negotiating with the state commissioner of health with a view to getting adequate health and clinical setups for the city and county. Still another is pushing the drive for a statewide tenure law.

Willing workers are needed on these committees and others to be appointed. If you are not doing any work for the federation but want to, turn your name in at the office and you will not be turned away jobless.

POLITICS IN THE AIR

Winds are full of political rumor and gossip these days. Candidates are making individual appeals to most of us, trying to get us to commit ourselves. But let's keep our feet on the ground and steer our course by the stars. It's too early to commit ourselves. When all candidates have been examined by Labor's Political Conference, we shall have a basis for united action. If we allow ourselves to be divided before that time, we shall have lost our effectiveness and our votes will cancel one another.

WORTHWHILE BOOKS FOR SUMMER READING

JUST IN CASE you did not know it—the organization work is speeding along rapidly in the laborers' unions. Just yesterday a colored man came by and wanted to know where the Hod Carriers' headquarters are. Says he, duck getting some sort of title for schools just as soon as I can get in the union."

HAVE YOU been by the Vanity yet? You'd better stop by and see if they haven't just the white shoes you want—with the union label right in them.

THE EFFECTS of the Chickamauga dam work are already being felt in Chattanooga. Mr. Cunningham, of the Cement Workers, says their organization (which is a 100 per cent one, by the way) is working to a man, and the plant will be running full time from now on for some years to come.

DON'T FORGET that the S. J. Edwards stores do not have union meat-cutters, and when you go down to get the week's supply of groceries this week-end, just make a little note of that fact at the top of the list.

YOU READ ABOUT Joe Penner's duck getting somee sort of title for ten dollars, didn't you? Well, I exacted a promise from a certain shorthand teacher at the vocational school that she would put a "pass" on my test paper in exchange for her name in this column. But good old honest me dares not do it. (Maybe this much mention will help.)

Yes, dear reader, in spite of all the efforts that have been put forth in this column, the Ladies' Homee Journal is still printed in a non-union plant.

Unemployment Survey Group Named by Commerce Chamber

Washington.—Harper Sibley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, appointed a committee consisting of nine corporation executives to make a survey of the re-employment possibilities in industry throughout the country. The action was taken in compliance with the resolution adopted at the recent convention of the chamber here following a statement by President Roosevelt that unless the unemployed army was greatly reduced higher taxes would be necessary to pay the cost of relief.

The chairman of the committee is John W. O'Leary, president of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute of Chicago. The committee membership includes P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, O., and Redfield Proctor, president of the Vermont Marble company, of Proctor, Va. The quarry workers employed by the Vermont Marble company have been on strike for a number of months in an effort to secure improved labor conditions.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. — Is the American Federationist, official organ of the American Federation of Labor, an old publication?

A. — Yes. The Federationist has been published since 1894.

Q. — Who is M. H. Hedges?

A. — Director of Research, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Q. — Which of the railroad brotherhoods was an economic organization from the start?

A. — The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The other three brotherhoods were at first primarily benevolent and fraternal organizations, later developing into labor unions.

Q. — When did the company union movement in tht United States begin?

A.—John Leitch's "industrial democracy" plan, proposed in 1913, gave the first real impetus to company unionism. The plan spread and within five years the Leitch plan was installed in about twenty companies. Another great impetus to company unionism came when the United States entered the World War.

MORE ABOUT HOUSING BILL

thus far we have attempted to attack this basic and all-important problem without any continuing program or concrete policy whatever, and without specific legislation. All we have to show after four years of fruitless discussion, and to satisfy an increasingly urgent demand, is a handful of timid unrelated experiments. And even these have been seriously obstructed at every step by the lack of a comprehensive program or clearly defined policy.

Legislative Requirements Classified.

"A study of the court's decision will show that it is not an argument against public-aided housing in general—but rather an argument against attempts to undertake housing without a statutory statement of policy and purpose, without rigid restrictions on the federal powers, and without definition of local rights and responsibilities.

"Senator Wagner's housing bill solves these difficulties and honestly confronts them by offering a program which is sound legally and well designed economically.

"The decision claims that there has been 'riotous delegation of power' to the president by congress with respect to housing, and that there are no adequate limitations as to the kind of housing operations his emergency agencies may undertake, and no safeguards of the rights of local governments.

Wagner Bill Solves Problem.

"Under the Wagner housing bill, however, congress will clearly and definitely limit the type of housing to be undertaken and the kind of people to be benefited. Only 'low-income families,' or those who cannot be adequately housed by private enterprise, will be permitted to benefit.

"The rights and responsibilities of local governments, in such matters as taxation and the initiation of projects, are clearly defined and well protected under the provisions of this carefully drafted piece of legislation. There is no irksome regulation of or dictation to local governmental authorities under this bill. It guarantees as broad decentralization as possible and offers every safeguard against competition with private enterprise.

Prompt Enactment Urged.

"The 'housing problem' is now out in the open. There must be adequate permanent legislation. Otherwise, even the scattered projects already begun will remain forever unfinished—monumental ruins of a bungled hope.

"In the unanimous opinion of all qualified individuals and truly interested organizations, the Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill provides this needed legislation. Labor puts it at the top of the list. If the president wants to make a success of the movement, which he himself has fostered, then the U. S. housing bill of 1936 will be put on the administration 'must list' for immediate enactment."

Overwork Load Causes Strike Of Spartanburg Mill Workers

Spartanburg, S. C.—The Spartanburg local of the United Textile Workers of America called a strike of the employes of Spartan mills here and picketed the plant as a protest against work conditions and factory sanitation.

The union's statement complained of the "overwork load in most of the jobs throughout the entire plant, especially on filling spinning in the No. 2 mill, where spinners are required to tend as high as 1,680 ends." The union also charged that "excessive heat in some of the weaving departments" had a harmful effect on the health of the workers "who are in continual strain while on the job."

Minnesota Farmer-Labor Group Acts to Organize Third Party

St. Paul, Minn.—The Farmer-Labor Association of Minnesota, Labor Temple Building, St. Paul, announces that it has initiated steps for organization of a national third party.

The association, through its state central committee and Gov. Floyd B. Olso, ex-officio member of the committee, has issued a call for a conference representative of labor, farmer and progressive organizations throughout the nation, to meet at the Hotel Morrison, Chicago, on May 30 and 31.

The conference, the call says, will not consider the matter of a third party presidential ticket for 1936. It contemplates, however, formation of a national Farmer-Labor party, the objectives for 1936 being: Aiding formation of local and state Farmer-Labor parties; furthering as a national force the election of local, state and congressional candidates; bringing together of all labor, farmers and progressive groups for building of a national Farmer-Labor party this year.

Issuance of the call is in conformity with a resolution adopted by the annual convention of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Association in March of this year.

"Leaders of the Farmer-Labor movement in Minnesota," the association's announcement said, "are convinced that a national third party which will seek fundamental changes in our social and economic order rather than palliative reforms, is necessary if our present ills are to be cured through political action. Its objective would be an economy of abundance rather than an economy of scarcity, an order which could pass along the benefits of increased production to the great masses of our citizens, and the defeat of war and Fascism."

U. S. Court of Appeals Backs Labor Board Order

New York.—The national labor relations board won a definite victory here when the United States circuit court of appeals denied a motion of the Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing company, of Richmond, Va., and this city, for the dismissal of the board's order instructing the company to take steps to end a dispute in which the concern was found guilty of violating the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act.

Judge Hand has made a critical comment concerning the action of the board in bringing the case before the U. S. circuit court of appeals here instead of in Virginia, where the company's factory is located and where the labor trouble occurred. But in rendering the decision Judges Hand, Swan and Chase declared the board was correct in its position that any circuit court of appeals could acquire jurisdiction in a proceeding to secure enforcement of the board's rulings.

Prevailing Wage Paid on Big Resettlement Housing Project

Washington.—Wage increases were announced for both skilled and unskilled workers on the big resettlement administration housing project at Berwyn Heights, Md., near here.

The works progress administration has permitted the hiring of 750 non-relief skilled workers, including carpenters, electricians, plumbers and plasterers, at a new adjustment wage of $1.40 an hour or $182 maximum a month.

Skilled workmen are on an eight-hour day, with 130 hours the maximum working schedule per month. It was said that the wage rate is the prevailing scale.

MORE ABOUT BIG FOUR PROFITS

ports, after investigation, that these Big Four paid themselves more in net profits in 1933 than they paid to all the American farmers who raised their tobacco, and all the workers who manufactured it! If that is not an appalling statement, what is?

Other Years Tell Same Story.

As a matter of fact, the CIP might have gone much farther than it did. But for the three years before that, in 1930, 1931 and 1932, the Big Four uniformly made more clear money each year than they paid to workers and farmers combined.

"Very significant," says the CIP, "is the fact that the price of cigarettes did not decline when production and consumption doubled . . . It does not always follow that when reduced costs are realized, the reduction is passed on to the consumers."

The Big Four never pass anything on that they can keep in their own grip. The only tobacco manufacturers who do pass the benefits of improved production on to their consumers are the makers of 10-cent cigarettes; and all the 10-cent cigarettes are union made, while the Big Four block labor unions wherever they can.

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. within a short time as result of the pact.

Main Provisions Cited.

The three provisions for the protection of employs whose services are dispensed with in the consolidations program follows:

1. When an employe affected by a particular coordination is placed in a position paying less monthly salary than previously received by him, then the difference must be paid by the carrier for not to exceed five years or until, through promotions or otherwise, the employe receives a salary equal to or greater than that received prior to the coordination.

Length of Service Pay.

2. Any employe of the carriers deprived of employment as a result of a coordination is to receive "a coordination allowance," based on length of service, which, except in the case of an employe with less than one year's service, shall be a monthly allowance equivalent in each instance to 60 per cent of the average monthly compensation of that employe for the 12 months prior to the coordination.

Separation Allowance.

3. Any employe eligible to the benefits and protections of the agreement may, at his option at the time of coordination, resign and, in lieu of all other benefits and protections provided in the agreement, accept in a lump sum a "separation allowance" determined in accordance with a schedule based on the number of years employed. For instance, an employe with more than 15 years' service could receive a "separation allowance" of 12 months' pay, and an employe of one year's service or less than two years, three months' pay. Employes with less than one year's service will receive five days' pay at the rate of the position last occupied for each month in which they worked.

The agreement was signed by representatives of the following organizations, some of whose members are railway employes:

Locomotive Engineers, Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Railway Conductors. Railroad Trainmen, Switchmen, Railroad Telegraphers, Train Dispatchers, Machinists, Boilermakers, Blacksmiths, Sheet Metal Workers, Electrical Workers, Railway Carmen, Firemen and Oilers, Maintenance of Way Employes, Railway Clerks, Railroad Signalmen, Sleeping Car Conductors, Masters, Mates and Pilots, Marine Engineers, Longshoremen.

GUFFEY ACT DECISION CLOSES MINES

Pittsburgh. — Two mines in the local district, employing a total of 350 men, were closed on May 20 assertedly as a direct result of the supreme court's decision against the Guffey coal act. P. T. Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers, said the miners had received notices stating the mines had been operating at a loss in the hope that the act regulating the industry would be upheld by the tribunal.

Why Hosiery Wages Are Low in Tennessee

To Be Run in Three Installments.

This is the statement that was intended to be presented at the conference of mayors at Athens on May 24, but which was called off due to lack of interest on the part of those mayors. There are sixteen towns and cities in Tennessee in which hosiery mills are located and from which the mayors were invited. Two letters of acknowledgment were received. The Athens mayor refused to participate and Mr. Dempster, of Knoxville, accepted the invitation to be present. Mayor Bass, of Chattanooga, told Mr. Callahan he would have a personal representative present.

An unfortunate situation has arisen within the seamless hosiery industry of the United States since the conclusion of the NRA and federal regulation of industry.

Following the end of regulation, namely, maximum hours of work, minimum wages, conditions of employment for learners, and fair trade practices, virtually all hosiery employers continued to abide by code regulations for a few months. Late last fall, however, the movement away from code conditions set underway in Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and Virginia, particularly in the seamless section of the hosiery industry. This movement expressed itself in the dropping of code minima and wage cuts, followed later by further wage cuts and the lengthening of hours.

This movement was started by desperate employers competing for markets in the forlorn hope that they could reap an advantage in doing this over their competitors. The result was a similar movement by competitors, which has turned into a race of wage cutting.

There is before us in the hosiery industry a very sick condition, the chief ill of which is over-capacity. There is a fundamental weakness in the hosiery market which allows the buyer to dictate terms to the manufacturer. This weakness comes from over-equipment creating surplus machinery, surplus merchandise, seasonal employment, and profitless operation.

Unfortunately, this war for markets is hardest upon those who work. Earl Constantine, Managing Director of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, frankly relates that he has record of mills who had to raise their wages 245% at the time that the $12 per week minimum was established in the South for seamless hosiery operators. The general level of wages, very low prior to NRA, was immeasurably helped by this legislation but is again fast slumping back to below an existence level today. Reports show three and four wage cuts in some plants since last August.

It is unfortunately true, that while labor is being cut down to the bone during this process, those working become a serious liability to the community instead of an asset, and the employer loses the entire benefit of reductions to the buyers, who take from him these wage cuts.

A recent study of department store profits show that hosiery is the largest profit item handled by large stores, while the profit to the manufacturer is very little or none at all.

This situation is becoming increasingly serious and important. The only weapon of labor against wage cuts is strikes and still more strikes. The employers could, without much difficulty, voluntarily set up standards below which they would not drop as to hours and wages. This would put a bottom into the competitive situation, much along the same lines used during NRA but without government enforcement.

To better understand the entire situation, a statistical brief has been prepared showing the true picture of the industry, and the position of Tennessee within that picture.

BILL BANNING CHILD LIQUOR SELLERS SIGNED BY LEHMAN

Albany, N. Y.—A bill banning the employment of persons under 18 years old to sell alcoholic beverages in retail places, including all licensed restaurants, tavern and night clubs, was signed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. In announcing his signature to the measure, the governor said:

"I am very pleased, indeed, to approve this bill. It is a sound measure and one that offers to our young men and women deserved protection. It amends the alcoholic beverage control law to prohibit a retailer of alcoholic beverages from employing on his premises 'any person under the age of 18 years as a hostess, waitress, waiter or in any capacity where the duties of such person require or permit such person to sell, dispense or handle alcoholic beverages.' Furthermore, it prohibits a retailer from allowing on his premises as an entertainer any person under the age of 18 years."

Black Diamond Packing House Signs With Union

Ledbetter Gets First Packing House Contract.

PACKERS TO BUILD

Sivadon Will Be Production Manager.

Memphis, Tenn.—Things are beginning to break for the new Packing House Workers' Local No. 515, here.

Thursday afternoon the Black Diamond Products, Inc., signed a contract with Local No. 515 to use only union workers in their packing house.

The contract was negotiated by B. V. Ledbetter, president of the local. Ted B. Sivadon, production manager for the Black Diamond, signed for that company. Ledbetter is also president of the Butchers' Union, Local No. 452. John Strong, business agent of the local has also been doing some fine work for the packing house workers.

At present, the Black Diamond are doing a re-packing business. Most of the raw products are obtained from Wilson & Co., packers. Later, they will do a general packing house business.

Plan New Building

The Black Diamond Company has leased a site at Leewood and Warford, and expect to begin very shortly on a modern building for their packing house.

This company will specialize in old-fashioned, honest-to-goodness hams, and the members of organized labor and their families in Memphis will be given an opportunity to win a prize for naming these hams and other products of this company. Sausage will also be one of their specialties.

Wilson's Prize Horses

At the same time the contract was being signed with the Black Diamond Products, the $100,000 International champion six hitch Clyesdale team, owned by the Wilson & Co., packers, drove up and "parked" in front of the Black Diamond building. A large crowd of interested spectators soon gathered and Frank M. Housley, who is in charge of the team, and others in the Wilson party, took pleasure in answering all questions about these work champion horses.

Mr. Housley has been with the Wilson Co. for 29 years. With him was Jack McGreary, member of the Chicago Teamster's Union.

These horses weight approximately 2,000 pounds each and the team is valued at $100,000. The harness cost $3,000.

The team is en route to the Texas Centennial at Dallas. They will travel in a 70-foot baggage car.

While in Memphis, the team has been on exhibition at many places. Mr. Housley says he will not allow the team to be driven over eight or ten miles during the warm weather.

One of the horses, named King, has been international champion draft horse three times.

FEDERATION CONVENTION RESOLVES TO PATRONIZE GLASS INSTEAD OF TIN

Calls on Unionists to Remember That Tin Can Containers for Beer Are Not Union Made — Glass Bottles Give Employment to Thousands of Union Workers.

The tin can beer container was given a big dent in its rusty side when the 39th annual convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor resolved that unionists should drink their beer from glass bottles.

Delegates to the convention called attention to the fact that besides giving employment to glass bottle makers, many thousands of members of the printing trades secured employment in plants printing the labels for the bottles, not to mention the unionists who make the cases and crowns.

Formal resolution, which will be sent to every local union in Tennessee, says:

"Whereas, practically all glass beer bottles are manufactured by union labor under union conditions; and

"Whereas, the tin trusts are placing a tin can on the market to be used as a substitute for the glass bottle as a beer container; and

"Whereas, these tin cans are manufactured by non-union labor under non-union conditions, and if said tin cans replace the glass bottle as beer containers it will result in the unemployment of thousands of union bottlers union beer case makers, union crown makers, union glass blowers and union printers in the printing industry; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that Brewery Workers' Local Union 196 vigorously condemn the use of the tin can as a beer container; and be it requested that the delegates here assembled, of the 39th annual state convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, held in the city of Chattanooga, May 4, 5 and 6, 1936, go on record expressing its disapproval and opposition to the use of the tin cans made under non-union conditions as a substitute for the beer bottle by the brewers throughout the country, and call upon all affiliated unions of the American Federation of Labor and also friends of organized labor to support the continued use of the union-made glass bottle as a sanitary and satisfactory container for beer, and ale and porter; and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this convention, and that copies be sent to every local union in the State of Tennessee."

Madden Says Guffey Decision Does Not Affect Labor Relations Act

Holds Supreme Court's Ruiing in Stockyards Case Establishes Precedent for Constitutionality of Wagner-Connery Measure.

Washington.—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, specifically declared, in an address before the Labor Institute at Pittsburgh, Pa., that the decision of the United States Supreme Court invalidating the Guffey Coal Stabilization Act has no effect on the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act.

Mr. Madden, former dean of the University of Pittsburgh Law School, cited a number of decisions by the court dealing with a "flow" or "current" of commerce which would be relied on as determinative precedents in the forthcoming test of the Labor Relations Act before the nation's high judicial body.

Importance of Stockyards Decision

He pointed out that in its opinion on the Packers and Stockyards Act the Supreme Court admitted that services performed by stockyards were local in a sense, but also held that they "affected" interstate commerce in such a way as to permit federal regulation.

Chief Justice Taft, according to Mr. Madden, proclaimed the idea that the stockyards were not a place of rest or final destination for livestock but one through which there was a "constantly flowing traffic," that the yards were "but a throat through which the current flows," and that transactions in the yards could not be separated from the movement to which they contributed.

Strikes Affect Commerce

Declaring that the Supreme Court has never overruled its decisions in the stockyards case and in other cases applying the same doctrine, Mr. Mad-

S. J. EDWARDS STILL "UNFAIR" TO CENTRAL BODY

Meatcutters Pleased With Co-operation Given Them by Organized Labor.

Business Agent Mack Ball, of Meatcutters' Local 600, reported to The Labor World yesterday that the fight on S. J. Edwards' six grocery stores was progressing nicely. For the past three weeks the Butchers have had pickets every Friday and Saturday in front of the non-union stores.

The scrap started after Edwards refused to renew an agreement with the local union and lengthened the hours and cut wages. Central Body investigated the case and declared him "Unfair to Organized Labor."

From a careful check on business done at the Edwards stores he might have to cut wages again in order to show a profit. The co-operation of every unionist is urged in order to maintain healthy wage conditions in this line of trade.

SIX RAILWAY SHOPCRAFTS, SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM, WIND UP FINE CONVENTION

Endorse Roosevelt for Re-Election and Go on Record for Craft Unions in American Federation of Labor.

NEXT CONVENTION TO BE IN CHATTANOOGA

The fifteenth regular convention of the Southern and Allied Lines System shop craft organizations wound up one of the most successful meetings yet held in Chattanooga late last Friday evening at the Patten hotel. Since this group of railroad employes met in 1930 their officers' reports showed that financially they were in better shape then ever. Membership all during the depression held up well, and it was with the greatest of optimism that they look toward the future.

One of the high spots was their endorsement of President Franklin D. Roosevelt for re-election, based on his fine record toward labor. The Tennessee Federation of Labor in its convention two weeks previous had already gone on record for Roosevelt.

Another item of interest, in contrast to action taken by the Tennessee federation, was the declaration of the policy of organization of American workers on the craft union line of organization rather than industrial union.

Plans looking toward organization of firemen and oilers on the Southern lines were adopted.

All of the incumbents in office were elected to succeed themselves, and Chattanooga was selected for the next convention city.

Filene Wallops U. S. Chamber of Commerce Policy

Quitting Big Business Body, Boston Merchant Scores It as Guided Not by Facts, But by "Uninformed Opinion."

Boston.—Edward A. Filene, the biggest merchant in Boston and one of the most successful merchants of the United States, has resigned from the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and told the Chamber and the world the reason for his action.

"Until such time," he says, "as the United States Chamber of Commerce shall be disposed to adopt a new policy, and to substitute fact-finding research for mere opinion as a guide to decisions concerning the needs of business in general—even as opposed, possibly, to the ambitions of special interests—I find it necessary regretfully to withdraw my cooperation."

Urges High Wages

In another place he speaks of the Chamber having the "practice of deciding our course by unsupported and uninformed opinion."

"My studies, as you know," he goes on, "have forced me to conclude that there can never again be lasting, nation-wide prosperity until American business in general is organized to pay such higher wages that the mass of wage earners will be able to buy enough of our industrial products to give our industries an adequate market, and thus keep them in profitable operation."

Facts Are Needed

"Modern business problems," says Filene, "general or special, cannot be solved by adding up the opinions, either of board members or of members generally, and calling that the answer. We might as well vote as to whether some proposed treatment for typhoid or diphtheria is valid, without first referring the problem to those who are in a position to find out. In case of an epidemic, by the same logic, we would not consult doctors—who are mere medical brain trusters—but call a mass meeting and have it addressed by those who had enjoyed the best of health before the epidemic happened."

CENTRAL BODY MEETS MONDAY NIGHT AT 7:30

Chattanooga Central Labor union will hold its regular session Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. Many important questions will be up for discussion and all delegates are urged to be present promptly to dispose of them.

Glassblowers Elect Bachus as Delegate To Annual Convention

One of the "old-timers" in the Chattanooga labor movement was given a signal honor by his union when he was named to represent Glass Bottle Blowers' local from Chattanooga as delegate to the annual convention to be held in Charleston, W. Va. The convention will convene on July 6.

Brother Bachus has been delegate from his local to Chattanooga Central Labor union for lo these many years, and although he is not accustomed to many speeches, the occasions that do call for his voice to be heard finds his subject matter and advice very valuable to the movement.

The Labor World congratulates Glassblowers local on their selection, and we wish Delegate Bachus much success at the sessions.

Machinists Renew Pact; Calls for Pay Increases

Chicago.—A wage increase of 5 cents an hour is granted in the agreement just renewed by Business Agent J. J. Uhlmann of the Machinists' union with firm belonging to the Chicago Manufacturers' association.

This brings rates to $1.13 an hour for tool and die makers and automatic screw machine tool setters, 95 cents for machinists, 70 cents for specialists and 61 cents for helpers. The pact also provides for the 40-hour week.

MINERS THANK M'REYNOLDS, TAYLOR, BACHMAN FOR VOTE ON GUFFEY COAL CONTROL ACT

Resolution at Federation Convention Condemns Others Who Opposed—Also Calls on Tennessee Legislature to Close Convict Mine at Petros.

One of the most active delegations in the recent convention of the federation of labor was that of the coal miners. Although since the convention adjourned the Supreme Court knocked out the Guffey coal control bill, the convention ratified a resolution presented by the miners which praised Senator Bachman, Congressmen McReynolds and J. Will Taylor for voting favorably for the Guffey bill. All other Tennessee representatives were negative in their vote, for which they were condemned. The resolution says:

"District 19, United Mine Workers of America, wishes to thank the Hon. J. Will Taylor and the Hon. Sam D. McReynolds, members of Congress, and United States Senator Nathan L. Bachman for their favorable vote on the Guffey coal control bill, known as the Coal Conservation Act, and to condemn the other members of Congress and the United States Senate in Tennessee who cast their vote unfavorably and against this stabilizing measure that means so much for all those engaged in the coal mining industry; and be it

"Resolved by this convention that copies of this resolution be sent to the members of Congress and the United States Senate in Tennessee."

The convict-operated mine at Petros, Tenn., has in the past been selling coal on the open market through two brokers, which creates a hardship on other coal operators who hire free labor. This policy was condemned, and the Non-Partisan Committee was requested not to endorse future candidates for governor or members of the legislature who did not pledge himself to abolish this convict mine. The demand reads as follows:

"Whereas, the State of Tennessee operates a coal mine at Petros, Tenn., by convict labor; and

"Whereas, this coal is contracted by two coal brokers at a ridiculously low price and sold on the open market in competition with the coal produced by members of the United Mine Workers of America; and

"Whereas, this imposes a hardship not only upon the coal miners, but also

Union Calls Strike Against Wheeling Steel Corporation

Workers at Portsmouth, Ohio, Walk Out—Concern's Company Unions Were Recently Outlawed by Labor Relations Board.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—The five local lodges of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, following the refusal of the Wheeling Steel corporation to act on several grievances, called a strike at the concern's Portsmouth works. It was stated that 50 per cent pay increases and recognition of the Amalgamated Association as the sole bargaining agency for the employes are among the demands. The union claims 3,500 members out of the 5,500 employed at the plant. Following the strike announcement, company officials closed the works.

The basic element underlying the dispute is the system of company unions alleged to be sponsored by the corporation. Masked with the euphonious names "general" and "department councils," these spurious groups were recently probed by the national labor relations board, which found that they were initiated and controlled by the Wheeling corporation for the purpose of discouraging membership in the Amalgamated association. The board ruled that the councils were in violation of the national labor relations act, and ordered the corporation officials to withdraw all recognition of them as representative of the employes dealing with the company concerning wages and shop conditions at its Portsmouth plant. In addition the board ordered the corporation to end its interference with the five lodges of the Amalgamated association existing in its plants and to reinstate with back pay one union employe who was found to have been discharged for union activity.

In discussing the corporation's support of the department councils, the board said the corporation helps maintain a meeting hall in Portsmouth and permits councils to use its bulletin boards, a privilege which is denied the Amalgamated association. The board charged that "foremen bring pressure on the men to join the department councils."

Most of the building trades are taking part and the plans are going ahead to have a completely equipped office with a full-time stenographer. House Committee Asks Passing Of New Guffey Bill

Soft Coal Industry Faces Chaotic Conditions Unless Substitute Control Measure Is Adopted, Report Declares.

Washington.—Urging favorable action on the new Guffey coal stabilization bill, designed to take the place of the act recently declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, the house ways and means committee warned that unless the legislation is enacted the soft coal industry faces "chaotic conditions."

The majority report said that as a result of the Supreme Court decision "unless legislation is enacted immediately the soft coal industry will revert to the chaotic conditions" which prompted the passage of the original act.

"It appears highly desirable to have legislation even without the labor provisions," said the report, adding that price "demoralization" in the industry "was in large part responsible for the low wages and poor working conditions in the industry, and for the strikes, which resulted therefrom."

Interpreting the court decision, the report said that four members of the court "were of the opinion that the price provisions were valid. The majority did not pass upon this question."

"The condition of the industry imperatively demands regulation in order to remedy evils which seriously endanger the industry itself," the majority report said.

GOVERNOR SAYS UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE SAFE

State Attorney-General Advises That Regular Session of Legislature Will Convene in Time.

McAlister States Insurance Law Will Be Pushed in Next Assembly in Time to Receive Benefits.

Replying to the request made by the Tennessee Federation of Labor for a special session of the legislature in order to pass legislation which will give the state benefit of federal aid for unemployment insurance, Gov. Hill McAlister, through Commissioner of Labor Jacobs, advises Secretary Cuthbert that such legislation does not necessarily have to be passed by Dec. 31, 1936. The state attorney-general rules that the federal act is so worded that a special session is not necessary, but that the regular session of the legislature which will convene Jan. 4, 1937, will provide ample time for action.

Commissioner of Jacobs said:

"I wish to advise that I have taken this matter up with the attorney-general's office and it is their opinion that the law can be passed at the next session of the legislature in time to receive benefit from the payroll tax collections made under the unemployment insurance act during 1936. The state law will have to be in effect by Jan. 31, 1937. Since the legislature convenes the first Monday in January, 1937, I feel that there will be sufficient time to pass and establish an unemployment insurance law."

Caddies Strike at Right Time.

Haddonfield, N. J.—Nearly 200 caddies at the Woodcrest and Tavistock Country clubs near here struck for higher wages and the privilege of using the golf courses for their own playing on Mondays. The caddies had been receiving 75 cents for a round of 18 holes. They demanded a 25-cent increase a round. The boys at the Tavistock club walked out in the midst of a woman's tournament in connection with the Philadelphia Suburban Golf league. The women carried their own clubs, while the caddies left the course.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1936

Joseph W. Byrns

The entire nation was shocked when the news of the death of Congressman Joseph W. Byrns was flashed over the wires. Serving as a member of congress from Tennessee for a long period of years, "Uncle Joe" became speaker of the house. His political services for his state and for his country took him out of the "politician" class—he was a statesman.

Labor feels a distinct loss in this fine man's death. He was our friend. We mourn with the nation and pay tribute to him.

Commissioner Cooke Sets Minimum Wage

Announcement by Commissioner "Bob" Cooke that his department has set a minimum wage of $15.00 per week for employes under his jurisdiction sounds to us both ridiculous and encouraging. It seems ridiculous that a condition has existed in his department, before he was elected to that office, in which some employes received as little as $5.00 per week, and that the seven-day week was required of many. Very few people realized that their own city government was setting such a bad example to private industries.

We are proud, however, that one of our own folks, a labor man, has been able to fix a point below which wages cannot go. He admits that the $15.00 minimum is not sufficient. It is up to us next year to see that funds are provided the city commission that will be sufficient to raise this minimum.

In addition to establishing a minimum from which to work up, Commissioner Cooke has abolished the seven-day week. It might be well to note also that in spite of the increased drain on Mr. Cooke's budget, caused by shortening of the work-week and increasing pay scales, the department is more efficiently administered than it has ever been before.

Mr. Cooke is only putting into effect principles which he has advocated all of his adult life. With such men in public office it is not necessary for laws to be passed, and for court decisions to enforce the laws, to cause our officials to pay better wages.

If any group wishes to criticize "Bob" Cooke for his advocacy of a wage minimum, let them first jump on labor. We will have to be spanked first.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. What is the United Hebrew Trades?

A. A New York City organization of Jewish trade unions, formed in 1888. It now has a general membership embracing various nationalities.

STRIKEBREAKERS JOIN WITH UNION STRIKERS

Taber, Alta.—Four busloads of unemployed workers brought here from Calgary to take the places of striking union beet field workers, after looking over the situation, refused the terms of growers and joined the strikers' ranks.

Beet growers have notified the Raymond Sugar Company it must provide labor if it expects a crop to be grown.

Mr. Nance Declines the Post

It is a matter of regret that Steve Nance could not accept the post as regional director of the federal security act. In this capacity he would have an opportunity to render a distinct service to the states embraced in the southeastern region. His activity in support of this type of legislation, his years of experience in relief work, both private and government, made him the logical choice for the position. Moreover, his years of service in public and civic life, six terms as president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, two terms as president of the Georgia Federation of Labor and his other positions of trust and honor in Atlanta and Georgia, coupled with his active and courageous support of President Roosevelt and his administration, made him well acceptable not only to the Georgia delegation in congress, but to the delegations from the other states and to President Roosevelt himself.

There were two or three things which made it difficult to accept and finally forced him to formally decline the post. In the first place, Georgia, his native state, cannot participate in this fund owing to the antagonism of our governor which made impossible the enactment of the necessary co-operative legislation. Even though the president and the southern delegation in congress were willing to waive aside this fact, since in no wise was Mr. Nance responsible for it, he could hardly engage in it with full strength knowing all the time that the people closest home to him were deprived of its advantages and that he was helpless to do anything about it.

In the second place, it necessitated his living elsewhere, leaving his home here and taking his family with him to another city. The hesitancy of a man to break up his home and move his family to another section must be appreciated. His desire to continue here must be respected. It is something more than sentiment. It strikes at the very heart of life itself.

Finally, Mr. Nance has long ago dedicated whatever influence and power he has to his own people here in Atlanta and in Georgia. Despite the very attractiveness of this great honor it could not be as strong as his determination to continue to give his best to those who have lived with him, have fought with him for better things for so many years. While we deplore that this office will be deprived of his services we are gratified to learn that he is going to continue to be even more useful in the years to years, he will continue to be even more useful in the years to come. Just as his leadership is appreciated in Washington we trust that it may be appreciated more and more here in Atlanta and in Georgia.—Atlanta Journal of Labor.

The Labor World salutes Mr. Nance along with the thousands of trades-unionists in Georgia. This is not the first time Mr. Nance's ability has been recognized. Several years ago he was offered the postmastership in Atlanta, but which he turned down because he wanted to continue in active service in the labor movement.

BOARD MEETING SUCCESSFUL

A quorum was present for the board of directors meeting last Monday night. The splendid attendance and the enthusiasm of the meeting indicate that such meetings will be possible all summer.

T. V. A. LECTURES

The Central Labor union is taking a splendid step in the direction of workers' education in sponsoring a series of lectures by T. V. A. officials explaining the objectives and policies of the authority. The first lecture was given on May 19, by Brother C. C. Killen, member of the electricians' union and labor relations director of the authority. He showed that the T. V. A. is not only building the first major dams with union labor, but is having a beneficial effect on the average wage level in private industry. He explained the authority's labor policy in detail.

The high light of the first meeting was the dramatic entrance of the Hodcarriers. The small audience of the faithful had noticed a dull roaring for some minutes that resembled a large herd of buffaloes approaching over a prairie. The roaring grew louder and louder. The audience turned toward the door expectantly, and Brother Killen paused. Suddenly a brawny workman strode in the door and down the aisle between the speaker and his audience. He was followed by another and another and another. Seeing the unbroken line of husky workers, Brother Killen lengthened his pause. For several minutes the parade continued. When it was complete the hall was practically full and seats were at a premium. The Hodcarriers had adjourned their meeting to support the Central Labor union project. There must have been 200 of them at the lecture.

Last Tuesday night W. C. Fritts, of the T. V. A. legal staff, gave an exceedingly clear history of the T. V. A. act. He traced the river development idea from President Monroe through the national defense act of 1916 to the present. A fair-sized crowd heard him.

The next lecture will deal with the relation of the authority to agriculture. The speaker will be announced in this column next week. The date will be June 16; the place, Judge Miller's courtroom. There were three teachers at the first lecture and six at the second. Let's have at least twelve at the next one.

What Next!

The United States Forestry Service will try a new weapon in its fight against forest fires this summer. When fires are discovered, bombing planes will be sent into action to drop bombs containing the "froth" type of fire extinguisher. Ordinary military bombs will also be tried for possible usefulness in throwing earth on fires to retard their spread until fire-fighting ground crews can reach the scene.

16-YEAR FIGHT WITH HOE COMPANY ENDS

New York.—A formal agreement has just been negotiated with the R. Hoe Company, large manufacturers of printing presses, by Business Agent Alfred Peabody of the Machinists' union.

This is the first pact the organization has had with the Hoe firm since the big strike in 1920.

The eight weeks' strike at the Majestic Metal Specialties Company ended last week in a satisfactory settlement, Business Agent James Lustig reported. He also notified the Machinists' grand lodge that agreements have been signed with the Sanitary Dash Company and the Globe Wein Corporation.

Profit-Sharing Is Planned For Westinghouse Employes

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Officials of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced that the employes of the concern and its subsidiaries would receive a share in the firm's profits under a new profit-sharing plan which became effective May 1.

The scheme provides for the payment of normal salaries and wages with uniform percentage increases or deductions according to the company's net earnings. It was stated that whenever annual profits exceed $7,200,000 employes will be granted an increase in pay. Last year's profits were around $11,000,000.

HOUR RATE BOOSTED

Warren, Pa.—Grand Lodge Representative Eric Peterson of the Machinists' union has just negotiated a 5-cent hourly increase for employes of the Wells-Titusville Corporation.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Wall Street still at times remembers old Dan'l Drew. He was almost as typical of the Streets as was its first famous resident, Captain Kidd.

Before he became a broker, Dan'l was a cattle buyer. He bought steers from the farmers, collected a small herd, and drove it to market. In this drive he always played a trick that has given its name to a common financial performance. He fed his cattle salt and let them drink their fill before driving them on the scales. "Watered stock" was merely a statement of fact with old Dan'l Drew; till he came to Wall Street, and watered other kinds of stock.

His example was contagious. Watered stock pervades American business today.

There are few important corporations in this country whose "securities" are not considerably larger than its actual investment. And every dollar of watered stock is an added incentive to keep up prices.

The biggest single stock watering job in American history was the formation of the Steel trust.

The United States Steel Corporation was capitalized at $1,402,000,000.

The U. S. Commissioner of Corporations could find tangible assets of only $676,000,000. The rest was water. There was not a dollar of actual investment behind the common stock of the corporation, which in the first year of its existence sold at from $22 to $55 a share. There was only a fraction of real investment behind the preferred stock.

And every dollar of that watered stock was an added incentive to maintain the 12-hour working day, and the 7-day working week, and to fight the unions as Steel has done from that hour to this.

J. P. Morgan the elder organized the Steel trust. It was the biggest single job of stock watering that he ever did; but he kept up the practice to the end. With the aid of Charles S. Mellon, Morgan got control of the New Haven railroad when it was a solvent, well-paying line, and loaded it with subsidiaries and watered its securities until it went into bankruptcy.

Stock watering has become a Morgan habit. The House of Morgan was paid for its "labors" in forming the United Corporation by securities which at one time were worth $68,000,000 on the market.

The electric utility industry is water logged, and that fictitious capital helps to keep the domestic rates for electric current more than twice as high as those of Ontario. The Federal Trade Commission has told that story at full length. Here is a characteristic excerpt:

Question: What was the total consideration that the Barstow companies were to receive for their General Gas and Electric interests?

Answer: $50,000,000.

Question: How does this compare with certain values put on the properties of these companies by themselves?

Answer: The ledger value of the securities acquired as reflected by the books of the companies themselves was $314,614.88.

Question: So the excess paid would be approximately $49,683,300 odd?

Answer: That is correct.

Old Dan'l Drew long since has gone to his reward; and if there is any truth in old time theology, that reward will make him bawl for water more loudly than his cattle ever did. But the watered stock remains.

Wanted—10,000,000 Modern Homes

By JOHN W. EDELMAN

Ten million American families are at this moment living in old-fashioned, inconvenient, cramped, delapidated homes. Many of the houses are actually dangerous and insanitary. American invention and American efficiency have made available at moderate cost every conceivable comfort and convenience for living. But American ingenuity has not devised a plan which makes it possible for the vast majority of the families in this country to live in comfortable modern homes.

The very workers who produce and install modern electrical devices, oil-burners, and other "gadgets" cannot for the most part, afford to live in houses equipped with modern, scientific, labor-saving improvements. Private industry cannot profitably build homes which will sell or rent for a sufficiently low price to enable most workers to buy or rent decent homes.

Frederick J. Ackerman, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, says that the group which cannot be decently housed by private building enterprise comprises over two-thirds of the families in this country. And most housing programs and plans of housing experts, he claims, ignore this group, and try to devise ways of making building more comfortable for the other third—and investments safer for the builders.

Will Put Idle to Work.

The Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill is an exception, however, and warrants your support and endorsement, both as a worker and as a possible tenant—if you are not one of the lucky upper-third. It provides for a long-term, large-scale housing program to construct low-cost homes for workers whose need is never met and cannot be met by speculative builders. As a possible tenant you should support the bill, because it specifically guards against "cheap" construction, and also against possible inflation of rental rates. As a worker you should give the bill your support because it requires that prevailing union wage rates should be paid for the construction and operation of all public-aided housing projects.

It should also be heartily endorsed by tax-payers, by business people and manufacturers, because it will gradually, and increasingly, put the unemployed back to work. And it will do this as a by-product of its primary purpose. It is designed to remedy our desperate housing condition. But it can only do that by putting to work virtually every building trades worker in the country. And don't forget that these workers are to be paid union wages.

All Labor Will Benefit.

They will not put these wages away in a sock—they will save something—but they see ahead of them several years of steady employment, and they will spend part of their wages for things produced by other workers.

If you are a building trades worker, you will see in this bill an immediate job. But you will benefit by the bill, too, if you make shirts, hose, bread, butter, hats, chairs, toys. For building trades people will have money to buy these things. And steady employment will mean that the people who move into these new homes—and people who live in old homes, for that matter—will have money to pay their rent, and meet interest payments, so the public's money which is invested in the project can be paid back, and payments to private builders should also be more secure.

The bill has been endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, by Secretary Ickes, Secretary Perkins, by the National Labor Housing conference, by public housing officials and by numerous housing groups all over the country. It has recently been endorsed by the President, who asks, however, for a cut in the first of the annual appropriations.

Your Help Is Needed.

But despite this support and despite the obvious advantages it would bring to industry as a whole, there are powerful interests allied against the bill and your help is needed to bring pressure on congress to act on it at this session. If the measure is not passed before congress adjourns, there is no hope of securing any housing legislation within a year. And there is no other constructive proposal for remedying the unemployment situation, either.

Write and wire your congressman and your senators to vote for this bill. Make no mistake about it: the principal objection to it is the prevailing union wage clause, and that is the very corner-stone of the industrial recovery in which the building program should result.

It may be true, as ex-Senator George Wharton Pepper told the Republican Women's Luncheon club in Philadelphia the other day, that prosperity for everyone in the country is an impractical ideal. And this bill is not proposed with any claim that it will secure prosperity for every family in the United States. But if passed, put into action, extended in scope, it may very well be the means of bringing to millions of workers a degree of comfort in their homes and security in their jobs which, however much it might look like poverty to the honorable ex-Senator, would seem pretty prosperous to most of us.

Do YOU Know About the New Low Gas Rates?

EFFECTIVE on bills rendered in July, you have the lowest rates ever charged for a modern fuel in Chattanooga, without exception. The drastic rate revisions enable you to cook, heat water and refrigerate at a cost well within the budget requirements of the most modest purse.

If you are now cooking with gas, you can secure a sharply reduced rate by also refrigerating with gas. There are now three rates . . . the basic rate, the increment rate, and the objective rate.

THE BASIC RATE: Is your present rate. All customers will be eligible to receive the benefits of the new increment rate on all increased gas consumption over the corresponding period of a year ago.

THE INCREMENT RATE: Reduces your rate by about 33⅓ per cent. on your increased gas consumption, thus enabling you to add to your appliances at a very slight increase in your bill.

THE OBJECTIVE RATE: This rate, commencing with bills rendered in July, is earned by all who cook and refrigerate with gas. All customers are on one of the rates, either the Basic, Increment, or Objective, depending upon either increased consumption of gas or character of appliances.

Why Hosiery Wages Are Low in Tennessee

To Be Run in Three Installments.

This is the statement that was intended to be presented at the conference of mayors at Athens on May 24, but which was called off due to lack of interest on the part of those mayors. There are sixteen towns and cities in Tennessee in which hosiery mills are located and from which the mayors were invited. Two letters of acknowledgment were received. The Athens mayor refused to participate and Mr. Dempster, of Knoxville, accepted the invitation to be present. Mayor Bass, of Chattanooga, told Mr. Callahan he would have a personal representative present.

Second Instalment

Here is a situation in which competition does not reflect entirely as between two definite producing areas, the North and the South, but rather within the South. The position of Tennessee is significant as to its importance as a factor in the industry. This State has approximately one-sixth of all persons employed in the industry within its boundaries.

This can best be pointed out in the following table, which shows how Tennessee ranks in hosiery production:

*1. Children's ribbed goods	1st	—with 43 % of total production
2. Infants' and children's goods	2nd	—with 16.4% of total production
3. Ladies' seamless	2nd	—with 17.6% of total production
4. Golf hose	3rd	—with 20.9% of total production
5. Men's half hose	4th	—with 8.4% of total production

* From book: Seamless Equipment, by Dr. Geo. W. Taylor, University of Pennsylvania—prepared for Hosiery Code Authority.

From the records of the Hosiery Code Authority as of December, 1934, there were 46 companies operating 62 plants in Tennessee, which includes both seamless and full fashioned hosiery mills, employing 13,007 productive workers. The estimate of seamless employ is taken from the machine placement and is about 11,500 in that branch of the industry.

Reports of the Hosiery Code Authority also show that wages rose 42.6% in seamless operations as between 1932 and the latter part of 1933.

It is interesting to consider the effect of hours limitations on machine operation. Prior to the NRA, mills operated extended hours on single and double shifts. Forty-eight and fifty hours was the average of operation in better mills, while 60 to 84 hours per shift prevailed in some sections.

The regulation of hours created by the Hosiery Code Authority, in 1933, limiting operations to two 40-hour shifts or a total of 80 hours per machine per week, proved less of a hardship than had been anticipated. A survey of machinery operating on one, two and three shifts, and machinery idle as between April, 1933, and March, 1934, gives a good picture of a change in operating method resulting. Note the table on the following page:

In the period from April, 1933, at which time hours were unregulated, to March, 1934, under regulation, the following shifting in method of machine operation occurred.

This chart shows that prior to the regulation of hours in April, 1933:

28.4% of total equipment was operating one shift
31.8% of total equipment was operating two shifts
2.4% of total equipment was operating three shifts
37.4% of total equipment was idle.

After hours regulation was established and total operations March, 1934, were limited to 80 per week, the picture of operations changes:

19.8% of total equipment operated one shift
50.9% of total equipment operated two shifts
29.3% of total equipment was idle.

It is evident therefore that the effect of hours regulation was no hardship, as sufficient idle machinery was available to take care of production needs in the industry.

Single shift machines were started upon double shift as 8.6% less machines were operated on single shifts after hours regulation started.

The elimination of 2.4% of equipment of three shifts was accomplished, but the contraction of hours worked per shift shows a 19.1% increase in two shift machinery and a reduction of 7.9% in the total amount of idle machinery. It is still evident, however, that with almost 30% of total equipment idle in 1934, that even the 40-hour week failed to contract production sufficiently to swing this 30% of equipment into full operation.

The greatest problem of the seamless industry is potential and potentially effective productive capacity. The entire problem roots itself in this major factor of producing ability so far outstripping consumption and demand as to permanently create a weak market.

The industry is and has been for years on the verge of bankruptcy. Since the removal of NRA and minimum wages and maximum hours, wage cutting and longer hours has been the avenue adopted to bring business to individual manufacturers.

Labor and the employer both lose, because the selling price structure is weakened in relation to wage cuts and reduced costs of operation.

The inevitable is a starvation wage, profitless operation, and bankruptcy. The industry must adopt a bottom level for wages and hours both.

If THIS kind of weather is going to keep up I'll be meeting you at the swimming pool at Warner park. Believe me, it's a swell-looking place this summer. Great big sand beach, new ladies' bathhouse, 'n everything—and a pool full of clear water where the bottom of the pool doesn't seem so far away because you can see it so plainly. And it's being rumored that if you stay out there long enough, you'll find Kamin rushing around.

AND, after you've taken the kiddies for a swim and they have reached the stage of wanting something good to eat, why drive right up to the drug store and get them a cone of Grant-Patten ice cream. It "tastes good" and's good for them—and it's union made.

Everybody's coming out in the "blossoming out" in new clothes line. A man came by and very proudly displayed a new pair of socks he had just bought at Signaigo & Campbell's. Gee, they were Phoenix socks and had the label on them). This particular pair was bright yellow—deah me!

The GLASS BLOWERS' union is surely staying right in there and telling the world that beer is better out of bottles.

FLASH—a la Winchell—when you see a certain editor of a certain labor paper step out in a white suit, you will know that it pays to persevere—for that man's wife has been trying for nine long years to persuade him to buy a white suit. You will also know that it has the union label in it. When confronted with the price tag, the gentleman did not deny that he had paid just $8.95 for it. And so, dear reader, until the above-mentioned editor uses the blue pencil just once too often, I remain—with lotions of love—your Labor World correspondent.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LEGISLATURE PASSES HEALTH INSURANCE ACT

Vancouver.—The health insurance act adopted by the legislature of British Columbia is designed to provide employes, earning less than $1,800 a year, and members of their families, medical care by a physician or surgeon chosen by the insured, free hospital care, the services of diagnostic laboratories, the necessary medicines and drugs. There are specified as "mandatory benefits." There will be other "permissive benefits" if funds are available.

Farm workers and Christian Scientists are excluded from the operation of the act; also employes who are members of existing industrial medical service schemes, if their scheme provides a standard of service to members and dependents equal to or better than the services of physician and hospital for all cases of ordinary illness.

The health insurance fund will be raised by a tax of 2 per cent on the employes' wages and of 1 per cent on the employers' pay roll. The minimum contribution of the worker is fixed at 35 cents per week, the maximum at 70 cents.

The employers' minimum payment for each employe is set at 20 cents a week, the maximum at 35 cents.

Special methods of payment for seasonal workers are to be worked out. It is provided that merchants, farmers and others not working for wages, and irrespective of their incomes, may come under the act as voluntary contributors to obtain benefits for themselves and dependents.

New Haven Railroad Averts Threatened Firemen's Strike

New Haven, Conn.—Agreement by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad to employ a fireman on Diesel locomotives, as demanded by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, has averted a possible strike on the system. Following a conference between railroad and union officials, a spokesman for the railroad announced a fireman will be used on each Diesel engine, including the Comet, operating between Province and Boston.

The settlement with the New Haven system, it was announced, had no bearing on the union's demands against other New England railroads. Separate negotiations were being conducted. The firemen and enginemen have voted overwhelmingly to authorize a strike unless a fireman is employed on Diesel locomotives.

OUTLAW STRIKE PICKETS FAIL TO BLOCK SAILING OF LINER

New York.—The Grace liner Santa Elena sailed from here for California ports despite the picketing demonstration pulled off by the strike committee of seamen which had attempted to extend its strike to the ship's crew. The strike has been outlawed by the International Seamen's union and a number of its leaders expelled from union membership.

The Santa Elena sailed with a full crew, of which only five were said to be replacements for former employes.

den argued that "since a strike of the packing house employes would stop the flow of animals into and of products out of the packing plant, it would stop a stream of commerce," and would therefore come under the constitutional power of Congress to "protect such commerce."

"How then should we predict that the Supreme Court would decide our supposed case of the application of the Wagner Act to employes in the Chicago stockyards?" he continued.

"If the difference between a higher and a lower charge for yardage, which would have at most an almost infinitesimal effect upon the price of a ham or a cake of soap or a bag of fertilizer, which might be sold interstate out of a Chicago packing house, is sufficient to make that charge for yardage a matter of national concern because of its possible effect upon interstate commerce, what should be said about the effect of labor policies on the part of the operators of the stockyards, which policies according to definitely proved experience would be likely to result in strikes, which, if they occurred, would completely prevent the operation of the stockyards and the flow of animals into the packing houses and of meat and other products out of them?

"The decision in such a case in favor of the federal power under the Wagner Act would seem to be much more obvious than it was under the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Labor Relations and Commerce

"If it be said that there is something about labor relations, as distinguished from all other sorts of relations, which prevent labor relations from having a bearing upon interstate commerce, the obvious answer to this assertion is two-fold. First, the court has adopted no such doctrine as is shown by its approval of statutes regulating the labor relations of employes on interstate railroads. Second, any such doctrine would ignore the realities of the situation because our own history has proved again and again what the Congress has expressly stated in the Wagner Act, and indeed what every man in the street knows, namely, that strikes in industries which stand in a current of interstate commerce not only affect that current but frequently stop it completely for the time being.

Supreme Court Opinion Cited

"If it be said that the strike in the stockyards, which keeps carloads of animals from being unloaded and thereby dammed back the flow of animals into the yards and prevented the flow of animals from the yards to the packing plants and the flow of meat from the packing plants to consumers in other states, only 'stops' commerce and does not 'affect' it, it would seem that the discussion had passed into a realm of legal mysticism, which is would be useless to pursue farther, and which the Supreme Court in dealing with the actual problems of interstate commerce would not be expected to pursue.

"The following language of the court in the Swift case would seem to be a sufficient answer:

"'Commerce among states is not a technical, legal conception, but a practical one drawn from the course of business.'

Unfair Labor Practices

"And why should not unfair labor practices on the part of employers, if, as a matter of history and economic fact, they do threaten to 'affect' interstate commerce to the point of stopping its flow, be a proper subject of federal regulation?

If the regulation would have the effect of protecting the regular flow of commerce, is it any the worse in legal and constitutional standing because it might also have the effect of protecting the workers involved in their governmentally admitted but often privately denied right of self-organization and self-protection?

"Many of the numerous federal regulations of interstate commerce, while their principal purpose is to protect that commerce, also have incidental effects which are beneficial to certain persons or classes of persons, and the court has never suggested that that lays them open to constitutional objection."

Congressmen and Senators Urged to Support a New Coal Control Bill Now Up

Acting upon request from William Turnblazer, president of District 19, United Mine Workers of America, the secretary of the Tennessee Federation of Labor sent a telegram Tuesday to all the Tennessee congressmen and senators, urging them to vote for the Guffey-Vinson coal control bill, designed to avoid Supreme Court restrictions. It is understood that this measure is supported by mine operators as well as the union.

COLONIAL BREAD GOES NON-UNION!

Central Labor Union Authorizes Campaign Against Bakery After It Fails To Agree To Contract

Same Contract Offered to Colonial Has Been Signed by the Other Two Large Plants in Chattanooga—Conditions in Bakeshop Said to Be Less Than Union Standards—Colonial Attitude in the Past Recalled.

After several conferences with Mr. Hugh Wasson, manager of the Colonial Baking company, and representatives of Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Local 25 and Central Body, it is reported that efforts to prevail upon Mr. Wasson to consent to a complete union plant have been unsuccessful.

Bakery Workers' union have laid their case before the public. They call attention to the fact that two of the largest companies here, the Union Baking company and Cameron & Barr, have become 100 per cent union, agreeing to union wage scales and union working hours. These two companies are now successfully operating under the best working conditions, but so far the bakeshop of Colonial has remained nonunion. To date Mr. Wasson has refused to agree to the same conditions now enjoyed in the other plants, and as a result Chattanooga Central Labor union has given permission to the bakery boys to declare the Colonial products "Unfair," in the eyes of organized labor.

Approximately a year and a half ago organized labor had a disagreement with the Colonial and after several weeks the scrap was settled by a written agreement between the parties concerned which, although not providing for a closed shop at the time, did contain certain promises made on the part of Mr. Wasson. The bakers claim that these promises were not lived up to by Mr. Wasson.

It is reported that employes in the two union plants enjoy a higher wage scale and work less hours per week than do the employes at the Colonial. They feel that especially since Colonial is a very rich concern, being part of a system used in other cities, they should be more able to pay Chattanooga workers at least as much as Chattanooga-owned plants are now paying.

For this reason members and friends of organized labor are asking for co-operation. Since abolishment of NRA there has been no restriction on employers in wage-cutting and hour-lengthening programs other than the economic strength of labor unions. It is believed that the public will back up these employes in their efforts to provide a more comfortable living for their families, which in the long run will help make Chattanooga more prosperous.

Many grocers have already expressed to the Colonial management that they sympathize with members of the union, and this added co-operation has already been felt and appreciated.

"Soil Conservation" Will Be Subject of Next TVA Lecture

W. M. Landess to Present Different Angle of Federal Agency Tuesday.

Sponsored by Central Labor Union, Is Third of Series to Be Given.

Tuesday evening at Judge Miller's courtroom will see the third of a series of TVA lectures presented. These lectures are sponsored by Central Body. The lecture next Tuesday, which will begin at 8 o'clock, will be on the subject of "Soil Conservation."

People who know the series as outlined say this will be about the most interesting of all. The person to present this phase of TVA is Mr. W. M. Landess, assistant director of the agricultural division of TVA. He was the first county demonstration agent, and for sixteen years was in that position in Shelby county. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee's agricultural department. After leaving the university he went to his farm in Lincoln county, and made such an outstanding success in farming that his ability was recognized and advice sought to such an extent that he had to give up farming and take up his new duties imposed upon him.

It is said that Mr. Landess is one of the best farm and soil experts in the country. He will illustrate his lecture with slides.

He should be greeted by a large audience even though not composed of farmers. The subject of soil erosion hits the pocketbooks of city folk as much as farming people, and the prevention program of TVA will reap a largeprofit on their investment for generations to come.

Restoring School Employes' Pay Taken Up by St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo.—The first step in restoring the 10 per cent reduction of salaries imposed upon public school employes here four years ago was taken by the board of education when it retained the general school tax rate for 1936 at 85 cents on the $100 valuation, in opposition to a demand advocating a reduction to 83 cents.

A resolution calling for the return to the old salary scale will be considered by the board in June. It is estimated that the wage restoration for 4,000 school employes would cost about $900,000 a year. Advocates of the abolition of the salary cut claim the education board's financial condition warrants this step.

CANADIAN FACTORY PAY RISES

Ottawa. — During the fiscal year ending March 31, the net earnings of 240 leading Canadian corporations were eight per cent greater than in the preceding year, said Dominion Finance Minister Chas. Dunning. Among other signs of progress, he noted that wages of common factory labor increased 2.4 per cent, and miscellaneous factory trades 2.8 per cent. He did not say how increasing profits faster than wages would increase purchasing power where most needed.

NEW GUFFEY BILL GIVEN SUPPORT 2 TENNESSEANS

McReynolds and J. Will Taylor State Flatly They Will Actively Support Miners' Cause.

Most Other Congressmen From Volunteer State Promise "Earnest Consideration."

Most of the nine congressmen from Tennessee have made their acknowledgments to the Tennessee Federation of Labor request for support of the Guffey-Vinson coal control bill which is now in congress. This bill is drawn up to take the place of the original Guffey coal control bill which was kicked out by the supreme court.

J. Will Taylor, a republican, replied that he intended to help push the bill through.

Only one congressman expressed a definite doubt that he would support the measure, while the remainder promise "earnest consideration."

Sam D. McReynolds, from the Chattanooga district, says: "I beg to advise you that I supported the Guffey bill which was declared unconstitutional, as you know, and it is my purpose to support the present bill."

Commissioner Cooke To Advise With State Employment Service

Is One of Five Labor Men Who Will Take Part in Important Duties.

R. M. Cooke, officially known as commissioner of parks, playgrounds and utilities, but better known as one of the old-time trades-unionists of Chattanooga, has been notified that he is to be a member of the Tennessee State Employment Service advisory council.

This committee is composed of eleven citizens of Tennessee. Four other unionists will be with Mr. Cooke. They are T. O. Denham, of Nashville; Jake Cohen, of Memphis; C. C. Arthur, of Knoxville, and John T. O'Connor, of Knoxville.

Another Chattanooga appointee, while not a trades-unionist himself, is well liked for his friendly relations and ability to do any job well. He is Mr. I. B. Merriam.

Other members will be Mr. Hugh Humphreys, chairman, of Memphis, and Dr. Ernest J. Eberling, vice-chairman, of Nashville. Mr. William C. Frierson is secretary. Mr. Will T. Cheek, Robert Lee Bynum and Major Rutledge Smith, all of Nashville, complete the list.

This committee will have its first meeting Friday in Nashville at the Hermitage hotel.

75 Per Cent of Americans Lack Proper Dental Care

New York.—Dr. Harlan H. Horner, assistant commissioner for higher education, told a convention of dentists here that only 25 per cent of the population is now receiving regular dental care and that the extension of this service to all persons in need of it represents the "most important and far-reaching challenge" to dentistry.

Dr. Weston A. Price said that a long survey of teeth among aborigines in Africa revealed that dental decay is virtually non-existent among primitive tribes who eat their traditional, natural foods rich in vitamin, and that among five of the tribes studied only one tooth out of every thousand showed any trace of dental caries.

THREE FOUND GUILTY IN "KICK BACK" CASE

Bennett-Hubbard Employes Shut Down Plant By Strike

ALL BUT ONE CANDY WORKER TAKE PROTECTIVE MEASURE THURSDAY

Union Charges Company Fired Active Leaders in Order to Break Formation of Local.

When the starting whistle blew at the Bennett-Hubbard Candy works Thursday morning the employes declared the place on strike and refused to go to work, with the exception of one.

Three months ago these candy workers decided to join the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, due to the fact that in the last four months three wage cuts have been imposed on them. Organization proceeded quietly and was about complete before the management discovered that they had a union in their factory, officials of the union say. Shortly after the "discovery" of the union, six employes were "laid off," they say. These six were the most active in forming the local.

Conferences have been held with management for two weeks, in which President Joe Dobbs, of Central Body, took part, but no satisfaction was secured. In order to prevent the gradual discharge of the old employes, who would be replaced by new help, the union decided that they would have to fight now or be discharged one by one. The strike was called.

The strike was effected in an orderly manner, with about eight policemen on hand. Pickets are patroling the plant. It is not known yet whether a strikebreaking crew will be imported or not.

Bennett-Hubbard makes a complete line of candy, candy bars, peanut bars, peanut butter and other confectionery. Some fifty employes are affected. Strikers say that their average wage will run about $12.00 per week. Until last Monday they were working 54 hours per week. Last Monday, however, they were put on a 40-hour week, but no recognition of the union nor reinstatement of the discharged employes was secured.

Reading, Mrs. B. F. Gannaway.

Song and dance, Joyce Hodge and Kathryn Langley.

Yodeling, Bob Borin, accompanied by Mr. Shirley Christian.

Short talks were given by Hon. W. B. Wooten, postoffice inspector in charge, and by Hon. W. F. Smith, superintendent Chattanooga Medicine company.

One of the high spots of the evening came when the quartet of the "gay nineties" sang "Annie Laurie" and "Old Lang Syne." This quartet was composed of J. D. Stewart, Dick George, J. W. Hannon and L. J. Raulston—all retired postal employes.

Assistant Postmaster George Forbes presented Mr. Stewart with a beautiful watch as a memento from his friends in the postoffice.

Mr. Walter Lauter, who is also retiring, was unable to be present, but Mr. J. Lons Park paid honor to "Dutch" and displayed a traveling bag which was to be presented to Mr. Lauter.

Mr. Gus Grigsby paid tribute to Mrs. Mary Blacker and presented her with a week-end bag. Among other retiring clerks who were honored were E. H. Schroyer, R. M. George, A. B. Nicholson, D. T. Jones and C. E. Deroachmont.

A most enjoyable skit was presented depicting a glimpse into the future and the fate of the postal employes as they "pass on." Barbs directed at individual friends provoked much merriment, which was climaxed by the playing of "I'll be glad when you're dead, you rascal you," to Mr. Forbes.

G. G. Grigsby was general chairman for the affair, with W. Ed Hays chairman of arrangements.

Postoffice clerks' committee was W. B. Langley, W. A. Gann and E. Melvin. Carriers' committee was I. H. Brooks, Ned Miller and J. E. Langston. Carriers' auxiliary, Mesdames M. A. Lichtenstetter, O. L. Farmer and W. M. Jones. Clerks' auxiliary, Mesdames W. B. Martin, George Haskins and G. B. Pierce.

Newspapermen Of Knox Form Unit of Guild

Members of News-Sentinel and Journal Staffs Almost Unit in Organizing for Protection.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Organization of a Knoxville branch of the American Newspaper Guild, which recently voted affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, has been completed among the news and editorial forces of the Knoxville News-Sentinel and the Knoxville Journal.

The charter was applied for by the News-Sentinel staff which has affiliated 100 per cent. with the Guild, while the Journal staff is numbered among the membership to the extent of more than 90 per cent.

The organization of a Knoxville unit of the American Newspaper Guild, according to well authenticated reports today, has resulted in the development of a policy with respect to News-Sentinel employes insuring an eight-hour day and providing for substantial increase in salaries to become effective in the immediate future.

The Guild committee, it likewise was learned, is now negotiating with the Journal management for similar considerations.

Officers to serve the new organization the first year have been elected as sfollows:

President—Edward B. Smith, News-Sentinel.

General Motors Paid Out Big Sum For "Protection"

Private Detective Agencies Received $188,761 Last Year, Presumably for Furnishing Corporation Spy Service.

NEW YORK CITY.—General Motors last year paid $188,761 to two private detective agencies for "protection." The Pinkerton agency got the lion's share—$167,587; but one W. Walsh collected $21,175.

There has been no strike at General Motors plants. There has been no bitter dispute between company and employes, though the latter find many

Wagner Housing Bill Favorably Reported

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill, which has the support of organized labor, was favorably reported by the senate committee on education and labor on June 3. A drive was at once begun to pass the bill before congress adjourned.

A few minor changes were made in the bill after hearings and after conferences with President Roosevelt.

The active and united pressure of local government officials, social agencies and labor continued stronger than ever behind the amended bill, although larger initial appropriations were desired by most of its supporters.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

PROMOTE ORGANIZATION AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Teachers who attend summer school will have a splendid opportunity to spread the union gospel to teachers now in company-union darkness. These benighted creatures should be told the story of organization and converted into unionmindedness. Then our federation missionary should write back home for aid from the organization committee.

This is no joke. If you can get as many as five teachers from one section interested, you should see that they get a good chance to organize. Make your summer school stay count for the federation!

AMENDMENT PASSES

The recently proposed amendment to the A. F. of T. constitution which made the representation at the annual convention more democratic passed by an overwhelming majority. This amendment gives our local 20 votes in contrast to the 5 we had under the old setup. The old system of representation contributed to some dissension in the teachers' ranks last year, and the change is expected to bring greater harmony.

NO SCAB REPAIR JOBS

Teachers who are contemplating repair jobs on their dwellings should be sure that the work is done by union tradesmen. That is the only way a first-class job can be assured for one reason. The other reason is that our staunchest support—by far—comes from our brother trade-unionists. Can we be so disloyal to them as to spurn their capable services in favor of cheaper scab labor?

DECISION EXPECTED LAST OF MONTH

Decision is expected on the salary cases some time during the next three weeks. We should await the decision with some stoicism. We expect to win, but an adverse decision would not crush us. We would still have our union, our organized labor support, our Labor's Political Conference and our good old federation "Die for old Rutgers" spirit. We expect to get our just pay through the present means. But if they fail, why, we'll just find some other way.

Remember, this is not cold feet. It is merely hoping for the best and being prepared for the worst.

LABEL LEAGUE ENTERTAINS

The Label league will sponsor an entertainment and dance on Friday evening, June 19, 8 p.m., at the labor hall, 114½ West Seventh street. Admission is 10 cents.

If you haven't attended a Label league entertainment, try this one. If you have attended one, only the place and date will be necessary.

The regular June meeting of the league will be held tonight (June 12) at 7:30 in the labor hall.

TVA SOIL CONSERVATION

Next Tuesday evening at 7:30 in Judge Miller's courtroom W. W. Landess, TVA soil conservation expert, will explain this phase of the authority's activities to local trades-unionists and other interested parties. Mr. Landess, a former Hamilton county agricultural agent, will illustrate his lectures with colored slides. He will explain the coverage plan of preventing erosion of valuable top soils. Considerable interest is being shown in the forthcoming lecture, and a large crowd is expected.

Federal Jury in Detroit Convicts 3 Bank Officers

Detroit, Mich. A federal court jury here convicted three former bank officers on three counts of banking law violations before the 1933 banking collapse. The men were all officers of the former People's Wayne County bank. They were charged with false entry reports to the federal reserve board in 1931, false entry in books of the bank and conspiracy to violate banking laws.

The main question in the case was a trustee note for $145,000 which the government held was a sham note and reported falsely to conceal a speculative purchase by the bank of a number of shares of stock in the Detroit Bankers' company, a holding concern which controlled the bank.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Mrs. Marie Schults and Mrs. Margaret Murphy stood and talked it over in a corridor of the Chrysler building, or maybe it was the Empire State building, or maybe it was in the Palm Olive building in Chicago.

Or maybe it was a couple of waitresses in Childs or Thompson's.

Or Sadie and Julie at a couple of armature-winding machines, or on those machines that turn out the parts for spark plugs.

They were studying the Supreme Court decision, rejoicing in their newly established freedom of contract.

"Well, now, I'm free to drive a bargain with the boss," said one of them. "I can march up there all by myself and tell him that I'm a free and equal bargainer and that the Supreme Court says I can make a contract, and, by golly, I want me one of them."

"Yes, you can do all of that—and see what you get out of it," said the other. "And if you get anything less than a broken neck from hitting the sidewalk so hard, let me know and I'll be around to ask you how it feels to have all this freedom. It ought to be good."

It's just that way. The Supreme Court has said that a state minimum wage law is an infringement of the Constitution. There must be no infringement of the constitution. Women must be free to take as little as a hard-boiled boss and a state of hunger can force them to take.

Maybe the Supreme Court doesn't know the facts of life, but among them is the fact that when wages for decent work get pounded down too low, by "freedom of contract" and other things, the female sidewalk population grows larger and larger.

There are times when freedom of contract means exactly the same thing as freedom to starve to death.

Men, as individuals, dealing with great corporations, have no such thing as freedom of contract. Women have less.

There's the story of the mouse, which, having lapped up the flow of an overturned gin bottle, shouts, "now bring on your damned cats"—but that doesn't give the mouse freedom of contract with the cat, or any kind of equality, except in his temporarily expanded imagination.

The Supreme Court tells women to jump on a barrel, wave their arms wildly and yell, "now bring on your damned corporations," but if they do the mortality rate will be terrible.

The Supreme Court is burdened with a great desire to make the Constitution as unyielding as possible. In the 5-to-4 monstrosities, the five never look ahead and they don't seem even to understand the past.

It's one of the world's strangest phenomena.

Here's something to think about:

Corporations are created by virtue of law. Law brought them into existence. They are constitutional. Some of them have big, strong constitutions of their own—and fat profits.

These constitutional, lawful bodies of wealth and power put the individual worker at a terrible disadvantage. They put women at a double disadvantage.

The law—the state—did this.

But when the state, by law, attempts to equalize the situation which it has created, THAT is, the find,

If there is any logic in the position taken by the Supreme Court, YOU FIND IT.

And if you are a woman worker, go out and celebrate your new-found "equality to make contracts with corporations."

Sally Jones and United States Steel—they have the same freedom of contract! Isn't it wonderful! Ain't nature grand!

TEXTILE No. 1785

A party of friends from Textile No. 1785 enjoyed a chicken dinner Tuesday evening at the Home Plate restaurant and a picture show party at the Tivoli theater. Those in the party included Misses Louise Marcrum, Fannie Sutherland, Ina Green, Jessie and Effie Ledford, Bonnie Dibbrel and Agnes Oldham.

What Next!

A new man-made sponge which is said to be superior in many respects to the natural products has been announced. It is made of highly purified wood and cotton pulp, its sponge-like construction being obtained through chemical reactions.

Dear Editor:

I have followed your column of last week to the letter—I went down to Lovemans and bought me one of those white suits, then ate some Grant-Patten ice cream. After that I went over to Warner park and went swimming and followed that up with a bottle of beer—union-made, in union-made bottles. But I'm still not feeling cool. What would you advise?

Why Hosiery Wages Are Low in Tennessee

To Be Run in Three Installments.

This is the statement that was intended to be presented at the conference of mayors at Athens on May 24, but which was called off due to lack of interest on the part of those mayors. There are sixteen towns and cities in Tennessee in which hosiery mills are located and from which the mayors were invited. Two letters of acknowledgement were received. The Athens mayor refused to participate and Mr. Dempster, of Knoxville, accepted the invitation to be present. Mayor Bass, of Chattanooga, told Mr. Callahan he would have a personal representative present.

FINAL INSTALMENT

Let me point out the problem involved in the glutted condition of the market caused by over-capacity of productive facilities.

The average monthly shipments of all types of seamless hosiery are as follows:

Year	Monthly Shipments	Yearly Shipments	Monthly Production Averages
1929	7,186,910	86,242,920
1930	5,739,558	68,874,696
1931	5,823,229	69,878,748
1932	5,893,754	70,725,048
1933	6,149,014	73,788,168
1934	5,991,508	71,898,090	6,110,967
1935	6,382,290	76,787,488	6,337,809
1936 (1st quarter)	6,535,810		6,813,915

7 year average of consumption. 74,027,879

From the foregoing chart it is evident that we can say that consumption levels off at 74 million dozen pairs per year.

A fairly accurate estimate of productive capacity based on 250 working days per year, with a maximum of 80 hours per machine per week, were all equipment thrown into production, is that 132 million dozen pairs of hosiery would be yielded, or 38,000,000 dozen pairs over present consumer demand.

This evidence of ability to produce far beyond all consumed demand is further evidenced in the seasonality of employment, and that 30% of equipment is generally idle.

The ability of the industry to produce above its needs is further shown in the following table:

POTENTIAL CAPACITY BY TYPE

Type	Yearly Demand	Potential Capacity
Men's	30,000,000	71,913,892
Women's	13,000,000	22,500,000
Golf	3,300,000	9,000,000
Anklets	14,000,000	30,000,000
Cotton and wool bundles	6,500,000	12,065,850
Ribbed goods	6,500,000	14,500,000

Monthly production averages at six and a half million dozen pairs, while potential capacity ranges close to eleven million dozens.

In computing potential capacity, time for style changes, breakdowns, and repairs are included.

The men's hosiery industry today can produce 41 million dozen pairs with present operatives by eliminating seasonal lost time.

Into the picture of overproduction and potential capacity enters another important reason for a portion of the instability of the industry. There are a total of 405 seamless hosiery companies. Of this number, 146 companies or 36% have less than 100 machines each of the industry total of 129,000. Sixty-two per cent have less than 200 machines, or a total of 251 companies. The industry is split up into small producing units, with only 4.8% of all mills having more than 900 machines.

Very little seamless equipment is ever junked. Some of the first American rib knitting machines are still in operation as producing units, not as antiques. The tendency of the machine manufacturers has been to emphasize attachments instead of new models, because of the relatively higher profits in such attachments.

There are thousands of machines in operation which have been bought and sold ten times over, each transaction cutting down the value considerably, so that each secondhand sale reduced the capital investment required to purchase it. A relatively small amount of money is needed to start a plant, as compared to other manufacturing industries, and the small investment is attractive to many people.

The machinery needed in seamless manufacture is easily moved, and set up, so that there has been a considerable amount of shifting in geographic location. Dr. George W. Taylor, of the Industrial Research Department of the University of Pennsylvania, and the greatest expert on the hosiery industry today, places the investment cost for machinery to start a seamless plant at $4,500, and this provides for a complete producing unit, including finishing, and all auxiliary machinery required.

In these [illegible] we have tried to present the true picture of a seriously [illegible] industry, whose greatest need today is cooperative action to prevent the [illegible] of the wage and hour structure, and nothing in the [illegible] of these [illegible] work in the industry, making them [illegible], and creating a poverty group which will be a [illegible] against having all [illegible] for the employer.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Who said: "No law enacted by congress to meet twentieth century requirements is safe until it has been approved by a majority of the nine members of the supreme court. The exercise of such power is inconsistent with popular sovereignty?"

A.—This is from a declaration of the 1917 American Federation of Labor convention.

Q.—When did the American Federation of Labor first act to erect a building for its own use?

A.—In 1903 the Federation's Executive Council was instructed to investigate the feasibility of putting up a building. A number of years were taken in raising a fund and land in Washington was purchased in 1915. The building was begun soon afterward and dedicated on July 4, 1916, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, making the dedicatory address.

PRISON GOODS ACT UPHELD

CINCINNATI.—Constitutionality of a congressional act regulating interstate transportation of prison-made goods was upheld here by the United States circuit court of appeals.

The court upheld District Judge Elwood Hamilton in dismissing a bill of complaint of an Eddyville (Ky.) whip and collar company invoking the Fifth amendment to the Constitution to force the Illinois Central Railroad company to accept shipments of convict-made harnesses, horse collars and other leather goods.

TAI ARBITRATION AGREEMENT WON

DALLAS, Tex.—Dallas taxi drivers, newly organized, have just won an arbitration agreement with all owners. Two firms signed with the union and broke the ice.

800 New Bedford Workers Defeat Wage Cut; Pairpoint Co. Becomes Union Shop

New Bedford, Mass.—Eight hundred employes of the Pairpoint Manufacturing company here prevented a wage slash and secured a union shop for all trades concerned as the result of a strike called to protest the action of the company in posting a notice in their plant on April 24 to the effect that on and after April 27 the factory would operate upon a 45-hour weekly basis with 40-hour pay, a reduction in wages of 11⅑ per cent and other changed conditions.

The notice covered members of the following trades: Paper makers, pulp and sulphite workers, paper cone workers, paper box makers, maintenance men, flint glass workers, glass bottle blowers and silversmiths.

Representatives of the eight trades involved teamed together to meet the situation and worked jointly in conference with the Massachusetts State Board of Conciliation for six weeks, but when negotiations failed and the firm posted the hour increase and wage cut notice employes in all trades struck. The tie-up was complete. Following the second week of the strike the firm agreed to call the workers back under the old conditions of a 40-hour week with no reduction in pay. Now the shop is 100 per cent organized in the eight trades involved.

MILWAUKEE LONGSHOREMEN STRIKE FOR HIGHER PAY

Milwaukee, Wis. — Approximately 400 members of the International Longshoremen's union here declared a strike to enforce their demand for a 10 per cent wage increase. It was said that 70 cents an hour was the old rate, against which the men protested. The strike tied up the handling of cargoes on two package freighters.

things unsatisfactory. The only rational conclusion from this high pay in time of industrial peace is that the so-called detectives are spies, and that the much vaunted General Motors is to maintain an extensive spy system.

These figures are contained in the report of the company to the Security and Exchange Commission on all payments above $20,000 a year. General Motors has 185 employes whose compensation is above that figure. That is their minimum wage; the maximum depends on the prosperity of the company. In 1934, these 185 men received a total compensation of $3,170,215. Last year, 1935, they more than doubled that account and collected a total of $7,031,983.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, gets $119,000 a year salary, rain or shine. In 1934, the poor fellow got so little bonus that his total compensation was only $201,744. In 1935, he received $374,505. William S. Knudsen, vice-president, got only a few dollars less, $374,475.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Police and Judge Fail to Break Up Strike!

TEACHERS' SALARY LAW GOES INTO SCRAP HEAP; BATTLE LINES REDRAWN

State Court Tears Down Legal Guarantee Towards Living Wage for County Teachers—City Pedagogues Not Acted on Yet.

Local Union Not Defeated—Realize More Than Ever That Political Candidates for County Must Be Scanned Carefully—Tenure Law Not Touched.

Members of Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' association, Local 249, this week received a shock when word was received that the Tennessee supreme court had kicked out their salary law which had been bitterly fought by the county court. The court declared that the county must be left free to negotiate individual contracts. Because of a difference in the charter of the city it is hoped that the city teachers will be allowed to force living salary scales by law.

Rather than being broken in spirit, the teachers and other members of organized labor seem to have rolled up their sleeves with a grim determination to show that the scrap had just really started. From comment heard already it can be implied that since teachers do not strike, and since the court has refused redress, it is inevitable that unfavorable public officials must go down to defeat, and candidates who pledge that they will pay decent salaries must be elected.

The tenure law was not under discussion by the court. Up to this date county teachers are still immune from political punishment.

In an interview with S. E. Smith, president of the teachers' union, he says:

"The decision of the Tennessee supreme court invalidating the Hamilton county teachers' salary law is the starting gun rather than the finish tape for the teachers' struggle for a square deal and decent pay. Although this decision brings to naught several years of effort on the part of the teachers' federation so far as Hamilton county salaries are concerned, it leaves us in a very good position in the city, where we have precedent of other salaries fixed by law whose validity the supreme court has upheld. times the discrimination which the county practices in paying in various categories of employes. A study of salary figures for the year 1934-35 showed an average salary for other county employes of comparable training requirements in excess of $1,500. Besides this we find the teacher's average to be $964. Hamilton county cannot in justice refuse to pay teachers enough for them to live in decency and self-respect.

"It is difficult to know what the county judge will blame future tax rate increases on. After succeeding in convincing many people that last year's 43-cent increase was caused by the teachers' salary law, he was in the process of building up the belief that another increase this year was going to result from the same cause. Of course the truth is that the teachers' salary law has never cost the taxpayers a penny and would have required less than 7 cents if put into operation last year.

"The convenient scapegoat of the county judge is gone, but the problem of paying Hamilton county teachers a living wage remains and we intend to continue working for its solution."

Fair Cut Aids Passenger Traffic, B. & O. Reports

New York City, June 18.—The Baltimore & Ohio railroad reports that its passenger traffic in the New York district has gained 44 per cent since the cut in rates ordered by the ICC went into effect June 1. B. & O. passenger revenue from the same district, says the same report, shows an increase in that time of 28 to 30 per cent.

Formerly, passenger fares in eastern territory were 3.6 cents a mile, with a surcharge for Pullmans. The ICC ordered a cut to 2 cents a mile for coaches and 3 cents for Pullmans. The Baltimore & Ohio approved the cut, which most western and southern roads have made for themselves, but the Pennsylvania and most other eastern lines protested bitterly.

The B. & O. is the first to report on passenger revenues, though all eastern roads admit that their traffic has gained under the lower fare.

Hamilton Institute Claims 12,263,000 Are Unemployed

New York.—The number of unemployed working men and women in the United States totaled 12,263,000 in April, according to the estimate made by the Alexander Hamilton institute. In March, the institute said, there were 12,723,000 jobless. These figures indicate a decrease of 460,000 during the month.

The statistics compiled by the institute may be interpreted as a reply to the charge made in certain quarters that the unemployment figures compiled by the American Federation of Labor are exaggerated. For the month under consideration the federation estimated there were 11,506,000 jobless workers—757,000 less than the estimate made by the institute.

COLONIAL BREAD SIGNS CONTRACT WITH UNIONISTS

Closed Shop in Bakery, to Use the Label; Mother's, Betsy Ross, Colonial Now Union Made.

The Labor World is glad to announce this week that the short controversy between the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union and the Colonial Baking company has been successfully settled this past week when the company put its signature on the same contract recently signed with the Cameron & Barr Baking company.

This agreement finishes the complete organization of the bakeshops of the three large bakeries in Chattanooga. The pact calls for a closed shop, check-off, union wages and union working conditions.

Unionists are pleased that the controversy was of such a short duration, lasting only a few weeks. Settlement of the plant leaves the bakery union free to push their campaign to better conditions in their trade in the Bennett-Hubbard candy plant.

Denies Rail Cost Is Boosted By Union Contracts

"Erroneous" View Is Hit by Eastman—Favors Collective Bargaining, and Raps Labor-Hating Employers.

Washington.—A heavy blow was given the fallacy promulgated by anti-union employers that trade union agreements increase operating costs in a statement by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, summarizing an investigation of this subject, made under his direction, as it affects the operation of our railroad systems.

Declaring that the study extended over two years, Mr. Eastman said it was "erroneous" to state that terms regarding wages, hours and other work conditions contained in the agreements negotiated by the railroad labor unions with the railroads "necessarily add to the cost of railroad operation." He approved collective bargaining methods for determining the wages paid to railroad employes.

With regard to the average earnings of railroad workers, the study showed, he said that they had been reduced from $2,300 in 1929 to $1,800 in 1933.

Mr. Eastman's staff used the month of March, 1934, as a sample period in the inquiry relative to railroad wages and labor costs and the effect of wage agreements on both.

The extent of collective bargaining in the railroad industry was revealed, the report said, by the fact that more than 3,000 labor agreements between railroad employes and railroad managements had been filed in one year with the national mediation board.

Mr. Eastman pointed out that according to information unearthed by the survey faster trains had in recent years increased the earnings of workers on a mileage basis, but that there had been a "counter balance" in favor of the railroads resulting from a reduction in "overtime pay."

HOWARD RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF I. T. U.

Indianapolis.—Charles P. Howard, Indianapolis, clinched re-election to the presidency of the International Typographical union when unofficial returns from 630 of the 700 locals gave him a majority of 7,644 over his opponent, Hugh B. McGann, Houston, Tex. The vote was 28,150 to 20,506.

Substantial majorities were polled by other members on the administration ticket with Howard.

Oscar I. Kruger Memphis Laborite, Called by Death

Was Commissioner of Streets and Sewers Since 1927; Served as Labor Candidate.

Memphis, June 18.—Oscar I. Kruger, 68, a harnessmaker who became Memphis city commissioner of streets, bridges and sewers, died of a heart attack at his hotel apartment here this morning.

He had been in ill health for more than a year, but had continued his duties as commissioner.

A native of Paducah, Ky., Commissioner Kruger came to Memphis thirty-five years ago and engaged in the harness-making business. Later he obtained a job as harnessmaker for the city, and for a number of years lived in a room above a fire station.

As a labor candidate, having been a charter member of the Memphis Trades and Labor council, he was elected to the city school board in 1907 and served for seven years.

He was not active in politics after leaving the school board until 1927, when he was elected commissioner.

Notice, Building Trades!

The committee on arrangements for the Building Trades council has arranged for a conference between the Building Trades council and all subcontractors and general contractors in the city, to be held at the Patten hotel, June 24, at 8 o'clock p.m. The building trades goes into effect July 1 and agreements are expected to be consummated by that time. This meeting will be in the form of a smoker and refreshments will be served.

New York Keeps Up Fight On Low Wages for Women

Albany, N. Y.—Elmer F. Andrews, state industrial commissioner, declared that although the decision of the United States supreme court holding the state minimum wage act for women unconstitutional had stripped the state of its enforcement power the state department of labor would continue its studies of women workers and seek to persuade employers voluntarily to raise wages.

He said an encouraging feature of the situation was that 85 per cent of the laundry industry (the only one to which the law had been applied) had maintained wages after the state court of appeals had first upset the law. These employers would be asked to continue to do so on a voluntary basis.

In reply to a question regaridng the possibility of enacting a new minimum wage law that the U. S. supreme court might be persuaded to uphold, he said "that should be given very careful study by the best minds," adding: "I am not in favor of ducking the issue. We have got to find a real way of doing what appears to be desired both by the legislature and the people."

$1,331,500,000 SPENT BY PWA FOR MATERIALS

Washington.—The public works administration announced that it had spent $1,331,500,000 for materials up to June 1 and that 95 per cent of its new projects were under construction.

Included in the purchases were $678,832,000 for iron and steel products, $383,340,000 for cement, bricks and other building materials and $71,250,000 for lumber and forest products.

The administration said that 70 per cent of the expenditures for materials go for wages and materials for equipment.

Bennett-Hubbard Strikers Cheered By Fine Support

Business Men and Organized Labor Rally to Cause of New Local Trades Unionists.

Arrest of President Dobbs by Cop Boosts Morale. Police Officers Constantly "On Guard" as Pickets Peacefully Patrol Candy-Making Plant, Closed Week by 100 Per Cent Walkout of Employes, Members of Bakers and Confectionery Workers' Union.

Displaying a stoical fortitude which has characterized Chattanooga workers' resentment against cheap-wage employers many times during the past few years, some fifty employes of the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company Thursday morning ignored the presence of a platoon of local police and continued their quiet but effective picketing of the plant on East Eleventh street, which has for the past week been closed by a 100 per cent. walk-out following three recent wage cuts and the "laying off" of some half-dozen workers who were most active in the organization of a local affiliated with the Bakers and Confectionery Workers' Union.

Despite the fact that hordes of police officers have been constantly on hand to assist any one desperate enough to want to "scab," the strike has been orderly, with but one untoward incident.

The latter occurred on Monday morning, when President Joe G. Dobbs, of Chattanooga Central Labor Union, who has rendered valuable assistance to the new organization, was arrested, together with a girl striker, after having allegedly made some uncomplimentary remarks about a cop by the name of Perkins, who has been in the limelight several times before during local strikes. Mr. Dobbs, however, denied in police court that he had used exactly the words attributed to him.

The policeman is alleged to have apparently become too enthused over the prospect of a young woman applicant for a position, resisting the appeals of the pickets, and, although she testified herself that she stated "I don't want to go in," Perkins grabbed her, carried her into the office and threw her onto the floor.

Result of the "trial" in police court Tuesday may be summed up by the following paragraph from a story in the Chattanooga News:

"Judge Fleming carefully explained that Capt. Perkins is not the vile names Dobbs is alleged by Officer Davis to have called him, and accused the defense of coaching its several dozen witnesses. He ruled Dobbs incited the trouble by yelling 'Don't let her go in,' and stated that the testimony of two uniforms was stronger than that of all the other witnesses combined."

Mr. Dobbs was fined $25. He had given out a newspaper interview Saturday in which he termed the local police department a "strike-breaking agency."

Officers and members of the new union are loud in their praises of local merchants and business men for the wonderful sympathetic interest in and support of the workers' efforts to enforce their American rights.

They are confident that complete victory is only a matter of time, and the morale of the strikers is described as perfect. Run-in of President Dobbs with the policeman Monday is said to have helped greatly toward maintaining this splendid spirit among the unionists.

INSURANCE POLICIES CHANGED TO PREVENT USE BY EMPLOYERS IN FOSTERING COMPANY UNIONS

Philadelphia, June 18.—The Prudential Insurance company has changed its group insurance policies and applications to prevent their use by employers in attempts to force employes into company unions.

The company's action followed conferences between company executives and labor representatives. The latter included Isadore Katz, general counsel for the American Federation of Hosiery Workers; M. H. Goldstein, acting attorney for the Pennsylvania Shirt Workers' union, affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; and David S. Schick, editor of Labor Publications Foundation, publisher of the Labor Record, the Hosiery Worker and the York County Labor Record.

Following are quotations from a letter to Schick from Franklin D'Olier, executive vice-president of the insurance company, in which are formally expressed the agreement arrived at in the conferences:

"The function of this mutualized insurance company is to provide insurance protection at the lowest possible net cost consistent with safety, and to this function we strictly confine ourselves.

"In carrying out this policy in the sale of group business, we insist that all employes, who, by condition of employment, are eligible for participation shall be permitted to join the plan without regard to their affiliation or non-affiliation with any organization whatever. In order that we may be sure that every employer and employee shall fully understand our position in this respect, we are inserting this clause in the application to be signed by the employer and in the enrollment cards to be signed by his employes.

(Signed) "Franklin D'Olier,

Action of the Prudential resulted from a protest by labor publications, which found that the Baskind shirt factory at Lebanon, Pa., was driving employes into a company union by means of the insurance policies. Only members of the company union could get a policy, but every employe was forced to join the company union and whether he wished a policy or not, its premium was taken out of his pay as part of company union "dues." A similar situation existed at the Real Silk Hosiery mills, Indianapolis, Ind.

SECRETARY PERKINS TO PRESS CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER LIVING QUARTERS FOR U. S. SAILORS

NEW YORK CITY.—Secretary of Labor Perkins inspected the living quarters of the crew of the Queen Mary, found them good, and came up from the lower regions of the ship saying that she will do her utmost to get a comprehensive federal inquiry into living and working conditions on American ships.

Miss Perkins spent no time in viewing the passenger accommodations of the great Cunard liner. She dived at once to the living and working quarters of the crew. She visited kitchens, mess halls, laboratories, sleeping cabins. She talked with the sooty and shirtless members of the "black gang."

She pronounced the crew quarters the best she had ever seen, but reserved her warmest praise for the conditioned air vents in the sleeping quarters of the crew.

"That's the greatest thing about the ship," she declared. "Crew quarters are usually so hot that a man off duty finds it hard to rest. This is a real blessing."

Next to that, she admired the reading lamp at the head of every bunk of the crew, and she was feminine enough to note the white tablecloths from which the crew ate.

Secretary Perkins, on concluding her inspection, told the reporters that she would ask the Department of Commerce to combine with her own Department of Labor for a general and thorough survey of living conditions on American ships. She believes a program can be worked out which will bring great improvements and still be wholly practical.

A girl never tells you how ticklish she is unless she's anxious to get acquainted.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

Now that the state supreme court has had its fling at throwing out laws, it seems in order to attempt an orientation to our new situation. What is the effect of the decision? The laws expressed the sentiment of a majority of the qualified voters through their duly elected representatives. The supreme court declares that the county law is unconstitutional because it would discriminate against Hamilton county's freedom of contract.

Now the decision has restored this freedom of contract to the county. But freedom always carries responsibility with it. In this case the county court has the responsibility of carrying out the mandate of the people for better schools and decent pay for teachers.

But this is not enough. They should pledge themselves specifically to a support of the provisions of the salary law.

Let us hope that Labor's Political Conference indorses no candidate who has not made such a specific pledge.

REAL LEADERS

President Joe Dobbs and Secretary Erskine Mabee are leaders in Central Labor union meetings. But that is not the only place where they are leaders. They lead on the picket line. Nothing could have had a better effect on the solidarity of the Bennett-Hubbard candy strikers than the presence of these leaders. Brothers Dobbs and Mabee have worked night and day of late in order to perform their regular duties and still give their aid in this emergency.

Some old line labor leader now holding a political job is said to have remarked that it is undignified for a C. L. U. president to march on the picket line. The brother must be talking about stuffed shirt dignity. Dignity in the labor movement means something different. It comes from sincere and effective service to the interests of the workers.

Brothers Dobbs and Mabee have this kind of dignity.

Time for Bankers to Sing Small

One L. E. Wakefield, a Minneapolis banker, made a hit with the American Institute of Banking in its annual meeting at Seattle the other day. He demanded that the government "withdraw from business," and all the assembled bankers did say "Amen!" He scored "government interference with the rights of citizens," but refrained from telling what interference galled him so. Probably it is the nosey habit of government bank examiners.

As for withdrawing from business, which doubtless means the banking business, there was a time when the government never looked sharply toward a bank. That was in the period from 1921 to 1929—and here is a list of the banks that "suspended" in that period: 1921, 501; 1922, 354; 1923, 648; 1924, 776; 1925, 612; 1926, 956; 1927, 662; 1928, 491; 1929, 642; total, 5,642.

In other words, the banks, left to themselves, managed to close the doors of 5,642 banks in nine years of vaunted "prosperity." Is this a record which invites confidence? In the same period, less than half a dozen banks failed in Great Britain and Canada. But the bankers for whom and to whom Mr. Wakefield was speaking went on in their complete liberty from government interference until more than half the banks of the country had closed their doors, and President Roosevelt shut up the rest to keep them from crashing.

It would be wisdom as well as good manners for American bankers to "sing small" until, at least, the country has had time to forget their utter and complete incompetence.

Labor Must Be on Guard

How little can be done by laws alone is shown by the recent report of Ralph M. Bashore, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Department of Labor and Industry. He found, on a careful special inspection, that:

One-fourth of the employing firms are violating the laws against child labor, or the laws designed for the protection of women in industry.

Thirty per cent of the firms inspected carry no workmen's compensation insurance.

Nearly thirty-seven per cent permit the existence of hazards forbidden by the fire and panic act.

Fifty-seven per cent of the elevators used by workers did not have proper certificates of safety. And,

Seventy-one per cent of the power boilers were likewise uncertificated—which generally means uninspected.

Laws on all these subjects are necessary and right. But back of the law is needed an alert public opinion; and above all, organization among workers to enforce their lawful rights and protections. The need for unions was never better shown than by this special inspection in Pennsylvania.

Some Factors of Management

Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, has printed a "boom" advertisement in a number of morning papers. He declares that there are "limitless possibilities for multiplying jobs, for creating new work, for producing new wealth." He says:

"The way to increase employment is to create more jobs by making existing goods and services constantly better, lowering their cost, not by reducing wages but by greater efficiency, advanced technology, and better management."

The statements in that paragraph are true; but they are not the whole truth. Maintaining wages at their present level is not enough to keep the wheels of industry turning. Wages, and total wage payments, must be greatly increased, if wage earners are to have the buying power to consume the goods which our factories are now able to turn out.

* * * *

The Brookings Institution has shown that in 1929, when Mr. Sloan's company was even more prosperous than it is now, 12,000,000 families in the United States, more than 42 per cent of all the families of the country had incomes less than $1,500 a year. Half of these, or 6,000,000 families, had incomes less than $1,000 a year.

In other and ruder words, 21 per cent of the families of the United States in its most "prosperous" year had incomes too low to furnish a decent living, and another 21 per cent had incomes every nickel of which had to be spent for food, clothing and shelter. What chance had they to help create more jobs?

* * * *

One would like, also, to have Mr. Sloan define "better management." He belongs to a corporation and an industry which has fought labor organization, tooth and nail. Is he ready to repent, and grant his workers their plain right to organize in unions of their own choosing? If so, why didn't he say so? If he means to go on with the industrial autocracy which he and other auto manufacturers have maintained to date, with the worst record of uncertain employment in the universe, why didn't he say that?

Mr. Sloan can create more jobs by enabling his employes to buy more goods and giving them more time to enjoy what they purchase. That means higher wages and shorter hours; and there is no security for either wages or hours until labor's right to organize and bargain collectively with its employer is an accomplished fact.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Ernest Pyle, in the Scripps-Howard papers, tells the story of what the dust storms of the past three years have done to the prairies of western Kansas. There had been a 12-hour rain, which cleared the air of dust, and he looked around, over a flat country with the horizon miles away.

"And I saw not a solitary thing but bare earth, and a few lonely, empty farm houses.

"As far as the eye could reach, there was nothing. There was not a tree, nor a blade of grass, or a fence, or a field. Not a flower, not a stalk of corn; not a dog nor a cow nor a human being—nothing whatever, nothing at all but gray, raw earth and a few farm houses and barns, sticking up from the dark gray sea, like white cattle skeletons on the desert. There is nobody in the houses. The humans have given up and gone. It was death, if I ever have seen death."

Such a description ought to jar the complacency of those who still prate of man's mastery over the earth.

The new deal is moving on two fronts toward a real human mastery of at least the more common forces of nature. The TVA is an attempt—so far successful—to conquer one great valley for stable human living. It is making water work for man on its way to the sea, instead of tearing up and carrying away the topsoil on which depends the life of man and of all other land creatures. It is planting, fertilizing, damming, ditching; and its work already shows a masterpiece.

The new deal attempt to tame dust-storms and prevent the ravaging of more western lands in the way that Pyle describes was not started so early as the TVA. But it is as big and splendid an idea as that behind the TVA; and probably is a bigger task. Dust storms already have driven human beings from regions larger than the Tennessee valley; and what they would do if not curbed in time, one hardly dares to think.

Premier Leon Blum has introduced bills in the French parliament providing for the 40-hour week and for collective bargaining. Evidently, the new deal in France is well started. France has not forgotten 1780 and 1914. She is obliged to spend a far larger part of her revenues for her energies on mere safety from invasion than is required of us or even of England. But for all that handicap, she is moving toward social justice at a pretty rapid pace.

When Blum was made premier, a die-hard conservative in the chamber attacked Blum in a furious oration, and declared that this is the first time "that this Gallo-Roman land of France has ever been ruled by a Jew!"

The speaker was a crippled veteran of the world war, and was allowed to rant himself out. But it is a pity that no one in the chamber thought to repeat the remark of Disraeli when similar intolerance was shown in England:

"Half the Christian world worships a Jew, and the other half a Jewess."

The constitution is a very much discussed document. Supreme court justices talk about it and machinists talk about it. Miners talk about it and women cleaning offices at night talk about it. There will be more talk before there is less. Because of the constitution, the courts say we cannot do certain things. The president says the supreme court has left a no-man's land by its latest decision. That is true in a sense, except that the no-man's land is in reality very definitely the employers' land. They have possession and the people cannot put them out—under the constitution as the courts now define it. It is no-court's land, but it really isn't a no-man's land.

In this strange border zone of jurisprudence, no congress or legislature may set up barriers. That means that whatever the employers can force upon workers is legal in that zone. There is no one to say them nay, except unions. Again we come to the old, old lesson: It is best of all to have strong unions. If the unions are strong enough, there is no need to bother the courts. Except where the courts are used to create barriers against lawful action by unions, which is by no means something unknown. Laws should give us liberty and rights—from there on we should use the strength of labor organizations.

Of course we all know that the courts have set aside the law often enough and have made it impossible to use union strength, even where it has existed. The modern corporation, created by the state, has managed to ride over everything. And so it has become really a state duty to lend protection to workers to equalize rights and opportunities. So, what ought to be the case very often is not the case at all, just on account of the might, the chicanery and the stupidity of corporations, which could not exist, except by charter issued by the state. When the state attempted to deal with issues created because we have great corporate entities, the court has told us the law is not constitutional. It is a pretty fix. What the supreme court probably is doing is to weaken the status of the states—shielding corporate autocracy behind state skirts and thus building toward a resentment that will rise up and cut away state powers, perhaps more than is necessary, in order to be sure that the national government can do necessary things.

U. S. AGENCIES INVESTIGATE BEATING OF UNION PRESIDENT

Washington, June 18.—Agents have been assigned by the department of labor and the national labor relations board to probe the beating of Sherman Dalrymple, president of the United Rubber Workers of America.

The beating occurred at Gadsden, Ala., where the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has a large plant, and where it has been discharging men who showed an interest in union work. Dalrymple spoke at a mass meeting to which all employes of the plant were invited.

Eggs were thrown at Dalrymple and a small riot started when the police entered; and, instead of arresting the rioters, arrested Dalrymple, led him out of the building and released him. He started for his hotel and had nearly reached it when two men seized his arms and pinned them behind his back, two more held his hair so that he could not dodge, and the rest of a sizable mob pummeled his face and head.

He asked permission of the sheriff to remain overnight so as to get medical attention. The sheriff answered that the whole city was roused, and that he could not guarantee protection. Dalrymple's wife drove him to another town, where he got treatment.

The attack on Dalrymple had an echo in Akron, O., where workers in one big plant staged a 24-hour "sit down" strike in protest.

50-Hour Week Is Decreed; 950 Mill Workers Strike

Kernersville, N. C.—Relying upon economic conditions to make their edict effective, officials of the Adams-Millis company and the Vance Hosiery mills here lengthened the work week from 40 hours to 50 hours. But smarting under the injustice of the increased hours 950 employes—350 in the Vance plant and 600 in the Adams-Millis plant—walked out with such a degree of solidarity that both mills were closed.

500 Sugar Refinery Workers Strike in Contract Dispute

Philadelphia.—Officials of the W. J. McCahan Sugar Refining and Molasses company here refused to consider a wage and working conditions agreement submitted by representatives of the employes as a basis for negotiation. Result: 500 employes refused to sell the use of their labor power to the company and walked out of the plant.

Brother John Phillips reports on the convention that there were 250 delegates present and were accorded a big welcome with barbecues, stag parties, banquets and dances for entertainment. Reports on progress showed the organization was in a healthier condition numerically and financially. Messages were delivered by Maj. George L. Berry, I. N. Ornburn, Judge John D. Martin and an inspiring talk by George L. Googe. Outstanding discussions during the convention were the Morrell strike and the question of industrial organization. Vice-President McCoy informed the convention that the wrong impression existed in the minds of many members throughout the country that the company tried to convey through its salesmen the idea the strike had been settled and men returned to work. This is not so. The week of July 18 to 25 of this year is declared as Morrell strike week and every affiliated union will be called upon to help raise funds. Several resolutions were passed on industrial organization, as follows:

1. Favoring industrial organization.

2. Will not tolerate separate crafts unions.

Other resolutions were:

1. Condemning the use of injunction in labor disputes.

2. Opposing finger-printing of workers arrested in labor disputes.

3. Authorizing an immediate campaign against company unions.

4. Favoring the 40-hour week for retail markets.

5. Limitation of term of office of supreme court judges and favoring their election by popular vote.

6. Favoring freedom for Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

7. Favoring the Walsh-Healy bill which provides certain standards of employment which every employer must certify to before entering bids for supplies for the federal government.

8. Favoring action of the A. F. of L. in boycotting all nazi-made goods.

9. Opposing child labor.

10. Demanding the prevailing wage rate on government contracts.

In conclusion a resolution requesting that the convention to indorse the farmer-labor party was voted down on the grounds that the present time was not proper for action.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

HOT DIGGETY! All columnists are supposed to travel around and gather up information for their columns. Well, this columnist has been gadding about on the fishing trip mentioned last week.

THE ONLY trouble about the trip was that I was unable to find any labeled goods about the whole lake. Lake Santeetlah is a lovely spot up in North Carolina, one of those states which is blessed with the sales tax—(we still don't like that tax). We did run across some Merita bread, but we shunned that because we had our own good old union-labeled Mother's Bread right along with us. You'd be surprised at how long that bread will keep fresh. Our only trouble in keeping it was the fact that our appetites increased up there in the mountains.

YOU CAN'T keep a good label down, though—we just carried our labels right along with us. First of all the menfolks went down to Contor Bros. and bought some of those work pants to fish in. Then they got the biggest little boy some of those Carhart overalls—Contor Bros. are exclusive agents for them.

AFTER that, we bought a reel and rod from Martin-Thompson (you bet they advertise in our paper) and got a tackle box from Sears-Roebuck (another advertiser).

AND, we took Prof. Stan Smithsky along for the sole purpose of organizing the teachers in the schools of fish, but they were not ready to send for a charter.

SH-SH! We took along a few bottles of Old South union-made beer, too—please note that it was bottled beer—not canned.

* * *

AND, in spite of all the labels that we took along, neither one of the two fish that I caught had a single label on it.

CHAIRMAN GEORGE HARRIMAN GOES INTO ACTION RAISING MONEY

"We are going to raise a half million dollars as labor's share of the democratic national committee's campaign fund."

"Hello, Chicago. Yes, we're shipping you ten thousand tickets today. Yes, by express. Good luck and make it a sellout."

"Hello, Cincinnati. Is your committee in action? That's fine. How many? Ten thousand? Fine; they'll be shipped today."

"Here are reports from all over the United States, explaining operations, ordering tickets, demanding the president's re-election."

Washington.—"We're marching on toward our goal of a half million labor dollars for Roosevelt's re-election," said George M. Harrison, as he plunged into this week's campaign work.

Harrison, president of the Railway and Steamship Clerks and A. F. of L. vice-president, is chairman of the labor finance division of the democratic national committee.

Under his direction, from his offices at 606 Carpenters' Building, Washington, Chairman Harrison is appointing local labor chairmen all over the United States. In his office there hangs a great map, on which pins show where chairmen have been appointed. The map seems to be mostly pins.

From each point marked by a pin reports come of committees being organized, with orders for tickets following.

Harrison's organization is rallying labor attendance for the great series of mass rallies to be held throughout the United States the night of June 27, when President Roosevelt accepts nomination for re-election. In most cases the mass meetings are being arranged by the local democratic committees.

Labor's tickets are distinctive in color and will admit the purchasers to any meeting in the United States the night of June 27. All labor tickets must be procured by local chairmen from Chairman Harrison.

The original pile of half a million tickets, weighing two and a half tons, is indicative of the sweeping popularity of the movement is Chicago's order for 10,000 tickets. Selling at $1 each, these tickets are regarded by Chairman Harrison as the most democratic financing method yet evolved.

"In addition to that," said Chairman Harrison, "labor's distincitve tickets deposited at each meeting will indicate something of labor's strength and live interest in each case. That is important for labor to consider everywhere. That is one reason why labor has its own tickets, printed for labor by the democratic national committee."

Attached to each ticket is a certificate, showing that the owner is an "Original Roosevelt Nominator." This is to be detached by the purchaser and it may be framed as a permanent record and souvenir .

The return of prosperity will be marked by callouses on the hands instead of the feet.

WARNING TO TAXPAYERS

After May 31st, unpaid taxes bear interest and in addition a penalty of one-half of 1 per cent. a month.

Taxes may be paid at my office until June 30th, when lists will be delivered to officers for collection at the cost of the taxpayer.

WASHINGTON UNIONS BACK AUTO MECHANICS' STRIKE

Washington, June 18.—Thirty-five union labor organizations here have pledged their support to the strike of automobile mechanics who are members of the local branches of the International Association of Machinists.

The strikers demand 90 cents an hour, a 44-hour week and time and a half for overtime.

It is charged by union officials that an automobile leaving one of the struck plants at excessive speed crashed through the picket line and injured a picket, fracturing one of his legs.

Union representatives filed complaints with the national labor relations board charging the Nolan Motor company, one of the firms refusing to comply with the union's terms, with violating the national labor relations act.

Government Probes Assault on Rubber Workers' Leader; Here's Full Story of Dalrymple Outrage

Savage Beating of Labor Head Stirs Fervor White Hot in Akron Factories

Workers Determined to Press Organization Drive in All Plants, as Effective Answer to Employers' Policy of Terrorism, Exemplified by Outrage at Gadsden, Alabama.

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

AKRON, O.—The answer of the Goodyear rubber barons to the effort of the United Rubber Workers of America to organize the company's plant at Gadsden, Ala., was to send hired thugs, including the sheriff and his deputies, to break up the union meeting and inflict such brutal punishment upon Sherman H. Dalrymple, international president that all who have seen him in the hospital at Akron are amazed that such inhumanity to man is possible.

Akron rubber workers are roused to a fever pitch. The 24-hour sit-down strike which followed Dalrymple's return to Akron was concluded without violence. But the most strenuous pleading of union leaders prevented the organization of a crusade of 5,000 armed men for the invasion of Gadsden to avenge the beating of their leader.

Infused into the workers of Akron is the indomitable spirit of Dalrymple. He lies in the hospital with concussion of the brain. He was kicked and beaten to a pulp. His arms were twisted behind his back until the snapping of ligaments brought screams of anguish from the one friendly witness present. Other inhuman indignities were heaped upon him. A week after the beating there was a real danger he would not recover.

HIS ONE THOUGHT WAS FOR UNIONISM

But despite Dalrymple's condition, his one thought when the blood was pouring from his wounds in quantities which would have ended the life of an ordinary individual was that he must reach Akron before he died to get the workers of the union organized finally and so that a man might join a union in safety.

Dalrymple was warned of the vicious welcome awaiting him should he venture into Gadsden. The United Rubber Workers have issued a sworn statement of the threat made by C. Slusser, vice-president and factory manager of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, that if certain union officials were able to get off the train in Gadsden they would leave there on a stretcher.

When Dalrymple got to Gadsden, he was followed wherever he went. "I was warned two or three times during the afternoon and evening that I was

JUDGE FLEMING DENIES STORY IN LOCAL PRESS

Says Two Bluecoats Not Better Than Fifty Witnesses.

Martin A. Fleming, judge on the bench at city police court, in an interview with The Labor World this week denounced the version of the Chattanooga News which reported the trial of President Joe G. Dobbs for "disorderly conduct" in the Bennett-Hubbard strike.

Judge Fleming was reported to have said in court that the testimony of two policemen outweighed all other witnesses combined. Defense for Mr. Dobbs comprised some fifty or more witnesses to the fracas in front of the candy plant, but they were not allowed to give their testimony when the judge accused them of being "coached" by the defense attorney.

The Labor World last week, incidental to the story covering the incident, quoted the afternoon paper as stating Judge Fleming had made the remarks from the bench. This paper is glad, of course, to publish the judge's denial.

TVA LECTURE TO SHOW RECREATION ASPECTS

Next Tuesday evening, on the courthouse lawn, Mr. G. W. Farrier, of the recreational division of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will discuss "Recreational Possibilities in the Tennessee Valley."

These lectures are sponsored by Chattanooga Central Labor union, and have proven very valuable in presenting every phase of the great benefits which TVA is to bring to Chattanooga.

The lecture will start at 7:30. In event of rain the crowd will move into Judge Miller's courtroom.

Meatcutters' Representative Visits Local No. 600.

Ray Wolfington, international representative of the Butcher Workers, is in Chattanooga this week and reports that much progress has been made in the local grocery situation here. He expects to be able to report a settlement in the near future. Mr. Wolfington came directly here after attending the Meatcutters' convention in Memphis last week.

Railway Workers' Pension Chief Will Speak Here June 29

Railroad Retirement Act of 1935 to Be Discussed—No Other Legislation More Important, Is Claimed.

W. W. Royster, president of the Railroad Employes' National Pension Association, Inc., will speak in Chattanooga on June 29 on "The Railroad Retirement Act of 1935." The public will be welcome.

The address, one of a series to be delivered in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama cities, will be in Judge Miller's courtroom at 7:30 p.m. The national order has more than 400 chapters, with headquarters in Chicago. Royster was a railroad engineer before taking over the direction of the association five years ago.

M. T. DeLong is president of the Chattanooga Chapter, T. F. Fowler is secretary and Robert Berry treasurer. Persons working in all lines of transportation governed by the Interstate Commerce Commission are eligible for membership.

PAUL AYMON FIRE MARSHAL.

Paul J. Aymon has just assumed his new duties as fire marshal for the eastern district of Tennessee, serving under the Tennessee department of labor. Sinclair Oil Company To Paint 9 Stations With Union Labor

One of the provisions was a clause which specified that the work must be done with union labor.

Postoffice Clerks To Hold Convention In Knoxville July 3

Largest Sessions Ever Attended Expected — Big Delegation from This City to Go.

National President Leo George to Address State Group—Andrew Johnson Headquarters.

The postoffice boys are packing their bags in readiness to trek to Knoxville, July 2, to be on hand the next day for the opening session of the Tennessee Federation of Postoffice Clerks' annual convention. The Knoxville chapter has sent word "down the road" that they will show their guests what real entertainment is, and approximately twenty-five Chattanoogans have signified their intentions to be there.

Notice from Secretary E. R. Hatcher has been received here and according to him it appears that this convention will be the largest and most valuable ever held. This is due to the fact that during the last twelve months an intensive organization campaign has borne abundant fruit. Many new chapters have been formed, and old chapters have been strengthened by new memberships.

One of the pleasures anticipated will be the address to be delivered by their national president, Leo George. Brother George is well known to the labor movement of Chattanooga, having paid several visits to the Dynamo City.

Delegates from Chattanooga have been named as follows: C. E. Coppinger, Eugene Melvin, H. C. Caruthers, L. R. Griffitts and Charlie Werndli.

Conclusion.

This is to remind you, one and all, That summer's riding for a fall.

DEADLOCK AT BENN-HUBB IN SECOND WEEK FINDS STRIKERS VERY STRONG

Financial Backing Sufficient to Feed and Care for Valiant Scrappers All Summer If Necessary, With Local Unions of City Ready to Open Purse Strings.

INDIGNATION HEARD FROM MERCHANTS WHEN LOW WAGE SCALE MADE KNOWN

Closed Shop Contract Must Be Signed Regardless of Everything Else in Order to Guarantee Protection in Future, Unionists Reiterate—Picket Line Grows Stronger Each Day.

Hear the Songbirds On the Picket Line

One of the by-products of the Bennett-Hubbard strike will be the discovery of some good vocalists and song writers. One of the most recent parodies on well known songs is written in tune to "Lazy Bones." One of the strikers wrote this.

"LAZY BONES"

Crazy fools, work for Ben and Hub,
Living on the poorest kind of grub;
You'll never have decent grub
While you work for Ben and Hubb.

Crazy fools, making Ben-Hubbs' sweets
While you live on poor old fat meat;
You'll never have lean meat
While you make Ben-Hubb sweets.

Crazy fools, slaving all day
While you get the poorest kind of pay.
You'll never get better pay
Unless you go the union way.

Crazy fools, join right in and fight,
Demand the living wage that's in your right—
Ben-Hubb will find your strength and might
When we picket day and night.

Crazy fools, hang your head in shame,
Don't you try to go in the scabbing gang
Or you will get misery and pain
While Ben-Hubb lets you take the blame.

The second week of the strike in progress at the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company finds the striking employes more determined than ever that their fight for a more decent living wage shall reach a successful conclusion. During the week several arrests have been made by one or more of the ten to twenty police sent to "guard" the plant. All those arrested will be tried before Judge Martin A. Fleming Friday morning, June 26.

Apparently the management of the plant is receiving quite a bit of moral support from the chamber of commerce, according to those in position to observe the workings of the manufacturers, and the strikers' demands for a closed shop are being met with stubborn resistance. Equally stubborn is the attitude taken by the employes that a closed shop is item No. 1 as a means of preventing future discriminations or wage cuts.

Although the bakery union has not yet instituted an intensive campaign to acquaint merchants with the conditions under which Benn-Hubb products are manufactured, those business people who have learned of just how things have been going inside the plant have expressed shocked surprise and resentment. The average wage received by the candy workers will not go over $12.00 per week, they say.

During the week President Joe Dobbs, of Central Labor union, was charged with assault and battery because of an alleged attack on a scab who has been working in the plant. President Dobbs says the scab called him the same name which he was accused of and fined by Judge Fleming of calling Captain Perkins, veteran police officer of many strikes in the years past. Another girl scab is said to have become a bit perky and swung at one of the girl strikers. Her clothes were removed, it is reported, and for a few seconds she suffered some embarrassment until the former traffic guardians reached her.

The recent traffic quarrel between Commissioner Bryan and Mr. Wise, of the Safety Council, has entered into the strike in a small way. The police commissioner told Mr. Wise, in the now famous "boloney" fracas, that traffic deaths and accidents could not be curtailed because of lack of policemen to watch over our 120,000 citizens. Despite that condition there have been approximately one policeman to every two strikers. Most of the police dislike their present duties, but they have their orders which they must obey.

Speaking again of traffic accidents, only two people were killed last night in an automobile wreck on Rossville avenue.

This strike is said to be receiving more whole-hearted sympathy than most any other recently. Strikers are receiving more food since they have stopped work than they were accustomed to before. Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Local 25 has a strong treasury and will be able to carry on all summer if necessary. Assurances from the other local unions in the city indicate that if necessary the Bakery union's funds will be supplemented if and when exhausted.

STATE COMMITTEE CALLS SESSIONS TO TALK POLITICS

Non-Partisan Committee of Tennessee Federation and Railroad Brotherhoods to Deliberate.

TWO-DAY POW-WOW ON JUNE 26 AND 27

First Day's Session Open to All Local Unions, Central Bodies and Trades-Union Individuals to Scan Political Records of Candidates.

R. H. Brazzell, secretary for the Tennessee Non-Partisan Political committee, embracing all American Federation of Labor unions and the railroad brotherhoods, has called a meeting to be held in Nashville on June 26 and 27. Mr. Brazzell says: "Friday, the 26th, will be devoted to a general discussion of issues, the records of various candidates and problebs affecting labor between members of the committee and representatives of organized labor throughout the state, and Saturday the 27th, the committee will meet in executive session."

Members of the Non-Partisan group from the Tennessee Federation this year will be R. S. McCann, of Memphis; T. R. Cuthbert, of Chattanooga, and W. C. Clark, from Nashville.

The troubles of others are interesting, because we like to compare them with our own.

Boilermaker Delegates

W. E. Smith and Charles Mann, members of Boilermakers' local, were at Central Body meeting last Monday evening with bells on. They are proud of the honor bestowed on them and it is predicted that they will be heard from in the future.

AKERS FAMILIES ARE INCREASING

Frank Delzell and Robert Ernst, members of Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, No. 25, are strutting around this week. A baby girl, named Jeanette, weighing seven pounds, came to the Delzell family last Monday. Mr. Delzell is employed at the Union Baking company.

Robert Ernst was presented with a baby boy last week. He is employed at Cameron & Barr Baking company. Both mothers are doing fine. The Labor World congratulates these good union families. We hope that when these unionists grow up to manhood and womanhood that their parents have been successful in making a living more profitable and working conditions better.

Helping with the dishes all summer is more to do with wanting to rush back to college in the fall than the desire for a higher education.

BENN-HUBB NOTES

Those teachers who are in the summer school at the Benn-Hubbard [illegible] company. Mother manage. They part the cream. Let's go down to the latest like some morning if we haven't seen. We need some of the practical kind of some education.

And by all means let's take care not to buy any candy or peanut butter made by Benn-Hubb until they get right with our union painters and union.

WATCH THOSE REPAIR JOBS

If anything should make a boy admire teacher look the need in organizing a member of the building trades to ask some of our members down for being weak labor on their building repair jobs there. We teachers are supposed to hold up the highest ideals among them, loyalty and gratitude. Right now we need to sit at the feet of our fellow unionists in order to learn these attributes.

OIL WORKERS REPORT TWO YEARS OF SOLID PROGRESS

More Pay, Shorter Hours, Union Agreements Won, With Code Gains Largely Held, President Fremming Tells Tulsa Convention—Declaration of Solidarity With CROM Approved.

TULSA, Okla.—Outstanding progress in obtaining higher wages, shorter working hours and union agreements with employers was reported at the seventh biennial convention of the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well2 and Refinery Workers of America, opening here on June 1 with an attendance of upward of 250 delegates.

The report of President H. C. Fremming was a presentation of the record of two years of solid achievement in the labor field. It was documented by tabulations and charts, which exhibited in graphic form the meaning of what has been accomplished during that period for the oil workers, by means of organization.

These accomplishments were shown to include wage increases which in many instances approach 1929 levels; security through seniority; reduction in working hours; vacations with pay; sick leave pay; overtime pay; holidays; check-off system; voice in industrial management; and tops the list with the negotiation of forty agreements with petroleum companies.

Leading Companies Sign Pacts.

Among the companies with which negotiated agreements are of record are such as the Sinclair, Empire, Shell, White Eagle (Casper), Wadhams, Texas, Tri-State and Pure Oil.

Charts were presented showing the "changes in average wage rates and full-time hours per week," for roustabouts during the period of May, 1929, to January, 1936, as compared with the cost of living; and also "average hourly wage rate, weekly earnings, hours per week and cost of living," for workers in oil refineries from January, 1933, to January, 1936.

The report also showed the experience of the NRA period, and the advantage which the oil workers offered, and stated that "code pay conditions for the most part obtain today."

Value of Agreements Stressed.

President Fremming emphasized the value of the agreements secured and the importance of keeping them inviolate, in the interest of the security of the members. He referred to the crying—but not unusual—experiences of the officers in the areas of new organization, the need for experienced field men, which can only be met by the passage of time and by accomplished facts.

Reference was made to the issue of "industrial vs. craft organization," and the important part which the oil workers' organization has played in the history of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The gain since the last convention, in agreements negotiated, in membership gained and held, and in the added prestige which has come to the organization, mark a period of very satisfactory advance in the labor field for the oil workers, according to this report.

Support of Crom Declared.

The following was adopted unanimously and sent to President Cardenas, of Mexico, and Ricardo Trevino:

"President Lazardo Cardenas, National Palace, Mexico City:

"We respectfully transmit to you the following telegram sent today to Ricardo Trevino, Secretary-General Crom:

"'Brother Luis N. Morones, our old friend and vice-president of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, who was expelled illegally from your country for maintaining ideas which are the same as ours was invited expressly to address this convention. By unanimous decision of this convention, we have resolved to repeat to you our firm determination of solidarity and co-operation between our organization and the Crom which represents the legitimate labor movement of Mexico, independent of all outside influences. We avail ourselves of this opportunity to endorse the declarations made by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, regarding the solidarity of the American Federation of Labor and the Crom and against the expulsion of Morones.'"

(Signed)

HARVEY C. FREMMING,
President, International Oil Workers' Union.

MORE ABOUT

being shadowed," Dalrymple said in his statement before he was taken to the hospital. "When we arrived at the meeting, I was told that a group of one side of the hall were steel company guards and that others present were from the Goodyear supervision. A total of about 200 were present, but scarcely more than a score seemed to be our union rubber workers.

SHERIFF EJECTS UNION MEMBERS

"Two speakers preceded me. When I was introduced, some one in the crowd shouted, "Who in hell sent for you?' I told them that Local 12 had sent for me and I explained my mission. When I remarked that I knew I was talking to assemblymen, square men and supervisors, some one else yelled, 'You're —— ——— right you are!'"

Then the sheriff and his deputies entered. Men in the crowd pointed out the union men, who were searched and marched out of the hall. The sheriff accompanied Dalrymple and his wife out the back door. (Yes, Mrs. Dalrymple was there, and that's another story of heroism.)

SHERIFF DOES NOTHING TO STOP BRUTAL BEATING

In front of the court house the court house thugs went to work on Dalrymple. What they did to him will leave scars on the mind and soul of Mrs. Dalrymple as well as on her husband's body. But it is believed that her presence was the only thing that saved his life. She demanded that the sheriff stop the beating, but he did nothing. One man shouted with glee: "Take this ——— out and kill him and don't leave one here in Alabama."

OFFICIAL REFUSES TO CALL PHYSICIAN

When Mrs. Dalrymple was finally able to reach her husband's side, having a [illegible] was "out of the sheriff [illegible] to take her husband out of the state as rapidly as possible. When she pleaded for a doctor to treat his wounds, the sheriff refused to call one and warned her that if she let him stay a moment longer he could not answer for the consequences.

Mrs. Dalrymple got her husband into the car. It was twenty miles out of Gadsden before she was able to find a doctor.

"The doctor was amazed that Sherman was alive after the amount of blood he had lost," said Mrs. Dalrymple. "He insisted that we stay there and he would find surgeons to care for him. But Sherman wouldn't listen to him. He said: "Give me something to catch the blood. My wife will drive me to Akron. I'll live till I get there. I've got too much to do in Akron to stay and die here.'"

MRS. DALRYMPLE DRIVES HUSBAND TO AKRON HOME

So Mrs. Dalrymple got into the car again. She drove him until exhausted nature forced her to stop for rest for a few hours. At daylight Sunday morning they were on their way again, arriving at Akron late at night. While the doctor attended him at the Dalrymple home, the iron will of the leader of the rubber workers carried him through a day of planning with his fellow-workers. Work at the Goodyear plant was at a standstill. When finally all responsibilities had been delegated to other hands, Dalrymple collapsed and was taken to the hospital.

Meantime in the Goodyear plant at Gadsden the purging of the plant of union men was going on. Squads of gunmen singled out the union men, beat them up one at a time and ran them out of town. At least ten union members were thus victimized.

Just before Dalrymple left for Gadsden he issued a statement on the sit-down strikes which is highly revealing of the attitude of the union in contrast to the domineering attitude of the company officials.

ONLY NECESSARY STRIKE SUPPORTED

"Since there exists considerable doubt in the minds of the general public regarding the number of sit-downs which have occurred in the past few weeks, we present these facts so the public may not be misled as to the real reason and underlying causes," the statement said.

"It is not the policy of our International Union or any of its affiliated locals to encourage unnecessary cessations of work or sit-downs. We believe in the settlement of disputes by proper negotiations with management.

"Sit-downs do not occur in plants where true collective bargaining exists. Where management does not attempt to destroy unionism by financing company unions; by the formation of vigilante groups, and by placing other obstacles in the path of legitimate union growth, there is such a spirit of co-operation between the union and management that cessations of work do not occur.

RECENT SIT-DOWNS FORCED BY MANAGEMENT

"Recent sit-downs in Akron have occurred because management either did not enter into fair negotiations on certain grievances or deliberately postponed decisions until resentment of the workers grew so keen that they resorted to sit-downs as a last resort.

"The fact that these grievances were settled satisfactorily immediately after the sit-downs definitely indicates that they could have been settled just as easily before if management had negotiated fairly with the union committee in their efforts to secure peaceful settlement of the issues involved.

"It is our contention that the only way these sit-downs can be avoided in the future is through the proper application of all the rules of true collective bargaining in a spirit of fair play."

ATTACK ON DALRYMPLE AROUSES ALL LABOR

Labor throughout the United States is roused with righteous indignation at the attack on Dalrymple. Labor, cooperating with officials of the United Rubber Workers, has reached the ears of official Washington. Representatives of the department of justice and of the national labor relations board were sent immediately to Gadsden to investigate the outrage.

At the same time plans for organizing the workers in the Goodyear plant at Gadsden have been speeded up. All the resources of the rubber workers in Akron are at the disposal of organizers. The answer of the Goodyear officials to the union has been demonstrated to be the wrong answer. The following demands, in addition to making the Akron agreement universal in all Goodyear plants, have been drawn up:

1. All union members in Cumberland and Gadsden who have been fired for union activity be rehired immediately with full pay for the time lost.
2. Doctor bills be paid by the company for workers who have been slugged and beaten by company thugs.

The rubber workers of Akron are convinced that they are in the midst of a fight for life that will not be settled in Akron. They won the fight in Akron and are convinced they can hold the gains made there by means of their economic strength. But the battleground shifts. It goes to Gadsden. It goes to Cumberland. It goes to Los Angeles. The union must follow, or else cheap labor production elsewhere will permit employers to pile up a surplus which will enable them to close Akron plants for months and to starve out the union workers.

AUTO MAGNATES MAY WAR ON RUBBER UNION

Rubber employers have said that they dare not recognize the rubber workers' unions, for if they do the automobile manufacturers will make their own tires. There is fear on the part of the workers that automobile manufacturers are aligned against them. They may be the spearhead of the drive for unionization of the automobile industry.

In Akron the notorious "Law and Order" League, established by Pearl Bergdorf, the strikebreaker, has been the tool of the employers. It defeated the early efforts of the workers to organize. In the last strike the workers were prepared to meet rifles with more rifles, and the League sought cover. It is now engaged in distributing anti-union literature in Akron.

BLACK LEGION TRIES TERRORISTIC TACTICS

The Black Legion came to life in distinctive fashion Wednesday night, June 10, as the sit-down strike was about to end. The explosion of six bombs directed the attention of fourth shift workers entering the plant to the burning of three huge fiery crosses. The demonstration was intended to intimidate the men, but the result was the prolongation of the sit-down strike for another five hours. The rubber workers are not in a mood to be intimidated. The Black Legion, using Ku-Klux methods, served only to add fuel to the fire seething among the workers.

In Gadsden and in Cumberland and in Los Angeles the Goodyear company has strengthened its policy of preventing by fair means or foul the growth of unionism. There the "law and order" leagues have the upper hand. But in Gadsden the Frankenstein set-up by the company went too far. The "answer" to the union was too inhuman for public digestion. It induced public vomit.

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. NON-PARTISAN POLITICAL BODY SCANS RECORDS OF CANDIDATES AND MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

Re-Elect Roosevelt — Elect Burgin Dossett Over Browning, Who Is Bitter Towards Child Labor Amendment Beat Harvey Hannah for Rail Commission by Voting for Jouroloman.

Congressional Candidates Are Approved, Subject to National Legislative Representatives' Approval—Nashville District Has Union Man in Race for Congress and Labor Asked to Elect Him.

Organized labor's non-partisan committee, composed of representatives from the Tennessee Federation of Labor, the five railroad brotherhoods and the United Mine Workers of America, met June 27, 1936, in executive session to consider political action in the forthcoming elections.

"The committee heartily indorsed President Roosevelt for re-election in the following statement:

"'We are profoundly grateful for the acts of Divine Providence that gave to this nation Franklin D. Roosevelt as its leader during the crisis through which we are now passing.

"'His efforts to better the condition of the common poeple of the

The race for governor found that Burgin Dossett had the best of it when labor's legislative program was discussed with both the candidates. The main issue against Mr. Browning was his unyielding opposition to the child labor amendment.

Leon Jouroloman, of Knoxville, was recommended to defeat Harvey Hannah, incumbent, for the railroad and public utilities commission.

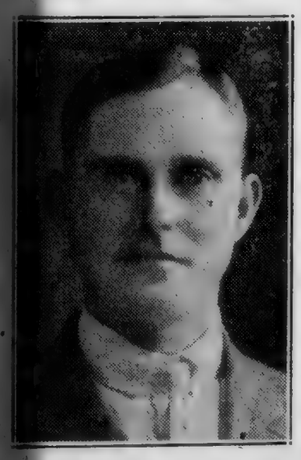
None of the candidates for congress have any serious opposition, and as a general rule, their records are acceptable. The race in the Fifth district, however, finds a union man, J. Carlton Loser, asking for the place vacated by the death of Joseph W. Byrns. Mr. Loser should be heartily supported, the committee said.

Formal statement by the non-partisan political committee says:

"The non-partisan political committee, composed of representatives of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, the five railroad brotherhoods and the United Mine Workers of America, met June 27, 1936, in executive session to consider political action in the forthcoming elections.

Machinists Lodge Elects Robinson To Succeed Reno

Named to Vice-Presidency —Is "Old-Timer" in Labor Movement.



MATT J. ROBINSON

At their regular meeting held June 25, 1936, Matt J. Robinson was named to take over the duties of vice-president of Lodge 1450, Railroad Machinists. This position was formerly held by Joe Reno, who resigned because of inability to carry on his duties.

At present Mr. Robinson is serving as deputy factory inspector in the Tennessee department of labor.

Mr. Robinson is also a delegate to the Chattanooga Central Labor union from his local union.

Central Body Praises Dobbs & Mabee for Splendid Work Done

Stand Unanimously Behind President and Secretary in Their Activities in Benn-Hubb Strike.

At the last regular meeting of Central Labor union the delegates enthusiastically told President Joe Dobbs and Secretary Erskine Mabee that they had wholehearted approval for the work in the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company strike. This was done in the form of a resolution which said:

"Whereas, Brothers Joe Dobbs and Erskine Mabee have carried on a courageous and faithful leadership of the strike now in progress at the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company; and,

"Whereas, the future of our organization attempts in this city hinges very greatly on the winning of this strike; and,

"Whereas, members of organized labor in this city are wont to put aside any internal differences in time of crisis in order that a solid front can be presented to our enemies; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this body give a rising vote of approval and support to Brothers Dobbs and Mabee for their tireless and fearless work in the above-mentioned strike; be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the daily press of this city, to The Labor World, and that a copy by incorporated in the minutes of this body."

Refusal to Recognize Union Brings Radio Plant Walkout

Camden, N. J.—Police arrested thirty-two men, all strikers or union organizers, on the first day of the strike of the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America at the Victor division of the R. C. A.

The strike was called after the company had refused through a week's negotiations to recognize the union, and to abolish the company union. The union demands included a 20 per cent wage increase for day work and 30 per cent for night workers.

A. C. Levay, chief of the strikers' legal committee, said that 8,250 of the 11,000 employes at the plants walked out, and that more than 5,000 were on the mass picket lines.

Steel Declares War on Organizing Effort

Company Unions To Be Protected, Industry Asserts

Fighting to Keep Autocratic Power, Steelmasters Defy Union and Wax Enthusiastic Over Workers' "Freedom."

New York City.—Steel is steel in its opposition to labor unions, as well as to anything else that would lessen the autocratic control of the steelmasters over the industry. That is the essence of a statement issued by the American Iron and Steel institute.

"A campaign to unionize the employes of the steel industry has been announced," runs the statement. "Persons and organizations not connected with the industry have taken charge of the campaign.

"There are many disturbing indications that the promoters of the campaign will employ coercion and intimidation of the employes in the industry, and foment strikes. . . . The steel industry will oppose any attempt to compel its employes to join a union or to pay tribute for the right to work.

Company Unions Held "Free."

"No employe in the steel industry has to join any organization to get or hold a job. . . . The steel industry believes in collective bargaining, and it is in effect throughout the entire industry."

This will be news to the national labor relations board.

The steel statement goes on to elaborate on the "freedom" of its company unions, how badly the industry fared in the depression, and the threat of interruption of present prosperity by this unionizing campaign. Then:

"The steel industry will use its resources to the best of its ability to protect its employes and their families from intimidation, coercion and violence, and to aid them in maintaining collective bargaining free

Cartoonist Guild Strikes; 15 Minimum Payment Asked

New York, N. Y.—The Cartoonist Guild of America, a recently established union patterned after the American Newspaper Guild, declared a strike against College Humor and five other magazines which refused to accede to the Guild's demand that all magazines institute a $15 minimum payment for comic drawings.

The guild also insisted that publishers pay for drawings within thirty days of acceptance, whether or not the cartoons are printed, and that no cuts in prevailing rates of payment be paid as a result of the minimum wage demand. The editors of Life and Judge approved the guild's demands.

In addition to College Humor the following magazines lost the services of guild members: The Rockefeller Center Weekly, the Voyager, Promenade, Movie Humor and Real Screen Fun.

JUDGE FLEMING'S DENIAL ATTACKED BY UNIONISTS

Committee Protests to Labor World That They Heard Judge's Statement in Court.

Story in News Was Correct, They Say, and He Should Not Back Out of His Position.

Pickets and labor leaders who were present in police court two weeks ago, when City Judge Fleming is reported to have made the remark that "two uniforms" were worth more than fifty pickets as witnesses in the case then being heard, which involved charges against a labor man, stated emphatically this week that the story as reported in the Chattanooga News was correct.

Last week's Labor World carried Judge Fleming's denial of the story. Indignation was expressed by those who heard the reported remark that the correctness of the News reporter's story should be challenged when, as they stated, the story was correct.

Labor people state that the judge refused to hear a large number of witnesses for the defendant on the ground that he "knew" what they were going to say anyway, and that the testimony of "two uniforms" was worth more than theirs.

The Labor world was glad to report Judge Fleming's denial and it is equally glad to report the statements of the people involved.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER JOE DOBBS FINDS BENN-HUBB EMPLOYES MORE DETERMINED THAN EVER

President of Central Labor Union Misses Death by Inches When He Is Shot by Father of Scab in Candy Factory.

BOND OF WOULD-BE KILLER SIGNED BY LYNCHING ADVOCATE

Plenty of Guns in Evidence Around Strike Scene, But None Are in Hands of Strikers—Further Murderous Attempts Watched Carefully.

Gunplay shocked the labor movement of Chattanooga last Saturday afternoon when Jeff May, father of a scabbing son, walked into the picket tent and calmly pulled a pistol on President Joe Dobbs in an attempt to kill him while he was resting on a cot.

Witnesses say that as soon as Mays' purpose became evident, Dobbs grappled with the would-be killer, although shot through the groin, and held him until the police, strangely absent, came to the "rescue" and put May under "arrest." Other witnesses say that as May was escorted to the sergeant's office at the jail, T. Pope Shepherd happened to be on hand and immediately made bond for the would-be murderer.

Mr. T. Pope Shepherd, well known for his anti-union spirit, is also well known for a speech he made some months ago before a civic club, in which he said that labor organizers should be put in a sack and dropped into the middle of the ocean. Possibly Mr. Shepherd prefers the drowning method to lynching or the pistol route because it is not so messy. Knowing how hard it has been in times past to locate Mr. Shepherd to discuss with him peace terms in the Milne Chair strike, unionists are amazed at the promptness and coincidence which attended Mr. Shepherd's making bond for May.

The would-be assassin, Jeff May, is well known in real estate circles.

Mr. Dobbs at present is resting easier at the Newell sanitarium, and it is believed that he will recover unless complications set in.

Pickets at the Bennett-Hubbard plant report a preponderance of sidearms, although the pickets do not even carry the much debated "whittling sticks." Despite the attempted killing of their leader and the flashing of guns, the picket lines are as orderly and courageous as ever. Pickets are getting fatter and healthier looking as each week goes by, due no doubt to the fact that the relief given them by the union is so much better than accustomed to while receiving wages from the candy lords.

Some five or six kids, nearly young enough to be called children, have been persuaded to punch the time clock in the plant, and there is much clatter and whirring of wheels all day. Efforts to secure conciliatory meetings by outsiders have met with stern refusal on the part of the management.

Some look on the recent addition of night shifts of two candy plants in Chattanooga as an indication that Benn-Hubb candy is really "moulding in the plant," as the strikers sing so harmoniously each morning.

Carter Candy Company Signs Union Contract After Four-Hour Strike

Closed Shop, Raise in Wages and Check-Off Makes Benn-Hubb Competitor 100 Per Cent Union.

Carter Candy company, competitor of Bennett-Hubbard company, this week signed a 100 per cent closed shop agreement with Bakery and Confectionery Workers union. The contract calls for a wage increase and the check-off.

Signing of the contract makes Carter Candy the first strictly union candy in Chattanooga, and they will use the union label. This will be the first candy in the south bearing the union label. The pact was drawn up after a four-hour strike that shut the plant down completely by all of the employes, numbering between fifteen and twenty.

Officers of the candy workers request the labor movement to ask for Carter candies and to watch out for the non-union Benn-Hubb products, which includes peanut butter and peanut bars.

REPUBLICAN PARTY CONVENTION DECLARATION ON LABOR MATTERS

Platform Planks Favor Re-employment of Jobless, Unemployment Relief, Old-Age Pensions, Unemployment Insurance, Right of Workers to Organize, Regulation of Work Conditions for Civil Rights.

The planks of direct interest to labor adopted by the national convention of the republican party, held in Cleveland, O., include plans for re-employment of the jobless, unemployment relief, old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, right of labor to organize and bargain collectively, and state laws and interstate compacts to protect women and child workers.

Among methods to provide work for the jobless army now numbering over 11,000,000 the platform demands the abolition of all policies that restrict production and raise production costs and the cessation of government activities which enter fields usually monopolized by private enterprise.

For relief of the needy unemployed the platform proposes joint contributions by the Federal Government and state and local governments with removal of relief funds from Federal control and vested in local agencies, the separation of Federal public works from unemployment relief, and a survey to ascertain the facts regarding both unemployment and relief.

On the subject of old-age security the platform favors pensions for needy persons over 65 paid out of current Federal and state funds raised by direct taxation "widely distributed."

The platform declared that unemployment insurance should be provided exclusively by the states and territories and condemned as "unworkable" the present Federal law relative to unemployment insurance and old-age annuities.

The text of the planks concerning labor follows:

RE-EMPLOYMENT

The only permanent solution of the unemployment problem is the absorption of the unemployed by industry and agriculture. To that end we advocate:

Removal of restrictions on production.

Abandonment of all New Deal policies that raise production costs, increase the cost of living, and thereby restrict buying, reduce volume and prevent re-employment.

Encouragement instead of hindrance to legitimate business.

Withdrawal of government from competition with private payrolls.

A Fine Custom

The merchants of Chattanooga are planning to close their stores all day next Saturday, July 4, to celebrate Independence day. This is a laudable and patriotic custom which should be universally followed. Especially will employes in the stores be afforded relief from the terrible heat while at the same time they will be commemorating an event which every true American cherishes.

We hope that there will be no chiselers among the merchants next Saturday. Necessity will require, however, that some few stores, dispensing necessities, such as medicines, etc., or even food merchants, will remain open part of the day.

Another practice is contemplated by the retail merchants of this city during the months of July and August. They plan to close each day at 5 o'clock, except Saturdays. We commend them for this.

A PRAYER FOR JOE DOBBS

Lord, hear thou our prayer.
Please take care of Joe Dobbs.
Protect him with Thy loving care.
For we need him on this job.

While he lies on a hospital bed
In our hearts many prayers have been said,
We need him, for he is our friend,
Smiling and fighting to the end.

True to his children and his wife,
God make him happy all through life;
He is so honest, true and kind
To every worker on the picket line.

You who can read every heart
Know that Joe has done a man't part,
For every union girl and man,
That he has helped with a loving hand.

A scab's father used a smoking gun
To protect his scabbing son;
God, is it a sin for us to strike?
We are only asking for our rights.

You alone know how we slaved,
Working at Benn-Hubb's with nothing saved;
Tell him if he wants his business back
To sign that 100% union contract.

Mr. Carter did what was right,
He signed up after a three-hour strike;
Mr. Bennett will understand
When Carter's take orders out of his hand.

It was 7 o'clock as we all know,
He opened the door and the scabs came through.
The police stood by to guard the door—
Mr. Bennett was mad because he didn't get more.

Please, God, make Joe Dobbs well
And make the scab's dad pay,
But all the scabs ought to burn in hell,
For we gave them the chance at the union way.

—Tillie Brooks.

What Next!

Colored concrete, made by a new process which is said to overcome disadvantages of earlier colored concretes, is being promoted by the cement industry. Several companies are now making colored aggregates for colored concrete on a commercial scale. The new type of colored concrete, for use as a surface decoration, is said to cost less than colored tiles or glass.

Wisdom

I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education.—Thomas Jefferson.

Man—I hear you lost your temper yesterday.

Neighbor—Yes, but she'll be back tomorrow.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

The regular July meeting of the board of directors will be held Monday, July 6, 7 o'clock, at the Y. M. C. A. If it appears that a quorum cannot be obtained, board members will be notified.

Independence Day, on July 4, we Americans celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the document that asserted unequivocally the rights of man. We teachers might also celebrate a couple of dates, the date of installation of Local 246 and the date of the signing of the tenure bill. Both dates mean much to teachers.

THREE CHEERS FOR JOE DOBBS

Our Central Labor Union president, Brother Joe Dobbs, lies in Newells' Sanitarium, the victim of a cowardly, murderous attack, instigated or encouraged by the forces that will stop at no crime to keep wage earners from organizing to better their conditions.

Brother Dobbs has been a real friend to the teachers and we teachers feel deeply outraged at the attack on him.

Let us hope he recuperates quickly so that he can continue his leadership of the Bennett-Hubbard strikers.

St. Louis Clothing Company Put on Labor's Unfair List

St. Louis.—At the request of the joint council of the Amalgamated clothing workers of America, the Missouri State Federation of Labor unanimously voted to put the Curlee Clothing company, of this city, on the unfair list. After citing the long record of the Curlee outfit as a consistently anti-union leader in the business world of St. Louis, the federation

"Resolved that the Missouri State Federation of Labor, in annual convention assembled at Hannibal, Mo., place the Curlee Clothing company on its 'We Don't Patronize' list and to instruct its officers to inform all affiliated unions, and all state federation headquarters affiliated with the American Federation of Labor of this action and ask them to give the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of St. Louis all possible moral support in their just and hard struggle against the unfair Curlee Clothing company of St. Louis;

"Resolved to request all affiliated unions, central bodies and trade councils to report to the St. Louis Joint Council of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers the names of all merchants dealing with the Curlee Clothing company."

Officers and delegates of the St. Louis Central Trades and Labor union and the Cigarmakers joined in urging this resolution on the federation.

Milwaukee Laundry Workers Strike for Union Contract

Milwaukee, Wis.—Following refusal of the Baxter laundry here to negotiate an agreement with Laundry Workers' Union No. 74, a strike was called which closed the plant. Twenty out of the concern's thirty-two employes operated the picket line. The company is a member of the Laundry Owners' association, which refused to renew contracts with the Laundry Workers' union when the old ones expired last December.

Union officials declared that since the contract expired employers have resorted to cutting wages and other methods of chiseling. One 10-year employe, it was stated, "has been working for an average of $6.50 a week, and a married man who had been employed for eight years had averaged $13 a week."

SUGAR REFINERY STRIKE WINS UNION SHOP PACT

Philadelphia, Pa.—A ten days' strike of 700 employes of the McCahan Sugar company here was settled when officials of the company signed an agreement with the newly formed Sugar Refinery Workers' Federal Labor Union No. 20225, to which the employes belonged.

The agreement provided for a preferential union shop, $2 per week wage increase for all employes, time and a half for overtime, and the usual machinery for handling grievances with an impartial chairman to be designated by either the U. S. department of labor or the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry.

STRIKEBREAKER BILL SIGNED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington.—President Roosevelt affixed his signature to the bill enacted by the recent session of congress outlawing the transportation of strikebreakers across state lines with the intention of using them to interfere with the right of peaceful picketing in labor disputes. The enactment of the bill was favored by the American Federation of Labor.

MORE ABOUT REPUBLICAN

Elimination of unnecessary and hampering regulations.

Adoption of such other policies as will furnish a chance for individual enterprise, industrial expansion and the restoration of jobs.

RELIEF

The necessities of life must be provided for the needy, and hope must be restored pending recovery. The administration of relief is a major failure of the New Deal. It has been faithless to those who most deserve our sympathy. To end confusion, partisanship, waste and incompetence, we pledge:

1. The return of responsibility for relief administration to non-political local agencies familiar with community problems.

2. Federal grants-in-aid to the states and territories, while the need exists, upon compliance with these conditions: (a) A fair proportion of the total relief burden to be provided from revenues of states and local governments; (b) all engaged in relief administration to be selected on the basis of merit and fitness; (c) adequate provision to be made for the encouragement of those persons who are trying to become self-supporting.

3. Undertaking of federal public works only on their merits and separate from the administration of relief.

4. A prompt determination of the facts concerning relief and unemployment.

SECURITY

Real security will be possible only when our productive capacity is sufficient to furnish a decent standard of living for all American families and to provide a surplus for future needs and contingencies. For the attainment of that ultimate objective, we look to the energy, self-reliance and character of our people, and to our system of free enterprise.

Society has an obligation to promote the security of the people, by affording some measure of protection against involuntary unemployment and dependency in old age. The new deal policies, while purporting to provide social security, have, in fact, endangered it.

We propose a system of old-age security, based upon the following principles:

1. We approve a pay-as-you-go policy, which requires of each generation the support of the aged and the determination of what is just and adequate.

2. Every American citizen over 65 should receive the supplementary payment necessary to provide a minimum income sufficient to protect him or her from want.

3. Each state and territory, upon complying with simple and general minimum standards, should receive from the federal government a graduated contribution in proportion to its own, up to a fixed maximum.

4. To make this program consistent with sound fiscal policy the federal revenues for this purpose must be provided from the proceeds of a direct tax widely distributed. All will be benefited, and all should contribute.

We propose to encourage adoption by the states and terrotories of honest and practical measures for meeting the problems of unemployment insurance.

The unemployment insurance and old-age annuity sections of the present social security act are unworkable and deny benefits to about two-thirds of our adult population, including professional men and women and all those engaged in agriculture and domestic service and the self-employed, while imposing heavy tax burdens upon all. The so-called reserve fund estimated at $47,000,000,000 for old-age insurance is no reserve at all because the fund will contain nothing but the government's promise to pay, while the taxes collected in the guise of premiums will be wested by the government in reckless and extravagant political schemes.

LABOR—

The welfare of labor rests upon increased and the prevention of exploitation. We pledge ourselves to:

Protect the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference from any source.

Prevent governmental jobholders from exercising autocratic powers over labor.

Support the adoption of state laws and interstate compacts to abolish sweatshops and child labor and to protect women and children with respect to maximum hours, minimum wages and working conditions. We believe that this can be done within the constitution as it now stands.

TARIFF

Nearly 60 per cent of all imports into the United States are now free of duty. The other 40 per cent of imports compete directly with the product of our industry. We would keep on the free list all products not grown or produced in the United States in commercial quantities. As to all commodities that commercially compete with our farms, our forests, our mines, our fisheries, our oil wells, our labor and our industries, sufficient protection should be maintained at all times to defend the American farmer and the American wage-earner from the destructive competition amanating from the subsidies of foreign governments and the imports from low-wage and depreciated-currency countries.

CIVIL RIGHTS

We pledge ourselves to preserve, protect and defend, against all intimidation and threat, freedom of religion, speech, press and radio: and the right of assembly and petition and immunity from unreasonable searches and seizures.

COLORED CITIZENS

We favor equal opportunity for our colored citizens. We pledge our protection of their economic status and personal safety. We will do our best to further their employment in the gainfully occupied life of America, particularly in private industry, agriculture, emergency agencies and the civil service.

WOMEN IN GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT

We are opposed to legislation which discriminates against women in federal and state employment.

GREEN ASKS SOLIDARITY IN RANKS OF UNION LABOR

Washington, June 18.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reiterates appeals for solidarity in the ranks of organized labor, in an editorial in the American Federationist.

Warning against "disruption within the ranks of labor," Green said, "there was never a time when more special causes were bidding for labor support than now and never a time when unity was so indispensable to the welfare of labor."

Green pointed out that the whole spirit of the labor movement is that of group solidarity, and that loss of unity would deprive wage-earners of their collective economic strength.

Ladies' Garment Workers Join Union Label Trades Department

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has adopted a redesigned union label and has become affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. The label is printed on heavy linen or satin and bears the "white eagle" of their emblem. It is issued by the Ladies' Garment Workers' union and is now available on union-made cotton wash dresses. The Ladies' Garment Workers plan to extend its use to silk dresses, children's clothes and other women's apparel lines in a few months.

In connection with the new affiliate, Secretary Ornburn, of the Union Label Trades Department, issued the following statement:

"We are pleased to have the Ladies' Garment Workers' union in the Union Label Department. I believe that with the stimulus that has been given union label buying in the past year, and with the added momentum which has resulted from the organization of the American Federation of Women's Auxiliaries of Labor, the Ladies' Garment Workers will receive a greater demand for their union-made goods.

"It is encouraging to have the confidence of the labor unions that have adopted union labels and are affiliating with the Union Label Trades Department, and also to have the revived co-operation of the members of labor unions, the auxiliarized women's organizations, together with the members of their families and their friends. These great movements are creating a united force through collective bargaining that the chiselers can't stop."

TRIMMINGS

By HAM-BURGER

Well, not having much to write about we're filling out with a little poetry. Here goes:

When you have just been sentenced by a hard-boiled judge to twenty years or so for a job that was done by another mob and you wasn't in on the dough, and as you are leaving the court and telling your friends how they framed and left you flat, Now don't that make you sore as hell when they say, "Big boy, they can't do that."

They throw you in a dirty, filthy, lousy cell in the damned old county jail, and the lawyer guy comes and shakes you down for the last cent of your kale; They throw your furniture out in the street, and kick your girl out of the flat, and some fish-eyed boob you are celling with says, "Big boy, they can't do that."

When you have started your stretch in ———, with a number on your back and you jump and dodge at the yell of a screw, and walk the straight and narrow path; you kick because you get only slum and the cream goes to some rat and some louse with the brains of a mouse says, "Big boy, they can't do that."

When I have done my time on earth, and start my bit in hell, I hope they fry each and every guy who uttered that yell, and as they are standing there sizzling down to fat, I'll stand right there by the devil's side and say, "Big boy, they can't do that."

Local 600 and Organizer Ray Wolfington are still dickering with S. J. Edwards for a settlement and we hope they will soon have one. Meanwhile no pickets will be in front of stores until we are through with parleys.

* * *

E. R. Caniff—Say, Paul, my dog is sick; what is good for him?

Paul Sorrick—When my dog was sick I gave him one ounce of turpentine.

Two days later Paul and Caniff meet again.

Caniff—Hello, Paul, did you give your dog turpentine when he was sick?

Paul—Yes.

Caniff—I did, too, and it killed mine.

Paul—Killed mine, too.

I have been a member of Local 600 ever since they organized and I still can't understand why a union member does not take an interest in his organization and attend the meetings, knowing it is to his interest to do so.

* * *

Let's make next meeting night 100 per cent. present and show a little more interest in our organization.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Does the American Newspaper Guild favor a labor party?

A.—At the guild's recent national convention, a resolution was adopted supporting independent political action on the part of labor, in co-operation with farm groups.

Q.—Were stereotypers and electrotypers ever organized under the International Typographical union?

A.—Yes. The I. T. U. relinquished jurisdiction over them in 1902 and they formed the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union of North America.

TOBACCO HEAD DREW HUGE SALARY WORKER LUCKY TO MAKE $2 DAILY

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—In the latest batch of corporation salaries released for publication by the SEC occurs the name of George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacco company. Mr. Hill, in 1935, drew a salary of $212,199; or about $700 for every working day in the year. This is one of the so-called Big Four union hating companies which make non-union cigarettes.

This is nearly three times the salary of the president of the United States. But, if past history is any indicator of present performance, that sum is the smaller part of Mr. Hill's takings during the year.

In 1930, for example, Mr. Hill was receiving as salary only a paltry $168,000. But in addition to this, he got a cash bonus which brought his "earnings" up to a total of $1,010,000 for that year. Also, he got a special credit, whatever that may mean, of $273,470. Add these items together, and you will see that Mr. Hill got from the company of which he is president the tidy sum of $1,283,470 in the depression year of 1930.

Please note that in 1930, Mr. Hill's total income from his company was more than seven times his salary. If his cash hand had not lost its cunning—and there is no sign of such a happening, he would have raked in a total of about $1,500,000 in the year 1935. Even a Big Four tobacco magnate could manage to live on such a sum.

Workers Got Miserable Wage.

But while Mr. Hill was getting $700 a day—in salary alone, large numbers of workers in the plants at the American Tobacco company thought themselves lucky to get $2 a day. The Monthly Labor Review of October, 1934, gives some figures of the wages of stemmers, that is, those who "stem" the tobacco, separating the leaves from the stem. Most of this work is done by hand; but machines are used in many factories. Of the wages of machine stemmers, the Labor Review says:

"None of them earned a weekly wage as high as $14."

The report says further that 71 per cent of the machine stemmers got less than $10 a week, and that 65 per cent of the hand stemmers got less than $12 a week.

Weekly Pay of $3.60 Found.

The women's bureau of the department of labor found stemmers working 28 hours a week for $3.60. This, it may be said, is part time—but the stemmers seldom work anything like part time; and their work lasts but a few months at best.

The WERA, probing the condition of tobacco workers in Virginia and North Carolina, said:

"Nearly half of them were receiving relief at the same time they were receiving wages.

"Perhaps the most striking fact disclosed was that the average weekly income from earnings for the families in the sample studied was $3.02. For households containing only one wage-earner, the average was only $2.35; and for households with two or more workers, the average was $4.97."

The average annual wage in the parts of the tobacco industry is given by the FERA at $144.

Mr. Hill's salary alone is equal to the earnings of 1,470 such tobacco workers as the FERA interviewed.

It was visitors' day at school and the pupils were studying physiology. The teacher, having asked them to state the number of bones in the body, to name the various organs and state the special work of each, at last asked:

Teacher—Now who can tell me what happens in the stomach?

This had the class thinking for a moment. Then up went Norman's hand eagerly, very pleased that he knew the answer:

Teacher—All right, Norman, tell us what takes place in the stomach.

Norman—Stomach ache!

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Miss Edna Brown, of Local 2345, Textile Workers, and Miss Lena Edmonds, of Branch 53, Hosiery Workers, left Thursday to attend the Southern Summer School for Women Workers in Industry at Brevard, N. C. Miss Ina Green, of Textile Local 1785, will join them Saturday and these three Chattanooga girls will take a six weeks' training course. Here's hoping they have a pleasant and profitable summer.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, by Brownie.

Mr. J. G. Burkes says that when he lived in Texas he had three neighbors whose names were Messrs. Snow, Rains and Hale.

HOWEVER, Brother Burkes should be allowed a little leeway these days, because he has a brand new title. He's "grandpappy" Burkes now and admits that although he has seen many babies, his new grandson takes all the prizes.

IF YOU wake up some of these mornings with "that tired feeling" and it's a hot day and you just know you'll never get to work on time—just start the day off right by riding to work in a cab. But—be sure the taxi-driver is wearing a RED button during the month of July. That means that he is a member in good standing in Local 594.

WHAT would you think of when you first "came to" after having been shot? Well, Joe Dobbs looked up as they were wheeling him along on the stretcher and told one of the boys to look in his pocket and get a dollar to take back to one of the strikers to get her shoes fixed. She had worn the heels off and Joe had promised to get them mended—he kept his word.

AND so, dear reader, with a loud "hurrah for the Fourth of July" and a reminder that if you look for the name Carter on any candy you buy you will know that it is union-made, I remain—with lotions of labels—your Labor World correspondent.

LUGGAGE MAKERS STRIKE.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Nearly one hundred employes of the Samuel Brier company, luggage manufacturers here, were called out on strike by Local 52, Suitcase, Bag and Portfolio Makers' union. The strikers demanded wage increases, shorter hours, union recognition and the closed shop, spokesmen for the union said. Employes of the company's plant at Quakertown, Pa., are also on strike.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

from interference from any source."

Labor Hits Statement.

Chairman of the organizing committee, Philip Murray, made a devastating comment on the statement.

"It becomes apparent who dictated the so-called labor plank of the republican platform," said Murray, "Just compare the wording of the statement of the institute with that in the G. O. P. platform."

The plank to which Mr. Murray refers pledges the republican party to "protect the right of labor to bargain collectively . . . without interference from any source."

The Steel institute promises that the industry will aid its employes "in maintaining collective bargaining free from interference from any source."

Steel Leads in Spying.

As to the steel industry's claim that no man has to join any organization to get or hold a job, people acquainted with steel's record merely laugh. Steel, according to hundreds of pages of sworn testimony, has led all other industries in industrial spying. Labor leaders point especially to the fact that the NLRB found the Jones & Laughlin company guilty of absolute terrorism. They quote from the board's findings of fact on the discharge of eleven men for union activities:

"In nearly every case, the pattern is the same. The victim is an old employe—the least length of service seems to have been six years, the longest 26 years. During his entire employment, he has served to the apparent satisfaction of the company. Then suddenly, he is discharged for a routine fault or omission. Razzano, for eight years a top-notch tractor driver, is discharged for leaving open a door. Dunn, for fifteen years a crane operator, is discharged for leaving a key on a bench . . . We find that the respondent has discriminated with respect to hire and tenure of employment . . . for the purpose of discouraging membership in the union."

Incidentally, word comes to labor circles here that Jones & Laughlin are discharging masses of men at Aliquippa, Pa.

Officials Didn't Suffer.

As for the steel industry losing money during the depression, labor answers that steel workers lost far more; and that all through the depression, the industry paid excessive sums to its officials.

The head of the Iron and Steel Institute is Eugene G. Grace, who, early in the recovery from the depression of 1921, strongly urged a congressional committee to permit the importation of men from abroad to work in the steel mills. Mr. Grace's pay record before and during the depression is as follows:

1928, salary, $12,000; bonus, $831,-445.

1929, salary, $12,000; bonus, $1,-623,753.

1930, salary, $12,000; bonus, $1,-015,591.

1931, salary, $101,001; bonus, $186,-795.

1932, salary, $150,000; no bonus.

Grace Looked Out for Self.

In 1931, according to the reports of the company, Bethlehem Steel had net profits of $115,745; and in 1932, it had a net loss of $19,404,431. Therefore, in 1931, Mr. Grace took all the company's net profits to himself, and $72,051 besides; and in 1932, Mr. Grace did without a bonus, but raised his own salary to $150,000 while the company was losing more than $19,-000,000.

The same story is told on a smaller scale by the figures from Jones & Laughlin and Republic Steel.

Jones & Laughlin in 1931, when the company went into the red $2,283,459, paid its president, George G. Crawford, salary and bonus to the amount of $238,889, and paid salaries and bonuses to a small handful of officers totaling for the year $672,221. The next year, 1932, Crawford boosted his takings until his salary and bonus came to $247,223. Other officers were pared down till the total payments to them totaled only $585,575 for the year; while the company lost $7,910,-149.

Bills Jump Under Merger.

Republic Steel corporation consists of five steel companies put together in the early spring of 1930. These companies had official salary and bonus lists for 1928 of $767,371, and for 1929 of $1,195,000. But under the merger, the salary and bonus bill for 1930 climbed to $1,280,218, while the company went into the red for $3,522,000.

Union Dairy Workers Get Splendid Results From Labor's Radio

The latter part of February, 1936, Mr. Frank J. Gillespie, of the Dairy Employes' Union, came to Mr. McAssey, advertising manager of WCFL, to see if WCFL could work out a program to help the union dairy employees. These men work on the inside of the dairies, pasteurizing the milk, bottling it, etc.

Mr. McAssey called Mr. R. Calvert Haws, program director of WCFL, and after several discussions it was pointed out that while the housewife was the purchaser of the milk, the child was to a great extent the consumer, and that if you could reach the child in such a way as to increase consumption of milk, the objective of the campaign would be accomplished.

This program was designed to do two things: First, to increase the consumption of milk and thereby increase the number of Dairy Employes, and second, to induce dairies who did not employ union labor, or only employed them in part, to employ union men. The Milk Drivers' Union cooperated, and on March 16, 1936, the first program went on the air. The program theme was the story of Buffalo Bill's early childhood in the west, and the theme of the copy was "Drink Milk Purchased From Your Union Milk Driver." The program was entitled "Pioneer's Trading Post," and the "Pioneer's Trading Post Club" was formed—one of the requisites for membership being that the application was signed by a union milk driver, and a contest was started.

The results that the union received through their broadcasts over WCFL are almost phenomenal. Over 20,000 members joined the "Pioneer's Trading Post Club," and at the end of ten weeks thirty-two dairies had voluntarily signed up with the union for the employment of their union members to work in their plants, and although there had been other milk programs on the air without any perceeptible increase in the sale of milk, today the sale of milk in Chicago has increased 25 per cent. over what it was before the program started, and whereas only 80 per cent. of the milk formerly sold was handled by union employes, today 92 per cent. is handled.

When the program started there were only 1,500 members of the union employed. There are now, at the end of May, over 2,200, an increase of 700 union men put back to work. The presentation of the program has been given very careful attention. One of the features is a Pioneer's pledge, which is repeated at the end of each broadcast:

"We are Pioneers along the pathway to good health;
We drink milk each day, for that is the way to happiness, long life and wealth."

The production of the program has been under the personal direction of R. Calvert Haws, program director of WCFL.

Brown (who got a job as commercial traveler)—Since I started this traveling business I am my own boss.

Man—That's good.

Brown—Yes, I'm not taking orders from anybody.

United States should recommend him not only to members of organized labor but to everyone who believes in a square deal.

"'This committee indorses him and his record without any reservations whatsoever, and we urge all members of organized labor in Tennessee, regardless of their political affiliations, to work and vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt for re-election as president of the United States.'

"In the election for governor of Tennessee there are three candidates seeking election in the democratic primary: The Hon. Gordon Browning, of Huntington; the Hon. Burgin Dossett, of Jacksboro, and the Hon. C. W. Wright, of Oneida. It appears that the race lies between Mr. Browning and Mr. Dossett.

"Mr. Browning and Mr. Dossett appeared today before the committee and made statements relative to their views on matters concerning legislation for labor.

"The only practical difference in the views expressed by the two candidates was their attitudes on the child labor amendment.

"Mr. Browning expressed himself as being unalterably opposed to the ratification of the child labor amendment, and Mr. Dossett stated that he was in favor of the ratification of the amendment.

"Due to the fact that organized labor throughout the state and nation has always been in favor of the ratification of the child labor amendment, this committee feels that in view of the attitudes of these two candidates on this vital question relating to the social and economic welfare of the children of common people of this country, that Mr. Dossett is entitled to the vote of the laboring people of this state.

"Therefore, we, the non-partisan committee of organized labor of Tennessee, indorse the candidacy of Burgin Dossett and urge his election.'

"We urge that Mr. Harvey Hannah be defeated for election to commissioner of railroads and public utilities and that Mr. Leon Jouroloman, of Knoxville, be elected.

"In the race for congressman for the Fifth district we indorse Mr. J. Carlton Loser. He is a proven member of organized labor and is fully competent. We urge members of organized labor to make an active campaign in behalf of Mr. Loser.

"Other candidates for congress, having no formidable opposition in their party primaries, within the knowledge of this committee, their records being reasonably satisfactory, we approve their candidacy, subject to indorsement by the national legislative representatives.

Leisure: Leisure is time not devoted to labor on the part of one who has work. One who does not have work can have no leisure. He is idle, and idleness is not leisure.

The two words are in no degree synonymous. Idleness is the hardest kind of work. Millions will testify to that fact—unproductive work that is destructive to morale.

Leisure may be a blessing or a curse—idleness is generally a curse.

Chattanooga "Students" At Labor School Tell Of First Impressions

Letter from Miss Ina Greene Promises to Tell Us All About Their Six-Weeks' Course.

A letter from Miss Ina Greene today indicates that the labor school at Camp Illahee is to be very successful. Chattanooga unionists and friends sponsored three local young ladies, who are Misses Greene, Lena Edmons and Edna Brown.

Miss Green says:

"Camp Illahee (pronounced Il-la-hee) is situated about fifty miles from the beautiful city of Asheville, and about two miles from Brevard, N. C.

"The camp opened its tenth consecutive season July 2, with Louise Leonard McLaren, former member of the national Y. W. C .A. staff, director.

"About thirty girls, representing eight southern states, comprise the members at Camp Illahee. Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Maryland are the states represented. Only southern girls are allowed to attend this camp.

"In the six weeks the girls can study English, economics, dramatics, current events and health. For recreations there is swimming, boating, volley ball and hiking.

"During the day everyone is required to rest at least one hour. A busy day closes with a delicious dinner and thirty minutes of singing. Such is a day at Camp Illahee."

Typographical Union Expresses Sorrow in Death of Brotther

Untimely Passing of Employe of Free Press Printer Casts Shadow on All.

Members of Typographical union were shocked to learn that Gary Bennett, employed in the Free Press composing room, was stricken by death on Monday, June 29. Although a very young man, Mr. Bennett's illness was of short duration, and none believed that it was of such serious nature.

Mr. Bennett was well liked by all who had occasion to know him, being of a quiet disposition and an excellent printer. He is survived by his widow and two children.

In its regular session last Sunday, Typographical Union No. 89 spread on its minutes the following resolution:

"Whereas, Almighty God has seen fit to cut short in the flower of his life one of our members, Gary Bennett; and,

"Whereas, Brother Bennett had such fine qualities as a man, husband, father and craftsman that all learned to love and respect him; and,

"Whereas, in his passing our union has suffered a distinct loss; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by Typographical Union No. 90, That we express our grief over our loss, and convey to his bereaved family our sincere sorrow with them; and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be spread on our miutes, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy be published in The Labor World.

SPECIAL CALLED MEETING OF CENTRAL LABOR UNION SHOWS BENN-HUBB SENTIMENT FIRM

Practically Every Delegate Present Monday When Serious Nature of Candy Strike Is Discussed and Future Plans Are Laid.

Committee of Over One Hundred Visits City Commission Tuesday to Ask Relief From Police Strikebreaking Activities—City Dads to Attempt to Mediate — Typographical and Machinist Unions First to Offer Treasury to Strikers.

The Bennett-Hubbard Candy company strike is about to enter into its fifth week, finding every one of the striking employes standing pat, none of them indicating a desire to show a weak streak. In fact, the entrance of Central Body as an aroused factor has resulted from the intense loyalty shown by the candy workers and the unfair treatment that has been given on the part of the police heads. A special meeting was called by the executive board of Central Body last Monday when they realized that the situation was becoming so tense that it was really dangerous.

Anger on the part of the labor movement has been stirred to a white heat when it became known that in one instance a scab was escorted into the plant after being brought there in the patrol wagon. The commissioner of police denied knowledge of such action, but plenty of witnesses swear it did happen. Another objection voiced was the fact that police were being used for intimidation purposes. They have been swarming all over the place, forming lanes through which scabs are herded and strikers refused a chance to talk to them to persuade them not to go to work.

In addition it was related that scabs were escorted to and from their homes by squad cars.

It was also told that the management of the plant had so far refused to meet with anyone to discuss possible peace terms.

As a result of the special meeting a committee of more than one hundred was instructed to call on the city commission the next day and ask for relief. At the meeting next day the city dads were told what was happening. As a result they offered their services as mediators to attempt to get both sides together and talk it over.

A meeting was held Wednesday with Attorney Jack Chambliss for the company and the board of commissioners. Press reports say that another meeting has been set for Thursday, in which a committee from the strikers and Central Body will take part, with the purpose in mind of trying to get together.

Another indication of the wholehearted support that has been pledged by various locals has been the offer of financial aid by Machinist Lodge 1450 and Typographical union. Representatives of other locals stated that the strikers will be given ample financial assistance from their unions as long as necessary.

During the week the non-unionist in the boiler room pulled a gun on a striker without provocation, and a warrant was sworn out for the scab immediately. Another incident to show that strikers are not entirely guilty of violence was when the plant superintendent was arrested on a warrant for knocking down a picket without cause.

During the past several days the police lines have been reduced to two or three policemen, and as a result there has been no disorder provoked on the part of pickets.

Application for an injunction has been filed in chancery court which will be heard July 17. The injunction, if granted, would prohibit picketing within 200 feet of the plant.

Machinists Win Spectacular Strike After Disarming Professional Gunmen

Kent, Ohio, Settlement Calls for Wage Increase, 40-Hour Week and Union Recognition; Leaders Jubilant

Kent, Ohio.—Striking machinists at the Black & Decker plant have won their battle and have returned to work with a 5 per cent wage increase, the undisputed right of collective bargaining and other concessions.

The settlement is a big victory for the Machinists' union and brings an end to the most spectacular labor controversy in the history of this city.

Two weeks ago today forty-six professional gunmen imported from a Cleveland strikebreaking agency precipitated a 12-hour pitched battle at the plant when they, without provocation, attacked strike pickets.

The strikers fought back and, in the face of a rain of buckshot and gas grenades, wrested guns from the strikebreakers and drove them into the factory. Late that evening the strikers aided police in removing the gunmen to the city jail and some of them to a hospital. The strikebreakers have been held for the grand jury under a total of $69,000 bail.

Announcement of the settlement was made by William Crayford, president of Local No. 1203, International Association of Machinists. The strike involved 450 men and women.

In addition to the wage increase, the settlement provides for the 40-hour week, an upward adjustment of lower pay rates, the recognition of the Machinists' organization as the "sole collective bargaining agency," and the complete elimination of the Black & Decker "company union."

"We consider it a big victory," said Charles Gadd, Machinists' union business agent for Akron, Kent and other cities in this locality. The strikers won practically everything they had asked for. With such sources of discontent as the 'company union' removed, we believe there will be no further trouble in the plant."

Meatcutter "Victim" Defends Self in Joke Against Him Last Week

In last week's Labor World the correspondent from Meatcutters' Local 600 made E. R. Caniff the victim of a joke in which he accused Brother Caniff of advising a friend to treat his sick dog with turpentine. Brother Caniff neglected to mention (so the story went) that he tried the same dose on his own dog, who died from the treatment.

This week Brother Caniff sends a letter to The Labor World, which says: "In the first place, my dog is only a little bit of a dog. In the second place, my little dog wasn't sick. In the third place, I wouldn't give my little dog such a big swig anyhow! In the fourth place, I never knew Paul Sorick even as much as owned a dog. And in the fifth place, my wife wouldn't allow me to own a dog in the first place."

Well, it seems that Brother Caniff has the last laugh so far. Go to it, you fellows, and get this thing settled.

Sourdough—I warned Billy that that girl would play the deuce if he married her.

Sourdough — Yes. Haven't you heard? They've got twins.

Local Unionists Plan Big Rally to Honor Visit by John Peel

Textile Unions and Other Trade Unionists to Meet at Warner Park Saturday Evening.

C. D. Puckett, local representative for United Textile Workers of America, has announced that Third Vice-President John Peel, well known here, will be in Chattanooga during the week-end.

Mr. Puckett has requested all textile workers and other trades unionists to come to Warner park Saturday evening at 7:30 to listen to Brother Peel, who will have an important message to give to local unionists.

A sound truck has been secured so that all may hear him. Several union families have already expressed plans to spend the afternoon and evening under the cool trees of Warner park, bringing picnic lunches with them.

JOUROLMON SAYS UTILITIES OWN HARVEY HANNAH

Quotes Letter Written by Present Railroad and Utilities Commissioner.

Jourolmon Has Been Indorsed by Organized Labor's Non-Partisan Committee.

LEON JOUROLMON

Leon Jourolmon, Knoxville, candidate for the democratic nomination for state utilities commissioner, injected into the campaign today the charge that his opponent, General Harvey H. Hannah, has indorsed a power trust magazine.

Mr. Jourolmon says that General Hannah has allowed Public Utilities Fortnightly, a power industry publication, to use a letter of testimonial signed by Hannah in its advertising. The Knoxville candidates quotes directly from General Hannah's indorsement.

Mr. Jourolmon gives a list of thirteen large utility holding companies which have acted as financial guarantors for the Fortnightly. He got his information, he says, from the files of the federal trade commission.

He cites a statement made in 1932 by Paul A. Walker, now a member of the federal communications commission, that the magazine spreads vicious propaganda, and points to recent attacks by the Fortnightly on the T. V. A.

Mr. Jourolmon's statement follows:

"The democratic voters of Tennessee are entitled to know that General Harvey H. Hannah, chairman of the state utilities commission and candidate for the democratic renomination on Aug. 6, for that post, indorsed a power trust magazine during his past term in office. That magazine is Public Utilities Fortnightly.

"The Fortnightly is a semi-monthly publication and one of the most effective propaganda organs of the power trust. William Randolph Hearst has found the magazine an arsenal of ammunition in his ceaseless warfare against Roosevelt and the new deal.

"The magazine has been a bitter foe of the T. V. A. Since March, 1933, no less than eleven violent attacks against the T. V .A. and numerous veiled criticism of the authority have appeared in its pages. The latest July issue of the Fortnightly carries a broadside against the T. V. A. by the president of the Tennessee Electric Power company.

Congress Has Good Record in Field of Labor Legislation

Strikebreakers' Transport Banned; Standards Set for U. S. Contracts

Other Bills Passed Apply Railway Labor Act to Air Service Workers, Fix 8-Hour Day in Merchant Marine, Extend Federal Housing Administration—Two Important Bills Beaten.

Washington.—Labor fared well in the last congress; better, indeed, than for a time seemed possible. Two acts dealing directly with labor were passed; two other acts have important labor provisions, and several more laws enacted at the last congress are of decided interest to workers.

At the head of the list may be put the strikebreaker act; making it a felony knowingly to transport in interstate or foreign commerce:

"Any person with intent to employ such person to obstruct or interfere, in any manner, with the right of peaceful picketing during any labor controversy affecting wages, hours or conditions of labor, or the right of organization for the purpose of collective bargaining."

Stil Penalties For Violating Law

Violations of this act carry fines up to $5,000, imprisonment up to two years, or both. It stops the procedure which has been more effective in breaking strikes than anything but the now dead and damned labor injunction; the importation from distant points of professional strikebreakers, usually drawn from at least the borders of the under world. Ten strikers were murdered by these gorillas in the great textile strike; and they have left a trail of brutality and blood in almost every large industrial district.

With this law enforced, Pearl Bergoff's occupation is gone; and the United States takes a long step from the bad eminence of being the only civilized country which tolerates the existence of private armies.

Good Standards Fixed for U. S. Work

Cutting less deeply at intolerable abuses but even more important in a financial sense than the strikebreaker act is the Walsh-Healy act controlling government contracts. In a nutshell, it brings back NRA codes so far as much work on government contracts is concerned.

> To get any public contract in excess of $10,000 under the new law, the contractor must be a regular dealer in the materials for which he is contracting, must pay not less than the prevailing wage, must work his employes not more than eight hours a day or 40 hours a week, must employ no males under 16 or females under 18 years of age, and must not do the work in any plant with unsanitary or unduly hazardous conditions.

Penalties are provided for violations of these conditions—not the least being a clause barring an employer convicted on any of these counts from bidding on other government contracts for three years. The department of labor is made the agency for administering this act, and is given powers to enforce it.

The bill does not apply to goods bought in the open market, which limits its effectiveness, as contractors doing business with the government can buy goods produced under low labor standards, as long as they themselves observe the standards. But the act establishes the principle of good labor standards for purchases by the government and so has labor approval.

Air Workers Put Under R. R. Labor Act.

Perhaps next in importance should be placed the air transport labor act. This applies the entire railway labor act to common carriers by air and their employes, except Section 3. It extends the jurisdiction of the national mediation board to all disputes between air carriers and their employes concerning changes in rates of pay, rules and working conditions.

Section 3 of the railway labor act provides for national adjustment boards at which railroad management and men undertake to settle disputes before passing them on to the mediation board. This section was not taken over by the air labor act; but provision was made that whenever the national mediation board became of the opinion that an air adjustment board was necessary, one should be established on the lines of the railroad adjustment board.

CONFERENCE TO MEET SUNDAY TO DECIDE POLICY

Representattives from Most Local Unions in Hamilton County May Form Ticket.

CANDIDATES' PLATFORMS CLOSELY SCRUTINIZED

Success of Political Conference in Last Primaries Indicate It Will Be Powerful Factor in August 6 Races—County Court and Legislative Posts Most Exciting.

A general meeting of Labor's Political Conference has been set for Sunday, July 21, at the labor hall. Time of meeting is 2 o'clock. The conference is composed of two delegates from nearly all local unions in Hamilton county, and is voluntary on the part of those unions. In participating in that organization such local unions, including the Central Labor union, has pledged to follow the findings of the conference at election time.

Indications of the success of such a policy has been demonstrated when the candidates backed by it in the recent primary went over the top in the first district where the labor vote is heavy.

For the past four weeks the central committee of the conference has been studying the platforms of all announced candidates, and the meeting Sunday will receive the findings of the steering committee. After considering their reports, it is believed that the conference will vote on a definite policy to pursue.

Conforming with the constitution of the conference, every local union has been notified that such action will be taken, and because of this, the different membership desires will be represented.

One of the most important races in the state politics is that for the railroad and public utilities commission. In the past, because of the "stacked deck" which voters have had to play with this post has not been seriously fought for by members of organized labor.

This year, however, it might be different. The incumbent, who is running for re-election, is Mr. Harvey Hannah. Opposing him is Mr. Leon Jourolmon, of Knoxville. One other is in the race, Mr. John Todd, but since he is generally considered as a stalking horse for Mr. Hannah, he is not to be seriously considered as a candidate.

Labor should defeat Mr. Hannah. He ought to be retired from his arduous duties of protecting the interests of the utilities and the railroads. He has certainly not distinguished himself fighting for the common folks.

The state non-partisan political committee, representing all organized labor in Tennessee, has indorsed Mr. Jourolmon. We believe that he will be much better in that office than Mr. Hannah has ever been, looking at it from the viewpoint of all citizens of Tennessee.

Let Tennessee labor go down to the polls on Aug. 6 and elect Mr. Jourolman.

Why Not Have a Mediation Board?

People who have studied labor disputes from an angle of public welfare are showing quite a bit of interest in a plan that is in operation in Toledo which has indicated great success.

In Toledo, Ohio, there is a standing board of mediation. Five members are named by labor. Five are named by the manufacturers. The rest are selected from people at large who are neither manufacturers nor trade-unionists, but who are civic-minded and who are chosen by the first ten named. This board is for mediation purposes only. Whenever a labor dispute crops up and neither side can seem to get together, and when serious consequences are probable, this board is called in to hear both sides of the dispute.

Through this board, which is large enough to contain all sides of public interest, it is almost impossible for a group of irreconciliable and unreasonable interests to successfully buck public opinion.

Since the manufacturers and labor unions both exercise the right to name for themselves their representatives on this board, there is a feeling that fair play can exist. Any other set-up of similar boards that do not provide for appointment of mediators by the groups involved will always be unsuccessful.

Labor never has refused to co-operate with mediation. If this plan is successful in Toledo there is no reason to suppose that it cannot be made to work in Chattanooga.

New Hospital at Last?

We were greatly cheered this week when the press reported that the Catholics of this community are making an effort to build and maintain a hospital under their supervision. Chattanooga needs an adequate hospital. Every time the prospect seems brighter to secure a city-county hospital, some political angle has bobbed up, and it all went for naught.

Practically all Catholic-operated hospitals in other cities, so we are informed, are supervised by the Catholic sisters. From personal experience with St. Thomas in Nashville, and from reports from other sources, it seems that the sisters really know hospital work.

All co-operation should be extended the Catholic societies who are endeavoring to give this community a much needed facility.

STEMMERS' WRETCHED HOUSING BLASTING INDICTMENT OF BIG TOBACCO CO.'S SOCIAL OUTLOOK

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Housing is one of the new deal reforms which has not gotten very far as yet, but which simply will not down. Secretary Ickes the other day declared that the provision of decent housing for poorly paid workers is a national responsibility. England built herself out of the depression when constructing housing, partly by government act, more by private enterprise trying to meet and beat the government in appealing for buyers and tenants. Some day, perhaps, we shall kick landlords out of the way as ruthlessly as England does, and go ahead with the national program which Ickes suggests.

For the present, however, housing is largely a resultant, as scientists say, of wages. Good wages mean fair to good housing—the landlord comes in to keep the correspondence from being complete. Bad wages mean bad housing.

The worst housing I ever saw in any large quantity was that in the tobacco town of Winston-Salem, North Carolina; the housing in which the stemmers who worked in the Reynolds tobacco plant were living. Practically all stemmers are negroes; and there are blocks on blocks of houses which have negro stemmers for tenants.

Houses of One Pattern.

These houses are mostly built on one pattern. A building 24 to 26 feet long, as nearly as I could space it, from 14 to 20 or sometimes 24 feet wide and a scant story and a half in height, was expected to house two families. The upright part of the house, the part rising above one story, is 14 to 16 feet wide, usually 14; sometimes there is a shed-roofed leanto of varying width; sometimes not. In either case, the house is divided by a partition in the center from front to back; and each side houses a family.

All these houses are wood. None of them that I saw ever had been painted recently enough for any vestige of paint to show. None of them had basements. All were built on brick piers or wooden posts, with no enclosing walls or even lattice—the wind had a free sweep under the ground floor. None of them had water—an outdoor hydrant in one place sereved seven families. None of them, of course, had any toilet facilities—that seven-family outdoor hydrant was perhaps ten feet from an outdoor toilet which had quite as large a patronage as the water supply. None of them had furnaces; a single stove on the ground floor did duty for cooking and for what passed for heating. None that I entered had electricity.

Hovels in Bad Repair.

Practically every house where the stemmers live was in bad repair. My friend, a union organizer of the town and myself, stood in the street before one house and literally looked through it to the open air on the other side. Pieces of the boarding were off; by the broken ends they had been off more than a year, with no repairs. Every stemmer's house but one that I entered had cracks that would take a rat at a gallop. Sometimes, usually, in fact, these were stuffed with rags or paper.

And these wretched sheds housed four, five, six, even ten, apiece.

To make matters worse, these hovels were in sharp contrast with the buildings which the Reynolds magnates erected for themselves.

A short distance away rose the beautiful campanile tower of the Reynolds building. I forget its exact height, but it is taller than its original in Venice. It is almost as ornate as it is tall; it probably cost enough to furnish decent housing for several hundred families. The magnates of the Reynolds company have extensive country estates. S. Clay Williams lives—when at home—in a dwelling which was described to me as a "palace."

Stemmer's Pay Fits Houses.

Bowman Gray, for some years president of the Reynolds Tobacco company, has what is often described as the "most magnificent country house in America." I cannot speak on this point with direct knowledge. The dwelling, whatever its magnificence, is far back from the road, half hidden in trees, and surrounded not only by a high fence but by guards; and no one in Winston-Salem would take a photograph for me.

And stemmers' wages? They fit the stemmers' houses.

In the cigarette industry, according to the bulletin of the women's bureau of the department of labor, stemmers who worked full time had a "median" wage of $9.55 a week. The median wage is the wage in the exact middle of the group, with as many getting less as get more.

In chewing tobacco plants, stemmers who worked full time had a median wage of $8.80 a week. In dealers' plants, the median was $6.55 a week.

Part-time Work Rife.

But, taking the year through, very few stemmers work full time; and the short-hour workers were making from $3.60 to $4.55 a week. Small wonder that the investigators of the women's bureau found large numbers of families on relief and on stemming jobs at the same time. The report of the bureau says:

"Labor cost is comparatively such a small part of total production costs that the wage levels could be raised without any appreciable difference to the industry. In one plant, the average weekly wage was $10.82 per person for the unit of over 2,000 employes engaged in the preparation of tobacco leaf; that is, in stripping, inside trucking, blending, stemming, picking, searching, sweeping, and so forth.

"During the week, this stemmery produced something over 3,000,000 pounds of strips, or enough tobacco for a billion cigarettes. The cost of these operations was less than a penny a pound of prepared tobacco, or less than one mill per package of 20 cigarettes."

Huge Dividends Paid.

I have deliberately kept to the last the crowning infamy of the Big Four in general and of the Reynolds company in particular the matter of stemmers' wages. That is the fact that the Reynolds Tobacco company, whose workers live in hovels and get wages so small that they are supported in part by public relief, pays $30,000,000 a year in dividends on stock much of which does not represent a dollar of original investment. Those who smoke union made cigarettes strike effectively at these amazing injustices.

Remember the old-fashioned vice-president whose only demand was for a good 5-cent cigar? Well, the incumbent has succeeded in getting $65,000 of relief funds to restock fishing streams near his home.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

THE "NEW" SALARY SCHEDULE

The scale of salaries suggested by the county superintendent in his recommendations to the county court is a complete reversal of his previously expressed position on the salary issue. Shortly after the salary law was declared unconstitutional Mr. Rankin, in a statement to the News, said he favored the provisions of the salary law and felt that the board of education should use these provisions as the basis for its scale. The scale he proposed last Monday, however, is different in every detail from the provisions of the salary law. Under Mr. Rankin's scale no allowance is made for past experience, and many teachers would get no raise for two or three years under its provisions. About the only thing we can say in favor of the "new" scale is that it would only increase the school budget $21,000, while a decent salary scale would cost considerably more.

Let us continue to insist that the salary law be used as the basis for any scale adopted by the board. We can get a decent scale put into operation if we will only stick by our guns. We have started a public sentiment in favor of adequate pay for teachers and we should utilize it to carry our fight through to a successful conclusion. And besides our support with the general public we have stronger and more intimate allies in our fellow trade unionists and in Labor's Political Conference.

L. P. C .MEETS SUNDAY

Next Sunday afternoon Labor's Political Conference meets to hear the report of the committee of seven on the records and attitudes of the various candidates. Out of this meeting should develop some information that will enable teachers to vote with intelligent regard for the interest of the schools. In order to make the L. P. C. 100 per cent effective we must act solidly on its recommendations. Let's put aside individual differences and say "All for one, and one for all."

STATE TENURE SUPPORTER

Among other progressive planks in his announcement as candidate for the state legislature Attorney H. G. B. King advocates a statewide tenure law. The teachers appreciate Mr. Kings support in the campaign for statewide tenure, and we sincerely hope that Labor's Political Conference will instruct us to give him our vote and influence.

portance. Briefly, these sections provide:

That 75 per cent of the crews of American ships must be American citizens.

That eight hours constitutes a working day at sea as on land. This reduces the hours of coal passers and sailors.

The old shipping board is abolished and a maritime commission given charge of all merchant marine affairs of the United States.

The federal housing act is extended for a year; and that act is a means of employment to a large number of workers.

Two Important Labor Bills Die

Another act of great interest to labor which passed is the deficiency-relief measure, appropriating $1,425,000,000 for relief. The act directs that rates of pay for persons engaged on projects under this relief appropriation shall not be less than the prevailing rates of pay for work of a similar nature as "determined by the works progress administration with the approval of the president."

Two important bills vigorously supported by labor met defeat in the closing hours. They were the Wagner housing bill and the Guffey coal stabilization bill. The Wagner housing measure passed the senate but did not come before the house. The Guffey coal bill was approved in the house but filibustered to death in the senate, with Senator Holt, of West Virginia, taking the lead in the killing. He was assisted by Senators Frazier and Borah.

Unfair Lobby Bill Is Defeated.

The Wagner and Guffey bills will come before the next session of congress and labor will continue its fight to pass them.

One of labor's outstanding achievements during the session was the defeat of the lobby bill, which was amended in conference to exempt lobbyists of such organizations as the National Association of Manufacturers and include in its restrictions representatives of many labor organizations. The measure would have severely hampered the legislative work of labor. It is seldom that a bill is defeated after being approved in conference and the killing of the measure was seen as an indication of labor's strength.

General Hannah's Indorsement.

"During 1932 the Fortnightly used a number of indorsements in its advertising, including the following written testimonial from General Harry H. Hannah, chairman of the Tennessee utilities commission:

"'I congratulate the publishers of Public Utilities Fortnightly upon the high standard of accuracy and use their selection of the most important material from the broad field of regulation for publication. I commend Public Utilities Fortnightly as one of the most potent factors in bringing the states elbow to elbow in the great work of regulation and also in promoting our National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners a more potential power.'

"While General Hannah was recommending this magazine, another commissioner from Oklahoma was expressing a different view. In 1932 at the Hot Springs annual convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, Mr. R. A. Walker, then a member of the Oklahoma corporation commission and now a Roosevelt appointee on the federal communications commission, expressed the following opinion of Fortnightly, according to the minutes of the convention:

Mr. Walker's View.

"'Now the Public Utilities Fortnightly in my opinion is absolutely inimical to the true policy of utility regulation. It spreads propaganda which in my opinion is almost, if not altogether, vicious. . . . Our corporation commission was created at a time when there was great agitation against public utilities and their practices, and it was created for the protection of the public. That is the theory our people have about it, and that is the theory I have about it.'

"Mr. Walker, not General Hannah, exactly expresses my sentiment. And I think that will be the sentiment of the people of Tennessee when they go to the polls next month to vote for utilities commissioner.

lectric Water Heater
The Tennessee Electric Power Co.,
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Gentlemen:
The Electric Water Heater you installed for me in April has proven to be the most satisfactory appliance I have ever owned.
Its low operating cost was a pleasant surprise, too. By comparing my electric bill of June, 1935 with my bill for June, 1936, which included the water heater, I find an increase of only $1.41.
Continuous hot water, ready whenever I want it, is certainly worth $1.41 a month to me.
Since we do our laundering, ironing, cooking, refrigerating and other chores electrically, I am also glad to have the advantage of the Special Low Electric Rate that the purchase of this heater entitled me to. It will enable me to operate all of my appliances for less money.
Yours very truly,
J. E. Thayer

Steel Kings Defied at Scene of Homestead Strike Massacre

We'll Organize Workers, Great Rally Declares

Pennsylvania Lieutenant-Governor Pledges Protection of Labor's Rights and State Aid If Men Are Discharged.

Homestead, Pa.—The campaign to organize the steel industry got away to a flying and most dramatic start here at a mass meeting attended by at least 5,000 persons who heard a memorial service for the steel strikers murdered here by hired Pinkertons forty-four years ago, and heard, too, the lieutenant-governor of the state of Pennsylvania tell the strikers that if they were fired for union activities, the state would put them on relief.

The mere holding of the meeting in this place was a touch of genius. In all unions and all over the land, Homestead is the symbol of a just strike, fought by the employers with hired mercenaries, and crushed at last by brutality and starvation. Chairman P. T. Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers, referred to that fight as "the Homestead massacre."

S. J. Edwards Stores Still "Unfair" After Negotiations Fall Thru

Meatcutters Will Carry On Publicity Campaign Without Pickets.

For the past two weeks negotiations have been carried on between the S. J. Edwards stores and International Representative Wolfington, with everyone believing that the dispute which has existed for the past few weeks would be satisfactorily settled.

Mr. Wolfington reported this week, however, that Mr. Edwards suddenly decided that he would continue to operate with non-union workers. As a result, the fight against this concern will be resumed and every effort made to acquaint friends of the labor movement how Mr. Edwards feels towards labor.

It is probable that pickets will not be used for a while, due to the terribly hot weather. Circulars and other methods of advertising will be used, it is said, and full co-operation is expected from the movement.

BIG SHOE COMPANY CUTS SALARIED WORKERS' PAY

Endicott, N. Y.—Invalidation of the NRA was blamed by George F. Johnson for a 10 per cent reduction in the pay of the Endicott-Johnson Shoe corporation's 500 salaried employes.

Johnson, chairman of the board, announced the cut would be effective Aug. 1. A statement posted on the company's plant here said the collapse of the NRA was a hard blow for the concern and made necessary pay reductions.

Johnson said, however, that the wages of the 18,500 shop employes of the company would not be cut "unless we are forced to do so."

Johnson said it was his observation that "persons in the higher salaried brackets can take care of themselves. It is our object to look after the laboring man."

Labor Political Conference Finishes Investigations and Asks for United Support

Selects Ticket for Members of County Court, Legislature, and Other Posts Which It Feels Would Serve the Public Generally.

LINES UP WITH DESIRES OF STATE NON-PARTISANS

Decides to Take More Time to Decide in Race for Sheriff, Trustee and Third Man in Lower House — Indorses Volunteer Plan as a Whole—Fine Spirit of Unity Indicated.

Labor's Political Conference met last Sunday at the labor hall and received the results of many weeks of unremitting investigation and research by its central committee.

This conference is composed of delegates from nearly all local unions in Hamilton county that are affiliated with the A. F. of L. or the railroad brotherhoods. Its purpose is to guide the political activities of its members along those channels that will benefit them most. In the past it has been a practice to scatter labor support over a field of candidates who, while absolutely fair and friendly, rarely ever became successful in their races because labor was split up over a wide range. It is the purpose now to select a ticket from the wide field of possible friendly candidates and concentrate on them and not divide the vote in a futile manner.

Since the organization is to be operative in Hamilton county only, it went on record as approving the actions of the state non-partisan committee which recently met in Nashville and made indorsements in state and national races.

The Volunteer Plan was discussed and approved in general, with a recommendation that a few minor changes would be made.

Candidates who received the hand in the First district are W. F. Langley, at-large, Hays Clark, J. W. Johnston and H. B. Caulkins. In the primaries a few months ago this same ticket was backed with the exception that Bruce Freeman was in Caulkins' place.

Former opposition to Squire C. E. Camp in the primaries grew out of his actions regarding teachers' salaries and his favor of a sales tax. Since that time Mr. Camp has changed his views on both questions, and the conference has removed their opposition to him. No other candidate in the Second was mentioned.

In the Third district it is apparent that most earnest efforts will be made to defeat Squire Brown, although it will undoubtedly be hard to do because of the support given him by the county administration and the myriads of members of the Brown family who hold county positions all over the county. The conference indorsed Mr. Felix Hamil and Mr. Willard Millsaps.

No recommendation was made in the Fourth district.

The senate race is red hot. Both candidates, present Senator Fletcher Morgan and Mr. Joe Bean, who was in the lower house last year, have been given a clear field, the conference remaining neutral, and advising its members to use their own judgment. As a result, union proponents for either candidate are now extolling their praises.

Labor's own attorney, H. G. B. King, and John T. Mahoney, who is a member of organized labor himself, were indorsed by the union voters.

The third man on the ticket has not been named yet, more thought being given. A decision by the conference is expected on Sunday, July 19.

All in all, it appears that organized labor on Aug. 6 will march to the ballot boxes more united than it ever has been. A regular headquarters for Labor's Political Conference has been opened up at 715 Cherry street. Their telephone number is 6-8910. Unionists are invited to visit their political center and see what is going on so that they can do their part.

STRANGE SCRIBE COVERS LECTURE

Records Every Word of TVA Speaker.

While Times and News reporters were culling the strike front for stories a mysterious stranger covered W. I. Nichols' lecture on "The Expanding Use of Electricity in the Tennessee Valley" last Tuesday night on the courthouse lawn. As Mr. Nichols gave his extremely fair account of the results under the three different types of control—the private enterprise, the municipal set-up and the co-operative—his words were taken in shorthand by the stranger, who had hired the janitors to place a writing desk on the lawn for his especial benefit.

Speculation among the audience had it that the man was either a new reporter for one of the daily papers or an agent of the power interests. There was no story in either daily paper on Wednesday.

Mr. Nichols, in his lecture, cited statistics to show that consumption of electricity varies inversely with the price. He pointed out that power companies in the south have lost little if any through their enforced reduction of rates due to TVA influence, since the enormous increase in consumption more than balances it.

The greatest reductions in rates and increases in consumption have taken place under the municipal and the co-operative plans, Mr. Nichols' statistics showed.

Chairs for the lecture were obtained through the courtesy of Smith's and National Funeral homes.

The next TVA lecture given under the sponsorship of the Central Labor union will be held on the courthouse lawn, Tuesday, July 28. At that time Sherman M. Woodward, chief water control planning engineer of the TVA, will speak on "Water Control in the Tennessee Valley."

ARSENAL WORKERS STRIKE.

London.—A disagreement over piecework wages resulted on July 2 in a 2¼-hour "stay-in" strike among factory workers at the Woolwich arsenal. The war office in a statement said, "The matter has been adjusted after discussion with the men's representatives and work has been restarted."

BEN-HUBB SHOWS RUTHLESS STAND TO CITY FATHERS

Tells Board of Commissioners It Is Not Question of Wages or Hours That Prevent Settlement.

WANTS AGREEMENT FROM "WEEK-TO-WEEK"

Will Sign, They Say, With Each Employe Individually—Refuse to Take Union in Plant at Half Pay.

Hoped for settlement of the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company strike was smashed last Tuesday morning in the board room of the city commission when Jac Chambliss, representing the company, told the city officials that they would sign no agreement with the union even if their employes took a 50 per cent wage reduction.

Originally entering the conference with the plea that the company could not economically exist under wage rates asked for, the company attorney was told that the union would accept his proposal for a board of arbitration composed of T. R. Preston, a representative from the company and one from the union to set wage scales. The union also agreed that such wage scales could be revised every ninety days. The union agreed that every clause would be arbitrable, and that the strikers would return to work at the same pay they received at the time of the strike.

In fact, the union told the city dads they would rest their entire case before arbitration as the company re-

Union Meatcutters To Throw Barbecue Tuesday at Pan Gap

Local 600 Will Entertain Hundreds as Guests — Games, Races, Prizes, Fun and Frolic.

Expected to Be Largest Labor Labor Picnic Ever Attempted by Any Local Union—Buy Your Meat Monday or Early Tuesday.

Local 600, Meatcutters, will really "put on the dog" next Tuesday at Pan Gap when they will act as hosts to members and friends of organized labor at a barbecue and picnic. Mack Ball, business agent, says "You ain't seen nothing yet." He says there will be the best union carved barbecue, pork, beef and mutton that was ever cooked, and all the sauce, dressings and salads that go with it.

You can splash in the swimming pool all day, or lay around under the shade trees. All sorts of prizes will be given to contestants in races, games, etc.

A good union orchestra will toot sweet notes, and the light-footed unionists can dance till they drop. In fact, there will be "big doins" all day long.

This local has been building a reputation for itself as a bunch of live wires. They are coming to the front. Not only will they entertain their guests, but they say that buses will be provided to bring them there and take them back. Buses will leave Sixth and Market streets at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Don't forget the day—next Tuesday.

All day and most of the night.

POUND BUILDING NEEDS TREATING FOR 'TERMITES'

Handful of Rats Go Into Future TVA Headquarters While Strikers Ask for Living Wage.

ANTI-UNION CONTRACTOR ASKS FOR AN INJUNCTION

All Contractors Reported to Have Signed Agreement Not to Recognize Laborers' Union.

Last Friday, when J. M. Allen company, building contractors, refused to recognize the carpenters' and laborers' unions and pay them their wages, the entire group of building tradesmen struck at the Pound building on East Eleventh street, site of the future TVA headquarters. This action was made possible by a recent agreement among the building crafts to cooperate in their future dealings with contractors.

Pickets were immediately placed around the edifice, situated on Eleventh street across from the city hall. There has been no violence, although several would-be rats reported for work, but after having the situation explained to them, they turned back.

Wednesday morning a conglomeration of some eighteen laborers and "carpenters" paraded into the place to go to work. In a short time it is said that eight of them changed their minds of working under the non-

Newspaper Guild Given Charter by A. F. of L.

Washington. — President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the A. F. of L. Executive Council, in session here, had decided to grant a national union charter to the American Newspaper Guild. The recent convention of the guild in New York City voted by a large majority to affiliate with the federation.

Mr. Green said the Executive Council had directed him to convene a conference of all organizations interested in the newspaper publishing industry to obtain a definite idea on the various rights of these organizations. Following this meeting of the printing and allied trades, he added, the provisions of the charter would be formulated and turned over to the Newspaper Guild.

Toronto Restaurant Owner Asks Judge to Jail Pickets

Toronto Can.—Counsel for Bassel's restaurant here asks Mr. Justice Kingstone for an order to commit seven members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance, Local 168, for contempt of an injunction granted by Mr. Justice Jeffrey, restraining them from picketing the restaurant.

David Goldstick, counsel for the alliance, argued that the injunction did not bar picketing. In reserving judgment Mr. Justice Kingstone warned Goldstick that the matter was of great importance and to see that the restaurant was not picketed until he had made a ruling. In reply to Goldstick's objection that the most important time to picket was during a strike, but that he would pass the suggestion to refrain from picketing on to the union officials, his lordship retorted: "It is more than a suggestion—it is a direction. You can well observe the direction of this court."

TORONTO PICKETS ARRESTED.

Toronto.—Attempts to break a small strike of Local No. 168, Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, were made here by arresting pickets and charging them with vagrancy. Magistrate Brown dismissed the charges. As peaceful picketing is legal, action may be taken against the police for damages, in the hope of setting up a precedent likely to make the police more cautions in future strikes.

WHO'S FAIR NOW?

Public sentiment is usually based on justice and fair play. Until the Board of Commissioners agreed to act as mediators in the Bennett-Hubbard strike the public had no opportunity to learn authoritatively just what the strike was based on. The usual charge against the union was circulated, of course, that they were arbitrary in their "demands," that they did not desire peace, and that the company was in a fair way of being bankrupted because unreasonable wage scales were requested.

The conferences with the city dads, however, has officially brought forth the fact that the union has offered to arbitrate. The union even accepted the arbitors suggested by the company attorney. It agreed to place before the company-named arbitors every request it is making.

The union's only unalterable stand is in its demand that guarantees be given that such decisions handed down by arbitrators will be enforced. Further, it agreed that if desired the company would be given the right to go into wage scale revisions every ninety days.

Could any proposal be more fair? Mr. Bennett is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce. That organization has been yelling to the high heavens for arbitration of industrial disputes. Is Mr. Bennett consistent? Or is he afraid to jeopardize his claims in any court of justice?

Will the public force Mr. Bennett to behave with justice, or will it allow him to continue his fight, in which he is using starvation, police, threats and injunctions as allies?

Will the public stand by and be gulled by wild stories of imminent disclosures of dynamiting plots, which are never disclosed? Will the public soon grow tired of the company's influence which causes our great chief of dee-tec-atives to run wildly through the corridors of the city hall, with drawn gun in hand, shoving said gun into the midriffs of innocent by-standers?

The Benn-Hubb strike will be continued, it appears, with more justification than ever. It depends upon the public as to how long it will be necessary to carry it forward. It is evident the company intends to remain obdurate indefinitely. Organized labor is equally determined that these strikers will be clothed and fed and supported indefinitely. When justice and fair play becomes predominant the strike will be terminated practically instantly.

GARMENT WORKERS BACK ROOSEVELT'S RE-ELECTION

NEW YORK CITY.—The general executive board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union has endorsed the candidacy of President Roosevelt for re-election. Meeting in Los Angeles, the board adopted the following resolution:

"In view of the fact that conventions of our union have declared in the past in favor of independent political labor action, and as we are not holding a convention this year, we, as custodians of the policy of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union between conventions, consider that we have no authority officially to endorse the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for re-election as President of the United States.

"We, nevertheless, fully realize that great numbers in our unions are strongly in sympathy with the movement sponsored by Labor's Non-Partisan League for Roosevelt for the reason that his re-election would be a victory of the forces of progressive labor and liberalism over all combined forces of reaction and of adversaries of labor in America, and because it is further earnestly hoped and believed that this non-partisan labor campaign for Roosevelt will ultimately lead to the crystallization of a movement for independent labor political action."

Other unions which have endorsed Roosevelt are the United Mine Workers of America, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

ANTI-SOCIAL STUNTS COST LIBERTY LEAGUE $265,286

Washington.—In a report filed with the clerk of the house of representatives the American Liberty league revealed that its expenses for the first five months of this year reached $265,286.27, while receipts were $206,476.80—a deficit of nearly $60,000.

The major activities of the league are connected with militant opposition to practically all of the progressive legislation enacted by congress during the last three years, including the national industrial recovery act with its many advantages for working men and women, the Guffey coal stabilization act with many benefits for hundreds of thousands of bituminous coal miners, and the national labor relations act, which gives legal affirmation of the right of the workers to organize in unions and bargain collectively and specifically outlaws a number of practices used by anti-union employers to interfere with the workers in the exercise of this right.

Salary Restorations For New York City Vetoed by Lehman

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Lehman vetoed four bills, passed by the recent session of the legislature, which would have compelled New York City to restore the salaries of firemen, policemen and teachers and other employes in the school system to the 1933 levels at a cost of $18,500,000.

The governor gave two reasons for disapproving the measure. He said he had been advised by Mayor LaGuardia and Comptroller Taylor that although they desired to re-establish for city employes the 1933 salary rates as soon as possible, the city at present was financially unable to assume the additional cost.

In addition, the governor declared the objects which the bill sought to accomplish could be done by the New York City authorities without any state legislation, and that under the conditions it was contrary to the letter and the spirit of home rule for the legislature to compel the salary raises.

Picketing Right Gains Two Court Decisions

Two decisions recently handed down by the supreme court of Wiscinsin reaffirm the rights of workers to picket during industrial controversies. Both of the cases involved issues not usually found in labor disputes.

The first case involved the right of unions to picket a place of business in an undertaking to persuade the management to unionize its workers when there was no dispute between the employer and his employes. It grew out of the demand of the business agent of the Milwaukee Furniture Men's union that the American Furniture company designate the union as the bargaining agent for their employes after the employes had voted negatively on the proposition. The store refused to do so.

The union reported the concern as "unfair to organized labor" and picketed the plant. The lower court upheld the right to picket. The furniture company appealed to the supreme court, which also upheld the union.

The other case involved a still more unusual method. Two locals of the Tile Layers' Protective union in Milwaukee had a controversy with Paul Senn, a contractor, who refused to employ union members exclusively and also refused to quit work personally. The union members picketed Senn's home. The lower court held the picketing was legal under Wisconsin law. Senn appealed the case to the supreme court, which upheld the decision of the lower court.

In rendering the decision of the supreme court, Justice E. T. Fairley said "the requirement that the employer personally refrain from working with the tools of the trade is important and vital to the craftsmen affiliated with the defendant unions, because the practices sought to be prevented can so readily affect wages and hours of labor."

Pointing out that Senn has every right to run a non-union shop if he wants to and that "he is not obliged to yield to the persuasion exercised upon him by the unions," Justice Fairley added:

"The . . . act of peaceful picketing is a lawful form of appeal to the public to turn its patronage from appellant to concerns in which the welfare of the unions is bound up."

These two decisions by the highest judiciary authority in Wisconsin clarify considerably the right to picket non-union plants and the residences of anti-union employers.

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

There's a Mann act for strikebreakers now. If any corporation is caught going across state lines with these examples of the lowest form of life, for purposes defined as unlawful, that corporation can be prosecuted and punished. Same thing if any individual does the dirty deed. Transportating strikebreakers in interstate commerce has been dealt a grand wallop in this new law. Fair enough to wonder how the president felt when he signed the bill. About like signing a bill to eradicate lice, or to make the interstate transportation of operating skunks in passenger coaches unlawful. Summing up, the new law might be called something of a sanitary measure—fumigation law.

Pearl Bergoff won't like this new law. There are indications that United States Steel won't like it. It's queer how some of the most pious gents sit on corporation boards and join in the urgent desire to engage in the interstate shipment of vermin bipeds. Maggots have recognized use in the scheme of things, but nobody has ever found anything but an unhealthy odor from places where these aggregations of putrescence are congregated.

Of course it will be foolish to expect the new law will result in complete eradication of the nuisance. There will be the local breed, which doesn't have to be shipped across state lines. And there will be subterfuges in evading the law. Probably no way to stop a rat from crawling across the line, or to stop a odoriferous skunkibus from paying his own way with money surreptitiously slipped him for the purpose. And also, the law doesn't outlaw strikebreaking. It only applies to certain forms of operation, like interfering with peaceful picketing. But the law sets up a new principle and it's a good principle. It marks a great gain—a big step ahead.

One thing not to be forgotten about these laws that fix new principles is that, the principles having been established, the detail of the law can be improved as time passes. The law now gives a dirty look at the business of professional strikebreaking. In coming sessions of congress the definition of nefarious operations can be completed. They can be fixed. The time is coming when professional strikebreaking will be regarded, in public conscience and in law, as so low in morality as to require complete and absolute stoppage. There will be a stronger Mann act for strikebreakers. Along with the lice and the fleas we shall one day also wipe out "the lesser fleas that vite 'em." The sewage of the economic world is being cleaned up for the sake of economic public health.

What Next!

A new mining process for the white mineral, barite, has been developed and promises to enhance the wealth of seven states that produce the metal. The new process is flotation, something old in mining, but never before applied to barite. Barite heretofore has been purified only in Washington, by the gravitational method. The new process was developed by the southern experiment station of the United States bureau of mines, in co-operation with the University of Alabama. Barite is used to manufacture lithophone, which is employed extensively in making linoleum, rubber tires and white pigment.

Dr. Robert F. James, of the Westinghouse research laboratories, has made marked progress in devising lamps that kill micro-oganisms that ruin meat, bread, cake and other products. He has developed ultra-violet ray lamps that are said to promise to make it easier to protect, condition and sell food. One of the lamps is reported to be very effective in curing beef, reducing the time of aging the meat from weeks to a few days.

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

REGISTER FOR PRIMARY

Teachers who have not registered should do so immediately. Although there is no longer an opportunity for those who have not already paid their poll taxes to vote in the general election, yet there is still opportunity to qualify for the primary. Register today (Friday) and pay your poll tax as soon as possible, then vote for the candidates indorsed by Labor's Political Conference.

L. P. C. OPENS OFFICE

That busy-looking place on Cherry street across from Martin-Thompson's with the King and Mahoney posters plastered about the windows is the new busy-season home of Labor's Political Conference. The street number is 715; the phone, 6-8910. If you need any art instructions on how to draw an X on a ballot sheet this office is at your service.

ON VOTING SOLIDLY

Labor's Political Conference had a difficult job of selecting the candidates to be indorsed. Different unions liked or disliked various candidates. It would have been impossible to have pleased everybody with the whole ticket. We cannot approach that ideal until we have a labor party in which all our candidates are all-the-way for labor. The present ticket represents a number of give-and-take compromises. The teachers' representatives received much consideration from the representatives of the other unions and in turn conceded some points to the welfare of other unions. Now it is our duty, if we believe in the rightness of trade unionism, if we believe in being grateful to our brother trade unionists, without whom we could have done nothing, if we believe in the efficacy of united action, we must vote solidly for the indorsed candidates. Even if you hate one of the indorsed candidates vote for him for the sake of the unity of the labor movement. When you vote for the L. P. C.'s ticket you vote for a principle instead of for the man.

OUR MILITANT PRESIDENT

If the forces of the opposition thought to break the spirit of the teachers' leadership by nullifying the salary law they have probably realized their mistake by now. When President Stanton E. Smith came back from his vacation the first thing to greet his view was the wreckage of the salary law. He immediately told the press that the teachers had only begun to fight.

Subsequent events show that his statement was no idle boast, at least for him personally. When it became apparent that there had been some peculiarity about the presence or absence of cash in the school fund, who had the courage to challenge those responsible? No other than our president. Who is carrying forward the fight for a public accounting of the school fund? Answer same as above.

If the rest of us will only learn to be as courageous and as militant we won't need to worry about supreme court decisions.

July 12, 1936.

TO LABOR:

Today became one of the happiest days of my life, when your Mr. Stanton Smith advised me that Labor's Political Conference had endorsed my candidacy for the State Legislature. I do not feel that my winning the election or leading the ticket could bring me more genuine happiness.

It first shows how fair and unprejudiced the Labor Movement is. Unlike many of your members, I, all my life, have had opportunities, financial and otherwise, for education and training. As I do not have a trade, many of you might have preferred other candidates whose environment, you might have believed, would make them more desirable and more capable of carrying the banner of your cause. In the election, the ballots of the majority might make me a winner, but my real victory was achieved after your Committee diligently and thoroughly investigated my record, aims and ambitions, and found me — not wanting.

To lead you and serve you will be a pleasure. The principles of your organization are conservative and high. It is an honor to represent you, — and with you, I cannot doubt our victory nor fear our defeat.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN T. MAHONEY.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

ERNEST, the janitor at the labor hall, is quite a good union man now, being a full-fledged member of Hodcarriers, Local 846. Yesterday we sent him over to get the office ready for the campaign headquarters of L. P. C. and told him to get another fellow to help him get the place cleaned.

"Did you get somebody to help you, Ernest?" I asked.

"Yes'm. I got one of the boys from the local."

Dear Ina, Lena and Edna:

Thanks for your nice letter to me. Hope you like this "open" answer. It is really too bad that you had to go away just when so many exciting things are happening—three big events all at one time. Here they are:

1. The Benn-Hubb strike is still on and those girls are staying right in there and fighting. Plans are being made for a real picket line Monday morning.

2. The building trades are having some trouble at the Pound building. And, believe me, those Hodcarriers have a peppy organization.

3. L. P. C. has made its indorsements and has opened campaign headquarters at 715 Cherry street. Wish you were here to drop around and see them.

Besides that we've had a rain!

As ever,

Brownie.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has American labor always stood for women receiving the same pay as men for equal work?

A.—The American Federation of Labor early in its history asked that women receive equal compensation for equal service performed. The demand was emphatically reaffirmed at the 1898 convention.

Q.—Does labor object to private ownership of libraries used by the public?

A.—The 1919 convention of the A. F. of L. said: "We believe that public libraries are public utilities and should be owned, controlled and administered directly by the state or city financing such libraries."

More MEN and WOMEN to SERVE You

TWELVE HUNDRED additional people were put to work by the Southern Bell Telephone Company in 1935, to care for the increased public demand for service and the resultant growth of the business.

This was an increase of 8.12 per cent, and brought the total number of men and women who provide you with good telephone service in the South to 17,000.

Their payroll was nineteen and one-third million dollars, most of which was spent in their home communities.

Through 936 central offices in nine states, they devote their thought and effort to give you the best possible telephone service that skill and training can provide.

They planned and placed in service $12,428,906 worth of additional telephone "plant" in 1935 to meet service demands, and this year it will expand even more.

Taxes, in 1935, required a record sum of $6,505,000 from the telephone company by federal, state, county and municipal agencies. This figure, too, will be exceeded in 1936.

Guiding these telephone folks at all times, in fair weather or in emergencies such as fire, floods or storms, is their expressed objective: to give the public the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with the financial safety of the business.

MORE ABOUT BENN-HUBB

quested, but that any agreement made would have to be signed.

Whereupon, the company replied they would sign only with their employes as individuals. The company also testified that since Jan. 1 they had fired forty employes. Since only fifty are employed in the plant, it was brought out that individual contracts would soon be eliminated because of the admitted heavy labor turnover.

Such individual contracts would not be enforceable, the union claimed, because every member of the union would be speedily replaced, one by one, by a new employe who would certainly not be employed until assurance was given that he or she would not join the union.

Although the conferences did not result in a settlement of the strike, they did bring one result.

They clearly defined before the public that Benn-Hubb is not concerned about ability to pay the wage scale, but are greatly concerned about releasing their clutches about the throats of their employes as individuals.

The public knows now that the union has offered to arbitrate every clause before a committee composed of one banker, one employer and one unionist. Said committee was named by the company. When such committee was accepted by the union, the company withdrew its offer.

Responsibility for continuance of the strike, now in its sixth week, rests squarely on the consciences of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Hubbard, and whoever is backing them.

The strike will most certainly be carried on. The brutal and bull-headed attitude adopted in the conferences has made more determined than ever the strikers' intentions to secure some guarantee that promises made will be given some guarantee of fulfillment.

Worker Has to Abandon Union as Price of Job

The arbitrary and unlawful action of anti-union employers in requiring workers to give up their trade union membership as the price of unemployment was pointedly revealed in the recent decision of the national labor relations board holding Edward E. Cox, Printer, Inc., publisher of the Hartford City News, Hartford City, Ind., guilty of violating the labor relations act by refusing the bargain collectively with a local of the Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union and with attempting to "smash" that labor organization.

The labor board drew attention to the case of Claude Beeson as an indication of the concern's interference with the rights of its employes to become members of bona fide trade unions. Beeson, a charter member of the Pressmen's union and an employe of the company for twelve years, was discharged for having left his work to go home for one hour for a Thanksgiving dinner with his family without having asked permission of the foreman. He tried three times, vainly, to get his job back and at one time was told by Jack Dolan and Edward E. Cox, Jr., president and secretary, respectively, of the company, that they were not hiring union men. Beeson asked Dolan if he could go back to work if he resigned from the union. He was told to come back later. Upon resigning from the union on Jan. 19, he informed Dolan of his action and applied for employment on Jan. 20. He was then told to report for work the following Monday.

When the husband stays out very late his wife doesn't go after him, but when he gets home she does.

Three men were arguing over whose was the oldest profession:

Said the Surgeon—The Bible says that Eve was made by carving a rib out of Adam. I guess that makes mine the oldest profession.

Said the Engineer—Not at all. An engineering job came before that. In six days the earth was created out of chaos.

Said the Banker—Who created chaos?

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

MORE ABOUT STEEL KINGS

which have not been visited until Sunday for thirty years, and spoke very briefly:

"Let the blood of those labor pioneers who were murdered here in 1892 be the seed of this new organization in 1936; and may the souls of the martyrs rest in peace. Amen."

And the packed crowd repeated the "Amen," and stood for a moment with bowed, uncovered heads.

Steel Barons Defied.

But the fireworks were set off by Lieut.-Gov. Thomas Kennedy—who is also secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers. Declaring that the company unions are "the illegitimate sons of the steel trust," and that "the economic royalists of the basic industries had forced long hours and low wages upon unorganized workers," Kennedy came to his climax:

"I want to say to the captains of steel and to their related financial institutions: They are not going to get away with the kind of stuff they have pulled on the steel workers up to now.

"The government of the state of Pennsylvania is located at Harrisburg, and not in Pittsburgh, New York, or Bristol (the home of Joseph R. Grundy).

To Protect Labor's Rights.

"Gov. Earle is an able, an honest and a courageous man, and Gov. Earle will continue to be governor; and as commander-in-chief of the armed forcess and the police forces of the state, he is going to see to it that the steel workers are given their constitutional rights.

"I do not anticipate any strikes or trouble. But if the steel magnates throw you out, you are entitled to and will receive state relief."

Kennedy likened the steel barons to Hitler and the steel attitude toward its workers as Nazism. Recalling the claim of the U. S. Steel corporation that 90 per cent of its workers have taken part in "employe representation," Kennedy retorted that 98 per cent of the German people were reported to have taken part in the last Hitler election. He implied that there was no element of free choice in either case.

Rally Big Success.

The rally was an unqualified success, in spite of all that was done to check it; in spite, as the speakers said, of the spies which penetrate every part of the steel industry; and in spite of the fact that the local steel mill kept open Sunday for the first time in seven years. The meeting was held without a permit; but the town authorities, always owned by the steel companies, in this case went so far as to promise that the assembled workers would not be molested unless they insisted on a showdown by demanding a permit. The workers took the hint.

Probably Lieut.-Gov. Kennedy had something to do with this unusual bit of tolerance. He came at the head of several hundred United Mine Workers, and he came, also, at the head of a squad of Pennsylvania state police. This is the first time in history, that these police, once known as "Cossacks," have attended a union meeting under the command of a union man—and it makes a difference.

It was noticeable, too, that hundreds of men, both miners and steel workers, wore two buttons. One was a button with the name of John L. Lewis, head of the U. M. W., and one was a button for President Roosevelt.

Fighting Declaration Adopted.

A declaration was adopted, modeled closely on the Declaration of Indepence, stating:

"We exercise our inalienable rights to organize into a great industrial union, banded together with all our fellow steel workers.

"Through this union we shall win higher wages, shorter hours and a better standard of living. We shall win leisure for ourselves and opportunity for our children. Together with our union brothers in other industries, we shall abolish industrial despotism.

"We shall make real the dreams of the pioneers who pictured America as a land where all might live in comfort and happiness."

Grievances Set Forth.

The grievances of the steel workers, stated as Thomas Jefferson stated those of the colonies, declared that "in steel and in other like industries, a new despotism has come into being.

"It has sent among us swarms of stool pigeons, who have spied upon us in the mills, in our meetings, and even in our homes. . . .

"In support of this declaration, we mutually pledge to each other our steadfast purpose as union men, our honor and our very lives."

The neighboring town of Munhall, where the strikers of 1892 are buried, refused to permit the distribution of handbills advertising the meeting. But it did not try to stop the procession of 2,000 bareheaded men as they walked in column to the graves.

Fight on Steel Barons Urged.

New Haven, Conn.—A call for a "life and death" battle against the steel "barons" was made to textile, metal and garment workers by Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America.

"We must mobilize," Gorman told a meeting of state labor leaders here. "We must brook no interference in our drive from any source. Our lives and the lives of our wives and children depend on the success of the campaign to organize the unorganized in our basic industries."

Already, Gorman said the executive council of the United Textile Workers has agreed to a plan for co-operation with the committee for industrial organization whereby a drive for unionization of southern workers would be launched.

Success of this movement, he said, would prevent northern and especially New England textile manufacturers, from moving their plants to the south when their employes strike.

Steel Needs New Equipment To Greatly Increase Output

Pittsburgh.—Steel production cannot go very much higher than it is now, unless the obsolete equipment of a great many mills is replaced by modern equipment, and the half-dismantled machinery in some other plants restored to usefulness. This is the gist of a report made here.

Production now is only 6 per cent lower than the average rate in 1929; though the number of men employed has decreased by more than 30 per cent. This optut is called 74 per cent of capacity, but:

"It is recognized that while the steel industry has been operating at a shade more than one-fourth under its rated capacity, most of the idle equipment is not serviceable. It deteriorated during the depression and many parts have been taken for active equipment to keep down cash expenditures. In general the steel industry could not operate at a much higher rate than at present without spending much more and taking much time for repairs and replacements."

MORE ABOUT POUND BUILDING

union conditions existing and came out with their tools. The other ten or more spent the day peeking out of the fifth floor windows hurriedly and then scurrying away.

The usual strike procedure has been followed out. An application for an injunction has been made, which if granted on July 22, the day for hearing, will attempt to disperse all pickets. However, since no act of violence has been reported, it is difficult to justify cause for an injunction, if there ever is a cause for such legal processes.

J. M. Allen & Co. have always been known as one of the untrammeled contractors who demand that his employes be left free to work for him for as little as possible. It is reported that he, along with other contractors, have entered into a pact not to ever recognize the laborers' union. From statements made by those close to Allen, it is contended that common ordinary laborers have no cause to organize because "they are too ignorant" and are "too easily led" into wrongdoing. The wage scale of 45 cents per hour which they are asking is too high, they are told, when there are people hungry and desperate enough to work for what is handed to them.

Although the building is supposed to be ready for TVA occupancy by Sept. 1, the actual work of remodeling is not being done by TVA directly. It is the opinion of some that possibly the recently enacted Walsh-Healy bill might be invoked. This bill provides that in cases where the federal government makes purchases, such purchases must conform with prevailing wage and hour conditions.

The rumor that strikebreakers are being brought in from other states is also being investigated. If found true the government may be asked to take a hand in the game.

Police participation has been much more lenient than has been the case a few blocks down the street at the Bennett-Hubbard Candy factory. Adequate "protection" has been provided for the rodents, but it is evident that the bluecoats are not necessary. Not even a dress has been torn. No one has been called "names." No one has been murdered.

Tommy—It's a woman who borrows things.

Homestead Battle Heroic Stand Of Labor Against Brutal Greed

Fight in Steel Town Forty-four Years Ago Came as Climax of Attempt by Medieval Minded Employers to Smash Unionism Forever in Great Basic Industry.

Washington.—The historic fight at Homestead, Pa., in 1892 between the Carnegie Steel company and the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers is usually referred to as a strike. In reality, it was more of a lockout than a strike; and was one of the most cunning, treacherous and brutal campaigns ever waged by capital against labor.

The Amalgamated had a contract with the Carnegie company on the pay of skilled workers and their helpers in the plant. Carnegie, who had written many liberal-sounding articles for American magazines, went off to American magazines, went off to Europe, and left H. C. Frick in full charge, with absolute powers. Frick was known as an enemy of all unions and had already broken several strikes, all by force and violence. He demanded changes cutting drastically the pay of the workers, and making the termination of the contract on Dec. 31 instead of June 30.

The obvious purpose of this change was to put the steel workers up against the winter slackness of work. They refused, but intimated that they would make some concessions. Without paying any further attention to them, Frick closed the mill.

Frick Ready for Trouble.

He had been preparing for trouble for months, getting an agreement for killer strikebreakers from the Pinkerton agency, putting a wooden wall around the plant, with loopholes, and barbed wire on top. The workers

He will be part of a board which will be set up to hear complaints and grievances while the dam is being constructed.

Mr. Freeman is from Ohio, and states that every week more and more members of the brotherhood are securing employment.

LABOR BOARD SCORES BIG STOVE FIRM FOR SPY WAR ON UNIONISM

Tennessee Company Condemned in Strong Terms for Terroristic Campaign Against Molders' Union Members and Eight Discharged Employes Ordered Reinstated.

Washington.—Exposing the Hardwick Stove company, Cleveland, Tenn., as waging an unscrupulous war of spying against unionism, the national labor relations board has ordered the company to reinstate eight workers discharged because they joined the International Molders' Union of North America. The company, whose plant is the largest foundry in the south, has long been a bitter opponent of labor organization.

By spying on union meetings, evicting workers from their homes, and using the weight of the company's prestige in the town to suppress any attempt at self-organization among its workers, the company is held to have repeated during the past year the same tactics by which it destroyed union organization at the foundry during 1916-17. The board's decision finds no evidence to uphold the stove company's contention that the discharge occurred as a normal reduction of force, nor does it accept, in view of repeated spying by company officials on union meetings, the assertion that the company had changed its labor policy to conform to the national labor relations act.

Record of Spying Plain.

On the evidence produced at a hearing last March before Trial Examiner Noel R. Beddows, at Chattanooga, Tenn., the board summarizes its conclusions as follows:

"The record abundantly establishes that after the passage of the act, as well as before, respondent sent spies to union meetings; that it attempted to buy off union men individually; that it terrorized would-be union members by massing company officials in front of the meeting halls. Those who attended union meetings respondent demoted, discharged, refused to reinstate to employment, ejected from company property and from company houses. As commissioner of police, vice-president of the Merchants Bank of Cleveland, director of the Cleveland Chair company, president of the Cherokee Hotel company of Cleveland, and close associate of the other foundries in Cleveland, C. L. Hardwick, president of respondent, is a power in the community whose latent disapproval alone might well deter a worker from asserting his rights. The record shows that C. L. Hardwick actively pursued the men here in question with the reprisals which, as commissioner of police and intimate of the other foundry operators in the town, he could easily command."

The company's unyielding resistance to unionism appeared in the testimony of Hurt, its vice-president, who stated that he had been trained by the founder of the company to believe "that union organizers had horns" and that the company had always been resolved to discharge men who joined the union.

Official Spied on Union.

In combating strikes at the foundry in 1926-27 it was revealed that Hurt hid behind a door at a union meeting until he was discovered; that on another occasion the company's two timekeepers were discovered listening under the floor of the building where a union meeting was going on; and that Andrews, chief foreman, tried

CAPITAL MAN SAYS BROWNING RAIL LOBBYIST

Charges That Browning Visited Washington Many Times to Fight Rail Pension Bill.

EMPLOYED BY R. R. TO DEFEAT LABOR ACT

Non-Partisan Committee Sends Letter to Candidate for Governor to Answer Charge.

The secretary of the state non-partisan committee, representing the Tennessee Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods, is in receipt of a letter from a high official in Washington that charges Captain Gordon Browning with lobbying for the railroads during the 1935 session of congress to defeat the railroad pension bill.

The letter says:

"Gordon Browning spoke in Jackson last Saturday and in his speech he stated that he was one of the first to support the railroad and retirement or pension bill in congress. Why don't the railroad men of Tennessee expose his hypocritical attitude; let the railroad men know that Gordon Browning, as a paid employe of the N., C. & St. L. railroad, spent much of the time in Washington during the 1935 session of congress lobbying against the pension bill; he made at least a dozen trips to Washington during that session to lobby against the pension bill. He, Horace Osment, of Nashville, and Judge Clem Jones, of Athens, always came to Washington together; stopped at the Raleigh hotel and worked against the bill; I understand that Browning was trying to use his influence with members of the committee, many of whom he knew personally, having served in congress with them, against the bill. Why don't you send an open letter to Browning on this question; I don't believe he would dare to deny the charge. Write him a letter and let it be published in the paper at the same time; Horace Osment won't deny that he, Gordon and Clem Jones were here in Washington working against the pension bill because he has told me the facts about the matter too many times while he was here in Washington visiting in my room at the Raleigh hotel."

As a result of this letter, the secretary of the non-partisan committee has sent a letter to Mr. Browning, which says:

"July 21, 1936.

"Hon. Gordon Browning,
"Andrew Jackson Hotel,
"Nashville, Tenn.
"Dear Mr. Browning:

"We have a communication from Washington that states that you, in company with Mr. Horace Osment, of Nashville, and Judge Clem Jones, of Athens, made several trips to Washington to lobby against the railroad pension bill. When we interviewed you in Nashville it was my impression that you stated flatly that you were in favor of this legislation.

"It is also reported in a legal magazine that you were employed by the Nashville & Chattanooga railroad to carry a case to the supreme court against a railroad worker who was trying to receive compensation for injuries received.

"Will you please deny or affirm these charges?

"Yours respectfully,
"NON-PARTISAN POLITICAL COMMITTEE.

POOR GRADE COAL MAY BE FOISTED ON CITY FATHERS

Possibility That Cheap Labor Sooty Product Will Make Bids Shown.

U. M. WORKERS TELL OF BAD CONDITIONS

Coal Mined in Stearns, Ky., Sold Here, Is Inferior in Quality Unionists Warned Not to Buy.

T. J. Smith, representing the United Mine Workers of America, told The Labor World yesterday that the coal handled in Chattanooga by the Whiteside-Stearns company, mined in Stearns, Ky., is not only a sooty and smoky grade of fuel, but that it is produced under most unfair conditions. He also expressed a fear that this company contemplated making a bid to the city to supply the school bins with their product.

"The Stearns Coal company, in Stearns, Ky.," says Mr. Smith, "is notorious for its anti-union and low-wage scales. W fear that this company contemplates putting in a bid to the city commission to supply the city with coal for this fall and winter. Because of their cheap cost of production afforded them by their low-wage scale and working conditions, they will undoubtedly be able to be the low bidders. We sincerely hope that if this is the case the city fathers will not allow an out of the state low wage concern to carry on this business, especially since practically all coal mined in our own state is produced by miners who are paid decent wages. In addition, most Tennessee coal is cleaner, the Stearns coal being a great soot and smoke producer.

"We hope that all trades unionists will bear in mind when they buy their coal that Stearns coal is unfair. Demand that your coal dealer supplies you with union-mined coal," Mr. Smith insisted.

To date bids for the city's coal business have not been let.

TVA LECTURER SLATED FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

"Water Control in Tennessee Valley" to Be Presented by Sherman M. Woodard.

Sponsored by Chattanooga Central Labor Union—Joe Dobbs to Preside.

"What is the TVA doing in the water control field?" This is the subject which will be discussed by Sherman M. Woodward, chief water control planning engineer, TVA, next Tuesday evening on the courthouse lawn at 8 o'clock, and is one of a series which have been of great interest to the public.

The question of flood prevention, soil conservation, increased water power and prevention of damage to property is a subject which will appeal to all groups of citizens in the valley, and which will be ably presented by the speaker sent in by TVA.

Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body, will preside at the meeting. This is the first meeting Mr. Dobbs has been able to attend since being released from the hospital.

In case of rain, the crowd will move into Judge Miller's courtroom.

Wagner Act Upheld By Federal Court

Three United States Judges in New York Rule That the Labor Relations Law Is Unconstitutional and Order Associated Press to Reinstate Employe Discharged for Union Activities.

New York.—In an outstanding decision the United States circuit court of appeals for the Second circuit upheld the constitutional validity of the national labor relations act, the three judges unanimously ruling that congress had not exceeded its powers in enacting the law.

Six cases involving alleged unfair labor practices prescribed by the labor relations act were before the court on appeals from rulings of the national labor relations board, whose actions had been challenged by employers as unlawful on the ground that the act violated the constitution of the United States. In five of the cases the appeals court ruled in favor of the labor relations board, and decided against the board in only one case.

Associated Press Loses.

The most important case was before the court on an application by the labor relations board for an order enforcing the board's ruling requiring the Associated Press to reinstate Morris Watson, a former employe of the Associated Press, whom the labor board found had been discharged because of his activities as an official of the American Newspaper Guild, an organization composed of editorial employes of newspapers and press associations.

"We think the order was validly made and must be enforced," the court said.

The decision of the labor board followed a hearing held before Dean Charles E. Clark, of Yale Law school, who sat as a special master in the case.

The opinion upholding the action of the labor board and sustaining the constitutionality of the labor act was written by Judge Martin T. Manton and concurred in by Judge Thomas W. Swan and Judge Augustus N. Hand.

After stating the court was agreed the Associated Press was engaged in interstate commerce, the decision continued:

Right to Organize Affirmed.

"This act does not hamper the legitimate rights of the employer who may discharge his employes for inefficiency or any other cause agreeable to him, provided he does not use the power to discharge as a weapon for interfering with the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively.

"The employer retains full control and can bargain with his employes over the wage he shall pay and the working conditions he shall furnish. He remains the master of the operation of his business.

"Industrial disputes in an industry or business engaged in interstate commerce may, and frequently do, burden and interrupt the flow of such commerce," the opinion continued. "Congress recognized this in the act."

Injunctions Against Board Refused.

The four other cases decided by the circuit court in favor of the labor board were appeals from decisions of the district court which refused to grant injunctions restraining the board from acting on complaints filed with it charging violations of the labor relations act.

In each instance the circuit court affirmed the refusal of the lower court to grant an injunction. The appellants who thus lost their fight against the constitutionality of the labor act were the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet company, of Yonkers; E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., the du Pont Rayon company and the Precision Casting company.

Rules on Interstate Commerce.

In the case of the Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing company the appeals court ruled against the action of the labor board on the ground that the company was not engaged in interstate commerce. The labor board asked for an order enforcing its command for the reinstatement of eighteen employes who were allegedly dismissed for affiliation with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. In its decision refusing to give the enforcement order the court said:

"In its manufacturing business respondent was in no way engaged in interstate commerce, nor did its labor practices so directly affect interstate commerce as to come within the federal commerce power."

CHANCERY INJUNCTIONS GRANTED ON TWO STRIKE FRONTS; STRIKERS REMAIN FIRM AND STAND SOLIDLY

Bennett-Hubbard Kitchens Become Bedrooms for Assorted Group of Scabs, Who Sleep and Work in Plant.

Pound Building Still at Deadlock, With No One Working — No Disorder During Week — Possible Settlement Seen.

An old-time weapon was used again by the bosses this week when Chancellor Lon Foust granted an injunction against the Bennett-Hubbard strikers and the building trades at the Pound building. Both injunctions were handed out Tuesday, July 21. The writ limits the number of pickets to six at each place.

Last Monday morning the Benn-Hubb collection of scabs were brought into the plant at about 3 o'clock in the morning, with the exception of some four girls, who came in at the usual time, but decided when they got there that they did not care to go in. On Monday morning some four hundred trades unionists and sympathizers went on the picket line, and when the scabs were driven up to the door a peaceful resistance was shown with folded arms. After sitting in their cars for some two hours, the scabs were taken home in a taxicab.

No new developments took place in the Pound building strike. No further attempt has been made to run scabs in the building, and so far the injunctions have had no effect on the progress of the strike.

While testifying in court, Mr. Bennett said that his entire city business had been wiped out, and practically all of his out-of-town trade was destroyed. The injunction did not provide a means of forcing his business to return, however.

Much comment has been heard by the public at large when it was reported that the Benn-Hubb management had turned their candy kitchens into bedrooms. There is supposed to be some sort of sanitation provisions which prevent food merchants from endangering the health of the unsuspecting public by sleeping and living in the plant. The scabs, it was said in press reports, were kept cooped up in the plant for several days because they were "afraid" to come out.

A federal conciliator from the department of labor arrived in the city last Sunday and immediately went to work at the task of reaching settlements on both jobs. So far no success has been achieved.

Strikers on both fronts seem as determined as ever, and although the injunctions issued were expected to break their spirits, strikers are up to the deadline and are visiting merchants, telling them how they have been treated.

Otherwise everything is quiet.

Engineers' Strike Ties Up Refinery Of Shell Oil Co.

Back of Walkout Are Discharges of Union Men and Refusal to Adjust Disputes, Union Officials Charge.

Washington.—The big Wood River, Ill., refinery of the Shell company is tied up tight by a strike of operating engineers, it is announced at engineers' headquarters here.

The Wood River refinery is regarded as the experimental station for all Shell refineries and the tie-up thus has an indirect effect on the entire Shell organization, which is composed of some dozen corporate units, all tied to the perent Shell organization in Europe.

War on Union Men.

Back of the strike at Wood River is a series of discharges of union men, according to engineers' officials here. While the Shell company spokesmen say the strike is caused by the discharge of one man, the union declares that this final discharge was merely the last straw and that there had been at least 80 discharges prior to the strike, over a period of three years.

The union here asserts that Shell, at Wood River, has resorted to every type of subterfuge to avoid adjusting disputes.

Strike May Spread.

The entire refinery is closed. Experts estimate that at least 15 days will be required to bring it into operation when the strike is settled. Meanwhile the union is watching Shell's negotiations with other companies for the purchase of production to care for its outlets. There are predictions that unless Shell soon agrees to conferences the conflict will spread. Meanwhile it is learned that union memberships in the affected area are spreading an unofficial wave of "don't patronize" propaganda, in line with the official declaration against the Shell Company of California, in which five internationals have indicted that company for maintaining a company union and for refusing to deal with bona fide unions.

FOOD PRICES TO BE HIGHER.

Washington.—An increase in the price of many foods, partly as a result of the drought, was predicted by the bureau of agricultural economics of the agriculture department. Commodities named as likely to increase in price in the near future included butter, cheese, eggs and higher grades of cattle. The agricultural experts predicted a reduction in the cost of potatoes, hogs, low-grade cattle, lambs, poultry and wool.

MISSOURI LABOR BACKS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Hannibal, Mo. — Endorsement of President Roosevelt and rejection of the industrial union plan of the committee for Industrial Organization featured the 40th annual convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor which met here in three-day session.

Representative R. T. Wood of Springfield was re-elected as president and Jefferson City was selected as the 1937 convention city.

Wisconsin Milk Condensery Union Wins Point in Walkout

Whitewater, Wis.—Union members employed by the Libby, McNeill & Libby Condensery here ended a one-day strike when union representatives won an agreement from the plant management to submit wage demands and union recognition to a five-man arbitration board. Thirty-five employes returned to work when the agreement was finalized.

The strikers, most of whom belong to the Federal Labor union, began picketing while 80,000 pounds of milk stood in trucks outside the condensery. Union members claimed their wages have been less than $600 yearly. They demanded 40 cents an hour minimum wages and union recognition.

GLASS WORKERS WIN.

New Martinsville, W. Va.—Striking union glass workers here secured an agreement from the company covering a number of their demands. The union is an A. F. of L. affiliate.

UNION LABEL TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

Newspapers frequently stoop to low practices to undermine or discredit individuals whom they wish to destroy. They can do this in innumerable ways by innuendo. Ever since the teachers' union was organized there has been a concerted attempt to discredit Stanton E. Smith, president of that union, simply for the purpose of destroying the teachers' union.

The method tried is to fasten a stigma of communism on that gentleman. Most adept at this questionable practice seems to be the editor of the Free Press, or whoever it is that writes the front page stories. If a Russian Red was to walk down Broad street, this paper would no doubt report that "Stanton E. Smith, president of the teachers' union, was also seen on Broad street." Nothing libelous about it, is it, yet it is all for the purpose of insinuating that Mr. Smith was arm in arm with Lenin and Trotsky.

In this week's issue of the throw sheet, the Fress Press, that super-American who writes stories for the paper, saw fit to single out Mr. Smith from a reported crowd of several hundred, and pronounced in flaring headlines that "Mrs. Myles Horton and Stanton Smith Led the Demonstration." Mrs. Horton, it is remembered, is a member of another pet bogey of the Free Press, the Monteagle Folk School, which is simply infested with bomb-throwing reds, according to the keeper of Americanism at the Free Press.

Although Mr. Smith was one of the hundreds of unionists in the "demonstration," along with the editor of this paper, he was in no sense the "leader" of the march. It would have been nothing to his discredit if he had been.

We say this to the Free Press and other red-phobia maniacs. Stanton E. Smith is a gentleman, he is honest, and he has the sincere respect and affection of the entire labor movement. He does not stoop to mud-slinging and knifing in the back.

Possibly one reason for the latest outburst against the terrible "mob" and "red" activity in the Bennett-Hubbard and Pound building strike on the part of the Free Press is due to the fact that Mr. J. M. Allen is related to the Free Press by marriage.

One thing is certain. No amount of mud-slinging, innuendo and clever slander can undermine Brother Smith. His intellectual ability dwarfs most of his reactionary critics, and if there is any idea extant that his leadership in his union can be destroyed, we suggest that a poll be taken among the teachers.

If there is any idea that such underhandedness can get Mr. Smith fired from his job, we suggest that it be abandoned as futile. His competency has been firmly established, and his Americanism needs no flag-waving or red-baiting to be convincing.

Political Eyes Directed On Labor

The coming state and county elections will not be solely a race between various candidates who wish to obtain office. Because of circumstances in the state elections the race is also one between organized labor and Boss Crump of Shelby county.

Organized labor indorsed Burgin E. Dossett for governor, who is opposed by Gordon Browning. Within a few weeks Mr. Ed Crump, of Memphis, announced that he was "agin" Dossett and for Browning. This puts the issue squarely up to Memphis labor in particular to demonstrate to the Tennessee movement if they really have proclaimed their independence or if they are unable to prevent the Memphis czar from herding the labor vote as he has been doing in previous elections.

FIVE UNIONS DECLARE SHELL OIL IS UNFAIR TO ORGANIZED LABOR

Five Unions Give Reasons For Holding Shell Guilty

Here Is Resolution Stating Reasons for "We Don't Patronize" Action.

Whereas, for a period of many years the Shell Oil company in the state of California maintained a company union in its refining, production, pipe line and automotive departments; and,

Whereas, following the passage of the national industrial recovery act and in line with the labor provisions of the petroleum code, an election among the employes of these divisions of the Shell Oil company was held; and,

Whereas, as a result of that election the petroleum labor policy board designated the following five international unions—International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America; International Association of Machinists; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Welders; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers—as representatives for collective bargaining for all of the employes of the Shell Oil company within these departments; and,

Whereas, in accordance with this decision by the petroleum labor policy board, the company entered into an agreement with the five international unions covering hours, wages and working conditions within all units of those operations, and this agreement being effective for one year commencing June 1, 1935; and,

Whereas, it became very apparent to the international unions that prior to the expiration of this agreement the company intended to return to a company union set-up; and,

Whereas, from all indications in the furtherance of this intention, the company is fostering a company representation plan for collective bargaining and that through misrepresentation and fear for economic security this program has resulted in coercion and intimidation of employes; and,

Whereas, a joint complaint was made to the national labor relations board by the five international unions on behalf of such employes; and,

Whereas, such complaint resulted in the Shell Oil company being cited to appear before that board and by request of the board they agreed to desist from their activities in the formation and recognition of a company union and to further bargain collectively with the representatives of the five international unions signatory hereto as representatives of their employes; and,

Whereas, in the face of this expression they met prior to June 25, 1936, with representatives of employes chosen through illegal means and did reach an agreement with these employes covering hours and working conditions, etc., for all departments of company operations; and,

Whereas, following the agreement reached on June 25, 1936, the company officials did meet with representatives of five international unions but refused to accept them as representatives of all employes, although the company had expressed compliance with such an order of the national labor relations board; and,

Whereas, the five international unions signatory hereto refused to become a party to the breaking or disregarding of a federal statute by meeting on the company's terms; and,

Whereas, in furtherance of this decision of the international unions these unions have used every available means to request that the company recede from its ultimatum as expressed to those unions; and,

Whereas, these unions believe the attitude of the officials of the Shell company is but the forerunner of a concerted drive and organized activity by the Shell Oil company to break down union ideals and union relationships through open defiance of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act as the law of the United States; and,

Whereas, these five international unions have once again filed charges with the national labor relations board alleging unfair labor practices against the Shell Oil company; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the five international unions signatory hereto declare the Shell Oil company unfair to our organizations; and be it further

Resolved, That we enlist the support and co-operation of the American Federation of Labor, the labor unions of British Columbia, and the state federations of labor of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and Arizona with their affiliated unions and friends in a "We Don't Patronize" campaign affecting the sale of Shell Oil company products in their territory and elsewhere where these products are sold.

Concern Waging War on Unionism, Labor Heads Say

Big Company Is Charged With Defying Labor Board Order and Threatening Union Employes with Discharge.

Washington. — Five International unions, led by the Oil Workers, have declared the Shell Oil company, formerly the Shell Company of California, unfair to organized labor. All organized workers and their friends are asked to withdraw their support from Shell Oil company products and to join in a "We Don't Patronize" campaign.

The Shell Oil company markets in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and British Columbia. State federations of labor in that area have been asked especially to join in the campaign.

The Shell Oil company is charged with violating the orders of the national labor relations board and defying the national labor relations act, by refusing to resume bargaining operations with the five international unions which have been declared the bargaining agencies and with which there was an agreement until its expiration date, June 1, this year.

Aggressive Action Planned.

Announcement of the action of the unions was made here jointly by President Harvey C. Fremming and International Executive Board Member J. C. Coulter. Coulter came here from California for the purpose and left immediately by airplane to return to take active charge on the ground.

The Oil Workers, supported by the other four international unions, the Machinists, Boilermakers, Electrical Workers and Blacksmiths, are determined to make their campaign against the Shell Oil company the most aggressive campaign of its kind ever waged.

The Shell Oil company maintained a company union for many years. Under NRA the picture changed and finally the company agreed to collective bargaining with the regular standard unions. But on June 1, the company refused to enter negotiations for renewal, it re-established its company union scheme and thus far has absolutely defied the national labor relations board's orders to resume negotiation with the unions.

Union Workers Threatened.

"The company is resorting to intimidation of the most vicious kind in pursuit of its determination to re-establish its company union," said J. C. Coulter. "It holds probability of discharge over the head of every union worker. We intend to rally the buying power of labor and its friends in support of the lawful right of workers to organize and to bargain collectively.

"The Shell Oil company is a member of one of the biggest oil groups in the world, but even though this is the case, we believe it must respond to the economic pressure that labor can put upon it through mobilization of labor dollars in a great united march away from all Shell filling stations. We ask that labor do nothing to the Shell Oil company, except stay away from it."

World Fight If Necessary.

The Shell Oil company is a subsidiary of the Shell Union Oil corporation, a holding company organized to consolidate the properties of the Royal Dutch Shell and Union Oil company in the California and mid-continent fields. There are fourteen Shell subsidiaries in the United States, but the union action is confined to the Shell Oil Company of California, the only Shell organization thus far to defy the law and refuse collective bargaining. Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, of London, is "top man" in the whole Shell organization in its worldwide operations.

The Oil Workers declare they will "carry the case around the world" if necessary to secure a return to observance of law and genuine collective bargaining.

Frank, to Say the Least

Capt. Gordon Browning, candidate for governor, is quoted as saying "I am going to take the graft out of the state treasury and put it in old age pensions."

Such frankness is refreshing, to say the least, although we cannot see how the public will be benefited by a transfer of graft from one fund to another.

Union label buying will help to retain your job and maintain your wages.

All the political ballyhoo does not amount to as much as the purchase of one union label article.

Locally, labor has broken precedent by concerting its action to a ticket. In the past a whole flock of candidates have been "approved," and as a result labor votes have been divided over a wide field. Consequently, the machines have been successful in naming their tickets time after time.

This year labor has a ticket. It is not a labor ticket, but it is a ticket of labor's friends. This does not mean that all other candidates not on its ticket are not friendly to labor, but it does mean that labor has agreed to support a specific group that will receive the solid support of its members. It is believed if this plan is carried out, labor should be assured of success at the polls.

The result of the election on Aug. 6 will indicate largely whether labor will revert back to the old system of entering into different political camps according to appointments given out, or whether labor will become an entity in itself.

BIG FREIGHT CAR ORDER.

San Francisco.—The Southern Pacific has ordered $8,000,000 worth of freight cars, the largest order which the company has given since 1929. Nearly 3,000 cars are in the order, which is distributed among seven steel companies. There are 1,750 steel-sheathed box cars and 500 steel-sheathed automobile cars in the list.

The Supreme Court may knock out the New Deal laws, but it can't find the union label unconstitutional!

The courts may halt us "On Our Way," but union label buying is the way out!

Hot dog! this columnist is traveling again. The party who won the grand prize (a big ham) sold it for two dollars before he got away from the picnic grounds. Look him up, Mack Ball, you know the contract says anyone handling or selling meat must be a member of Local 600.

I think Nick Zimmerman and his side-kick, Frank Webster, should be sent an itemized statement for their barbecue. I saw Nick eat three plates and Mr. and Mrs. Caniff said Frank ate between them and he ate two servings and then took half of Mrs. Caniff's plate.

Many thanks to Billie Bundschu, Fred Schenk and Charles Sherlin for their assistance with the wheel of fortune. I might add it is a good thing I am writing this instead of telling it because I am so hoarse you can hardly hear me talk.

John Phillips, secretary and treasurer for Local 600, rushed in in time to take charge of the money taken in on the wheel of fortune and the cold drinks, but when he was also presented with the bills his enthusiasm did not run so high.

* * *

My wife remarked to me when it was all over, that business picked up on the wheel of fortune when that funny looking fellow that acted like a monkey came in and started helping. I asked her who she meant and she said "the chunky fellow in a sun helmet looking like he just got back from hunting lions in Africa," and all the time she was trying to tell me it was Fred Schenk.

I might add in closing that the old family bathing trunks got in their good work, too, until Ira Lee got in them and then they shrunk up and were so tight he could not get out of them and I began to believe he would have to wear them home.

* * *

Again I repeat, a good time was had by all.

Don't Let "States' Rights" Fool You

Effort to Divert Attention from the Main Issue; Our Economic Problems Demand National, Not Local, Treatment

(An Editorial in "Labor")

Realizing that the "stand pat" members of the United States supreme court "overplayed their hand" in the New York minimum wage case, many reactionary leaders are loudly demanding a constitutional amendment specifically recognizing the states' right to enact minimum wage laws for women and children.

American workers should not be deceived by this gesture. It comes from men who applauded the supreme court when it slaughtered railroad pensions, farm relief, the NRA and similar progressive legislation which gave American producers something approaching a "square deal."

They want to divert attention from the main issue. They fear that the minimum wage decision was the straw which broke the camel's back and aroused in the people a determination to effectively curb the supreme court.

These reactionaries think they are very clever. They know it would require years to put over the innocuous amendment they suggest, but they hope that in the meantime the real issue—the job of compelling the supreme court, itself, to obey the plain letter of the constitution and thus abandon its usurped power to declare acts of congress unconstitutional—will be forgotten.

These reactionaries are clamoring for "states' rights." That's exactly the issue the reactionaries of 1860 raised when they were terrified by the prospect that Lincoln and the newborn republican party might free the slaves. A bloody civil war ended that particular battle over "states' rights," and the shackles were removed from the limbs of the black man.

Now the American people are facing an issue infinitely more important than that of slavery. The producers of this country—the farmers and the industrial workers—are demanding economic freedom. It is as clear as the sun at noonday that they can only attain their goal through national action.

Our financial and industrial dictators know that, and that is why they raise the cry: "Let the states do it." At the same time they battle to preserve the usurped privileges of the supreme court, feeling that tribunal is the Gibraltar of "special privilege."

At this critical juncture in the nation's affairs the hope of reform lies in the clear thinking and steady purpose of the masses of our people. They should not pay the slightest attention to advice coming from the reactionary camp. Instead, they should unfalteringly follow the banner of those progressive leaders who have served them so well in the past.

At this moment the reactionaries are "licked." They are desperately clinging to the old positions which for decades have given them command of the nation's financial and industrial life. A few more well-directed attacks under progressive leadership will turn their retreat into a rout.

The supreme court must be forced to obey the constitution and America's economic problems must be settled on a national basis.

Marine Engineer Charges Violation of Hours Law

Complaint Cites Watches of 12 to 15 Hours Within 24 Hours.

San Francisco.—Randolph Meriwether, a member of the national executive board of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association and business manager of Local 97, declared that in "continuing its drive to enforce observation of the federal statutes regulating the hours of work of licensed officers while ships are in port," the association has filed with the United States inspection service twenty-two affidavits charging violations of federal laws. These charges, he said, "concern illegal practices aboard the motorship 'Willmoto,' which is owned and operated by the Seekong corporation," adding:

"The affidavits were filed with the local and supervising inspections and allege continual violation of several sections of the revised statutes, particularly Section 4463, subsection 3, which limits the hours of work of engineers in port to nine within any twenty-four.

"Instances of watches of 12 to 15 hours within twenty-four were common in these twenty-two complaints. These charges are typical of violations which have been occurring repeatedly over a period of years. In New York harbor, as early as 1916, similar charges were held to be violations of the statutes by the inspection service.

"The Marine Engineers' Beneficial association is calling the attention of the steamboat inspection service to this situation and is submitting copies of these affidavits to Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and his national committee on safety at sea. This committee, which is conducting an investigation of conditions aboard ship and at sea, will, we are sure, be very much interested in these unwarranted violations of the statutes designed to insure such safety."

The Lords of Wealth Never Liked Unions

What, Then, About Those Who Fight for the Label On Some Things and Never Look for It On Other Things?

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

Certain dynastic accumulations of wealth and power have grown up in the United States and around them there has formed a ring of public opinion which is critical, hostile and mighty intelligent.

Perhaps the first of these was the Rockefeller structure called Standard Oil. Hate of Standard Oil reached its peak with the Ludlow massacre. Then Standard Oil hired Ivy Lee and the Rockefellers, pere and fils, were put through a series of paces calculated to turn away wrath.

In the group we should have to include Morgan, for while he is on the surface a banker, he has his finger in as many industrial pies as anybody in the United States. Once no anti-Big Biz cartoon was complete without a huge Morgan dressed in clothes marked with dollar signs.

Steel looms large in the picture, with Carnegie and Baer and Frick, the latter immersed also in coal; and with Judge Gary. Today's steel policies follow the lines they marked down, lines that have scarcely changed the dot of an "i" since Homestead.

Mellon belongs in any such picture, with his far-flung empire of money and industries—aluminum and Gulf Oil.

These men put empires of wealth together, without regard to what happened to men in the process. Trace the building of Standard Oil, of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem; and of the great aluminum combine.

Certain of the coal barons and some of the copper kings belong in the catalogue.

And then came the financial thimble riggers who put together such outfits as Associated Gas and Electric, Electric Bond and Share, the Insull fantasy—the holding company crowd who made ten shares—or more—grow where one grew before, or where only blue sky loomed before; some of them easily within the law, some not so easily.

Into the picture throw the Big Four tobacco companies, which form a mirror for just about all the exploiting labor practices in the catalogue.

The story is the same—enormous profits at the top—the meanest wages at the bottom; and no security, no unionizing allowed—just industrial feudalism.

Look at this picture and you see pretty much the consolidated opposition to labor unions.

Union men help them to maintain their position and their power by buying their products. It is one of the great contradictions in American life.

Men who fight for the union label on clothes never think of asking for it on a cigarette.

One of the most powerful weapons in the hands of labor is in the spending of money. Labor has a right to spend its money for the products of union workers. More than that, it is a matter of principle and duty.

The grip of tyranny can be shaken if labor will use its buying power to the full limit for the purchase of things made by union labor working for fair and friendly manufacturers.

Have a cigarette? It's union made. And let's think this thing over among us.

The Labor World Reaches Thousands of the Highest Paid Workers in Chattanooga

Mr. Advertiser, This Should Mean Something to You

Think It Over!

What Next!

Russia is extending the use of electricity on the farm by using what is virtually an extension cord for plows and other agricultural implements. The government has established a widespread system of power sub-stations, and the machine industry is busy making electric plows, tractors and other machines. A big bobbin is mounted above the machines to carry the cable providing the current.

Wisdom

Why should we grope among the dry bones of the past, or put the living generation into masquerade out of its faded wardrobe?—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

MULTIPLY TEACHERS' VOTE

A letter will be sent out from the federation office giving official notification of the recommendations of Labor's Political Conference. When you have received this, it is not enough to decide that you will cast your vote for the recommended candidates. Every teacher should be able to put five votes besides his own in the L. P. C. column at the very least. Let's get politically conscious and talk our candidates and our cause to everybody we meet between now and Aug. 6.

It would be well if each teacher would find out who labor's ward or precinct captain is and work in harmony with him. If you don't know the captain for your precinct call Mr. Cox at L. P. C. headquarters (6-8910). Also visit these headquarters as frequently as possible, in order to keep in touch with the progress of the campaign.

STICK TO SALARY DEMANDS

Some hint has been given that the county administration is willing to give a small raise to teachers but is unwilling to use the teachers' salary law provisions as the basis for it. Any arrangement that leaves the salary law provisions out of consideration is bound to be unsatisfactory to the teachers. These provisions were worked out by the teachers themselves, and no substitute worked out without consulting the teachers or their representatives will be acceptable.

BEER TAXED ONE BILLION DOLLARS IN THREE YEARS

The large capacity of the beed indutry to pay taxes, which, of course, are passed on to beer consumers, is revealed in a survey by the United States Brewers' association showinf that from April 7, 1933, to June 1, 1936, federal, state and municipal governments have collected taxes on this beverage amounting to $964,394,405.87. It is probable that complete figures for June will raise the taxes above a billion dollars for thirty-eight months—a monthly tax bill of $26,300,000.

Anti-Union "Big Four" Using Fewer and Fewer Workers, As Production Steadily Goes Up

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The Big Four tobacco companies are probably the most expert gougers of labor of all the "economic royalists" with which this country is afflicted. In this particular, steel is bad, and textiles, especially cotton textiles, are rotten; but the Big Four tobacco companies have been putrescent for years, and are getting more so.

It is much to be regretted that tobacco statistics, whether gathered by government bureaus or by outside agencies, make no distinctions in most cases between the independent tobacco companies and the Big Four. The difference is simple, it is the difference between light and darkness. The independents, or most of them, deal with labor unions, pay union wages, and generally set some of the highest standards known in manufacturing. The Big Four do none of these things. They pay some of their necessary workers—the stemmers—the lowest wages known in America. They are definitely anti-union; and their standards, even during the NRA, were the lowest that they could get by with.

Employment Index Drops.

It is necessary to remember that the Big Four have about 80 per cent of the tobacco business in this country. With that in mind, here are some significant figures:

Taking 1923 to 1925 as 100 in production, employment and payrolls, the combined index of employment in the tobacco industry in May of this year was 56.7. In other words, for every 100 persons which the tobacco industry employed in the years from 1923 to 1925, both included, that industry now employs not quite 57 persons. The other 43 have found different jobs or are out of work altogether.

Records of Independents Better.

The index, as, the reader was warned before, would be lower still if it were not for the influence of the independent companies. Something of this may be shown by breaking the tobacco industry into two parts. In the manufacture of chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, the Big Four are not quite so dominant as in other branches of the industry. As a result, the index of employment in making snuff, smoking and chewing tobacco stood last May at 64.6. In cigars and cigarettes, the latter overwhelmingly dominated by the Big Four, the index of employment was 55.7.

The payroll figures tell an even worse tale. For cigars and cigarettes, workers in May, 1936, were getting only 44.2 cents for every dollar paid them in 1923-25. In factories making chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, the payroll index was much better—the workers there got 67.3 cents out of each 1923-25 dollar.

Workers Displaced, Pay Cut.

These figures are from the bureau of labor statistics. The bureau does not give production figures. For these, we must go to the federal reserve board, which tells us that the tobacco industry in May of this year was turning out 45 per cent more goods than in the 1923-25 period.

There we have it. The Big Four use every bit of machinery they can, not only to displace workers, but to beat down wages of the workers who are retained.

Putrid? Yes, and then some. Fight it by demanding union-made products.

Trade Commission to Fight Unfair Price Rebates Given Chain Stores

Federal Agency Tackles New Job Given It Under Patman Bill, Designed to Stop Discrimination by Manufacturers and Others in Favor of Certain Retail Dealers.

By ELIOT HARRIS

Washington—The federal trade commission, second oldest of the special agencies created by the federal government to keep big business from hogging everything in sight, was handed a new job by the last congress, and is getting ready to move dirt—no insinuation intended—on this project.

The new job was conferred by the Patman bill, designed to stop discriminations in prices by manufacturers and others who supply the retail trade. An investigation conducted by Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, whose name is attached to the bill, showed that big purchasers such as chain stores and mail order houses get lower prices on almost all goods than those charged independent retail merchants, no matter how big the latter may be.

This favoritism is forbidden by the new law; and the federal trade commission is given the task of enforcing that law. William T. Kelly, chief counsel of the FTC, has been directed to make an exhaustive study of the measure, and report. That report is expected to be ready soon; and meantime, the FTC, officially speaking, ain't sayin' nothin'.

Seek to Get Around Law.

Stories are going the rounds that lawyers of the chain store and mail order houses have already laid plans to circumvent the law. Sears Roebuck, the big mail order house, for example, got a special low price on tires from the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company which enabled Sears to undersell all rivals. The FTC issued an order to the Goodyear to cease and desist from such discrimination; and the Goodyear has taken the case to the federal courts.

The story now circulating in Washington is that Sears will buy the rubber and other materials for tires, and hire the Goodyear concern to make them. It is believed in some circles that this will permit any degree of discrimination without being subject to the law. The FTC says nothing. The best judgment that one can find, however, is that even this clever trick can be stopped.

A. & P. Biggest Sinner.

Another story is that the A. & P. chain of stores will manufacture its own labels, and "sell" to the manufacturers who make goods for the A. & P. at such prices as to give the store chain a very substantial rebate. No authoritative opinion could be secured on this matter, but the success of the A. & P. in getting rebates up to date has been phenomenal, and the luck may last.

The favorite dodge for getting and giving rebates without being caught is the "advertising allowance." The firm making Eagle chocolate, for instance, was giving the A. & P. $1,500 a month as "advertising allowance," but there was not a word of testimony to show that the A. & P. advertised that chocolate more than they would do anyway in their own interest. It was just a rebate, which gave the chain store an unfair advantage over all competitors.

The facts uncovered, partly by the Patman hearings, more by the investigation some three years back by the FTC, show the A. & P. the biggest gatherer of rebates thus far uncovered. The Patman committee published a list of some 350 manufacturers who gave price advantages to the A. & P., usually disguised as "advertising allowances." The list is in alphabetical order; it starts with Airy Fairy Cake Flour and ends with Zion Independent Baked Goods.

Other Big Rebates.

Eagle Chocolate, as already said, gave the A. & P. $1,500 a month, Burnham & Morrill company gave $287.75 a month, plus a 5 per cent allowance on advertising. Chappel dog food paid 5 per cent advertising allowance, and 5 per cent "brokerage." Arbuckle Brothers, $200 a month, flat, and 5 per cent. Brillo Manufacturing company, 10 per cent advertising allowance. Prescott polishes, $12,000 flat each year.

Standard Brands, one of the mergers of the House of Morgan, pays A. & P. $350,000 a year in rebates, according to the congressional committee; and General Foods corporation pays $360,000. All told, the A. & P. seems to be getting rebates of around $8,000,000 a year—which would pay good dividends without a cent of fair profits.

Decidedly, the trade commission is going to find warm opposition when it starts out to stop privilege as profitable as that.

MORE ABOUT HOMESTEAD

called it Fort Frick. Three hundred Pinkertons, fully armed, and gathered as usual from the slums of eastern cities, were put on barges in Ohio, and shipped by river to Homestead on July 6.

The strikers got wind of this, went to the dock, smashed the 15-foot fence that guarded it, and refused to let the Pinkertons land. The answer was a volley from the barges. The steel workers answered bullets with bullets. Ten men were killed, seven of them strikers, and 60 wounded. The Pinkertons finally surrendered, and were marched through the town. It must be admitted that some of them were badly beaten, mostly by the women of the strikers' families; but the story that they were murdered after surrendering is one of a large number of lies.

Strike Finally Beaten.

The strikers policed the town till several thousand state soldiers of the national guard came in. The strikers were crushed by the combined weight of arms and money against them. When almost at their last gasp, Edward Paxson, chief justice of the Pennsylvania supreme court, came to Pittsburgh, ordered the arrest of 27 union men for treason; and hectored the grand jury into voting 168 indictments against the strikers. He presided at the trials of some of these, but the juries absolutely refused to convict, and before long this piece of judicial devilment was dropped.

A favorite charge by Frick supporters were that the skilled men in the plant got from $10 to 950 a day, and one of them $13,000 a year. Actually, the highest paid man in the plant got $280 a month for part of the year, and he stood alone on that eminence.

Carnegie's Liberal Statement.

Desperate efforts were made to reach Carnegie, who had written in the Forum, August, 1886, as follows:

"To expect that one dependent on his daily wage will stand by peaceably and see a new man employed in his stead is to expect much. This poor man may have a wife and children dependent on his labor. Whether medicine for a sick child or nourishing food for an ailing wife is procurable, depends on his steady employment.

"In all but a very few departments of labor, it is unnecessary and I think improper to subject men to such an ordeal. . . . The employer of labor will find it much more to his interest, wherever possible, to allow his works to remain idle and await the result of a dispute than to employ a class of men that can be induced to take the place of other men who have stopped work.

"Neither the best men as men, nor the best men as workers, are thus to be obtained. There is an unwritten law among the best workmen: 'Thou shalt not take thy neighbor's job.'"

Only six years after writing this statement, Carnegie hid out in his Scotch castle, and let Frick bludgeon his workers into submission.

LABOR'S TICKET DRAWN UP FOR ELECTION ON AUG. 6 INTEREST RUNNING HIGH

Races for Governor and Legislature Seem to Be Occupying Limelight—Possibility of Success Very Bright.

Registering of Many Hundreds of CCC Boys in Wauhatchie District Looked on as Machine Effort to Cram the Vote.

With election day only seven days off, Labor's Political Conference has set up headquarters at 715 Cherry street to direct a campaign to elect those candidates approved by a great majority of local American Federation unions and railway brotherhoods. The conference was set up about one year ago in order to allow labor to enter politics in a united and concerted manner, thus abandoning past custom of labor splitting its votes over a wide field and losing everything.

In the primary elections some months ago this method appears to be very effective, in that the ticket drawn up in the city was nominated.

In the coming race labor is mainly interested in the lower house of the legislature and the race for governor. Burgin E. Dossett is being opposed by labor's new enemy, Boss Crump, of Shelby county, who is backing Capt. Gordon Browning. Capt. Browning has had a bad record while he was a member of congress, and he has emphatically expressed opposition to the ratification of the child labor amendment. Dossett has received the endorsement of all organized labor in Tennessee. Railroad men are becoming particularly opposed to Browning because evidence has been brought forth to show that he was employed by the railroads to lobby against their retirement pension bill.

The selection for members of the county court in the First district is W. F. Langley, Hays Clark, J. W. Johnston and H. F. Caulkins.

Aymon Reviews Browning Record As Congressman

Says He Will Have to Stand or Fall on His Labor History.

Crump's Candidate Fought Child Labor Bill and Wanted to Turn TVA Over to Power Companies.

Paul J. Aymon, former chairman of the legislative committee for the Tennessee Federation of Labor, yesterday called on every trades unionist to look over Capt. Gordon Browning's labor record while in congress, and asked how could any working man support the man that Mr. Crump, of Memphis, is supporting. It will be recalled that a few months ago Mr. Crump dissolved by decree four local unions that were in the Memphis courthouse. He ordered all employes to drop their union membership or give up their jobs.

Aymon's Statement.

"Allow me to remind those who toil about some of Mr. Browning's record during his congressional activities. He had an opportunity to vote for sixteen labor bills while he was in congress from 1924 to 1934. On these measures he voted favorably on only eight bills, unfavorable, seven, and not voting one, which only gives him a 50 per cent. record, and some of the bills that he voted against were some of labor's most important bills, such as the child labor amendment, one of

United States Civil Service Examination

The United States civil service commission announces open competitive examinations for filling vacancies in the following positions in the bureau of marine inspection and navigation, department of commerce: Master, $2,900 a year; mate, $2,000 a year; chief engineer (marine Diesel), $2,000 a year, for which the receipt of applications closes Aug. 8, 1936. All requirements are specified in the formal announcement.

Full information and application forms may be obtained from the secretary, board of U. S. civil service examiners, at the postoffice in this city.

Why support Hitlerites, fascimites and other "ism-ites" by buying foreign goods when you can support 100 per cent Americans by purchasing union label products?

Why Should Not All Violence Be Deplored?

The recent slugging of Sanford Bennett, whose candy plant has been on strike for two months, is deplored by labor as deeply as any other group. The slugging was apparently done by a maniac, who, although a "worker," was in no way connected with the strikers or local unionists. It is perfectly proper that the daily papers and civic clubs should express indignation over the black deed—every right thinking citizen, whether a union man or non-union, feels the same way about it.

However, members of organized labor feel very aggrieved because this slugging was immediately laid at the door of the union. It resents the impassioned editorial indictments hurled toward it when a manufacturer becomes the victim of a person who apparently allowed the unfair attitude of Mr. Bennett to so prey on his mind that he lost all sense of reason and humanity.

It should justly be remembered that manufacturers are not immune from unlawful and bestial acts on the part of their class of people. It is true that seldom does a manufacturer personally shoot down a worker. He either hires a gunman or deputy to do it, or he inflames professional scabs to start a riot. The disgraceful affair at Gadsden, where Dalrymple and numerous members of the rubber workers' union were beaten and stomped until nearly dead is still fresh in our minds. As yet we have not heard of a single civic club or daily paper shouting that the Gadsden Chamber of Commerce should "hang its head in shame."

Right here at home, at Rockwood, three bona fide A. F. of L. organizers were kidnaped and beaten by hired thugs. Outside of a passing comment, there was no fire of indignation fanned by the bosses and their civic clubs.

When Pinkey Walker, a union hosiery worker, was shot down in cold blood by a scab, in an obvious frame-up, it was just one of the "fortunes of war" that was passed by hurriedly.

In the street car strike years ago a union man by the name of Massengale was killed by company gunmen in broad daylight. When Jeff May calmly walked up to defenseless Joe Dobbs and shot him down did we hear the papers calling on the candy company to "hang its head in shame?"

When the boss commits violence every hour of day by depriving babies of milk and sick wives and children of medical attention, simply to increase profits, who is there to protest that form of barbarism other than organized labor?

Organized labor deplores all such violence. It makes no mitigating defense of the slugging of Sanford Bennett. Labor does think, however, that a careful check will show that for every boss that is hurt by a maddened worker, there are at least a thousand instances where workers are murdered, beaten, tear-gassed, dispossessed and starved by the bosses.

Let's be fair about this thing! Punish the Bennett slugger, whoever it is. Also punish and decry against the Gadsden sluggers, the Rockwood kidnapers, the Massengale gangsters, the Pinky Walker assassin, the would-be killer, May, and the deputy gunmen. Murder is murder, wherever found, and there is no degree of society which makes one murderer less vicious than the other.

Wage and Hour Law for Government Contracts Goes Into Effect Sept. 28

Secretary of Labor Perkins Annuonces Regulations, Under Walsh-Healy Bill, Designed to Establish Fair Labor Conditions on Work Performed for the United States

Washington. — The Walsh-Healey act imposing wage and hour restrictions and other definite labor standards on firms contracting with the government will go into effect Sept. 28, according to an announcement by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who will administer the measure. The announcement followed conferences held by Miss Perkins with representative labor leaders, industrialists and procurement officers of the government.

The new law stipulates that manufacturers or dealers who bid on government contracts must agree to establish an eight-hour day and 40-hour work week, stop using convict and child labor and provide sanitary and safe working conditions.

The law also requires that contractors shall pay not less than the minimum wages prevailing in the locality as determined by the secretary of labor.

In view of the fact that the entire organized labor movement backed the law in its course through congress and outstanding anti-union employers' associations bitterly fought it, the statement of Miss Perkins relative to the enforcement of the measure is of great importance.

Sweatshop Goods Banned.

"Contracts awarded pursuant to invitations for bids on and after Sept. 28 will be based on proposals containing the stipulations required by the act," she said. "These include a representation by the contractor that he is a manufacturer or regular regular dealer with respect to the subject matter of the contract, that employes engaged in work under the contract will not be employed for longer than eight hours a day or 40 hours a week, that convict labor and child labor will not be used and that no part of the contract will be performed, nor the material furnished or manufactured under working conditions which are insanitary or hazardous. The law fundamentally is designed to prevent the purchase of sweatshop goods by the government.

Minimum Prevailing Wage Procedure.

"Under the previsions of the act the secretary of labor has been directed to ascertain minimum wages prevailing in the locality in industries or groups of industries performed in government contract work.

Central Labor Union Condemns Slugging of Sanford Bennett; Asserts Confidence In Dobbs

Whereas, on Saturday afternoon, July 25, Sanford Bennett, one of the owners of the Bennett-Hubbard Candy Company, whose employes have been on strike for some two months, was brutally and cold-bloodedly assaulted with a baseball bat by parties not yet convicted of the crime; and

Whereas, Organized Labor of Chattanooga has been fighting Mr. Bennett's company to obtain what it believed was just and fair, and has been fighting him in every way it believed honorable; and

Whereas, the attack on Mr. Bennett last Saturday was done by some one, or caused to be done by some one, without the advance knowledge, consent or connivance, to the best of our knowledge, of anyone responsible for the carrying on of the strike, and such an attack has caused a wave of indignation to sweep through the ranks of organized labor as well as among all decent citizens; therefore be it

Resolved, by Chattanooga Central Labor Union, in regular session, That we deplore this dastardly assault; that we grieve with Mr. Bennett's family and his personal friends, although we have been opposing him in his industrial policy; be it further

Resolved, That we pledge to the public that if there should be the faintest possibility that someone who is within our jurisdiction should be proven to be guilty of being party to such a deed, either directly or by consent, that we will expel him from our membership and take such other steps as we may find available to bring him to justice; and be it further

Resolved, That we ask the public to withhold judgment on our labor movement for this crime until guilt is fixed; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread on our minutes, copies be given to the daily papers and a copy be printed in The Labor World.

Point Out, However, That When Unionists Are Killed or Slugged, It Is "Regretted."

Public Asked Not to Convict Labor Movement Because of Acts Over Which It Has No Control.

Central Labor union last Monday evening condemned the "brutal slugging" of Sanford Bennett, one of the owners of the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company, last Saturday afternoon. It was pointed out in the resolution passed that although organized labor had been "opposing him in his industrial policy," it did not condone such tactics used by a rank outsider, and that organized labor did not propose or never had slipped behind people with baseball bats.

Much hue and cry had been raised by the daily papers, which said that "organized labor was hanging its head in shame" over the slugging. Delegates asserted that their heads were not hanging in shame over an act which they were in no way connected or responsible, but that it did grieve such an act occurred.

Other delegates expressed amazement over what they considered an insincere sentiment on the part of the papers over such violence. It seems that in the past unionists have been murdered in Chattanooga, beaten and slugged, and on those occasions the bosses were not told to hang their heads in shame. In fact, it appears to be open season on working people, they said, and guilt is never fixed on manufacturers.

It was pointed out that such slugging could not have helped the strikers in their fight, but that such a deed was of inestimable value to the bosses. It is not beyond belief that some of our more radical and cold-blooded bosses staged the slugging of their brother industrialist in order to turn the public against labor. The fact that Mr. Bennett will be able to be out and about in a few days, in spite of the fact that the assailant was supposed to have hit him with a blow that would have knocked a baseball for a home run, indicates th the assailant was not so brutal as first appeared.

BOSSES EMPLOY VIOLENCE MORE THAN ANY GROUP

Yet It Is Practically Ignored by Daily Press—Instances Are Cited.

When an Employer Is Hit, Unions Are Immediately Charged With Responsibility, Says Committee.

Acting under instructions from Central Body, the resolutions committee of that organization issued a statement Wednesday which called attention to the public that labor is always accused of any form of violent tactics in which an employer or a scab is hurt, and that a great wave of indignation is stirred up by the daily press in an effort to discredit the labor movement.

On the other hand, the committee pointed out that the frequent slugings, murders and mayhem committed on union members and union organizers are almost ignored by these papers.

The statement was caused after action was taken by Central Body which deplored the slugging of Sanford Bennett, candy manufacturer, but at the same time resented editorial comments that "labor should hang its head in shame."

The resolutions committee's report follows:

"In the Free Press of Sunday, July 26; the Chattanooga Times of Monday, July 27, and the Chattanooga News of Monday, July 27, editorials appeared concerning the assault upon Sanford Bennett. The Chattanooga Central Labor union in a resolution adopted tonight condemned violence in general and this case in particular. Organized labor is opposed to the use of violence, but it wishes to point out that in a ma-

POUND BUILDING STRIKE SETTLED BY SIGNED PACT

Laborers' Union To Be Recognized Oct. 1 — Union Contractor Assumes Job for Owners.

Presumed Work Will Be Started in Few Days—Agreement Satisfactory to Building Trades.

The strike which has been raging at the Pound building for some three weeks was satisfactorily settled early Thursday morning, according to representatives of the building trades crafts.

Terms of settlement were reached, it is said, after the job of remodeling was assumed by Lee Worlick, a contractor who has always employed union craftsmen. The unions signed a letter to Mr. Worlick which notified him there would be no further trouble on the project as long as the usual union conditions were lived up to by him.

The laborers' union took part in the settlement at a wage rate of 30 cents per hour on this job after recognition was granted to be effected as of Oct. 1. The contractor agrees to employ all laborers through the business agent of the union.

The laborers' union, it is agreed, is to notify all contractors that a wage scale of 45 cents per hour will be demanded, to be put into effect on October 1.

BRICKLAYERS WIN AGREEMENT

Windsor, Ontario.—A 40-hour week and 90 cents an hour are provided for in this district by an agreement which the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International union made with employers. For overtime the rate is doubled.

Steel Company Union Joins A. F. of L. Union in Body

Chicago.—An entire company union in the East Chicago, Ind., plant of the Carnegie Steel corporation has joined the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, Van A. Bittner, regional director of the Steel Workers' organization committee, announced here. The 3,000 members voted to join the bona fide union after listening to an address by Bittner.

"It was the first time since the inception of the union drive that an entire company union has joined our organization," Bittner said.

"All of our organizers are making headway in the Calumet steel district and our operations will be extended to Waukegan, Milwaukee and St. Louis."

The men who swung over to the A. F. of L. were members of the employes' representation plan, Bittner said.

When taxpayers buy foreign-made products they prolong paying taxes for relief in America.

See that the union label is on your bread and you'll decrease the breadlines.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

LABOR'S TICKET.

Teachers will probably have received by now the letter from Labor's Political Conference naming the Labor Ticket. In the first two endorsements on the ticket the L. P. C. followed the recommendations of Labor's Non-Partisan Committee for the state-wide election. Dossett, a prominent teacher, was chosen over Browning because of his better labor record and because of his more wholehearted support for New Deal legislation in the interests of labor and the common man.

For Railway and Public Utilities Commissioner Mr. Leon Jourolmon, of Knoxville, was endorsed. In this case labor could not have picked a better man to back. Mr. Jourolmon has an enviable record for integrity, and the utility interests will not be able to control him. He is, moreover, a man of wide reading and cosmopolitan intelligence. We need more men in official positions like him.

In the race for the state senate both candidates were declared satisfactory to labor. This should please us teachers, for we owe a huge debt of gratitude to both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Bean. Both were instrumental in passing the tenure and salary laws. A choice between them is so difficult that some teachers are said to be asking if they can't cast half a vote to each.

For the lower house the conference endorsed Mr. D. M. Coleman, Mr. H. G. B. King and Mr. John T. Mahoney. Teachers owe the same debt of gratitude to Mr. Coleman that we owe to Messrs. Bean and Morgan. Mr. King has served the labor movement for some time as attorney, devoting his time unstintedly to protecting the rights of union members, often with little or no pay. Mr. Mahoney is a member of the Musicians' union and a young lawyer of a wholesome reputation about town.

In the J. P. races all endorsed candidates have shown a favorable attitude toward providing funds to put the provisions of the recently annulled salary law into effect. In the city the favored candidates are W. F. Langley, Hays Clark and J. W. Johnston, and H. B. Caulkins. In the Second district the fight on Mr. Camp was withdrawn and Mr. T. M. Walker was endorsed. Two good union men are the favored candidates in the Third district: Our Federation's own Brother Willard Millsaps and Brother Felix Hamil, of the Moving Picture Operators.

OUR JOB.

For the sake of our own Federation and for the sake of the labor movement we must stick together and work like Trojans to put labor's ticket across. Every teacher should not only vote himself, he should also personally see that five friends or relatives, at least, get to the polls and know how to vote right. If there are any ward and precinct meetings in your territory, attend them. Get in touch with your ward chairman and offer your services. Call Labor's Political Conference (6-8910) for any information on voting needed. Let's stick together and win.

Philadelphia Law Fixing Barbers' Hours Is Voided

Philadelphia, Pa.—The section of a Philadelphia ordinance which requires barber shops to close at 8 p.m. weekdays and 9 p.m. on Saturdays and prohibits Sunday operation was declared unconstitutional in a decision handed down here by Judge George Gowen Parry.

He upheld the provisions of the ordinance for maintenance of sanitary conditions in barber shops, but on the hours limitation declared:

"The number of hours a barber shop may open bears no direct relation to public health or safety. The contention that adequate inspection will be impossible if the shops are open all hours is manifestly untenable."

Judge Parry based his decision on the principle that the city council "is subject to limitation in the same degree as the legislature in attempting to regulate private business."

Goodyear Co. Charged With Aiding Attack On Rubber Workers Union

Labor Board Says Firm "Encouraged" Flying Squadrons to Mob Unionists at Gadsden, Ala.

Washington.—In a strongly-worded complaint the national labor relations board charged the Goodyear Rubber company "with complicity in three separate assaults at Gadsden, Ala., on members and organizers of the United Rubber Workers of America."

The board declared that "Goodyear foremen, supervisors, and 'flying squadron' members were encouraged by the company to make the attacks, one on S. H. Dalrymple, the rubber workers' president."

The board also charged that a second attack was made "on the workers within the walls of the Goodyear Gadsden plant, and a third on eleven union members trapped in a Gadsden office building by a mob which smashed down the door and beat the unarmed men."

The attack on Dalrymple took place on June 6, while he was speaking at a union meeting in Gadsden. He was badly beaten, refused protection by the municipal authorities and forced to leave Gadsden without medical aid.

The third attack took place a number of days later shortly after a number of officials and organizers of the United Rubber Workers and a representative of the American Federation of Labor were taken from the union's office in Gadsden, severely mauled by the mob and compelled to leave town.

Turns Company Union Into Gangsters

The board's complaint charges that the Goodyear company "tolerates and permits representatives and senators of the industrial assembly (a company union) to maltreat, inflict bodily injury and commit assault upon Gadsden plant employes who are members of the United Rubber Workers of America and upon representatives of this union."

An organization promoted by the company in Akron, Ohio, known as the Stahl-Mate club, is permitted to collect dues and solicit members during working hours in the company's plants there, the complaint says. The board holds that this club exists for the purpose of disrupting the membership of the United Rubber Workers.

Mob Members Identified.

As participants in the mob attack on Dalrymple the board identified representatives of the Goodyear "industrial assembly" from the Gadsden plant, supervisors, foremen and members of the Gadsden flying squadron, the latter consisting of specially trained men employed to perform any operation in the plant in case of strikes or other suspensions. Goodyear officials did not discipline its special employes for the part taken in the assault, the board said.

Two days later, according to the complaint, the company permitted certain employes to attack members of the Gadsden local of the union while at work in the Gadsden plant. The board also identified Goodyear employes as participants in the third attack on June 25.

GOODYEAR SUED BY UNION HEAD

Birmingham, Ala.—Suit for $500,000 damages has been filed in U. S. district court by Sherman H. Dalrymple, of Akron, O., president of the United Rubber Workers of America, against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

The union official charged assault and battery was committed upon him by agents, servants or employes of the defendant while acting within the line and scope of their employment.

The suit was based on a savage mob attack on Dalrymple at Gadsden, Ala., June 6.

1-Man Street Cars Hit By Washington Unions

Washington.—Strong denunciation of the proposal to substitute one-man for two-man street cars in the nation's capital was made before the public utilities commission by William W. Keeler, public utilities chairman of the Central Labor union, who testified that delegates from 164 unions, with 97,000 members, had unanimously voted against one-man cars and directed him to attend the hearing and testify against them.

"Labor is opposed," said Keeler, "to imposing two men's work on one man at any time. It is obvious that the operator of a one-man car will have to do 75 per cent more work than if he were on a two-man car.

"There is no doubt that extension of the one-man system will reduce the number of men employed on the street cars. It will take away one-half of the employment opportunities of street car platform men.

"It is part of the stretch-out system which the present federal administration opposes in an effort to stop curtailment of employment."

The Capital Transit company, which has a monopoly of street car and bus transportation in the District of Columbia, wants the public utilities commission to permit the extension of one-man street cars in order to cut down operating expenses and thus increase profits.

RAILWAY CLERKS INDORSE ROOSEVELT'S RE-ELECTION

Cincinnati.—The Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes has indorsed President Roosevelt for re-election, George M. Harrison, grand president, announced here.

The organization has more than 100,000 members.

ROAD UNDER RAIL LABOR ACT.

The interstate commerce commission has ruled that the Hudson & Manhattan railroad, operating between New York City, Jersey City and Hoboken, N. J., falls within provisions of the railway labor act. Handed down at the request of the national mediation board, the ruling said that the interstate character of the road excludes it from exemption provisions of the act.

Arkansas Sharecroppers Strike Ended by Union

Memphis, Tenn.—The executive council of the Southern Tenant Farmers' union announced the end of the strike among tenant farmers, sharecroppers and farm laborers in eastern Arkansas with definite gains for labor as a result of the walkout.

The strike was characterized by attempts on the part of Arkansas courts and plantation owners to victimize representatives of the union and drive them out of the state. Charges of flogging and other violence in connection with the movement prompted a federal investigation of these concerted efforts to deprive citizens of the United States of their civil rights by terrorism.

"Over a wide area, we won an average wage of $1 a day for day labor," the executive council of the union said in a statement on the strike. "In some counties," the statement continued, "we won $1.25 for a 10-hour day. For the first time in the history of the union, a number of union contracts were signed with smaller landowners. The strike is only the beginning of the struggle of the disinherited to come into their own."

The Boy Grows Up.

Our home is all a-bustle,
Mother has to hustle,
Though sister needs her help she has to wait;
There's a suit in need of pressing,
and a call for help in dressing,
For Sonny has grown up and has a date.

We remember once when Sonny
As a human was quite funny,
For his clothes were seldom neat or clean or straight;
Now he gets his whitest collar
And he raises such a holler
If his things are not just right; he has a date.

His manners grow assuming
And his hair gets much grooming,
Now he walks with carriage most sophisticate;
We have lost the little fellow
With his rush and squeal and bellow—
For Sonny's now a man; he has a date.

TRIMMINGS

By HAM-BURGER

Well, Well! The other day I was day-dreaming, and, memories of days gone by in the history of Local 600 flashed before me. I'm sure the old-timers will agree that many interesting things happened then.

A lot of you people may think I'm a youngster at this union game, but I have been a member since 1923. I helped my dad and a few old-timers put Local 600 charter in Chattanooga.

I remember before there was an organization here my dad and I would go to the stock yards at 3 o'clock in the morning, get his beef, haul it in, butcher and dress it, then open the market at 5 a.m. During week-days we worked until 8 o'clock, except Saturday, on which we worked until midnight. On Sunday we opened at 8 and closed at noon.

One Sunday afternoon dad was sitting in a chair reading the paper, when one of my younger brothers asked, who that man was hanging around the house (meaning my father).

When Local 600 organized, the first thing they did was to pass a law against selling meats on Sunday. To help enforce that law, the president appointed a committee of six to visit markets that were open on Sunday, make a purchase, then swear out warrants. I accompanied Walt Axmacher and D. D. Brewer (my dad) to a market and much to my surprise the president was the first man they caught and fined. (Note, fine $3.)

The second man caught was the vice-president. He also paid the enormous fine. We entered a market on Central avenue, which seemed to be doing a rushing business. We fell in line to make our purchase. D. D. bought 15 cents worth of pork chops and started out, when Walt said: "Wait a minute, Dennis, this isn't a butcher shop, it's a bootlegging joint." He then turned to the proprietor: "If you'll give us a pint of liquor for these pork chops we won't have you arrested." Well, Walt got his liquor, but the proprietor also paid his fine.

A committee was also appointed to call on all meat-cutters attending non-union barber shops. Again, the president was the first one called on for getting a shave in a rat shop.

Our first Labor day parade—now there's something to remember—Local 600 participated in a big way. A boy friend and myself were to lead a Billy and Nanny goat, at the head of the butchers, in the parade. STATE LEGISLATURE

If a perfect record of service in our legislature in the interest of working people and especially organized labor is worthy of your consideration, then I shall be grateful for your vote and influence on August 6th in my race for the democratic nomination for the lower house of the next legislature. I have always heartily supported such legislation as is calculated to produce better wages, living conditions, public health service, educational advantages and all other things beneficial to laboring people. I have also worked especially to aid suffering and unfortunate humanity, with particular emphasis on legislation for the benefit of the blind of the state, to which class I belong, and I am anxious to be returned this time in order to try to complete the work. My wide experience as a member of the legislature should be worth much to the people of Hamilton County in determining my fitness for the position which I am seeking.

Please give me your vote and influence, which will be appreciated.

I am happy to call your attention to the splendid endorsement which I received from Labor's Political Conference.

D. M. COLEMAN.

Use Your Buying Power To Help All Unionism!

"Gold is where you find it," but the union label is where it is put by union workers.

On a coat it is on the inside pocket. On a hat it is under the sweat band. On printed matter it is on every piece.

On cigars it is on the box. On cigarettes it is on every package.

And on the principal union brands of cigarettes, such as Raleighs, Wings, Kools, Twenty Grand and Spuds, there also are the labels of the Typographical Union and the Photo-Engravers.

While the Big Four continue to grind out fabulous profits from their highly touted brands, regarding workers as merely a part of plant equipment, the union brands use the union label as a guarantee of union wages, union huors and recognition of collective bargaining.

Collective bargaining is the basis of all fair labor relations.

It is the tap root and the foundation of a sound industrial structure. It is the thing most hated by profit-hungry, despotic employers, such as the United States Steel Corporation and the big four tobacco companies.

Every unionized plant or industry helps not only those immediately employed; it helps labor everywhere. The first union was established at tremendous sacrifice. Compared to that, the last union was established with ease. The first union was established in defiance of public sentiment. The last union had public sentiment with it.

Every union helps every union. Patronize the products and services of every union. Look for the label and demand it until you get it. On cigarettes it is easy, for every leading place carries the union brands. On some other thnigs it is harder to get, but persistent demand will help to bring more unions into being. Use your buying power to build unionism.

Wood Barrel Coopers File Suit Against Use of "Keglined" for Tin Beer Cans

The manufacturers of beer kegs and barrels have filed a petition in the United States patent office to cancel the trade-mark "Keglined," used by the American Can company in describing its tin cans for beer.

The petition asserts that the term is "grossly deceptive." It conveys the false impression that beer in such cans is protected or improved by a keg-like wooden lining. It is further contended that the use of the trade-mark "Keglined," coupled with advertising, creates the erroneous belief that cans contain draught beer similar to that dispensed from gooden kegs.

It appears that the object of the trade-mark "Keglined" is to mislead the public in believing that beer placed in tin cans has the distinctive flavor of bottled beer or first-class draught beer, since many advertisers of tin-canned beer also display an advertimesent for bottled beer.

James Maloney, president of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada, recently stated: "It is known that beer has a strong affinity for metal and must be prevented from coming in contact with it. A recent 'Analysis of Bottled and Canned Beers' made by the Schwartz Laboratories, Incorporated, of New York, explained that the flat-top beer cans have a lacquer lining, whereas, the 'cap sealed' cans have a wax lining. Both types of linings are apparently sprayed on the interior surfaces of the cans.

"The facts developed as a result of these scientific tests by nationally recognized chemists in the brewery field would seem to indicate that neither metal cans nor drums are satisfactory containers for beer 'due to the interaction of beer and metal.' The tests indicated that the examination of the interior of beer cans 'showed imperfections in the liner and occasional rust spots. Some had particles of liner floating in the beer. The study further revealed that beer in cans showed high iron content at the start, which reached values as high as three to five parts per million with age.' (Over one part in a million affects beer adversely.)

"A test made regarding the quality of beer in glass bottles and tin cans proved conclusively that beer in glass bottles is of a much higher quality than beer allowed to remain in tin cans for any period of time."

Tin cans are made by non-union labor, whereas, glass bottles and wooden kegs are made by union labor. We urge all members of organized labor, their friends and sympathizers to buy beer in glass and wooden containers when they desire a drink of delicious and wholesome beer.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

What a world. It keeps on being nothing else but. Spain has a rebellion. The old reactionaries can't win with votes or argument, so they start shooting. Here at home Remington Rand keeps on thinking thoughts just like those of the Spanish grandees who have lost their power. A judge limits pickets to four at a time. And we do not know whether some who had planned to buy Remington Rand office equipment have changed their mind, after looking at the company's policy. There is strife in the land and a good deal of it is in the interest of economic public health. In many a manufacturing plant the private guards may right now be inspecting and cleaning the rifles and stacking the gas bombs.

Shell Oil (in California) is trying to make a company union wear the look of the real thing. It doesn't work, of course. At Wood River another member of the same Shell family is doing the grandee stunt. Bourbonism dies hard, whether in one royal family or in another. And labor sticks to its guns. There are strikes that have been on as long as six months and the picket lines have been maintained through every day of that time.

One new thing in the world right now is the increasing militancy of labor. And business more prosperous than at any time in six years, doesn't know why it is prosperous and is willing to wring the neck of the maternal producer of the golden egg, which has always been a goose, to expect understanding or any kind of decency from big business.

And while the world rolls along in its turmoil the new French government nationalizes its munitions plants, telling the world that munitions plants loot the very nations they are supposed to protect, as if we didn't know it. But that's the trouble. We know it, but we don't do anything about it. And we even suffer the indignity of a spectacle in which admirals go into the halls of congress and lobby for the munitions makers and the shipbuilders, these two being all in one family. There are plenty of Americans—plenty of American workers, sad to say, who serve reaction, in one guise or another. Some go down the river just for fun, or in ignorance; and some sell themselves down the river for a price.

What a world. But it is a world trying to get better. The agony is terrible. The blunders are pretty terrible sometimes. The battles are fearsome and the losses are staggering. But here and there gains are made. Strikes are won. The steel industry doesn't want to get too doggoned swell headed. Big business is lining up for a great struggle which it hopes will smash labor forever. That's fact. America is in for something dramatic, something profoundly important as important as the War for Independence, or the war between the states. It might be a good idea for the lords and masters of Bourbonism to take a look across the water before they spend too much money on guns and too much time on organizing mercenary legions. Something tells us that the world is going forward and America isn't going to be at the tail end of the parade.

What Next!

A development in fast asphalt road building is now being used successfully in Ohio. Trucks spread proportioned loads of gravel or crushed stone, sand and asphalt on the road. The "Walking Pug-Mill," a new machine, mixes the aggregate where it lies instead of requiring mixing in a distant vessel and then spreading of the aggregate on the road. The pug-mill levels off the surface, which is smoothed by heavy rollers immediately following. The road can be used for traffic ten minutes after rolling and it is said from two to four miles of 20-foot pavement can be laid per day.

Just so long as one American worker is out of a job, union-earned money spent for union-made goods will increase his chances of obtaining work.

Women's buying power is the "key to recovery" when it is spent for union-made goods and union services.

Customer—Well, if the time I've been standing here is worth anything I certainly ought to get the goods for nothing.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. O. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What is the union label pledge?

A.—"I promise to patronize only firms that display the union label, shop card and button."

Q.—Was the American Flint Glass Workers' union organized before the American Federation of Labor?

A.—Yes. The union was formed in 1878, at Pittsburgh. Organization began even before this, as flint glass workers were among the first to form assemblies under the Knights of Labor. They withdrew in 1878 and organized the present craft union.

Brown (who got a job as commercial traveler)—Since I started this traveling business I am my own boss.

Man—That's good.

Brown—Yes, I'm not taking orders from anybody.

The only women who make good wives are those who get angry enough to seek a divorce, but who are too proud to take alimony.

Newspaper Guild Gets A. F. of L. Charter

Washington. — President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, announced that an A. F. of L. charter had been issued to the American Newspaper Guild as an international union. The charter was granted by the recent meeting of the Executive Council of the federation here.

All local guilds, Mr. Green said, are now entitled to representation in city central bodies and state federations of labor.

Mr. Green also announced that Don Stevens, national treasurer of the Newspaper Guild, had been appointed a full-time organizer of the American Federation of Labor, assigned to the guild.

The survey showed that one-eighth of all American farm supplies are sold through co-operatives, the sales volume having doubled from $129,000,000 in 1929 to $250,000,000 in 1934.

MORE ABOUT
WALSH-HEALY

These determinations will be made only after public hearings at which all interested parties in particular industries or groups of industries will be given notice and opportunity to attend and present evidence. No decision will be made with respect to the geographic differentials until after evidence has been received at such hearings. The department of labor will not arbitrarily adopt the minimum wage provisions once contained in the codes without inquiry into present conditions.

Applies to All Industries.

"After a finding in regard to minimum wages has been made for a particular industry all members of that industry bidding for future government contracts must also agree to conform to the minimum wage standards thus established. These findings will be made available to prospective bidders by the purchasing officers of the government so that all persons interested in a particular contract will have notice of their minimum wage obligations before submitting their estimates. Since it will not be possible to hold hearings for many industries simultaneously, it will be several months before minimum wages have been ascertained in every industry.

"Until an applicable determination has been made by the secretary of labor members of that industry bidding for a government contract will be required to conform only with the other labor provisions in the act. As a matter of practice the first industries which will be studied with a view to fixing the minimum wage will be those in which the minimum wages are known by practical experience to be below a decent standard of living. The minimum wages will not be fixed arbitrarily or capriciously but only after careful investigation and study of the evidence.

Curbs Wage Slashers and Bid-Peddling.

"The purpose of the wage provisions is to prevent substandard firms which make a practice of cutting wages below the prevailing standards and thereby securing an unfair advantage in labor costs from underbidding firms whose labor standards conform to a sound standard of general practice. They are aimed to put an end to the practice of bid-peddling on government contract work—a practice which has permitted brokers to sublet portions of government contracts to substandard factories or sweatshops at prices which enable the principal contractor to make sizeable profits without doing the work or maintaining the stock.

"The restriction of federal business to regular dealers and manufacturers in the goods to be supplied does not mean, however, that bidders may not deal with legitimate subcontractors. Bona fide manufacturers or their agents will suffer no interference but will, of course, be required to have regular and reliable sources of supply.

Safe and Sanitary Work Conditions.

"It is not believed that the provisions prohibiting any part of the contract being performed under unsafe or insanitary surroundings will place too great a burden on principal contractors. The government will co-operate in correcting conditions and will follow the procedure now used under the existing requirement that all contractors should buy American-produced goods only. It is assumed that all reputable contractors deal with equally reputable subcontractors.

Lowest Bidder Rule Ended.

"It is also believed that more firms over a wider area will be able to compete for government business than was the case prior to the enactment of the new law. Under the statute which compelled the government to deal with the lowest bidder regardless of his labor practices, the manufacturer who maintained decent labor conditions was at a disadvantage. Under this act a premium is no longer placed upon the exploitation of labor.

Advance Notice to Contractors.

"Shortly before Sept. 28 the department of labor will promulgate regulations, in the draft of which the principal contracting agencies of the government will provide uniform procedure so that there will be no delay in the normal procurement activities of other departments but will enable both the contracting officer and prospective contractors to know in advance their respective obligations under the act. The prevailing wage provisions will not produce delay since no wage stipulation is required until the applicable minimum wages have been ascertained by the secretary of labor for a given industry or group of industries. Until this factor has been determined and furnished to the various departments it will not be necessary for the contracting officer to consider this phase of the act.

Shorter Hours Will Not Burden Industry.

"It is not expected that the eight-hour day and 40-hour week provisions will create any undue burden. There are very few industries today which generally exceed these limits. Under the authority of the secretary of labor to allow reasonable limitations, variations, tolerance and exemptions, the regulations may provide for overtime subject to the payment of the overtime rates prescribed by the act. As these will be the same for every employer bidding on a specific contract or class of contracts, all bidders will be put on equal footing in this respect. In fixing the amount of the overtime rate the department will give consideration to conditions in continuous process industries or industries of an extra hazardous nature nature, seasonal peak production periods, flat weekly or monthly wage scales. The same consideration will be given to emergency conditions.

"Open Market" Provision Explained.

"Many inquiries have been received with respect to floor warehouse and yard stocks. The regulations of floor stocks without going behind the actual and bona fide seller, when such stocks are in the dealer's possession when he submits his bid. The government will not permit goods manufactured specifically for a government contract, however, to become warehouse or floor stocks in order to evade the purposes of this act. The clause relating to goods purchaseable in open market indicates that congress intended to keep in effect present statutes permitting contracting officers to make purchases in the open market without advertising under certain conditions and also intended that the existing limitations upon such purchases should not be affected by this act.

Administrative Procedure Outlined.

"For the purpose of carrying out the act—setting the minimum wage, making rules and regulations for the application and exemption of the other sections and provisions for variations over exemptions—the secretary of labor will establish a special administrative unit in the department. The secretary will establish a board to act on all the quasi-judicial matters and regulatory matters. This board will hold hearings and adopt rules and regulations for the limitation and conduct of its own functions. The studies, investigations and exemptions necessary for the information of the board before action will be made by the regular existing divisions of the department where possible and presented to the board with recommendations by the chief examiner, who will be the principal administrative officer.

Workers and Employers Represented.

"The secretary will appoint a panel of consultants consisting of industrialists and labor representatives who are familiar with each of the principal industries for which rules, wages and variations are to be made.

"When a particular industry is under consultation the chief examiner will draw from the panel for consultation the industrialist and the labor representative familiar with that industry and may also join with them in consultation the purchasing agent of the government. Consultation with the members of the panel will also be available to the secretary and to the board.

"The act will be administered with scrupulous attention to the necessity of open records of action, public hearings, and recorded analysis of the reasons and limitations of each discretionary action. The rights of manufacturers and contractors will be thoroughly respected and their co-operation invited.

"The benefits to the workers of the country involved in the studies of a maximum of 40 hours per week, the prohibition of child labor and insanitary conditions, and the minimum wage as a peg against the tendency of wages to fall below the level of a decent standard of living, will all be carefully safeguarded and developed.

"Constructive and positive methods will be adopted.

"Conferences were held within the last ten days with leading industrialists, government purchasing agents and labor leaders to secure advice, suggestions and assistance. The conferences were fruitful."

Socialists Are Largest Finnish Political Party

The failure of conservative parties in European countries to remedy the grievances of the workers is evidently giving a strong impetus to the socialist party among the masses.

The latter part of May the socialist party became the strongest group in the French chamber of deputies and made the socialist leader, Leon Blum, premier.

A few days later the socialist party of Belgium won an increased representation in the chamber of deputies, so that the largest group in the Belgium cabinet are socialists.

Now comes the general election in Finland, which gives the socialists 83 of 200 seats in the chamber of deputies, making them the strongest party with the probability they will form the new cabinet.

In each of these three countries economic conditions affecting the masses were the major election issues.

VIOLENCE

jority of cases the violence that appears in industrial disputes is used against labor rather than by labor.

"The Chattanooga Central Labor union strongly condemns the three papers named above for the editorials mentioned in that they make organized labor responsible for this act, even before it has been proven, and condemn labor in strong terms, while at the same time they overlook the acts of violence committed by those who are opposed to labor.

"We are not criticizing the editors for condemning violence, but in all fairness the editors should condemn violence when and wherever it is used. The News speaks of the fight that Joe Dobbs had with young May; it does not mention that the elder May shot Dobbs and narrowly missed killing him.

"If this were the only instance in which the press has misrepresented the facts, we should not be so concerned, but for many months this has been the regular procedure. We enumerate just a few instances of recent cases wherein violence has been used against workers: Barney Graham, president of the United Mine Workers' union in Wilder, Tenn., was killed by gunthugs; Fred Held, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, was kidnaped from Harriman, Tenn.; Pinky Walker was shot and killed at Rossville, Ga.; a peaceful picketline was fired upon at Soddy; at Rockwood within the past few months three organizers, Mat Lynch, Franz Daniel and Bill Frazier, were kidnaped, beaten and jailed; two of these last named have been delegates to this Central Labor Body. We could name other cases ad infinitum but this is sufficient. It is rare that a newspaper will even mention in the news columns the truth concerning the violence used against workers; and almost never editorializes when a mere worker is hurt or killed, but if an employer is hurt it is a story of great importance calling forth long editorials. We insist that a worker's life is of equal importance with that of any employer.

"In any discussion of violence, it should be pointed out that all of the major instruments of violence are in the hands of the employers—the police, the private guards, the deputies, etc. Also, in many picket lines, the workers have to put up with tear gas, clubs and bullets. In Rockwood one young girl was shot in the head with a tear gas gun ,her arm cut by a scab's knife, she was run into by a scab's automobile, and thrown into jail four times, merely for exercising the right of peaceful picketing.

"In conclusion, it ought to be pointed out that the initial violence in industrial disputes lies in the violence that is done to men, women and children by insufficient wages causing malnutrition and warped bodies. Violence is violence whenever it causes underdeveloped personality, just as much as when someone is hit on the head with a club."

Distillery Workers Win Good Contract

40-Hour Week, Union Recognition, Seniority, Paid Vacations and Higher Wage Rates Included in Pact With Schenley Concern.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—"A distinct advancement in the organization of the employes was made at Schenley, Pa., on July 16, in the signing of an agreement between the Joseph S. Finch & Company distillery, a subsidiary of the Schenley Products Company, and Distillery Workers' Union 19983, along with local unions of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers and the International Association of Machinists," declared David Williams, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor in this region, who participated in negotiating the pact.

"The agreement," Mr. Williams continued, "provides that the local unions of international unions of the American Federation of Labor and Distillery Workers' Union 19983, acting jointly, will be recognized as the collective bargaining unit for all the employes of the distillery.

"An eight-hour day with a 40-hour week is provided by the agreement and overtime paid after eight hours in any day or 40 hours in any week. Where continuous operations provide for a 36-hour week for certain employes, overtime is paid after 36 hours.

Work Is Guaranteed.

"All employes called to work are guaranteed four hours' work. Female labor is to be paid at least the same rate as male labor when employed upon similar work.

"Employes are to be paid the higher rate when temporarily assigned to higher rated jobs and retain their regular rates when assigned to lower rated jobs.

"A straight and strict seniority rule based upon service with the company has been established for the purpose of governing those employes to be laid off during slack periods and rehired during busy periods. The same seniority rule is to govern those advanced to higher paid jobs through any vacancies which may occur or through any new jobs which may be created.

"Vacations with pay are provided for all employes after having two years' continuous service with the company. One week's vacation with pay is to be granted such employes and any time lost by the employes through being laid off during slack periods will not interrupt their continuous service record with the company.

Strikes and Lockouts Banned.

"A very carefully prepared method of adjusting grievances is contained in the agreement, with an arbitration clause providing the umpire of any arbitration board may be selected by the Honorable Secretary of Labor of the United States Department of Labor. The decision of such arbitration board is final and binding upon both the company and the union.

"Another clause in the agreement provides against any strike by the employes or any lockout by the company during the life of the agreement.

"While the company is given the right to discharge or lay off any employe for sufficient cause, methods have been provided for appeal by any employe against an unfair discharge, with the provision being made for reinstatement with full pay for any time lost in the case of any employe unjustly discharged or laid off.

Important Reclassification of Employes.

"Along with the agreement a complete reclassification of all the employes with descriptions of the various jobs, with adjustment of wage rates up from 2 cents to 30 cents per hour, retroactive to May 1, 1936, was signed as part of the agreement.

"The working rules as contained in the agreement, with the classification of the employes and wage rates constitute a foundation for a real drive to extend these conditions to distilleries in all parts of the country. Although the rates for some classifications of labor in the Finch Distillery were already higher than some of the competing companies, the new classification of employes signed with the agreement has further increased the wage rates of many of these employes.

"The agreement was signed for the Schenley Products Company by Thomas J. McConville, vice-president and plant manager at Schenley, Pa., and for the American Federation of Labor by David Williams, general organizer. The committee signing for Distillery Workers' Union No. 19983 were Phyllis Hoak, George Tantlinger, Teresa M. Kennedy, Aime Girard and Chester J. Stephens; for Local Union No. 77 of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, C. R. Matheny; for the local lodge of the International Association of Machinists, W. R. Snyder."

One-Day Strike Wins Agreement on Wages

Danbury, Conn.—Following a one-day strike in protest against a wage cut at the George H. McLachlan Hat company plant, ten manufacturers signed union agreements fixing a wage scale effective until May 1, 1937.

The existing rates, agreed upon orally two months ago, will be continued, it was announced, except that manufacturers will be permitted to turn out 25 per cent of their output at slightly reduced rates. This stipulation, however, applies only to the making of men's hats and in no way affects the scale on women's hats over which trouble started at the McLachlan plant.

MORE ABOUT POLITICS

There is a hot race on in the third district, in which present Squires Thrasher and Brown are trying to keep from being defeated by Felix Hamil and Willard Millsaps. Moth Millsaps and Hamil have been endorsed by labor and it is believed that they stand a fine chance of winning.

Neutral in Senate.

Opinion was so divided in the race for the state senate that neither Joe S. Bean nor Fletcher Morgan was endorsed.

Definite Slate for Lower House.

D. M. Coleman, who has served in the legislature for seven terms, and who has always kept his pledges with labor was named on the ticket, along with John Mahoney and H. G. B. King. Mahoney seems to be running like a house afire; he is also a member of the Musicians Union. H. G. B. King has gained a great popularity among trades unionists since the days of NRA by his splendid co-operation with local unions and individual working people. He deserves No. 1 place on every union voter's ticket.

It is evident that labor's endorsement of Leon Jourolmon to defeat Harvey Hannah on the Railroad and Public Utilities commission has become the choice of the voters outside of labor's ranks, and it appears that he will be elected.

The three legislators chosen by labor have all enthusiastically supported the Volunteer plan of county reform. They have also pledged themselves to try to remedy the fee-grabbing evil and to see to it that the TVA and public power program is not molested.

One feature of the campaign which has created quite a bit of worry is the fact that some hundred or more CCC boys in the Wauhatchie district, a county machine stronghold, have been registered. It is believed that these votes will be protested because they are not residents of the county, most of them coming in to these camps from other states.

MORE ABOUT AYMON

President Roosevelt's "must" bills. His excuses for opposing this bill was that if it were passed boys and girls would not be allowed to do chores around the home. Mr. Browning knows this is not true; this is the same excuse that is used by some textile employers who would exploit the children. The true purpose of the child labor law is to prevent employers from employing children as wage earners in Industry. There are many men and women who would welcome an opportunity to work as wage earners. Mr. Browning voted against re-establishing the wage cut of Federal Employes. He also voted against the half-holiday on Saturdays for government employes.

"Let us see if his attitude toward the TVA meets with your approval. In a speech before congress he said: 'Let the government build the dams, but lease the power at the switchboard to the power trust for fifty years.' What kind of a yardstick would the TVA have been under this condition? I do not think that he was for the same kind of a TVA that you and I are for. There and other things in Mr. Browning's record were responsible for labor's endorsing Burgin Dossett.

"Because labor exposed Mr. Browning's record and refused to endorse him, he said that the members of the State Non-Partisan Committee (composed of members from the railroad organizations and as well as the Federation group), had sold him out. I believe that he is the one who sold labor out. He made his own record and he will have to stand or fall with it, and I feel that labor will repudiate this man and his record, regardless of a certain labor leader's attitude in not going along with labor on this issue.

"Mr. Dossett is a member of United Mine Workers, Local 3228, La Follette, Tennessee.

"Now, let us weigh Mr. Crump's attitude. Some time ago in Memphis there were some personal differences between Mr. Crump and a certain labor leader, after which Mr. Crump through some of his official family set up a mandate that no employe of Memphis, or Shelby county, could work and retain a membership in a labor organization. Is this in accord with President Roosevelt's ideas? Is this in accord with the activities of the last United States congress? Is this in accord with fair-minded employers and fair-minded citizens? Am I to believe that Mr. Crump was opposed to the policy of the American Labor Movement, of supporting your friends and defeating your enemies? Is it possible that labor failed to endorse some candidate that Mr. Crump got some promises out of? Is it possible that Mr. Crump does not like for labor to tell its membership who their friends and enemies are? Is Mr. Crump fearful of loosing some of his political power? Is he aspiring to become a political dictator for the State of Tennessee, such as Louisiana had some time ago?

"I desire to ask labor: Are they going to concede the right to Mr. Crump or any other man to tell them when and who they shall organize, and will labor allow him to tell them who to vote for and disregard the policy of the American Federation of Labor in defeating your enemies and electing your friends? My suggestion is that labor should unite its strength to prevent any autocratic rule—not only Mr. Crump, but any other individual.

"This is the obligation of the people and not the duty of any individual."

Employment Bureau Finds 3,420,000 Jobs for Idle

Washington.—The United States employment service, operated free by the federal government, made 3,420,665 placements in jobs in private industry during the thirty-five months ended July 1, 1936, according to a report by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

She explained that the figures indicated placements, not the number of persons for whom employment was found. In some instances, he said, the same persons may have received several temporary positions.

HOSIERY MILL STRIKE ENDED.

Winston-Salem, N. C. — Striking hosiery workers at the Hanes mills agreed to return to work, ending a walkout of 250 employes which has tied up operations at the plant for more than two weeks. Terms of the agreement under which the workers will return to their jobs were not announced. The strike was called in protest of the company's action raising the work week to 50 hours.

All the political ballyhoo does not amount to as much as the purchase of one union label article.

BUY FOR RECOVERY BY ASKING FOR UNION-MADE CIGARETTES

Washington.—It has just been reported by the United States commerce department that there was a 23 per cent gain in cigarette production for 1935 over 1933.

Last year 138,656,000,000 cigarettes were made, against 112,742,000,000 in 1933.

The factory value of cigarettes made last year was $717,676,120 and this was a gain of 29.7 per cent over the 1933 value.

If all union members, their families and their friends smoked only union-made cigarettes, most of this gain in output would have been in union-made cigarettes, which are of the highest quality.

In the early days of unionism, smokers had but a limited choice in union-made cigarettes, allowing little leeway for individual taste.

Choice Is Now Wide.

Today the union smoker has at his command everything any smoker could ask. He has taste range and price range.

Cigarette consumption is rising steadily. The 1936 output probably will pass the 1935 output.

Union membership is growing and presumably union solidarity is growing as membership grows.

Union Plants Help Farmers.

But the building of demand for union-made cigarettes has another important phase. It is about three years ago that the U. S. department of agriculture reported in a congressional hearing that where the independent companies, making union-made products, went into the market to buy tobacco, the price of tobacco was raised appreciably. The union manufacturers have helped the farmer to get a better price for his product, thus throwing additional purchasing power into the market for manufactured commodities.

The benefits of unionism travel on down a long line of helpfulness.

Big Four Pound Prices Down.

That this is a factor of importance in the national economy is clear to all who know the areas and extent of the tobacco raising community and the tobacco manufacturing industry.

It was made clear that where the Big Four have no competition in buying, the price is pounded down to the last cent. The farmer suffers. And everyone suffers.

Few realize the tremendous chain of betterment that flows across the land when the union dollar starts on the road in the purchase of union-made commodities.

Buy for Recovery.

Of all commodities, cigarettes spread over almost the largest economic territory. Their purchase is constant.

The smoker of union-made cigarettes, though he spends but a few cents at a time, becomes an economic factor of enormous importance. And the whole difference between pouring huge sums into a chain that makes for recovery and pouring them into the same old sink hole of depression depends upon whether the purchaser at the counter asks for a union-made brand.

Buy for recovery.

New York Bankers Balk On Cashing WPA Checks

New York.—Confronted with persistent disinclination on the part of many New York banks to cash the pay checks issued by the WPA here to the 200,000 workers employed on WPA projects, Works Progress Administrator Victor F. Ridder initiated a campaign among stores and offices to accept the checks.

As a result of the campaign it was announced that 10,000 business concerns had agreed to give the workers cash for their checks. Mr. Ridder said further extension of these facilities was being sought for the convenience of the WPA army.

It was pointed out that the bankers during the past few months have limited the cashing of government checks on the ground that the service overburdened their staffs.

Ickes Hits High Rents For PWA Housing Units

Washington.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, in charge of public works administration housing projects, said he was not satisfied with the cost of $7.39 a room which the PWA is required to charge for its first completed low-cost housing development, Techwood Homes, in Atlanta, Ga.

He pointed out that rentals on the Techwood project were lower than current private rents, but would not be satisfactory for extremely low-paid workers. In view of the fact that the government makes an outright grant for 45 per cent of the cost of PWA housing, he expressed the belief that rentals should be lower.

The best standard bearer of Americanism is the man who buys union label products made under American standards.

Government Is Denied Steel Case Rehearing

New Orleans, La.—The U. S. circuit court of appeals for the Fifth circuit refused a rehearing asked by the national labor relations board in the Jones & Laughlin Steel company case.

In their original verdict the court ruled that the labor board had no jurisdiction over controversies between employers and employes in the steel industry who are engaged only in manufacturing and held that the provisions of the national labor relations act conferring such authority were unconstitutional.

In its argument for a rehearing the board contended that the protection of interstate commerce in the steel industry, rather than regulation of actual production, was the real question involved under the labor relations act. The board pointed out that the unfair labor practices prohibited by the act tend to obstruct the free flow of the stream of commerce from state to state, and therefore clearly come under the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce.

The appeals court in its original decision ignored this view and held that in the case of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company its employes were engaged in nothing more than manufacturing in a local community and were consequently entirely removed from transactions in interstate commerce. The refusal of the court to grant a rehearing indicates a definite determination to adhere to its narrow definition of interstate commerce.

The supreme court may "knock out" the new deal laws, but it can't find the union label unconstitutional.

Every union-earned dollar spent for union label goods is a vote for the "square deal."

Supreme Court Will Change Attitude, Wallace Thinks

Washington.—Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, is out with a new book called "Whose Constitution?" with "An Inquiry Into the General Welfare" as a subtitle. Mr. Wallace would rather see the supreme court change its methods of interpreting the constitution than go to the trouble of a constitutional amendment. He believes that the court will see the light.

"I hold to this belief for two reasons," he writes. "First, because the court has frequently changed its mind in the past; second, because there will be no acceptable alternative before it.

"In at least 60 cases the supreme court has definitely overruled its own previous decision or decisions. In four additional cases the minority pointed out that the majority opinion had the effect of overruling previous decisions.

"In fourteen cases the court, while not definitely overruling a previous decision, so qualified the principle of the prior case that it in fact was overruled. And in cases too numerous to mention the court has handed down decisions which can be reconciled with earlier decisions only by the exercise of a kind of involved legal reasoning which to the modern scientific mind seems an echo from the Middle Ages."

If all patriotic societies would buy only American-made goods it would do more to stabilize our institutions than all the talk about the invasion of foreign ideas.

A. F. L. Favors Craft, Industrial Union, Says Pres. William Green

Searchlight of Facts Reveals False Issue of Industrial Unionism Raised by Committee for Industrial Organization, He Declares.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued the following statement to correct the misunderstandings prevalent regarding the attitude of the American Federation of Labor toward craft and industrial unions:

"The public mind has become greatly confused over the issue which has developed between the American Federation of Labor and the committee for industrial organization.

"It has been alleged that the fight is based upon the question of industrial versus craft unionism, and that the president of the American Federation of Labor rigidly stands for the exclusive application of the craft union plan, while the chairman of the committee for industrial organization stands for the exclusive application of the industrial plan of organization.

Must Consider Human Equation.

"This impression is wrong. The facts are, the American Federation of Labor has applied and will continue to apply both the industrial and the craft union form of organization in all its organizing activities. It

"Unfair" Declaration Against Shell Is Limited to California Company in Sharply Defined Area

Washington.—Making clear the purpose of the original announcement, the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers, at headquarters here, outlined the area affected by the declaration of unfair practices on the part of the Shell Oil company (of California).

There are several Shell organizations. The "unfair" placed against the Shell Oil company (of California) by five international unions effects only that one company and is operative only in the area served by that company. It is not operative in any other area, the Oil Workers pointed out.

The area served and in which the "unfair" is operative is limited to the following states: California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and Arizona in the United States. In Canada, British Columbia is in the "unfair" area.

The five international unions joining in the action are: International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers; International Association of Machinists; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers; Iron Ship Builders, Welders and Helpers; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers.

The Oil Workers emphasize that the "unfair" declaration against the Shell company (of California) operates only against that single company and only in the area described, which is that company's area of distribution.

About the only cafes which did business as usual following the strike were the small establishments where the proprietors constitute the entire staff.

La. Leads Nation In Favorable Labor Law Legislation

Massachusetts General Court Passes New Minimum Wage Law as "Health Statute" to Get Around Court Ruling.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A summary of labor laws passed by the different states in the month from June 20 to July 20, made by the United States Department of Labor, shows an unwonted activity in Louisiana. A state department of labor was created, and $24,400 appropriated for its use. An unemployment compensation law was passed, covering employers of eight or more persons. The commissioner of labor will administer the act. An old-age pension law, meeting the Federal standards, was adopted.

The curious part of this really fine code is that the legislature, under the state constitution, has no power to adopt either of the last two laws. But the legislature proposed and passed an amendment to the constitution, to be voted on at the November election; and provided that the laws shall not take effect unless and until this amendment is ratified by the people.

Massachusetts believes it has whipped the Supreme Court around a stump. When that court declared the New York minimum wage law unconstitutional, the Massachusetts General Court—that's what they call the legislature in the Bay State—passed a new minimum wage law as a "health statute," and changed the old law just enough to bring it under this classification. One of the changes provides for minimum payments equal to "the wages necessary to conserve and maintain the health of female employes and minors." The State Commissioner of Public Health is one of the board to administer the new law.

Three states, Illinois, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, amended their old-age pension laws. West Virginia passed a new law, and created a State Department of Public Assistance to administer the new act.

Labor to Ask Change in the Walsh-Healey Act

Congress Will Be Urged to Eliminate Provisions Seen as Opening Way for Manufacturers To Dodge Law.

Washington.—Amendment of the Walsh-Healy act to "plug up the loopholes" will be asked of the next congress by the American Federation of Labor. The act sets hours, wage and other standards for work done under government contract and is regarded as one of the most important laws passed by congress during the present administration.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., indicated that decision as to the exact amendments asked would await the working out of the act up to the time that the session begins. In any event, he said, the stronger version of the bill, as it was written when passed by the senate, would be taken up in congress at the suggestion of labor.

One of labor's most important exceptions to the act is the provision stating that it shall not apply to purchases of materials ,articles or equipment "as may usually be bought in the open market." This provision has been hailed by the National Association of Manufacturers as opening the way for many exemptions to the act.

Another point of criticism by labor is that the act does not apply to subcontractors. If a contract is farmed out to a submanufacturer by a manufacturer the former need not fulfill the wages, hour and child labor provisions.

Again, the act applies only to contracts involving more than $10,000. Under this provision, labor leaders say, a contract for $30,000 worth of specified goods or materials might be broken up into three parts of $10,000 each and the contractors would not be required to live up to the provisions.

Company Union Rejects Overtime Payment Plan

Pittsburgh. — The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's offer to pay time and a half for overtime was rejected as "of no benefit" to workers in the company's Edgar Thomson plant.

It was the first definite reaction among the country's 450,000 steel workers to the time and a half pay plan, which was offered recently by most of the big steel producers.

Workers at the Edgar Thomson plant, one of Carnegie-Illinois' largest, turned down the plan through a vote of the majority of their employes' representatives.

Leaders of the plant's "company union" charged that the plan would increase their cost of living, would bring no benefits to the men and was granted without the knowledge of the employes' representatives.

The resolution rejecting the offer said that "a special meeting was held here to inform us that our request for time and a half had been granted," and then added:

"The representatives of this body knows nothing about such a request being put in. The publicity given this subject has been very prominent in the newspapers.

"We feel that such publicity has raised the cost of living and that we have received no benefits of any overtime by being given a 48-hour week and we are still in accord with the plan of the 40-hour week at the most, with time and a half from Saturday noon until Sunday and double time on Sundays and holidays."

With Huge Wealth at Command, Three of "Big Four" Paid Half Of Employes Only $11 Per Week

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The three biggest of the Big Four tobacco companies had surpluses on hand at the beginning of the present year totaling just under $150,000,000.

American Tobacco company had a surplus of $65,557,385; Liggett & Myers, $41,871,071; R. J. Reynolds, $42,495,154. The exact total of the three—according to their own reports—was $149,923,610.

But these three companies, with the wealth of Croesus in their vaults, are among the companies paying less than $11 a week to the women who stem their tobacco by hand.

The women's bureau of the department of labor made an investigation of the current payrolls of the stemmery departments of three branches of the tobacco industry; cigarettes, chewing tobacco and dealers. Payroll figures were gathered for 5,125 workers.

Wages Low as 11.9c Hourly.

In this study, the bureau uses the median wage instead of the average of wages. The median wage may be described as the exact middle of the payroll; half the employes get more, and half get less. With this explanation, let us quote the report:

"Hand stemmers had a higher median of hourly earnings in cigarette factories than in chewing tobacco factories or in dealers' establishments. In cigarette factories, the median wage was 27 cents an hour; in chewing tobacco factories, 24.7 cents an hour; in dealers' establishments, 11.9 cents an hour.

"In the last named (dealers' establishments) no employe average as much as 22½ cents an hour; in the other two branches, some hand stemmers received as high as 40 cents an hour."

There were exactly forty employes out of the 5,125 who got this wage of 40 cents an hour; 33 in cigarette factories and seven in chewing tobacco factories. The report goes on:

"The median of the week's earnings of 1,141 stemmers in cigarette factory stemmeries, whose working hours were 39 and 40, was $11."

In other words, these three biggest members of the Big Four, with almost $150,000,000 laid by in spare cash, pay half the workers in an essential part of their business less than $11 a week. One of these companies has paid its president as high as $20,000 a week, more than a million dollars a year. And not a member of the Big Four gang seems able to blush at such disgraceful wages.

It should not be forgotten that the Big Four make the non-union cigarettes.

Stemmery Pay Even Worse.

It is true that dealers' stemmeries pay even worse wages. The median wage in these plants was $6.55 a week for those who worked 55 hours, and for those who got in only 28 hours a week, the median wage was $3.60 a week. But who buys the tobacco from these dealers? The Big Four obviously buy a large share of it; and for every pound they buy, they help to establish wages of less than 12 cents an hour, $3.60 for a 28-hour week.

South Carolina to Fore In Adopting Labor Laws

Washington.—Marked progress by South Carolina in labor legislation is noted by the United States department of labor in its monthly survey of labor law administration. The survey points out that significant labor legislation enacted by South Carolina includes creation of a state department of labor independent of the department of agriculture, commerce and industry, in which there has been a labor division.

There is to be a commissioner of labor, appointed by the governor from among three nominations submitted by the South Carolina Federation of Labor. The commissioner is directed to make inspections and enforce the laws relating to inspection in factories, workshops, stores, mines, laundries, public institutions and eating houses. The new department of labor is distinct from the industrial commission which administers the workmen's compensation act, and from the commission administering the unemployment compensation act and the employment service.

An unemployment compensation act has also been adopted and the federal social security act accepted. Wage Cutting Evils

Labor is finding its principles of economics reflected more and more in the teachings of schools of business. The following excerpt from "Minimum Prices Under the NRA," by Herbert F. Taggert, published by the University of Michigan School of Business, and prominently quoted in "Domestic Commerce," published by the U. S. Department of Commerce, illustrates the point:

"Price cutting leads to wage cutting, or price cutting is made possible by wage cutting. Many times the picture was drawn of an employer calling his men together and saying, 'Now we can get this business if we can bid low enough for it. In order to do that, however, I shall have to ask you to accept a cut in your wages. If we don't get this business, I don't see how we can operate at all.' Naturally, following the principle that half a loaf is better than none, the employes would assent, the low bid would be made and accepted, and more high-minded employers would be forced to follow the same course or be robbed of the business. The remedy, however, if any is needed, seems to be either strong employee organization or enforcement of minimum-wage provisions, or both, not an attempt to control prices."

Cheap at Any Price

The Old Deal in the European war spent 22 billions for destruction.

The New Deal in its war on depression has spent 13 billions.

How much has the New Deal actually cost up to now?

When President Roosevelt was inaugurated March 4, 1933, the public debt of the United States was 21 billions. June 30 this year it almost hit 34 billions—so the gross cost of the New Deal may be said to be 13 billions. That is the net increase of our national debt.

But—and it's a big but—let us not forget this important point. There is a vast difference in blowing money in the air for destruction and using it for human welfare. A large part of the New Deal cash outlay will be paid back.

The Government has loaned billions to banks, railroads, insurance companies, etc., other millions to farmers and home owners and to cities and states—loaned for the purpose of keeping business alive and money circulating.

The Government has not made a gift of this money. All borrowers are under lawful obligations to pay it back—and are paying it back right now. The total of these recoverable loans total more than four billions. The nine billions that will not be paid back went for relief—public works, CWA, PWA, WPA, CCC, etc.

In addition to the tremendous improvements that are under way in all parts of the nation, such as power projects, flood control work, forest conservation, soil erosion work, fine highways, public buildings and school houses, the Government also prevented the starvation of many during the depression and kept human morale and hope alive among thousands who were down and almost out.

No one who wants to be fair can overlook these facts and these worthy projects. The New Deal has given you a lot of things you didn't have before—improvements that will be for the benefit of our children and their children.

The 22 billions which our Old Dealers blew into the air in Europe brought us nothing but heartaches and death. The nine billions spent so far for human happiness looks like the finest investment this nation has ever made when measured by the yardstick of Time.

Job Increase Is Reported For Construction Industry

ALBANY, N. Y. (AFLNS).—Employment in the construction industry in New York State advanced for the fourth consecutive month, according to a statement by Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews. The percentage increases from May to June amounted to 11 per cent in employment, 10 per cent in payrolls and 12 per cent in man-hours. The figures were based on reports submitted by 1,463 contractors who report each month to the New York State Department of Labor's Division of Statistics and Information.

Highway contractors increased employment by 38.7 per cent, general building contractors by 7.3 per cent, miscellaneous general contractors by 6.9 per cent and subcontractors by 2.6.

Five hundred and fifty of the reporting firms were engaged on Federal, State, county or municipal projects in June. They employed 30,418 workers, or 63 per cent of the total. Of the 30,418 employed on these projects in June, 10,204 were working for highway contractors, 9,567 for miscellaneous general contractors, 5,845 for general building contractors and 4,802 for subcontractors.

Average weekly earnings of the 48,344 workers for whom contractors reported amounted to $26.89 in June as compared with $27.28 for 43,437 workers in May. Average hours per man per week were 31.2 in June as compared with 30.9 in May.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

There has been plenty of comment about the promise of one J. T. Bishop, wealthy broker of Greenwich, Conn., and Carthage, N. C. Mr. Bishop went so far as to advertise in the Game Breeder and Sportsmen, which workers do not read; that, if Roosevelt is re-elected he will sell his farm, lock, stock, barrel and game birds and move to Canada. This Bishop—Julian T.—is broker and gentleman farmer. His farm at Carthage is called the Horseshoe Quai farm and what a wow that is among those on relief. Yes, it's Horseshoe Quai farm and every cotton mill worker in the state will be thrilled to know there are 20,000 acres of it.

It has been pointed out that should Mr. Bishop move to Canada thinking to escape the terrors of Roosevelt, he would encounter a lot worse in Canada. They really do sit on 'em up there. And if he should then quit Canada and go to England—holy smoke how he would yell at tax time. Do they soak 'em! But that isn't the only reason the joke is on Mr. Bishop. The main reason is that, while he seems not to know it, he is a fine type of the breed of exploiter we can all get along without. This isn't a partisan argument at all. It is simply the business of pointing out that there are men who profess a willingness to quit the country if their candidate doesn't win. There will be a general willingness to let 'em go to—Canada or any other place where they hit 'em harder than we have yet learned to sock.

Meanwhile not so many days ago there was the story from Little Rock, Ark., about the carnival of loan sharks. In one day 300 persons complained that they were victims of loan sharks. The stories were the same old stories that have been told of loan shark practices through the ages. A negro said he would be told when he had paid up. A woman showed a record of paying 200 per cent. One laborer was shown to have paid 250 per cent. The victims invariably are workers. Some of the sharks required borrowers to give signed checks. This trick was intended to lay ground for criminal prosecution in cases of failure to pay. It was a hideous picture of a hideous business.

There is no good reason for telling these two stories in the same column, except that they bring together abuses from the extremes of modern maladjustment. And for neither is there any cure in just chasing them around. A getting at the root of the evil is required. The SEC cures one kind of outlawry; proper small loan legislation cures another. NRA was intended to cure another—and the dervishes howled in glee when it was scuttled. Well, we shall either live in a realm of progress under law, or the fascists'll get us. The brokers and the sharks and the great corporations can look at the alternatives—but by golly the people had better do the choosing. It's their future that matters, after all.

Unions Gain Dismissal Wage Contract For San Francisco Ferryboat Employes

A recent agreement negotiated with the Southern Pacific Company providing a measure of employment protection and also granting dismissal compensation for ferryboat workers in San Francisco in connection with the diversion or abandonment of ferryboat service is a definite recognition of the principle that workers shall not be victimized as the result of wholesale changes in transportation methods. The agreement protects ferryboat employes who may lose their positions after the completion of the San Francisco-Oakland and Golden Gate bridges.

Although the agreement follows the general lines set forth in the dismissal wage pact recently entered into by the twenty-one standard railway labor unions and the railroad executives, it contains some features not included in the railway agreement.

Guaranteed Employment.

The contract for the ferryboat employes guarantees a month's employment at full pay for each year of service the ferryboat employe has put in, or, in lieu thereof, monthly pay equivalent to the regular salary.

If the employe so chooses, he may, after being left without a position, take some outside employment upon agreement with the management, and should the salary in his new position be less than his previous earnings the difference will be made up to him over a period of double the number of months which are due him as a "protected" employe. Should he lose his new position he will go back to his previous benefits for the balance of the "protected" period. All present benefits, such as ferry transportation, pension, hospitalization, and other privileges will be continued.

Dismissal Wage.

If the Southern Pacific should completely abandon its ferryboat service, the employe will have the further choice of receiving a lump sum as a dismissal wage amounting to one month's pay for each year of the first ten years of service with the company. A maximum of one year's pay for those employes who have had fifteen years or more of service is provided, with graduated amounts for those who have had ten to fifteen years' service.

One of the provisions of the contract reserves the right to the company of retiring on pension those employes who are 65 years of age or over.

Negotiations for the agreement were in progress for several months and at one time a strike of serious proportions seemed inevitable.

National Mediation Board Assists.

The unions concerned in the proceedings and represented on the negotiating committee were: Bay and Sound Division; Pacific District, International Seamen's Union of America (the Bay and Sound Division is the successor to the Ferryboatmen's Union of the Pacific); Local No. 40, National Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, and Local No. 97, Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association.

The services of the National Mediation Board were invoked by the labor organizations concerned in order to prevent, if possible, the serious consequences which the interruption of ferry traffic would mean to the general public in the San Francisco area. The board assigned Mediator J. W. Walsh to the case, and with his assistance the contract was negotiated with mutually satisfactory provisions.

Twelve Hundred Workers Involved.

It is anticipated that identical or similar agreements to the one with the Southern Pacific Company will also be made with the following companies performing ferryboat service: The Northwestern Pacific, the Southern Pacific Golden Gate Ferries, Ltd., and the Key System.

It is estimated that more than 1,200 employes of the four ferry companies will be affected by the agreements with total benefits approximating $2,500,000.

Attention: Brother craftsmen, it seems that Brother Fred Schenk can't take it, so I take delight in using his name in this column, as much as possible. A few weeks ago I accused him of being a monkey in his actions, which he promptly denied, saying he knew some people who didn't have to act to be one. After much deliberation, I have decided to accept his denial of belonging to the monkey species and conclude his relations are nearer the gorilla family. Also, note Brother Schenk's defense of his sun helmet as being cool and comfortable. I agree with him, but the question in this case is, "Is there any solid matter beneath the sun helmet?

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

WISH I HAD ME A JEEP! Then I could prophesy who's going to win this election, which will be all over after this column goes to press. I've been "going around" to all the political rallies this year and it is easy to understand why men enjoy this so-called "game." There's a fatal fascination in the uncertainty of who is going to be the "winnah."

WENT BY Signaigo & Campbell's yesterday to see if they have anything new in that has the label on it—and found some good-looking Phillips-Jones shirts. A resolution adopted by the state federation convention here urged the A. F. of L. to drop charges against leaders of the CIO.

Q.—Have state workmen's compensation laws been extended to workers on federal projects?

A.—During the closing days of the last session, congress passed a bill extending the benefits of state workmen's compensation laws to workers on federal property, hitherto unprotected by such acts. Prior to the passage of the bill, an injured worker was limited to recovering damages in a suit at common law based on the employer's negligence.

ed in the protection of children and of family life, will join hands in a solemn resolve to see to it that we shall not extend beyond the next two years the period of struggle to put this amendment in the constitution. There is no mechanism yet devised which will take its place.

"Interstate compacts which have been much discussed in certain parts of the country offer only a very slight procedure and only a very partial protection even if they could be adopted and put into effect in any reasonable length of time.

"Industry today is nation-wide in its organization. Competition is nation-wide, and only a nation-wide standard will suffice to accomplish those objectives which Samuel Gompers and President Green have so close to their hearts, which American working men have always realized as necessary for their children. For in the great international union agreement the 16-year standard of entrance into industry has been maintained and insisted upon for many, many years.

Child Labor Must Be Wiped Out.

"As I said in the beginning, there are many serious problems before us in this country affecting our families and the future of our children, affecting the very future of America itself, for if our children cannot be given those advantages and opportunities to attain which we give all our lives and strength and our service, then American civilization is doomed. The child labor amendment is only one part of this struggle.

"Other very vital issues concerning the entrance of youth into industry—the ways in which labor and education and their social forces may be united to afford youth as they enter the adult years a fair chance to work and earn and achieve—all of those vital issues are more interesting to us than this basic principle of the elimination of children from the labor market.

"Yet we must clean up this job begun so long ago and carry forward as a memorial to Samuel Gompers and all those others who contributed of their best to the objective which is so dear to us—the final inclusion in the basic law of our land of a charter for the children of America which will forever protect them from exploitation."

Three Given Prison Terms For Padding WPA Payrolls

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The federal court here imposed prison terms of from one year to three years on three men convicted of padding works progress administration payrolls with non-existing workers.

According to the evidence, the men put the names of persons who were not employed on WPA projects on the payroll at salaries of $70 to $80 a month and split the money among themselves. It was estimated the government had been defrauded out of about $3,000 by the scheme.

In imposing sentence, Judge Finch said: "You have deliberately taken taxpayers' money which was set aside for taking care of the needy. This court cannot condone such deliberate stealing."

What Next!

The Union Pacific railroad has announced plans for manufacture of the first steam turbine locomotive to be operated on this continent. Steam is to be used to turn rotary motors as on big ocean liners, instead of propelling the engine by means of the pistons and driving rods, which has characterized locomotives for more than a century. The new locomotive is expected to have a maximum speed of 110 miles an hour.

DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

CANADIAN FARMERS TO WORK FOR NEW ORDER OF SOCIETY

Saskatoon.—The Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada will not re-enter politics, but will make its economic function its primary concern. This was part of a declaration by the eleventh annual convention of that body, intended to clarify its position in respect to politics. There would be no political alliance with the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, it was made clear, but there would be readiness to cooperate to find solutions for common problems facing the farmers.

As to the attitude of individual members of the U. F. of C., it was declared that it was their duty to participate in political movements aiming at the reconstruction of society. "Everyone interested in this organization has a sincere part to play in making felt the protest against the present social set-up. We must discard condemnation of individual opinion in our ranks and lend support to the fight for a new social order, keeping in mind that all branches of our union are partt of a great movement towards change."

Wisdom

The candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government, upon the vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the supreme court, the instant they are made . . . the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal.—Abraham Lincoln.

fully recognizes that while industrial processes have changed, human nature remains the same.

"Skilled workers are no different now than they were before the advent of mass production and the establishment of mass production industries. They still wish to utilize their skill and training as key men use their acquired skill, genius and training to secure for themselves the highest wage possible.

"It is this human equation which must be taken into account in the application of either the vertical or horizontal plan of organization. If the American Federation of Labor would follow any other plan it would ignore both the facts and the realities of life.

"In order that the issue which seems to have confused the public mind may be made clear and understandable, I assert in behalf of the American Federation of Labor that its policy is to favor and apply both the craft and industrial form of unionism in all its organizing activities and as circumstances will permit.

Industrial Union Fallacy Exposed.

"The so-called industrial union issue which has been so strongly emphasized by the representatives of the committee for industrial organization in the steel organizing campaign, falls flat under the keen, penetrating light of analyzed facts. What are these facts? They warrant careful examination.

"It is loudly proclaimed that in the steel campaign just launched by the committee for industrial organization that all employes of the steel corporations must belong to the one union, big or little.

"The representatives of the committee for industrial organization announce that all machinists, electricians, building trades mechanics, railway employes such as engineers, firemen and brakemen employed on branch lines owned by these steel corporations, and other miscellaneous workers, must if they become organized be turned over to the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

"However, none of these representatives will agree to turn over the coal miners and coke workers (over whom the United Mine Workers have been given jurisdiction by the American Federation of Labor) employed by the United States Steel corporation, the Jones & Laughlin Steel company, the Bethlehem Steel corporation and other steel companies, even though said workers may be key men, to the one big union.

"Neither will the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' International union agree to turn over the ore miners (over whom they have been given jurisdiction by the American Federation of Labor) employed by the steel corporations in Alabama, upon the Mesaba Range in northern Michigan and in other ore-producing plants, even though they may be key men, to the one big union.

"Neither would the International Typographical union agree, if they found the steel corporations were operating printing plants and employing printers, to turn over these workers (over whom they have been given jurisdiction by the American Federation of Labor) to the one big union.

"The same would be true of the Textile Workers and the garment-making organizations if they found the steel corporations were employing textile workers and garment workers in some subsidiary plants owned by the steel corporations.

Avoid Rigid Rules.

"The situation, therefore, presents itself about as follows:

"Representatives of the organizations affiliated with the committee for industrial organization are willing, in fact they urgently demand that those workers employed in steel whom they have not and could not have, be turned over to the one big union; but those workers they have, who come under their own jurisdiction even though employed by the steel corporations—never!

"It is quite obvious that deductions warranted and conclusions reached from a consideration of these facts are that in the conduct of any organizing campaign, common sense must be used; that no rigid, dogmatic rule can be followed; that the form of organization best suited to the needs of the situation be applied in the broadest possible way, but in doing so the legal and moral rights of all concerned be respected so far as it is possible to do so."

NEW LAW FOR LABOR STANDARDS BECOMES EFFECTIVE ON SEPT. 28

Secretary Perkins Announces Plans to Enforce Act on Government Contracts as Manufacturers Declare Exemptions Open Way to Dodge Wage and Hour Provisions.

Washington.—As Secretary of Labor Perkins announced plans for enforcing the Walsh-Healey act setting wage and hour standards for workers making goods produced under government contract, the National Association of Manufacturers gave notice of its intention to dodge the law by taking advantage of every available loophole. The act will go into effect on Sept. 28.

In a bulletin to its members, the manufacturers' organization said the act "could be applied only within very narrow limits," and cited the clause excepting goods which may be brought in the open market as a channel for many exemptions.

The new law includes provisions that manufacturers or dealers in bidding on government contracts must agree to establish the eight-hour day and 40-hour week, employ no convict or child labor and have sanitary and safe working conditions.

The act also requires the contractor to pay minimum wages prevailing in the locality. Secretary Perkins said that the rate of the minimum wages would be determined only after public hearings.

Special Unit to Be Set Up.

"As a matter of practice," she added, "the first industries which will be studied with a view to fixing the minimum wages will be those in which the minimum wages are known by practical experience to be below a decent standard of living."

Announcing that a special administrative unit would be set up in the labor department to administer the law and that a panel of industrial and labor consultants would be named to aid in making decisions, Miss Perkins said:

"Shortly before Sept. 28 the department of labor will promulgate regulations, in the drafting of which the principal contracting agencies of the government will participate. These regulations will provide uniform procedure so that there will be no delay in the normal procurement activities of other departments, but will enable both the contracting officer and prospective contractors to know in advance their respective obligations under the act.

No Delay on Wages Seen.

"The prevailing wage provisions will not produce delay, since no wage stipulation is required until the applicable minimum wages have been ascertained by the secretary of labor for a given industry or group of industries.

"It is not expected that the eight-hour day and 40-hour week provisions will create any undue burden. There are very few industries today which generally exceed these limits. Under the authority of the secretary of labor to allow reasonable limitations, variations, tolerances and exemptions, the regulations may provide for overtime, subject to the payment of the overtime rates prescribed by the act. As these will be the same for every employer bidding on a specific contract or class of contracts, all bidders will be put on an equal footing in this respect.

Fixing of Overitme Pay.

"In fixing the amount of the overtime rate the department will give consideration to conditions in continuous-process industries or industries of an extra-hazardous nature, seasonal peak production periods, flat weekly or monthly wage scales. The same consideration will be given to emergency conditions."

The National Association of Manufacturers based its opinion that the act could be applied "only within very narrow limits" on various opinions handed down in an interpretation of a 1912 law which it said sought to impose an eight-hour law on government contractors. Sixty-five articles were exempted in the application of the 1912 law, the association asserted. Among those were bricks, canvas, clothing, engines, machinery, linseed oil, structural steel and printing.

Warehouse Union Wins San Francisco Strike

San Francisco.—The strike declared on June 11 by Weighers, Warehousemen and Cereal Workers' Local 38-44, International Longshoremen's association, against the Wholesale Hardware, Houseware and Kindred Lines association was ended by the negotiation of a memorandum of terms which the union accepted. The strike, which involved about 300 men, was terminated one month after the men walked out.

"The memorandum of terms arrived at provides for increases in wages for all groups of the industry," William Denton, president of the union, said. "A minimum of $5 per day was set for shipping clerks, receiving clerks, checkers, packers and freight handlers. Other classifications were set at 55 cents an hour. Increases in wages represent, in many cases ,as much as $25 per month.

"The memorandum provides for one week's vacation, with pay. Under the terms of the agreement eight hours will constitute a day's work and 44 hours a week's work. For all work in excess of eight hours per day and 44 hours per week, overtime, at the rate of time and one-half, shall be paid.

"A further section provides that any employe put to work will be given a minimum of four consecutive hours' work per day. Provision is made for no work to be performed upon New Year's day, Washington's birthday, Memorial day, Fourth of July, Labor day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

LABOR ELECTS MOST OF TICKET IN COUNTY VOTE

Two of Three Legislative Candidates Lead All Others.

Four of Its Choice Put on County Court—Railroad and Utility Commissioner Runs Ahead.

Members of Labor's Political Conference are jubilant over the success which solidified action by labor was demonstrated in Hamilton county voting last week. Organized almost one year ago for the purpose of allowing working people to decide on a definite political program, and avoiding the past dangers of splitting its vote over a wide field of candidates, a definite ticket was adopted by the congress of labor unions in Hamilton county. After the ticket was decided upon, campaign headquarters were set up, and labor's choice was actively pushed by public rallies, letters and personal contacts. Results of the election, while not entirely successful, indicate to many that organized labor has a political strength of at least 2,500 solid votes that will go to the polls as a bloc and vote for its ticket.

In the race for county court in the city, First district, Hays Clark, W. F. Langley and J. W. Johnston went over without any trouble. Labor's fourth endorsement, H. B. Caulkins, was defeated. In the rural Third district both of labor's endorsements went to defeat in the face of the concentrated efforts of the county machine. In the second district, labor's choice, C. E. Camp, went over in a big way.

The real big victory was in the legislative race. Of the sixteen men running for the lower house, labor selected John T. Mahoney, D. M. Coleman and H. G. B. King. These three had no other organization actively or openly supporting them, but they were opposed by the combined forces of the city and county machine, which centered on another ticket of three. After votes were tallied, it was shown that Coleman and Mahoney led the entire field by a safe margin, King being defeated, although he received a little less than 2,500 votes.

Leon Jourolmon, endorsed by labor against Harvey Hannah for commissioner of railroads and public utilities, ran a safe race.

Because of the powerful support given to Captain Gordon Browning by the Shelby county political dictator, Burgin Dossett, backed by labor, was defeated, running a little behind Mr. Browning in Hamilton county.

Political wiseacres in Hamilton county say that the outstanding initial success achieved by Labor's Political Conference has old-time political line-ups worried, especially when it appears that an evident bloc of 2,500 labor votes will undoubtedly grow from year to year as confidence and pride in their power is realized.

Labor Day Plans Promise "Big Day" At Warner Park

The Labor Day committee for central body met last Tuesday afternoon in Commissioner R. M. Cooke's office to discuss with Mr. Ed Hargraves, director of recreation, plans for labor's annual celebration at Warner Park on Labor Day.

From suggestions offered by Mr. Hargraves and members of the committee, all veterans in labor celebrations, it appears that next labor day will offer to the labor movement one of the most enjoyable outings in many years. Preliminary plans for a program include all kinds of athletics and contests, picnic lunches, and possibly a speaker of outstanding national repute. More definite details will be worked up this coming week and announcements made in the Labor World.

The Labor Day committee this year is composed of Erskine Mabee, Joe Dobbs, C. C. Peek, J. B. Campbell, J. B. Huff, Mrs. Nancy Lea Smith and T. R. Cuthbert.

LABEL LEAGUE MEETS FRIDAY

Chattanooga Label League will hold its regular meeting Friday, Aug. 14, at the labor temple. It is hoped that Miss Ina Green and Miss Lena Edmonds, who have been attending the summer school for women workers at Camp Illahee, N. C., will be back in time for the meeting.

The league wants a good attendance so that the summer slump may be thrown off and plans made for an active fall and winter program.

John T. Mahoney Says Grateful to Labor

John T. Mahoney, who was second out of a list of sixteen candidates to the lower house of the legislature, and who was endorsed by Labor's Political Conference, stated after the returns were in that he did not believe that he would have run such an astounding race without the valuable support of organized labor. "I certainly want to express my deep appreciation for your support," he tells the labor movement, "and I will earnestly endeavor to prove to you during the next session that I have merited your confidence."

Unionists from Chattanooga Planning to Visit Knoxville With Representatives from Rest of State and South.

Knoxville Central Labor union is laying plans for a big Labor Day celebration this year which will probably be the main event in the south in the way of labor events on the first Monday in September. Preparations are being made for a parade in the morning which will in all likelihood total more than 8,000 marchers, composed not only of Knoxville unionists but unionists from all over Tennessee and the southland.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is scheduled to make an address in the afternoon.

During the afternoon a barbecue feast and a program of fun and amusement will be offered.

Numerous Chattanooga people have already expressed a desire to attend the celebration in Knoxville, and it is believed that quite a motorcade will be formed early Labor Day morning to make the trip.

Strike for Union Shop Held Legal

Labor Board Orders Alaska Juneau Company to Stop Coercing Its Employes and End Recognition of Company Union.

Washington, D. C. — An outstanding illustration of corporation efforts to smash bona fide labor unions by promoting company unions and victimizing strikers is contained in the decision of the National Labor Relations Board finding the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company guilty of unfair labor practices prohibited by the Labor Relations act. Specifically, the board held that the company had interfered with the affairs of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, promoted the company-dominated Juneau Mine Workers' association, and resorted to the discriminatory discharge of more than 100 miners.

In its decision the board held that a strike to secure the closed shop is not illegal, and is protected by the provisions of the Wagner act.

Expressed in tonnage, the Alaska company is the largest gold mining enterprise in the United States. It is a $15,000,000 corporation and has paid $6,000,000 in dividends since 1931.

The case came before the board on complaint of local 203 of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union, which called a strike of the company's employes in May, 1935. The strike is still technically in progress, although the company reopened the mine in July, 1935, under police protection, with some of the strikers returing to work.

A. F. of L. Votes CIO Conditional Suspension

Industrial vs. Craft Unionism Is Not Involved in Controversy With the C. I. O., Says Green

A. F. of L. President Holds Action of Executive Council Ordering Ten Unions Suspended Unless They Withdraw from Lewis Group Was Taken Because the C. I. O. Is a Dual Organization Made up of a Minority "Who Are in Open Rebellion Against Democratic Procedure and Majority Rule" Decreed by the Latest Conventions of the A. F. of L.

Washington, D. C. — A strong indictment of the activities of the Committee for Industrial Organization was made by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement announcing the decision of the A. F. of L. executive council that ten unions who are members of the committee shall "automatically stand suspended from the American Federation of Labor" unless they announce their withdrawal from the C. I. O. "on or before September 5, 1936."

Mr. Green denied as false the widely spread sophistry that the controversy of the American Federation of Labor with the Committee for Industrial Organization is tied up with the question of industrial versus craft unions. The real issue, he said, is the preservation of democratic procedure instead of dictatorial methods in administering the affairs of the A. F. of L.

Following is the text of Mr. Green's statement:

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor decided that the Committee for Industrial Organization is a dual organization, and that its originator and leader is John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"This decision was reached after the executive council had made a careful study of the charges filed by President Frey, of the Metal Trades department, against the Committee for Industrial Organization, and of the evidence offered in support thereof.

"This is the first attempt ever made, during the existence of the American Federation of Labor covering a period of more than fifty years, to set up a dual movement within it. It was the opinion of the executive council that it could not condone the setting up of a rival organization within the officially recognized family of organized labor or tolerate and countenance it without sacrificing its self-respect or making an unconditional surrender to a minority group composed of members who are in open rebellion to democratic procedure and majority rule, as exemplified at the latest convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"The decision of the executive ocnucil to suspend those organizations from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor which hold membership in the dual organization (the Committee for Industrial Organization) within 30 days unless they withdraw therefrom means that said organizations are required to do nothing more than discontinue holding mem-

TEN OUT IN THIRTY DAYS IF C. I. O. IS NOT DISBANDED

Lewis Group Expected to Meet to Define Policies, With No Appeal Considered Probable from Council's Decision.

Washington, D. C. — With only one dissenting vote — that of Vice President David Dubinsky — the A. F. of L. executive council this week voted to suspend ten CIO international unions, if at the end of thirty days they have not withdrawn from CIO. This they are not expected to do, so that on Sept. 5 they will stand suspended, taking something like a million members out of the A. F. of L.

The unions not suspended are the Typos and the Hat and Cap Makers. Typos were exempted because President Charles P. Howard is only personally associated with CIO, the union not affiliated. The Hat and Cap Makers were exempted because only a department is in CIO, the international being out of it.

President Green has not stated whether CIO unions will have a vote in the Tampa convention, but it is expected they will not. But CIO defenders will be there, including Howard, insuring a raising of the issue in Tampa.

Dubinsky to Washington.

The final day of action was packed with sub-rosa drama. President Dubinsky, of the I. L. G. W. U., just back from Europe, rushed to Washington to take part in the voting. He conferred during the day with President Green and with John L. Lewis, in a last futile effort to stall off the inevitable. As a matter of fact, it became "the inevitable" only in the last forty-eight hours of action. Up to that time compromise seemed possible, with several working hard to that end.

In the statement announcing the decision of the Executive Council, President Green said:

"The decision of the Executive Council to suspend those organizations from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor which hold membership in the dual organization (the Committee for Industrial Organization) within thirty days unless they withdraw therefrom means that said organizations are required to do nothing more than to discontinue holding membership in and to cease fostering, financing and maintaining a dual, rival organization within the American Federation of Labor. The decision means just that and nothing else.

"Because there seems to be a public misunderstanding of the real issue which arose out of the formation of the Committee for Industrial Organization the Executive Council declares in most positive terms that the Industrial versus Craft Union dispute is in no way involved in its official decision. No organization will ever be suspended from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor because its members believe in or advocate the acceptance of either the industrial or craft form of organization nor are any of the organizations

BACK FROM VACATION

Mr. Ed Canniff, who is with the Chattanooga Sausage Company, has just returned from a trip by automobile through Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky. Brother Canniff says he had a fine trip and that organization work and union activities are progressing nicely in the sections he visited.

These states were directly in the line of the drouth area and crops were badly damaged. He thinks that there will be just about half the normal yield in these states.

The last six are colored people.

The first forum meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at Dickinson Junior High school, East Eighth street. Dr. George W. Spicer, of the University of Virginia, will lead on that date the first of fourteen discussions to be held in at many different meeting centers in Hamilton county on "Making County Government Effective."

Dr. Spicer will begin lectures in the section north of the river on Monday, Sept. 4, and in Section 3, which is east of Missionary ridge, on Monday, Sept. 21. It is tentatively arranged that Hon. J. W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, will address a general assembly on Sept. 7. One hundred ninety-three various organizations of Chattanooga have been contacted and their support solicited and co-operation promised.

Swedish Co-Operatives Studied by U. S. Board

It is reported from Stockholm that the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to study European co-operatives has completed its survey of Sweden's great system of co-operative retail stores, housing projects, factories and other enterprises conducted on the basis of service without the profit elements usually regarded as elemental in modern business. According to recent figures, the retail stores have a turnover of $100.-000,000 annually.

It is claimed the Swedish co-operatives have in many instances broken up monopolies, which were alleged to extort unreasonable prices from the people. At the same time the members of the co-operatives have enjoyed low prices, together with liberal patronage dividends based upon the amount of purchases.

The members of the commission are Jacob Baker, assistant works progress administrator at Washington; Leland Olds, secretary of the New York state power authority, and Charles E. Stewart, New York engineer.

The commission plans to continue its studies in Finland, Czechoslovakia and France. It made a preliminary study of co-operatives in Great Britain at the beginning of its tour, planning to return there later for a more thorough examination.

Martel announced that the league would support President Roosevelt.

Insurance of Bank Deposits Works

The report, just issued, of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation is an inspiring document. From Jan. 1, 1934, to June 30, 1936, sixty-one insured banks, with 66,035 deposits, failed. All but 306 of the accounts of these banks, less than one-half of one per cent, were fully covered by insurance. The accounts of the 99½ per cent, being $5,000 each, have been paid, or, in the most recent cases, are about to be paid.

In other words, small depositors haven't lost a dollar through bank failures since the FDIC began business. But how the reactionaries and the high financiers howled when the proposal to insure bank deposits first came before congress in 1933!

Few people realize what a perfectly rotten record of failure American banks had, even before the depression. In the years from 1921 to 1929, both years included, 5,642 banks in this country closed their doors. The lowest year in that period was 1922, when 354 banks failed; the highest was 1926, with 956 failures. Only a minority of these failed banks paid their depositors in full.

The loss, hardship, discouragement and deepened poverty of such a series of bank failures cannot be computed. The cost of deposit insurance is utterly negligible by comparison.

A Few Facts on Spain

It may be well to sum up a few facts about the present civil war in Spain; facts which do not appear in the headlines.

First, the present Spanish government is probably the most liberal or progressive, to use the words as we use them in this country, that Spain has ever known. It came into power at the last election, as the result of a fusion of all the liberal parties in Spain to overthrow the strongly fascist government then in power. The election went overwhelmingly for the liberal coalition; but the different parties forming the present government immediately began to quarrel, and kept it up until the outbreak of civil war forced them to close ranks again.

Second, the Spanish rebels are not radicals, as rebels usually are. They are primarily adherents of a fascist form of government. They include the big landowners, for the excellent reason that the breaking up of big landed estates and dividing them among the peasants is one of the proposals on which all factions of all the liberal parties agree. The two chief fascist countries in Europe, Italy and Germany, have supplied ammunition, arms and military airplanes to the rebels.

Third, the war is not a struggle between fascism and communism, but between fascism and liberalism. Spanish communists joined in the coalition which turned the old fascist government out of power; but they are very much in the minority in that coalition.

As this is written, the rebellion seems to have lost that momentum which is so vital in most such movements. The fascist plan was to bring over to Spain the Moroccan army, which, like the French Foreign Legion, is composed mainly of foreigners, willing to fight on either side in any war. Spanish army officers were largely responsible for this plan, but it broke down when the navy proved loyal, and refused to transport the Moroccan forces across the Straits of Gibraltar.

Mobilizations.

Reverberations.

They are everywhere, on land and sea, in Europe, Asia, in the United States.

Not in the United States? Guess again.

Perhaps not the uniformed troops, the heavy artillery, the tanks and the gas equipment — but the industrial and political equivalent.

The big industries, giants whose stocks are shown on the "big board" in Wall Street, are mobilizing to keep unions OUT.

And plenty of them are laying in their stocks of munitions, too.

Not tanks and heavy guns, but tommy guns, rifles, revolvers and gas.

The heavy industries are lining up, mapping out their strategy, getting solidified, set for the attack of organizers, who want nothing but the guarantees that are in the constitution.

Profits are rolling out in great streams.

It is a good day for most of the big corporations. Steel hits a new high in profits. Utilities are having grand times. Dividends are swell.

But there must be no unions—so say the big fellows.

Battalions are wheeling into line for action—against men and women and the rights of men and women.

If anybody thinks that is going to be the end of the story, let them guess again.

There can never be any end to the struggle to organize until there is organization!

The big corporations hire expensive "personnel" men to show them how to keep workers from understanding what it is all about.

The job of a "personnel" man is to fool the workers.

Also the corporations hire "public relations" men whose job is similar—to fool the workers and also to fool the general public.

The kind of job Ivy Lee used to have when he was in his hey-dey, pinning wings on the gaunt shoulders of John D. Rockefeller.

And they must think the workers are dumb and that the general public is dumb.

They like to think that because if they thought the truth they would have to throw up the sponge and admit defeat.

Of course what they look on as defeat would really be victory for everyone, but they can't be expected to know that.

The worst things, in the long run, that can happen to the big corporations is to check unionizing.

When the natural forward pressure of progress is held back too long or too harshly, it often bursts forward in explosive jumps, wrecking a good deal of furniture in the process.

The map is full of the zigzags made by that kind of jumps in the last decade.

Those who sit at the top of a pyramid seldom look down and see things in proper perspective.

It is too bad, but that's generally how it is.

You can take a look at things and draw your own conclusions. But, however you see the outlook, it is hard to avoid one conclusion, which is: Big forces are moving steadily to some gigantic climax.

I must retract a statement I made a few weeks ago that I had seen the first Local 600 charter put in Chattanooga. I have been informed the first meat-cutters' local was organized back when the city government had aldermen instead of commissioners, which was before I was born.

Don't forget S. J. Edwards' stores continue unfair. All efforts at arbitration have failed and now we must fight harder than ever before, so again we ask all union men and their families for their moral support.

Looking at the calendar reminded me of the fact Labor Day (our day) is only a few weeks off and no preparations have been started for a celebration. Let's get busy and make it the biggest Labor Day we have ever had.

Bro. Ball and Bro. Chandler attended the ball game the other day and it was his Ball's first game. It was a double-header and they were late in arriving. Just as they entered a player hit a home run. When the second game started, in the early innings this same player hit another home run. Mack Ball turned to Bro. Chandler and said: "Let's go, this is where we came in."

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

DON'T FORGET that the Label League meets Friday night at 7:30, Roosevelt hall. If you aren't attending these meetings, you don't know how much of the "doin's" of the labor movement in Chattanooga that you are missing.

HAVEN'T YOU SEEN people who always look well dressed, even when they do not have much money to spend on clothes? Well, one secret about that is to watch for sales—and now is the time to buy summer clothes at real bargains if you will just shop around. All the stores have reduced their summer clothes about half. I was in The Vogue yesterday and saw some lovely summer sheers for $3.98—better drop by and see if they have your size.

There may be more, but these are the leading brands and I am sure you will find some of these that suit your taste. All brands of cigarettes made by the Axton-Fisher Tobacco company and by the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Company are union-made.

AND I'M WONDERING if you read that the Brown & Williamson Tobacco company is giving all its employes vacations with pay now? I believe their business must be increasing right along in the Chattanooga area, because I rarely ever see a union man now who smokes non-union cigarettes.

THEY'LL be home this week-end. Misses Ina Green, Lena Edmonds and Edna Brown will return this week-end from Camp Illahee, Brevard, N. C., where they have been attending school for the past six weeks. And I shall ask them to tell us all about that work that they said they would write home about—and didn't. Anyway, we shall be glad to see them.

Twentieth Century Fund Report Finds Townsend Plan Impossible

Committee Which Carefully Studied Proposal Says It Would Place Too Great Burden on Nation and Would Not Speed Up Business or Increase Purchasing Power.

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The first objection which the committee on old-age security of the Twentieth Century Fund, Inc., finds to the Townsend plan is a matter of arithmetic. Dr. Townsend proposes to finance his pensions by a 2 per cent. "transactions tax," which really is just a sales tax. But there are at least 10,000,000 citizens in this country over 60 years of age and with incomes of less than $200 a month, all of whom would be eligible for pensions under the Townsend plan.

To pay these people $200 a month each would take $24,000,000,000 a year. The committee's research shows that a 2 per cent. sales tax even in 1929 would have yielded not more than $9,000,000,000; and in 1934 the same tax would have yielded around $4,000,000,000—one-sixth of the sum required to finance the Townsend pensions. On the basis of business as in 1934, the sales tax would have to be raised to 12 per cent. to raise the required sum.

Sales Taxes Big Burden on Workers.

Sales taxes always are passed back to workers or on to consumers—usually both. In either case, the laboring man would have 12 per cent.—one-eighth—of his income taken away from him by lower wages or higher prices or both. The committee rightly says that this would spell tragedy in the majority of American homes.

That is quite the mildest possible statement of the case. A "transactions tax" levied on groceries, for instance, would be collected at least three times—at the transfers from producer to wholesaler, from wholesaler to retailer, from retailer to consumer. This would mean 36 per cent. instead of 12 per cent. The committee holds that such a levy would be utterly ruinous to business. Assuredly, it would spell starvation to a large proportion of wage earners.

Spending Plan Not Aid to Buying Power.

To the Townsend claim that the forced spending of the entire pension each month would speed up business, the committee replies:

"This forced expenditure would not increase the speed with which the money would be spent. The income of the great majority of people now is spent almost immediately, under the compulsion of economic necessity, for food, clothing and rent. Old people could not spend it any faster—even under legal compulsion. . . . Even in the boom year of 1929, families representing 80 per cent. of the non-farm population saved less than 7 per cent. of what they earned. The remaining 93 per cent. was spent for current necessities."

"Nor would this forced expenditure increase or decrease purchasing power," the committee goes on. "It would merely take a substantial part of the income now earned by people under 60 and hand it to those over 60. . . . The result of the plan, on the basis of the present national income and price level, would involve a redistribution of income in which not more than 10 per cent. of the people (those over 60) would receive one-half of the national income, while the 90 per cent. who would have to support the 10 per cent. would receive the other half."

Economic Security Must be Given Aged.

It is hardly necessary to quote the committee's analysis of the effect of even a universal 2 per cent. sales tax on business, on employment, on the whole national life. It is better to give the thoughtful, kindly summing up of the committee, thus:

"In exposing the fallacies of the Townsend plan, the committee has no intention of implying that the crying need of the aged for economic security in the United States should not be met as far as is humanly possible within the limitations of our economic system.

"The great problem before the American people is to determine how large a measure of economic security can be given to the aged without taking too much away from the rest of us, or placing too great a strain upon the entire fabric of American economic life upon which the whole population—including the aged—depends for its existence.

$200 Monthly Pensions Are Called Impossible.

"It is obvious that anything like $200 a month is utterly impossible with our present economic machinery. On the other hand, it is equally obvious that pensions which will be paid under existing legislation are not adequate, and that it should be possible to pay larger amounts. To this problem, the committee is giving its earnest attention."

The report is signed by John B. Andrews, chairman; Grace Abbott, Frederic Dewhurst, Frank P. Graham, Helen Hall, M. Albert Linton, I. M. Ornburn, and Evans Clark, secretary.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

POLITICS

An analysis of election returns show a partial victory for the forces of organized labor and a partial defeat for the various political machines heretofore in control. Four of the eight squires backed by Labor's Political Conference came through and two of the labor candidates for the lower house led the ticket. The Volunteers, also labor-backed, came through with the successful candidates favorable to the reform movement. Altogether the results of our less than-a-year-old political enterprise are very gratifying.

Where are the teachers in the post-election situation? We have a legislative delegation pledged not to touch our hard-won tenure bill. We have a majority of the elected squires on record for providing the funds necessary to put into effect the provisions of the salary law which was recently deprived of its legal status by the supreme court.

In the county the next step is to prevail upon Mr. Rankin and the board of education to adopt the teachers' scale as a policy and to submit a school budget adequate to put it into effect. It is felt that the county court will adopt such a budget if recommended by Supt. Rankin.

In the city the only way found by the legal jugglers to attack the salary bill is to argue that the whole city system, as a separate unit, is illegal. It does not seem that such a flimsy argument can hope to prevail. One is inclined to wonder why this profound iden has not been advanced before by the city counsel. City teachers should look forward to a siege but may be reasonably confident of a final victory.

A. F. OF T. CONVENTION

Next Sunday in Philadelphia the annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers will begin. Local 246 will be represented by President Stanton E. Smith, C. C. Burgner and W. P. Bales. The issues confronting the convention are crucial, perhaps more so than at any previous convention. Harmony is the aim of the different factions in the international, however, and no splits are expected over the decisions on the issues. The teachers are faced with the decision as to what are the best methods of combatting the rising tide of reaction that would crush the public schools, along with the labor movement, under the iron heel of fascism. The question of affiliation with the committee for industrial organization is another momentous issue that will be up for discussion. A farmer-labor party for carrying forward the banner of the democratic and anti-fascist forces in this country after the November election will be considered.

The principal change in the organizational setup to be discussed is the proposal to equalize the expense of sending delegates to the convention. This proposal would assess all locals with an amount sufficient to insure the ability of the A. F. of T. to pay the expenses of one delegate from each local in the federation. This would insure representation from every local in the country, no matter how distant or how poverty-stricken. There are several alternative variations to this proposal.

Local 246 is fortunate in having such able representatives at the convention this year, and we can look forward to some very interesting and profitable reports when they return.

UNION LABEL PAPER

This week's Teacher Talk column was typed on paper water-marked with the label of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers. This may be obtained at any of the union printing companies. Teachers should use this union label paper and should ask the stationery stores with which they deal to carry it.

TEACHERS WILL RALLY BEHIND MR. BALES

Brother J. D. Bales may rest assured that the overwhelming majority of teachers as well as the decent and politically-free citizens of the county will rally to his support in his fight against the forces of machine politics that are trying to discredit him. For years he has fought the battles of the classroom teacher against heavy odds and sometimes almost alone. The real reason for the attack on him is because he fought so fearlessly and uncompromisingly for us.

It is significant that Brother Bales' detractors could not present even a framed-up case against him before the board. They evidently supposed that it would be sufficient to register a simple complaint and expected his political enemies to take care of the rest.

Tax Returns Are Opened For Labor Spy Inquiry

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt ordered the federal income tax returns of 230 private detective agencies and corporations employing them thrown open for use of the senate committee on education and labor in its investigation, authorized by the senate just before adjournment, into violations of the rights of free speech and assembly and undue interference with the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively."

The scope of the probe includes the ramifications of private detectives and spies employed by many corporations to break strikes and smash trade unions. The president's executive order directed the internal revenue bureau to give the committee what information it had regarding the subject matter covered by the probe.

Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, will conduct the inquiry for the labor committee. He has authority to subpoena witnesses and documents of detective agencies and corporations. He has designated Robert Wohlforth, investigator in the senate's munitions inquiry, to head the staff of experts.

16,524 JEWS ARE AIDED TO LEAVE NAZI GERMANY

The persecution of Jews under Hitler's Nazi terrorism continues unabated. During the last year the American Jewish committee, whose executive director is Joseph C. Hyman, expended $300,000 for the rehabilitation of victimized Jews in Germany and through organizations co-operating with the committee helped 16,524 Jews to leave the country and locate in other lands.

Patent Office Denies Finch Company Right to Use A. F. of L. Insignia

Assistant Commissioner Frazer Holds Initials "A. F. L." on Trade-Mark for Alcoholic Beverages Would Cause Confusion and Injure American Federation of Labor.

Washington, D. C. — A signal victory for the exclusive right of the American Federation of Labor to use the insignia "A. F. L." was recorded in the decision handed down by Leslie Frazer, assistant commissioner of the U. S. Patent Office, denying the application of Joseph S. Finch & Company for the registration of a trade-mark containing these initials. The company claimed the notation stood for the phrase "America's Finest Liquors" used to advertise the concern's whisky, brandy, gin, rum and alcoholic beverages.

The application of the company to use the initials on its trade mark was refused as violating the legal rights of the American Federation of Labor in an opinion rendered some months ago by a patent office examiner of interferences. The company appealed from the decision, presenting elaborate arguments for its legal right to appropriate the insignia of the American Federation of Labor. This claim was firmly contested by H. H. Byrne, counsel for the A. F. of L., with the result that the right of the federation to the exclusive use of the insignia "A. F. L." was definitely established in patent office practice.

Supporting his position with an opinion of the U. S. supreme court in a similar case that the question was whether the appropriation of insignia long used by another concern "is of such a character and extent" as to be "calculated to deceive or confuse the public" and thereby injure the party which opposes the appropriation, Assistant Commissioner Frazer said:

"I am convinced that such confusion and injury would be likely to result from applicant's use of the contested mark on its goods, and that the examiner of trade-mark interferences was right in sustaining the opposicion and adjudging applicant not entitled to the registration applied for. His decision is accordingly affirmed.

Just so long as one American worker is out of a job union-earned money, spent for union-made goods, will increase his chance of obtaining work!

Asks Court to Enjoin SEC From Investigating Trusts

Washington, D. C. — Frederick T. Fisher, son of a former cabinet member, has filed suit in the District of Columbia supreme court, asking that court to enjoin the SEC from any investigation of the Equity Corporation, an investment trust.

Several things about this suit are both interesting and important.

Mr. Fisher sues as a stockholder of the Equity, saying that publicity for the works and policy of that corporation will cause "irreparable losses" to that corporation. But around the SEC, Mr. Fisher is said to be the owner of exactly two shares of Equity stock, which he bought at an outlay of perhaps three dollars.

The officials of the Equity are entirely willing to have the investigation go on, and have cooperated thus far with the SEC. Evidently, they have no fear of "irreparable losses." But Mr. Fisher also asks the court to enjoin these Equity officials from giving any of the required information voluntarily. They are to be forbidden to tell what they know, even though they are perfectly willing to tell it.

They are asking at the SEC whether a $3 investment gives that investor the right to muzzle the officials of the company in which he bought stock and which has assets counted by the millions.

In launching this investigation, the SEC was obeying a direct order from congress, to learn and tell the facts about investment trusts. These institutions for handling other people's money were almost unknown before 1927, multiplied like mosquitoes during the next two years, and at their peak, held assets with market values of not less than $8,000,000,000. Many of them have crashed; but the approximately 350 investment trusts which congress ordered the SEC to investigate have assets around $1,800,000,000.

Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Thedford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

What Next!

Machinery now blows lamp bulbs at the rate of 552 per minute. New plants are now being built that will blow 1,100 per minute. Only a couple of these machines will be needed to blow all the lamp bulbs we can use.

Until 1925 the wrought iron puddler could only puddle about 200 pounds — his own weight each day—but the Aston process makes wrought iron at the rate of 500 to 1,000 tons per day, and makes it better than it could be made by hand.

In Andrew Jackson's time they tilled land with a spade. It required 96 hours for a good man to spade an acre of ground. Today one man, with a helper, using a tractor, can work 22 acres per day. They can plow an acre in one seven-hundredth of the time it took with a spade.

The Combine is an improvement of about 1,300 to 1 over the method of reaping grains with the old hand cradle.

MORE ABOUT CRAFT VS. INDUS.

bership in and to cease fostering, financing and maintaining a dual, rival organization within the American Federation of Labor. The decision means just that and nothing else.

Industrial vs. Craft Union Issue Not Involved.

"Because there seems to be a public misunderstanding of the real issue which arose out of the formation of the Committee for Industrial Organization, the executive council declares in most positive terms that the industrial versus craft union dispute is in no way involved in its official decision.

"No organization will ever be suspended from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor because its members believe in or advocate the acceptance of either the industrial or craft form of organization nor are any of the organizations which hold membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization asked to withdraw their endorsement or espousal of industrial unionism.

"They are not asked to give up industrial unionism. Instead, they are asked to give up a dual union. They may choose whether they will remain with the American Federation of Labor or cast their lot with the dual, rival organization. The decision of the executive council means they cannot belong to both organizations at the same time.

"The membership of the American Federation of Labor stoutly defends the validity of both forms of organization and convincingly extols their economic virtues and benefits.

"Both the industrial and craft forms of organization are widely applied in all the organizing work of the American Federation of Labor. As evidence of this fact some organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are organized upon an industrial and some upon a craft union basis. There is a wide opportunity to apply both forms of organization in the execution of the organizing work of the American Federation of Labor as defined and directed by a majority vote of the delegates in attendance at conventions.

"How can industrial unionism versus craft unionism be the issue when the federation has never taken a position in favor of one as against the other? If it favors both plans how can it be charged with supporting one plan and being against the other? Because industrial unionism versus craft unionism is not the issue those interested must look to some other source for the real reason why a dual organization has been set up within the American Federation of Labor.

C. I. O. Creates "Grave Situation"

"The executive council is fully conscious of the grave situation existing within the family of organized labor because of the breach which has been created through the formation of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Those who split and divide labor through the creation of a dual movement must accept responsibility for their action.

"Inspired by a sincere desire to heal the breach which has been created and to maintain unity and solidarity within the ranks of labor, the executive council pleaded with the representatives of the organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization to dissolve their dual organization and to abandon the labor-splitting policy upon which they had embarked. Every request the executive council made was rejected and every invitation extended to meet and confer was refused.

Spurns Executive Council.

"Through all the months intervening since November 10, 1935, when the Committee for Industrial Organization was formed, the council has shown great patience and forbearance under most trying circumstances. When it extended a cordial invitation to the representatives of the organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization to meet with it on July 8, 1936, for the purpose of acquainting the members of the executive council with their reasons for refusing the request of the executive council to dissolve their organization set-up, the council hoped that through such a conference a settlement could be reached which would be fair and just to all.

"But the invitation of the executive council was refused, its request for a conference was spurned and its authority to administer the affairs of the American Federation of Labor between conventions was treated with contempt.

"Thus the issue has been clearly drawn. The executive council has met it in a definite and decisive way. A mere loss of membership could not be considered when a vital principle was at stake.

"When ambitious men form a dual, rival organization for the purpose of forcing the acceptance of minority rule within the American Federation of Labor, the executive council decides they cannot do so within and as a part of the American Federation of Labor."

Gentlemen:
I have had my Automatic Hot Water Heater long enough now to get an idea as to how much it is going to cost to operate it.
My average bill for cooking with gas, up to the time of putting in the Water Heater, was $1.13 a month. For the three months I have had my Automatic Gas Water Heater the increase in my bill has averaged only $1.05 a month.
We have steaming hot water at all hours of the day and night, and never have to give it a thought. Regardless of how much it might cost, the service would be a necessity. We regard it as a luxury at a bargain price.
Perhaps others have lower bills than mine, but I can't imagine any other way of securing perfect, continuous hot water at anything like so low a price.
Yours very truly,

TEXTILE WORKERS MAP DRIVE TO ORGANIZE RAYON INDUSTRY

Washington.—Officials of the United Textile Workers of America completed plans for a big organization campaign in the rayon industry, to begin Aug. 1, at a two-day conference here.

The rayon campaign will be concentrated in plants in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, West Virginia, New York and New England states. It will embrace plants of the Viscose corporation, du Ponts, Industrial Rayon corporation, American Enka, Tubize Chatillon, American Bamberg and other smaller companies.

Statistics, publicity and other organizational mediums will be used in the drive, it was said at the Washington office of the union.

"The organization drive," Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, said, "ties in very closely with the recently announced campaign to organize woolen and worsted, now being conducted by the Woolen and Worsted Federation. The objectives of the drive are penetration, with the message of organization of one of the newest and most prosperous industries in this country, and, through organization ,bettering the working conditions of the 55,000 workers employed in rayon and synthetic yarn."

At the conferences were A. R. Woodard and John Kabler, president and secretary-treasurer of the Synthetic Yarn Workers' Federation ,and William F .Kelly and Francis J. Gorman, vice-presidents of the United Textile Workers.

Richmond, Va.—President Joseph Rossano, of the Virginia State Federation of Labor, has pledged the cooperation of the federation to the campaign of the United Textile Workers of America to organize 55,000 additional workers.

Half of Virginia's approximately 10,000 rayon workers, including upward of 5,000 in Roanoke, already are unionized, Rossano said.

gard to union affiliation, withdraw recognition and financial support from the Juneau Mine Workers' association which the board described as a "company-dominated" labor organization, reinstate with back pay 29 miners who struck and were later refused employment when their labor is needed nearly 100 others who were refused employment after the 1935 strike.

Police Aid Strikebreakers.

In reciting the history of the strike the board said that in the spring of 1934 negotiations with the union resulted in a reduction of the workweek from seven days to six, but that a union move toward the closed shop ended the company's willingness to negotiate. The strike in May, 1935, caused a complete shutdown of the mine, marked by rioting and the use of the Juneau police in aiding strike breakers. It also involved the International Longshoremen's association, which refused to handle the company's products at the docks, both in Alaska and the state of Washington.

Closed Shop Strike Upheld.

The company asserted at a hearing in Juneau last March, before Trial Examiner Charles W. Hope, that the strike which shut down its mine from May 22 to July 5 last year was not "ethical" and "legal" because it was for a closed shop. The claim was made that the strike was not voted upon by the membership of the union.

In answer to this contention the board's decision points out that a strike for a closed shop is not illegal, and that employes striking for such an end are as fully entitled to the benefits of the labor relations act as are all other striking employes. Evidence at the hearing refuted the company's assertion that the strike was called without proper authority, since it was shown that the union had formally voted to delegate to its board of trustees the power to call a strike.

City Attorney Aids Company.

The decision recounts how, after the entire working force of 887 miners went out on strike in May a year ago, the company fostered a back-to-work movement, yet only offered reemployment to those who would apply individually. The city attorney of Juneau, H. L. Faulkner, according to evidence at the hearing, assisted the back-to-work movement, brought the full weight of the local authorities on the side of those seeking to break the strike, and drafted a police protection resolution making it unlawful for anyone to interfere with men desiring to register for work "by shouting, cheering, intimidating, insult or for more than five men to assemble in one place." Faulkner did not act in his capacity as city attorney. He acted as attorney for the company in at least one business matter.

Complicity Laid to Juneau Officials.

Evidence was presented at the hearing showing the complicity of Juneau officials and citizens in attempts to break the strike. Balloting held on June 13 in the city hall to vote on the question of a return to work was conducted at city expense, and with Mayor Goldstein appointing the judges. It was shown that City Attorney Faulkner interested himself in the formation of the Juneau Mine Workers' Association, whose activities the mining company supported. On June 24 an escort of 50 Juneau police was provided workers on march to the registration office. When the line of march met the strikers' picket line there was a riot; several union men were indicted and later freed after a trial by jury. It was shown that Faulkner wrote an anonymous letter published in the Alaska press and attacking the jury's decision.

Strikers Refused Employment

On July 5, 1935, the mine opened under police protection. U. S. deputy marshals saw the men to work. In July the Juneau local of the International Longshoremen's association tied up company freight by refusing to move it. In September a committee of the strikers called on Superintendent Metzger and offered to call off the strike if there were no discrimination. Metzger replied that he would only deal with individuals and that 40 strikers would not be taken back under any consideration. The board's decision set down in detail the company's refusal to take back the strikers, several of them war veterans, because of the part they played in the union.

Long Strike of Vermont Quarry Workers Settled

Rutland, Vt.—Fred C. Croxton, federal commissioner of conciliation, announced that 86 per cent of the striking quarrymen of the Vermont Marble company voted at a mass meeting to accept the settlement agreed upon by union officials and the company.

Although all the terms of the agreement were not revealed, it was stated that men who struck will be re-employed when there are places for them, with the provision that the reemployment plan does not include those guilty of violence. No discrimination, it was said, will be made between union and non-union operatives.

The strike became effective in November, 1935. It followed a refusal of the company to sign an agreement for wage increases, rotation of shifts, grievance and arbitration clauses, investigation of dismissals, etc., asked by the representatives of the Quarry Workers' International Union of North America and the International Association of Marble, Slate and Stone Polishers, Rubbers and Sawyers.

In a statement outlining the causes of the strike at the time it was declared, John W. Lawson, secretary-treasurer of the Quarry Workers, said:

"The workers in the Vermont marble industry, where the marble for the United States supreme court building was quarried, do not earn enough to provide decent living standards for their families. One worker reports that his pay check for a 35-hour week, after the company had deducted house rent, light, water rent, etc., amounted to $4.20."

Roosevelt's Re-Election Urged by Railway Clerks

Cincinnati.—George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, announced that the organization had indorsed the re-election of President Roosevelt.

In a statement explaining its stand the grand executive council of the Brotherhood said the indorsement was based more on the president's record than on his platform promises, adding:

"Unemployment remains the most important question confronting the American people. If our American institutions are to be preserved, fundamental reforms in our social system must promptly take place. The wealth of the nation must be distributed more equitably among the masses of our people."

Publicly Owned Utilities Grow.

Washington.—A steady increase in public ownership of electric utility plants since 1929, matched with a drop in the number of privately owned units, was disclosed in a federal power commission report.

Last year, the figures showed, the country had 4,010 plants generating electricity for public use, of which 3,027 were privately owned and 893 were publicly owned. The total compared with 3,987 in 1934 and 4,040 in the peak year of 1920.

The 983 publicly owned plants compared with 931 in 1934 and 811 in 1929, while the 3,027 private plants last year compared with 3,056 in 1934 and 3,031 in 1929.

which hold membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization asked to withdraw their indorsement or espousal of industrial unionism. They are not asked to give up industrial unionism. Instead, they are asked to give up a dual union. They may choose whether they will remain with the American Federation of Labor or cast their lot with the dual, rival organization. The decision of the Executive Council means they cannot belong to both organizations at the same time."

Votes Against Suspension.

Mr. Dubinsky voted against suspension because of his conviction that "the Executive Council has exceeded its authority under the constitution of the American Federation of Labor. Such a right or a power to suspend unions or revoke charters resides explicitly in conventions only, and only by a two-thirds vote of delegates. The adoption by the Executive Council of a so-called enabling rule to put a color of legality on this illegal procedure of suspension of a dozen of international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor as autonomous and self-governing bodies, is a deplorable subterfuge which will convince no fair-minded person of the justice or legality of these tragic proceedings. . . . I voted against suspension also as a protest against the grave consequences of division and ruin which this action of the council is likely to bring upon all our unions."

"We will not disband the Committee for Industrial Organization," said John L. Lewis. "The decision of the Executive Council will not change the policy of the CIO nor will it have any effect upon the organizing activities of the committee."

Asked whether the CIO would institute court action to force the next convention of the A. F. of L. to recognize the votes of CIO members on the suspension issue, Mr. Lewis said no court action was contemplated. "I am afraid we would win," he added, "and wouldn't it be paradoxical to ask a court to order us back into an organization that does not want us?"

Thus the die is cast. Its effects will be felt all down the line, in state federations and in central labor bodies, for, as President Green said at the close of the Executive Council's session, members of the suspended organizations will not be eligible to representation on state and central labor bodies.

City Tennis Standings Will Be Decided in Final Tournament—Fireworks and Music on Program—Kids to Get Prizes for Athletic Prowess.

Central Labor union's Labor Day committee is fast whipping into shape a comprehensive program which will give all ages an opportunity to enjoy themselves at Warner pary Labor Day. Due to the splendid co-operation given by Mr. Ed Hargraves, superintendent of recreation for Chattanooga, there will be something doing every hour of the day, beginning at 9:30 in the morning until the fireworks display closes the day.

High interest has been aroused over the argument started between the Carpenters' and Painters' local unions. Somebody said the carpenters were better than the painters any day, or vice versa, and when the argument cleared up, both unions challenged the other to send a baseball team to the park Labor Day and fight it out on the diamonds. Both sides have posted $50 each to go to some worthy purpose or charity.

In addition to the annual event created last year, the all-city champion 100-yard dash for boys, a similar cup is being offered this year to the champion girl sprinter. The cup becomes the property of the athlete who wins the event three years.

N. Y. Commission Says Work Relief Is Not Remedy

Votes Against Relief as Permanent Method of Meeting Problems of Large-Scale Unemployment.

Albany, N. Y.—Twenty-six of the thirty-one members of Gov. Lehman's commission on unemployment signed a report recommending that work relief should not be adopted by the state as a permanent method of meeting the problem of large-scale unemployment. Five members desire to continue work relief as the major method of meeting unemployment of large numbers.

All thirty-one members of the commission agree that if a change from work relief to home relief is to be made, it must be gradual and carefully supervised.

The majority report lists the merits of work relief as follows:

Maintain Morale.

Avoiding the stigma of charity, maintaining the morale and self-respect, producing valuable return to the communities where it is carried on, preserving skill and work habits, cash payments instead of grocery orders, better fare than home relief.

As offsetting these merits, the majority lists eleven demerits, not all of which need be repeated. Work relief costs more than home relief; it is a less efficient method of doing work than the usual methods, it is regarded by some workers as a continuing job, it is not easy of control, it competes with ordinary public enterprise and in some cases with private enterprise.

The minority report, while acknowledging some of the faults which the majority stresses, maintains that work relief projects "so long as the volume of unemployment and of resultant destitution remains at anything like its present proportions.

Re-employment Slow.

"The rise of factory employment in this state during the last two years has been disappointingly slow," says the minority report. "The year 1935 registered an average gain over 1934 of 3.6. The first five months of 1936 registered an average gain over the corresponding months of 1935 of 3.3.

"At this rate of gain, a period of seven years would be required to get us back to the average of 1925-27. While hoping for a much more speedy return to pre-depression conditions, our plans should take into account the facts above indicated. . . .

"The only possible alternative to the various types of work relief which have been or are now in operation is, in our opinion, a great increase in home relief for a period of several years. We consider that result a much more serious evil than the limitations and shortcomings of work relief, as developed under the Wicks act in New York state."

C. I. O. Will Continue Work of Organizing

Washington.—Meeting at the offices of the United Mine Workers, the Committee for Industrial Organization, by unanimous vote, reaffirmed the policies set forth in its communication of July 21 to President Green, of the A. F. of L., declared the action of the A. F. of L. Executive Council suspending ten unions for C. I. O. activities to be illegal, and pledged itself to proceed with the work of organizing labor in the mass production industries.

Canadian Gov't Official Urges Increased Wages

Contreal, Canada.—Finding truth in the established philosophy of organized labor in both Canada and the United States, the Hon. Wilfried Gagnon, minister of trade and commerce in the Godbout cabinet, has urged increase in wage levels, as a means of aiding the return of prosperity to all classes of society.

The working class, together with the farmers, Minister Gagnon stated, constitute the backbone of the country, and he could not see how any true prosperity could be achieved unless these two elements of society were prosperous. The minister also declared that the Godbout program recognized this important principle of economics.

KEY WEST WPA STRIKE ENDS.

Key West, Fla.—A portion of WPA workers employed on Key West projects, who came out on strike recently, decided to go back to work. While the strikers did not get their main objective, which was announced as payment for time lost during recent rains, they probably influenced one decision. A drainage project, declared to be hazardous on account of snakes and mosquitoes, was closed.

Dairy Union Signs Kay's Ice Cream to A Union Agreement

Provides for Increase in Pay and Reduction in Hours —Ten Members Added to Union Roll.

Kay's, Grant-Patten and United Dairy Are Only 100% Union-Made Ice Cream in Chattanooga.

Officials of Dairy Workers' union, No. 428 announced this week that most friendly negotiations with Mr. Kolmansperger, owner of Kay's Ice Cream, has been concluded, and a signed closed shop agreement was secured with this newcomer in the union dairy field.

Provisions of the contract grant the employes of Kay's more pay in their envelopes and less hours for work. The union wishes to call to the attention of all unionists that there should be no reason now not to use union-made ice cream, since there are three reputable concerns that are serving the public with a high-grade product that meets all price competition. In addition to Kay's, Grant-Patten and United Dairies are thoroughly union.

The Labor World congratulates Mr. Kolmansperger for the fine spirit which he has shown in negotiating the agreement.

TVA FASCIST CREATED EVENTS CAUSING DEATH

HOUNDED FROM TVA BY ANTI-UNION SUPERVISOR

Points to Persecution of Husband of Murdered Woman Which Forced Them to Leave for Chicago.

Mary Louise Trammell's tragic death in a Chicago hotel might not have occurred if fascism were not tolerated in the alleged "social" TVA. It was an alleged military-union hater who drove Tom Trammell out, otherwise he would have still been in the Tennessee valley, perhaps living happily with his wife.

Trammell was imbued with the TVA spirit. He believed in it and loved it. He loved it second only to his young and attractive wife.

He met her while he was manager of the cafeteria at Norris, and married her after a very short courtship. He was at that time considered a valuable man in the TVA organization; in co-operation with organized labor

Non-Partisan League Delegates Meet In National Convention at Washington

League Is Organized as Permanent Body, Indorses the Re-Election of President Roosevelt and Pledges Him Full Support of Organized Labor and Its Friends.

Washington.—Two hundred delegates to Labor's Non-Partisan league, coming from all forty-eight states, met at the Willard hotel in the national capital last week and organized the league as a permanent body. In this, its first meeting, the league received a letter from the White House, indorsed the re-election of President Roosevelt and pledged him the support of labor, called for the thorough organization of the workers and their friends of the liberal movement, and heard speeches by Major George L. Berry, John L. Lewis, Sidney Hillman, Fineley Bell, and others.

Adopts Resolution.

Two of the resolutions adopted are as follows:

Be it further Resolved, that we commit ourselves to the furtherance of liberalism in the United States, recommend and approve the continuance of Labor's Non-Partisan league as an instrumentality for the furtherance of liberalism in our country; and be it further

Resolved, that Labor's Non-Partisan league commits itself to the proposition of thoroughly organizing the workers and their friends of the liberal movement of America to the end that we may be in a position to adjust ourselves intelligently and effectively to any political realignment that may occur following re-election of President Roosevelt to the end that human progress as measured by the administration of President Roosevelt may be sustained.

We recommend the adoption of the resolution.

All the speakers praised President Roosevelt. Lewis called him "the greatest humanitarian who ever held that office. All united in condemning Landon as an agent for big business; and Fineley Bell declared that "Landon is a strikebreaker."

Du Pont Agent, Says Lewis.

"Labor," said Lewis, "is opposed to the election of a man as president of the United States, merely on the grounds that he will be a loyal agent for the du Pont financial interests, the Standard Oil company, the United States Steel corporation, and the great banks of New York and Chicago."

"We of labor," said Sidney Hillman, "know that unless there be governmental support to the program of labor, there will be no opportunity to put the millions who are unemployed back to work. These reforms (the shorter work day and work week) must be written into the law of the land if the millions of unemployed are ever to return to work."

Harvey Fremming, president of the Oil and Refinery Workers, said that Landon paid his oil workers $50 a month before the petroleum code came in, and worked them a 12-hour day. He declared that Kansas, with no safety laws worth mentioning, was the dumping ground of defective and wornout boilers that other states would not allow to be used.

Legion Officers Urged to Defend Bill of Rights

Friends of Liberty Will Continue To Judge the Legion by the Acts of Its Members, Says A. C. L. U. and Cites Three Instances of Failure to Defend Civil Rights.

New York City.—A prompt and public condemnation by national officers of the American Legion of all activities of its members that threaten the bill of rights was urged on Frank Miles, of Des Moines, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, by the American Civil Liberties union in a letter signed by Lucille B. Milner, secretary. "Until such public disavowal is made, friends of liberty will continue to judge the Legion by the acts of its members, whatever its avowed program may be," the A. C. L. U. said.

Mr. Miles had callenged the union "to cite some special instance in the past year, or in other years" to support its statement in its annual report from June, 1935, to June, 1936, that the Legion "led the field in attacking civil rights." In reply, the A. C. L. U. cited three examples taken from the morning's mail in which the Legion's protest was received.

Three Cases Cited.

The three instances reported in answer to Mr. Miles challenge were:

1. A recent attack led by Major George L. Darte, of the Richmond, Virginia, Post No. 1, which resulted in the denial of a permit for a communist party meeting in the John Marshall High school with James W. Ford, negro vice-presidential nominee of the party as speaker. The union quoted the editorial criticism of the Richmond Times-Dispatch condemning Major Darte's activity as "ill-timed and in conflict with American principles of free speech."

Magazine Solicitor Jailed.

2. A report from the Chicago civil liberties committee on the conviction of Paul Butash, a solicitor for the Literary Digest, for criminal syndicalism in Angola, Ind. Mr. Butash, a naturalized Hungarian never active in radical movements, aroused the suspicion of two legionnaires, Mr. Burton Richardson and Mr. Elgers Ewers by using the word "system" to describe the economic order in the United States and by pointing to the U. S. R. R. in showing a twelve-inch globe of the world given with subscriptions. He was persuaded to come to a meeting, apparently especially arranged to "frame" him by the Legion. There he spoke for five minutes and then was questioned for an hour and a half on his theories of government. When he declared that he favored a farmer-labor party and that "the people can force congress to change conditions," the meeting was broken up and legionnaires tried to attack him. He was warned to leave town. The next day he was arrested and some time later convicted of criminal syndicalism. He is now in the state prison pending an appeal.

3. The award of "a distinguished service certificate" by the McKeesport, Pa., American Legion post to Mayor George H. Lysle for his opposition to "anti-American movements." "Mayor Lysle," the union said, "has a long record of high-handed repression and of unwarranted interference with free speech and assemblage."

SOUND TRUCK BROADCAST BANNED IN LABOR DISPUTE

Reading, Pa.—An interesting case in connection with efforts of public officials to hamper organized labor arose here when John Edelman, national research director of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, and Harry Boyer, secretary-treasurer of the plant local of the Berkshire Knitting mills here, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct when they broadcast appeals from a sound truck to 5,000 employes in the plant to join in mass picketing.

The demonstration was called to protest return of employes to a six-day work week.

When taxpayers buy foreign-made products they prolong paying taxes for relief in America!

BUILDING CONTRACTORS PULL "FAST ONE" IN EFFORT TO STIR EMPLOYERS AGAINST LABORERS

Manufacturers Are Led to Believe That Building Trades Laborers' Union to Make Nonsensical Demand on Them.

In the recent Pound building strike settlement it was agreed by the laborers' union and the building contractors in Chattanooga that written notice would be sent out by the union to every building contractor that on and after a certain date the wage scale for common labor would be set at an agreed price, and that all labor would be set at an agreed price, and that all labor would be hired through the business agent of that union.

These letters, addressed "To Whom It May Concern" in the building trades, were mailed to all the building contractors as agreed. Last week a certain manufacturer, not in the building game, became aroused and aggrieved when he received one of these letters which, reading hurriedly, told him that he must hire all of his common labor through the building trades.

"Why in the h—l," he said, "should I have to go to the building trades to get my labor? They're nerts! If that's the way they feel, why I'm going to help bust up that local union if I get a chance."

Here's what happened: A contractor got the letter, as he was intended to do. He took the letter out of the envelope, put it into another envelope and sent it to the manufacturer, with no explanation at all. When the manufacturer received the letter he naturally assumed that it came to him from the Building Trades council, because it was signed by them.

Truly, it was a slick scheme to inflame non-combatants against the new local union.

21 Railway Unions Indorse R. B. Russell, Jr. To Defeat Talmadge

Four years ago the railroad "boys" aided materially in sending "Dick" Russell, then governor of Georgia, to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of Senator William J. Harris, a progressive democrat.

Now Senator Russell is seeking re-election for a full six-year term, and he has the indorsement of all the standard railroad labor organizations. The primary will be held on Sept. 9. Senator Russell's opponent is the erratic Gov. Eugene Talmadge, rabble-rousing enemy of the "new deal" and the man whom William Randolph Hearst imagined at one time he could "balloon" into a presidential possibility.

W. P. A. Workers Will Stage Sit-Down Strike

Detroit.—A one-hour "sit-down" strike, called Friday, Aug. 14, was voted by approximately 300 WPA workers meeting here in a protest against refusal by county and state administrators to raise relief wages to 60 cents per hour.

Following the labor demonstration Friday, a delegation of workers will leave for Washington to plead their cause with Administrator Hopkins.

Camden Strikers Sue Police for Arrest

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With the Camden (N. J.) RCA Victor strike settled, and prosecution of strikers being continued, suit is being brought against the Camden police for false arrest on behalf of everyone arrested unlawfully since the beginning of the strike by A. J. Isserman, attorney for the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America and the United Defense Committee.

One of 200 people arrested, all of whom spent a few days in jail under bond, approximately half have been released. About 90 are still being held in bail averaging from $5,000 to $15,000 for the grand jury, which is convening two months earlier this year than in the past.

The continued prosecution of charges against the strikers and the imposing of even heavier bail now that the strike is over, is, in the opinion of Attorney Isserman, a definite attempt to prevent future strikes in Camden. According to Isserman, many of the men are held on such charges as "engaging in riot" when even the arresting officer has admitted, under cross examination, that such a riot did not exist.

The Budget Hearings

The annual county three-ring financial circus took place this week when the finance committee held its sessions at the courthouse. Impassioned pleas were presented by "overburdened" property owners who testified that they could not spread their capital so thin if taxation was not reduced. One gentleman said that he owned three hundred houses (gotten, possibly, through the foreclosure "racket") and that he did not have enough capital to pay taxes on all of them.

Many darts were aimed at the school teachers. Squire Mulkey charged them with being "mercenary." We should be immune from indignation at such asinine cracks by now, but we cannot keep our ire from rising when our teachers are told year in and year out that they are mercenary, but should be overjoyed to serve the public almost free of charge. We still insist that teachers are people, they eat food which is getting higher and higher, they should have homes to pay for, clothes to buy, and educational expenses to meet. They are also subject to garnishments served by justices of the peace, such as Mulkey, who receive ample fees for such service.

We contend that the teachers are most unfairly treated. Last year a 43-cent tax boost was blamed on the teachers because they asked for more money. The tax boost was secured but not one dime did the teachers receive in salary increases. We say this:

"If, in order for our teachers to receive a decent salary, our present tax rate is doubled, we say, RAISE THE TAXES!" We do not believe a tax raise will be necessary to pay the teachers. We believe that there is sufficient money in the school fund to pay the teachers now, but that this fund is diverted for payment of political inefficiencies and political obligations.

Teachers pay more taxes now, because of the difference in what they receive and what they should rightfully receive, than any other class of citizens in the county.

Thank heavens for one thing. This county will be relieved for six years from putting up with such drivel that Squire Mulkey has bestowed on us.

What Next!

A steam engine run entirely by the rays of the sun, developed by Dr. C. G. Abbot, of the Smithonian institution, after a lifetime of research will be demonstrated at the third world power conference at Washington the second week in September. Dr. Abbot's invention will develop one-half horsepower. The heater depends largely on three parabolic cylindrical mirrors which concentrate the rays of the sun into virtually one white spot. The heat generates steam to operate the engine.

With steel companies giving much of their time over to research and development of new steels to fill modern-day requirements, centering on lightness and durability, the allow developed by Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company, at Birmingham, provides interest. "Corten," peculiarly adaptable to the transportation industry, is now being made by this company. This alloy is said to be stronger than ordinary carbon steel, costs 40%-50% less. An alloy of chromium, copper, silicon and iron, the new product has a high resistance to rust. Produced to conform to needs of railroad and bus operators.

Corporation Boon-Doggling

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, felt inspired to mix some heavy philosophy in his last semi-annual "pamphlet report," issued a few days ago. After making the sapient remark that government cannot continue to spend more than it collects, Mr. Sloan goes on:

"Constructive enterprise sponsored by private initiative, must be substituted for boon-doggling, actuated by political consideration, and paid for not only by the taxpayer but by every individual consuming goods and using services."

If there is any corporation whose officials should beware of any comments on "boon-doggling," it is General Motors. If there is any fantastic waste of money worse than General Motor's purchase of the so-called Heany lamps, it is something not yet on record.

General Motors bought several electrical patents from a man named Heany in 1920, paying for them with $112,759 in cash, $1,111,000 par value of preferred stock of its own issue, and $5,908,500 par value of its own common stock. The patents were already under fire as frauds; they were voided a little later by the Patent Office. Two men who had helped Heany get these patents were sent to prison for fraud, though by some freak of chance, Heany escaped. Lawrence Seltzer, an admitted authority on automobile history, sums up the money consequences of this transaction thus:

"On October 1, 1927, the securities issued for the Heany companies, as multiplied by stock dividends, had a market value in excess of $320,000,000; by this date, more than $50,000,000 in cash dividends had been paid upon them, and they now command annual dividends in excess of $10,000,000."

Talk about boon-doggling! Talk about the cost of wasted money to consumers! All that was paid for the Heany patents, all that has been paid since on the securities issued to buy the Heany patents, is pure, unadulterated waste; and there are just three places from which it could be taken: The stockholders of General Motors, the workers for General Motors, and the public that bought cars from General Motors.

Mr. Sloan, when he feels again the call to preach, should go back over the history of his own company.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

There are plenty of misguided souls who think the internal division in the ranks of labor will weaken labor against the common opponents. That isn't so. There are several reasons. One reason is in the fact that the rank and file of union members have a common interest and will insist that whoever may be in trouble shall be helped. Another reason is in the very structure of unionism. The labor movement is composed of national and international unions. These are strong in their own right and they will remain so. Whether they are grouped in one camp or in more than one, they will remain as units. Employers had better wake up and understand that fact.

* * *

Unions have been outside of the American Federation of Labor and have lived to tell the tale. The Railway Clerks were out. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers were out for years. Others have been out. Always those that were out wanted to be in, but the point is, they lived while they were out—they lived all by themselves. There hadn't better be any premature joy in the ranks of labor-hating employers about the division in labor's ranks. Labor isn't happy over it, but labor will manage to press forward along union lines, regardless of the division, granted that there isn't some way found of healing the breach before suspension becomes officially effective.

* * *

Already there is plenty of evidence to show that unions on both sides of house can work together for common ends. Anyway, the point to it all is that American labor, as a union movement, isn't going to back up on the industrial relations front. There are many reports of steady progress, right down to this very day. One international union reports membership gains of such volume that it is difficult to care for them. New agreements are being signed. Solidarity and militancy are on the increase. In some ways it almost seems as if the internal argument has been a tonic. It has knocked a lot of lethargy sideways and a lot more probably will go the same way. When things are rolling easy leaders sometimes also roll easy and don't keep mentally on the jump.

Everybody is mentally on the jump today. There are plenty of jumps yet to come, also. And, added to other things, there happens to be a presidential campaign under way. Not for years has a campaign so stirred men and women. There's plenty of "wake up" medicine all over the place.

Whatever the outcome of the internal dispute, the general outcome is bound to be a stronger labor movement, a greater degree of progress, something more turn away from the feudalism of modern capitalism. Wise enemies do not foolishly discount their opponents. More important than that, labor must not discount itself.

We have won every argument we ever had with ourself.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

THE WEEK

The past few days have been crowded with events of critical interest to teachers. Saturday our delegates were to have left for the A. F. of T. convention. However, President Smith stayed in Chattanooga in order to appear before the county finance committee Monday. He and Brother J. D. Bales defended teachers' interests there. Mr. Rankin included the teachers' scale in his list of three alternate salary budgets, and for this he deserves the commendation of the teachers. It is now up to the members of the county court to put into practice their formerly expressed belief in better salaries for teachers.

The hearing on complaints against Brother Bales turned out very satisfactory. The disgruntled candidates for janitor and the henchemen of union-hating politicians who led the attack lost their nerve when the time was offered them to speak on their complaint. Miss Winnie Walker carried away all the honors with her defense of Mr. Bales. Several ovations were accorded both Miss Walker and Mr. Bales by the audience at the hearing. Mrs. Lacey conducted the proceedings in an exceedingly fair and considerate manner. The decision exonerating Mr. Bales came as expected. The charges were no charges at all and included such accusations as that Mr. Bales is guilty of the "heinous" crime of living in Chattanooga and that he renders himself "odious" by being active in a labor union.

While handing bouquets to Mr. Rankin and Mrs. Lacey on the salary budget and Bales issues we must hand them a brick on the letter sent out to teachers informing them as to their place of employment. The mention therein of the tenure bill looks like a deliberate attempt to put the fear of God into the hearts of the teachers by making them feel that the law is in danger. The tenure law actually is in very little danger for two reasons: (1) the law does not require increased expenditures and therefore would not seem so odious to a conservative court; (2) it would be political suicide for anyone to start a test case because everyone feels that the law is eminently just. Any one who increases the feeling of insecurity in the minds of teachers is acting against the interest of the school as well as the teachers, for no teacher can do a real service if he feels constantly harassed by fear of losing his job.

Government Studies Strike Breaker Law

Justice and Labor Departments Analyze Byrnes Act to Determine Its Scope in Preventing Disorders in Strikes.

Washington.—Homer S. Cummings, attorney-general of the United States, has assigned Assistant Attorney-General Brian McMahon to make an exhaustive study of the powers of the federal government under the new Byrnes act, which prohibits the importation of strike breakers across state lines. An increase in reported labor difficulties, in some of which provisions of the act are likely to be involved, is understood to have prompted the broad investigation, so that it may be determined just how far the federal government may go in its effort to prevent serious labor disorders arising from the importation of strike breakers and interference with the established right of labor to picket.

Subterfuge Possible.

Preliminary analysis of the act by four justice department men revealed what appears to be a misconception of powers granted by the act. Labor department officials have indicated that some employers might attempt to use numerous subterfuges to import strike breakers, since the act merely provides that strike breakers cannot be brought across state boundaries with the intention of disrupting "peaceful picketing." One method cited as possible would be to import strike breakers to run a factory or mill, then to provoke some disturbance in the picket lines which would enable the hired men to do that which the law seeks to forbid.

Not Ample Funds.

What may prove to be an outstanding difficulty, according to labor department officials, is the fact that no additional funds were appropriated by congress to provide for its promulgation. The department of justice is empowered to administer the new law, presumably from the department's general fund.

Investigation has also brought out the fact that several states have laws prohibiting even peaceful picketing, and it is suggested that the Byrnes act would not be operative in such states.

It is hoped that the present exhaustive inquiry will serve to establish what procedure may be followed in all cases and result in tabulation of federal powers under existing statutes.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

WHILE I WAS in a 10-cent store the other day, a colored man and woman came into the store and stood by me trying on eye-glasses. The woman didn't know just which ones would be best for her eyes. She sort of liked one particular pair, but, said she, "This pair costs 50 cents and I don't have that much." I wonder if there isn't something in that picture that might bring people to realize that we must have some sort of socialized medicine plan.

To Mrs. B. C.:

I just got in the most recently compiled list of union-made wall paper manufacturers. They are: United Wall Paper Company, Thomas Straham, George J. Hunken company, Gilbert company, Commercial Wall Paper company, Chicago Wall Paper company, Becker, Smith & Page, Barnes company and Henry Bosch Wall Papers. So when you go to select your new wall paper, just clip this list out and slip it in your purse. There are also three brands to remember not to buy. These are Imperial (known as the blue ribbon line), Birge and Gledhill.

And, as a P. S. to the above: When you have purchased your union-labeled wall paper, call 6-1437 and a good union paperhanger.

150 Women Workers Hold Southern Peace Conference

Brevard, N. C.—"Labor's Stake in Peace" was the subject of a labor conference held at the Southern Summer School for Women Workers in Industry here Aug. 2 and 3. Rose Stein, author, described plans uncovered by the senate munition investigating committee for conscription labor and the setting up of machinery to establish a military dictatorship in the next war.

Mr. Nelson Cruikshank, director of the labor division of the emergency peace campaign, outlined labor's "balance sheet" of the last war. He pointed out that although wages rose 180 per cent during the war years, cost of living went up 223 per cent, and that real wages never once equaled those of 1913. He added to this pay envelope fact the information that the cost of the last war, which has been set at 56 billion dollars, has mostly to be borne by the little man.

The conference of about 150 representatives of southern labor organizations in North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, Alabama and West Virginia also discussed the question of organizing the unorganized southern worker and of the role of workers' education in the labor movement. Edward Callaghan, American Federation of Hosiery Workers' representative in Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, urged unions to adopt programs which will offer a wide variety of interest to workers and their families. Henry Adams, Hosiery Workers' representative in North Carolina, described organization problems as he has met and conquered them throughout the state. Franz Daniel, Amalgamated Clothing Workers' southern representative, called for labor solidarity and organization if workers are to maintain decent living standards.

Speakers and discussion leaders included E. B. Shultz, labor manager of TVA, who conducted a panel discussion on workers' education; Joseph Jacobs, educational director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union in Atlanta; James Dombrowski, director of Highlander Folk school, Monteagle, Tenn.; Bernard Borah, American Federation of Government Employes, Knoxville, Tenn.; L. E. Brookshire, U. T. W., Greenville, S. C., and Miss Ruth Scandrett, U. S. department of labor, Washington, D. C., and others.

Iowa Federation Assails Landon.

Des Moines.—J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, assailed the labor record of Gov. Alf M. Landon in an address before the annual state convention of the federation and urged union labor to vote for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Lewis charged the republican nominee permitted prison labor on public works projects in Kansas, that he called out the National Guard to break a mine strike, and that he failed to enforce a state law requiring payment of prevailing wages on public works projects.

The worker who does not wear a union label stamp in his shoes does not have the correct understanding of the labor movement.

5,681,000 ON DIRECT RELIEF ON WPA JOBS

295,405 High School Students Included Among the Jobless Receiving Government Aid.

Struggling valiantly under the blight of widespread unemployment, while many who are employed receive low wages for long hours of labor, the relief rolls of the United States increased 217,310 from March 1, 1935, to the same date this year.

These figures, necessarily delayed by work of compiling, have just been made public, along with other statistics of a revealing nature.

The gigantic effort put forth by the present administration, in co-operation with states and local communities, may be regarded as a fulfillment of President Roosevelt's inauguration statement that "no one will be permitted to go hungry" if within the power of the federal government to prevent it.

The works progress administration estimates that 1,930,000 families and single persons who were on direct relief last March, in addition to the 3,751,000 who had federal work relief jobs. Those on direct relief this year were handled largely by the states and local communities, since the curtailment by congress of the old FERA.

According to a chart released by WPA officials, 70.4 per cent of workers on WPA projects and 55 per cent of workers on PWA projects, the latter chiefly low-cost housing developments, were from relief lists as of June 27. Aid was also rendered to 295,405 high school students.

This is the third 100 per cent union concern in this line here, the union having previously signed with Gordon's, Inc., and the Prima Sales company.

Special Session of Legislature Urged To Save State Over Two Millions In Unemployment Compensation

The State Planning Commission this week recommended that Gov. McAlister call a special session of the legislature to enact a bill that will permit Tennessee to benefit from the unemployment part of the federal social security act.

Official announcement of the Planning Commission's recommendation came through William Goodman, secretary to the commission, and prominent Memphis attorney, after conferences with state officials, and social and civic leaders throughout the state.

"Unless suitable legislation is passed and approved before Dec. 31," commission officials declared, "Tennessee is doomed to lose an estimated $2,500,000 federally collected payroll tax this year. This will be an outright, irrecoverable loss, unless the necessary legislation is passed, and of course that means a special session of the legislature, the cost of which would be a minor expenditure indeed compared with the $2,500,000 it would enable the state to recover."

This $2,500,000 represents a federal tax collection for 1936 of one per cent. on all Tennessee employer payrolls where eight or more persons are employed. Certain employers are exempted.

To receive this compensation, the State of Tennessee will not have to match funds, as in other phases of the security program, the commission stated. "The federal government indiscriminately levies a uniform payroll tax on employers in every state, regardless of whether that state has or has not a compensation law. It is then up to the state to recover this tax by passing an approved compensation law of its own," the commission explained.

"It is incredible," commission officials declared, "that straight thinking people of Tennessee will sit passively by and do nothing to recover millions of dollars of their own money, now destined to benefit other states that have enacted approved unemployment compensation laws."

The provisions of the compensation law are very simple, according to studies of the social security act made by the commission staff. On employers of eight or more persons, the federal government levies a tax amounting to 1 per cent. of the payroll in 1936, 2 per cent. in 1937 and 3 per cent. thereafter. Each employer, however, may credit against his tax burden a maximum 90 per cent. as his contribution to a state unemployment compensation fund.

"This means that if Tennessee passes an approved compensation law, it will be able to recover 90 per cent. of this payroll tax for its own unemployed, by collecting it as contributions under its own law, rather than letting the federal government collect it as a tax," the commission said.

It went on to say that, "A state law must be approved by the Social Security Board before Dec. 31, 1936, and employers must have paid contributions to the state unemployment compensation fund before Jan. 31, 1937, in order to obtain credit against the federal 1936 tax."

The commission further emphasized that, "The administration of the state law will not cost the state anything, because the federal government grants to each state sufficient amounts to pay all proper administration expenses."

Without the law Tennessee will lose in taxes to the federal treasury an estimated $2,500,000 in 1936, $5,500,000 in 1937, and over $8,000,000 in 1938 and thereafter, the commission said. This estimate is based on an employe list of 300,000 persons, representing about one-third of all of Tennessee's gainfully employed. The commission emphasized that unless Tennessee has an approved law, these workers will not be assured unemployment compensation.

Auto Workers' Union Takes In Pickle Packers

"No Union Existed to Take Care of These Workers," International Organization's President Explains.

Detroit.—The International Union of United Automobile Workers will admit to membership any group of workers regardless of the industry they are in if there is no other union for them to join. Membership in the auto workers' union can be retained until an international union is formed with jurisdiction over the workers involved.

Announcement of this policy was made by President Homer Martin, of the United Automobile Workers, in connection with action of a Toledo local of the union in taking into membership employes of the Harbauer company, packers of condiments, pickles and mustard. Following organization of the Harbauer workers, a "sit-down strike" took place and the company, in the midst of a busy season, signed a union contract providing for a wage increase, seniority rules and union recognition.

Martin said in his statement:

"The action of the Toledo local in helping workers of the Harbauer company to win their strike and secure an agreement and in taking them into the union has the sanction of the international office. The International Union of United Automobile Workers has no intention of entering the jurisdiction of any other union, but in this case no union existed to take care of these workers.

"They came to our local and asked for help and we were glad to give it to them just as we shall be glad to give it to any group of workers for whom there is no union. When an international union is formed to extend the benefits of organization to these workers, we shall surrender our jurisdiction over them."

LABOR PARTY IS OPPOSED BY MASSACHUSETTS UNIONS

New Bedford, Mass.—The creation of a labor party in Massachusetts was opposed by the annual convention of the State Federation of Labor here. The proposal was defeated by a vote of 119 to 53. John F. Gatelee, of Springfield, was re-elected president of the federation and Robert J. Watt, of Lawrence, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

MORE ABOUT TRAMMELL

he placed the cafeteria on a non-losing basis—and it had been losing $5,000 per month.

In recognition of his good work he was sent to Pickwick dam, to open the cafeteria there. His wife followed him there, and they took a furnished apartment in Corinth, Miss. He worked seven days a week and often at night, in his efforts to make the eating place there pay. But there was only a handful of men, and it couldn't be done.

The military and supposedly anti-organization personnel interviewer, Ray Crittenden, was promoted to a job in which he supervised all cafeterias in the TVA. Trammell encouraged organization of his workers, and was himself a member of the American Federation of Government Employes. Labor men immediately warned Trammell to "watch out."

A continual nagging began to annoy Trammell, and he began to worry. A whispering campaign was started by the anti-union chief storekeeper and others, who complained constantly of the steaks and other wholesome, nourishing and tasty foods served. They began to refer to Trammell as "that old pot-bellied so-and-so."

Labor people watched, and expected the worst momentarily. When out of an apparently clear sky Trammell was notified he was fired, labor immediately telephoned from Pickwick to Knoxville, told the true story, and in a few hours Trammell was advised to forget all about it. He still had a job.

Working diligently, however, Herr Crittenden and his "black shirts" soon transferred Trammell to Joe Wheeler dam, most anti-union of all TVA projects. His wife followed him there, and they lived awhile in a TVA house, happy with one another, but constantly nagged by the powers. It was only a few months until he was forced out entirely, and looking for a job, found one in Chicago.

Mrs. Trammell spent a few weeks with her parents and relatives in Knoxville, then joined him in Chicago. It was when he returned from a trip to Michigan (he was steward on a railroad) Sunday afternoon that he found his wife murdered in her ro

That such conditions which existed not only Trammell, exist in TVA is a matter of negligence on part of TVA, rather than one of sire. Discrimination against organized workers is a constant thing spite of the authority's approval of Mrs. Trammell's death is notch No in TVA torpidity.

Workers Strike In Minneapolis Grain Elevators

Union Demands Recognition, Higher Wages and Better Working Conditions—Wholesale Grocery Drivers Also Quit Work.

Minneapolis.—Workers in Minneapolis terminal grain elevators went on strike on Sept. 19. The men had been negotiating with elevator operators for some time.

The strike was called by the Flour and Cereal Mill Workers' union, Local No. 19152, affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Strike leaders reported a majority of the employes of the elevators, storing 65,000,000 bushels of grain, had joined the walkout.

The strike forced two of the city's large mills to suspend operations because of a grain shortage.

Picket lines of the striking workers were thrown around thirty terminal elevators and public warehouses. The union estimated the number of pickets as 500.

Union heads said 800 or more men were on strike.

Union recognition, increased wages and improved working conditions are demanded by the flour and cereal workers' union.

The General Drivers' union, Local 544, ordered a strike of 500 men employed by fourteen wholesale grocery firms. The union demanded that employers sign a union contract.

EACHERS CHEER ATTACK ON D. A. R. AS ENEMY OF FREE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

gh Time "Daughters" Stopped Witch Hunting and Terrorization of Teachers, Speaker Tells Union Convention—A. F. of L. Asked Not to Suspend C. I. O. Members.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Daughters the Revolution were described here "busybodies," "witch hunters," and e most dangerous enemies of the e public schools."

These unflattering remarks were de by Louis M. Hecker, a lecturer Columbia university, to the annual vention of the American Federa of Teachers.

"It is high time," said Mr. Hecker, at this organization stopped its ch hunting, and its terrorizing of chers by its campaigns for loyalty hs.

Revolution Workers' Uprising.

"It is time that these busybodies witch hunters were told what ir ancestors fought for. The Amern Revolution was a popular uprisof the workers. The labor unions today are the true inheritors of tradition.

"The members of the D. A. R. are faithful to the memory of their anstors," said Mr. Hecker. "Many of members of today, had they been e in 1776, would have been Tories, would have connived with the tish for the suppression of the els."

The assembled teachers not only gave Mr. Hecker rousing applause, but voted to send a copy of his address to the D. A. R.

Court Curb Asked.

A demand that the supreme court's powers be curbed so that congress might pass laws affecting the workers was made by John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who said a "system of special privilege" had "encouraged the justices of the supreme courtt to nullify legislation enacted in the interests of the common people."

The convention applauded a speech by Lewis C. Hines, American Federation of Labor organizer, in which he pleaded for the support of William Green, president of the federation, and criticized the methods of John L. Lewis and his committee for industrial organization.

Earlier, however, the teachers had decided to request the A. F. of L. not to suspend unions in the CIO. The convention at a caucus agreed that it would stay in the A. F. of L. and seek to act as a peacemaker.

23 Pieces Real Estate Purchased by Wright

The Title Guaranty & Trust Company, acting for R. T. Wright, local real estate operator, filed papers Thursday with the county register recording the purchase by Wright of twenty-three pieces of Chattanooga real estate sold on foreclosure.

Robert Clift, chief deputy in the register's office, said the property was all located in residential sections of the city and was bid in by Wright for approximately $11,500.

Mr. Wright appeared before the finance committee of the county court two weeks ago and testified that taxes were so high he was losing large amounts of money. In fact, he said, he owned 300 houses which were a liability to him, not to mention the 500 vacant lots which he could not build houses on for investment.

In order to lower taxes, Mr. Wright suggested that the county do away with such luxuries as public schools.

CANADIAN TEACHERS STUDY AFFILIATION WITH LABOR

Saskatoon.—The question of seeking affiliation with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada came up at the annual convention of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, and a committee was appointed to study the matter and report next year.

Resentment at wage reductions found bitter expression, and there were ironic references to the superstition that the teachers enjoyed a professional status which made it beneath their dignity to resort to the tactics trade unionists employed to protect their interests.

Some delegates declared that many teachers had been reduced to such a low standard of living that their pupils had lost respect for them. Teachers, unable to live like decent citizens, could not be an influence for good citizenship,

RIGHT OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING IS PROVIDED IN PROPOSED CITY CHARTER

New York City.—The new city charter with a clause providing that in every future franchise the right of labor to bargain collectively shall be guaranteed has been filed in the city clerk's office preliminary to a referendum on its adoption at the election next November.

Workers Over Nation Settling Strikes With Pay Boosts, Contracts

Ladies Garment Workers Win 3 Important Strikes

Union Contracts in Chicago, Los Angeles and New York City Include Higher Wages.

The International Ladies' Garemnt Workers' union has recently won three outstanding victories, reported by locals in Los Angeles, Chicago and St. Louis. In each instance, substantial gains were recorded.

In Los Angeles, a strike which began Aug. 5, has been called off with announcement that the dress shops there have accepted union terms, amounting to a decisive victory for the union.

In Chicago, Embroidery Workers' union, Local 112, ILGWU, signed a new three-year contract on Aug. 7, with the Chicago Embroidery Manufacturers' association. Gains included an increase of 10 cents an hour for Bonnaz operators and establishment of a minimum wage for hand workers of nearly 35 cents an hour. The contract provides that all hand work must be made inside the shop, under union conditions.

In St. Louis, a strike called July 30 was settled Aug. 10, when the Cardais Cloak company signed a two-year contract with the St. Louis joint board of the ILGWU. Terms include "code" wages and hours and provision that all workers must be union members in good standing. This shop, which had been operating non-union for 19 years, employs about 75 workers.

SEATTLE BARBERS PLACE UNION CARD IN 16 SHOPS

Seattle, Wash.—The local Barbers' union is reported as receiving splendid support from organized labor in general in a vigorous campaign. As a result, the union is constantly announcing new union shops, sixteen union shop cards having been placed in one week.

SHEET METAL UNION MAKES BIG GAINS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn.—Over half of the employers in the local furnace installing and repairing industry have been signed to union contracts by Sheet Metal Workers' Local Union No. 34, since the recent strike began.

Effective picketing has been maintained, in the face of support for employers from a so-called "citizens' Alliance," and other crafts have been co-operating fully with the sheet metal workers. The demand of the local is regarded as very modest, since the chief item in the new agreement is a uniform wage scale of only $1.06¾ an hour—a lower rate than in many comparable communities.

CANADIAN SAWMILL STRIKE ENDS; UNION PACTS SIGNED

Vancouver, B. C.—The strike at the Capilano Shingle mill here has been ended by a compromise. Three large companies signed agreements with the union and a fourth was expected to do so. While the men did not get all they had asked, strike relief was proving a strain. When union contracts, which meant recognition, with a promise of no discrimination against strikers, the "check-off" system of dues collecting and improved conditions were offered at the final conference, a victory was recognized and the contracts signed.

BRITISH INDUSTRIAL BOOM LEAVES 1,652,072 JOBLESS

London, England.—Official figures reveal that despite the "industrial boom" the unemployed in Great Britain number 1,652,072, a decrease of only 320,869 during the last year. The total number of insured unemployed, exclusive of agricultural workers, is now 10,895,000.

N. Y. Knitgoods Workers Strike; Want Union Shop

Ladies' Garment Workers' Pickets in Kansas City Strike Are Slugged.

Ten thousand knitwear workers, associated with the Knitgoods Workers' Joint Council of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, in the Greater New York area, came out in a general strike on Aug. 11, following failure of numerous efforts to negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement in the industry. The previous agreement, with the Metropolitan Knitted Textile association, expired on July 15. The union seeks a renewal of agreement, with provisions for substantial improvements in working conditions and a clean-up of the remaining non-union section of the knitwear industry.

Another ILGWU strike, that against Stern-Slegman-Prins, cloak manufacturing firm, of Kansas City, was marked by violence, when pickets were slugged. However, the strike continues with undiminished fervor, according to the latest report, and will remain in effect until recognition, union wages and working conditions are granted by the firm. The strike was called by the Kansas City joint board of the ILGWU.

St. Louis Molders Win Strike for Higher Pay

St. Louis, Mo.—A strike of molders in fourteen St. Louis foundries, lasting one week, resulted in a settlement which provides for an increase of 5 per cent in wages, according to officials of Local No. 59, International Molders' union. Only one shop had not agreed to the new wage scale at the last report.

Minimum wages for molders were increased from ½ to 87 cents an hour. A 20 per cent increase for laborers was also asked, but the laborers agreed to return to work when wages rates were increased from 40 to a minimum of 45 cents an hour. Henry Sternau, fourth international vice-president of the molders, assisted in the strike settlement and expressed satisfaction with the victory won.

UNITED GARMENT WORKERS WIN STRIKE IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Canada.—With the support and co-operation of the entire organized labor movement here, including the leaders of the Trades and Labor council of Winnipeg, a general stoppage of work by 900 garment workers proved singularly effective.

The work stoppage, on July 21, brought enthusiastic response and resulted in the signing of several shops that were heretofore non-union. Seven shops that had refused to sign did so promptly, bringing the total to nineteen, with only one left on strike. Workers in the union shops, who returned the day following the general stoppage, are reported as now enjoying better conditions and Local 35, United Garment Workers of America, gives every indication of becoming a strong and solid organization.

MAKES AGREEMENT WITH STEEL WORKERS' UNION

Chicago.—Van A. Bittner, regional director of the Steel Workers' organizing committee, announced that the committee has negotiated a wage agreement with the Atlantic Foundry company, Akron, O., and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America.

"This agreement recognizes collective bargaining in its fullest sense," Bittner said. "The company will collect dues each month upon receiving a statement from the financial secretary of the lodge."

The company employs 450 men. Bittner said the agreement presaged "further progress in the Akron area."

The Legion Convention and Strike Disorders

It was with a few quiet chuckles that Chattanooga unionists read in the daily press Mr. Peabody Howard's denunciation of the few members of the American Legion who created disorderly and unlawful acts in the convention just ended.

Not that we are glad that the legion was embarrassed, but rather because the press and some anti-labor legionnaires in other localities have formed the habit of maligning and persecuting labor as an unlawful, disorderly and unruly group of citizens among an otherwise peaceful and law-abiding community. The public rioting, dice-shooting, drunkenness and assault, performed by the very small disreputable fringe of the legion should at this particular time demonstrate to the public that labor is also composed of a vast group of sensible and patriotic citizens, and that a few instances of disorder in any group should not merit scare headlines and denunciatory resolutions.

Particularly was it noticed this week that most of the disgraceful scenes were apparently caused by legionnaires who hailed from those communities that indulge in kidnapings and terrorism against unionists during strikes or organization campaigns.

Leaders and members of Chattanooga Legion posts are for the most part fair and just toward labor, taking no part in the unreasonable hysteria against strikers on picket lines. We do think, however, that the humiliation thrust on respectable legion members who overwhelmingly outnumber the unruly members, will cause them and the "rank and file" of the general public to be a little bit more kind and understanding toward almost inevitable incidents that are connected with struggles wherein bread and butter is being fought for. If such things can happen merely in the spirit of fun and frolic, how much easier it is for "disorders" to creep in when economic war is waged.

We also hope that the commissioner of police in the future would exercise as much patience in strikes by remembering his "hands-off" policy when one or two of the legion boys were disporting themselves by throwing beer bottles from an eighth floor window.

How Mr. John Lovell would welcome with a sigh of content a nice strike at his hotel! A good labor strike following on the heels of the legion convention would be a sedative to his torn and shattered nerves.

When "outsiders" come into Chattanooga for labor organization purposes, certain elements want them run out of town. At least, they had better walk the straight and narrow path. Chattanooga adopted a new policy this week. "Outsiders" need not observe any of the city's laws.

Mrs. Judd, of Dalton, Ga., really exposed the unjust statement in the press that bedspread workers in Dalton made only 30 cents a day. She says they sometimes go as high as 50 cents per day. We just knew that bad in Gawja.

The lame duck session was abolished in our national congress. Why not abolish lame ducks in county courts?

It must have been confusing to the critic of our "cigarette-smoking" school teachers when Squire Thrasher asked him to "name one." The critic was not "prepared to discuss that phase at the present time."

Workers Organize Solidly And Win Increase in Pay

Montreal.—Organizer Somerville, of the International Association of Machinists, and Organizer Beaudry, of the brotherhood of Railway Carmen, have effected 100 per cent organization of their crafts on the State Railway of Newfoundland. They were on the island long enough to make an agreement with the management, by which wages were raised and working conditions improved.

Concerning "Clouded Reason"

Remington-Rand, Inc., has had a strike on its hands for three months, because the management refused to recognize or treat with the union representing its workers. In the course of the strike, the management asked the state court for an injunction. New York has an anti-injunction law, which provides that no injunction may be issued in a labor dispute unless the party asking for it has made every reasonable effort to settle the dispute.

The injunction was issued; the strikers appealed to a higher court; and the appellate court of New York upheld the injunction, holding that the company had made "every reasonable effort" to settle the dispute.

The refusal of the Remington-Rand management to negotiate with the strikers through their own chosen representatives is not denied anywhere. According to the appellate court, therefore, it would be "unreasonable" to ask the management to deal with its workers in the manner expressly provided in the national labor relations act, and probably in the New York statute as well.

This is just one more of the many incidents which make one wonder whether a swelled head and an atrophied heart are not the marks of a hitherto unrecognized occupational disease, peculiarly liable to attack judges. The court went on to say:

"In such controversies—involving as they do the livelihood of working men and women and often, too, the solvency and very life of going concerns which are large employers of labor—self interest often clouds the reason of those involved, often begets passion and unfairness."

The implication that the Remington-Rand was so hard pressed that its "very life" was dependent on bullying its workers is simply not true. A very few weeks since, financial pages carried accounts of the growing prosperity and dividends of Remington-Rand.

A Measure of Growth

Noward O. Hunter, assistant administrator of the WPA, was talking recently to newspaper men on the terrific drought which is burning up a goodly section of the west. The rumor had got out that the WPA was going to cut down its help to drought sufferers. Mr. Hunter silenced this by saying that no limit had been fixed or even suggested.

"Only those persons actually in need will be aided," said Mr. Hunter. "But WPA will continue to give assistance to those in distress, no matter how high the number goes."

That cool, matter-of-fact acceptance of the responsibility of the federal government to relieve the victims of disaster shows how far this nation has progressed in social morality—or perhaps in social intelligence—during the past six years.

It is less than six years since Arthur M. Hyde, then secretary of agriculture, expressed his shocked surprise that anybody should ask the federal government to lend money to buy food for the sufferers from the drought of 1930. He could not countenance such a thing for a moment. The government could lend money for seed to plant, and for feed for work animals; but to lend money to buy human food—that would tend to destroy our government. It would be "a perilous approach to the dole." The Red Cross would attend to feeding the humans.

We have at least grown beyond the point where our public men are afflicted with such economic lunacy as that.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

This is mobilization month—beginning this month, running into next. Europe trots out its war machines, so each nation can get good and properly scared of the others. Italy, Germany, France, England—lastly Russia, with its biggest army, perhaps biggest fleet of planes. It is as if each one said, "look what I've got and lay off of me." Everybody says, "we don't want war"—and everybody keeps on making faces. Here at home we can't throw too many musty eggs, but at least our face-making is internal. We aren't making any faces across frontiers. Can war be avoided? Yes. Will it be avoided? You guess.

At home we have on hand what is known as a political campaign. It is filled with oratory, much of which is bad. A great many are willing to forget all about facts and just yell for a machine. A mine strike in Kansas has become a real issue in the campaign. Kansas schools also are a real issue. So are oil field wages. They are raised as symbols.

Roosevelt scored a bullseye when he said it wasn't the workers who cheered when the supreme court socked NRA.

Hearst, with two strikes on him, sails for Europe. That "two strikes" business isn't a joke. One is in Milwaukee; the other in Seattle. Remember the classic telegram to Remington in Cuba: "You furnish the pictures, I'll furnish the war." Maybe it never was sent, but for years it was circulated as the all-time classic in putting circulation above everything.

Speaking of Hearst, It must be a great satisfaction to have $200,000,000 fortune and a reputation for about the lowest wages in the business.

Among all important publishers Hearst occupies a position unto himself. Many refer to his support as "the kiss of death." He has almost never backed a winner. The few winners backed by him have soon lost favor and turned out losers. All who buy newspapers from the boy on the corner are not friends of the publisher. One reader of Hearst papers explained his weakness thus: "They have better dirt." Probably true. But the "drain men" who get glorified are those who fix 'em, not those who fill 'em.

There's a publishers' battle on for radio wave lengths. Labor ought to have a sock in the eye for its pitiable failure to see and act upon the advantages of radio. Observe the two labor stations—WCFL and WEVD. Rendering fine service, ranking high, demonstrating that "it can be done." Labor ought to have a chain of such stations across the country. Meanwhile publishers are grabbing all they can get, creating a perilous situation. Look ahead to the time when law may forbid the marriage of radio and publishing. Little good has come of it so far. One reason: There are so few good publishers.

* * *

Labor has been gaining members. That's something that the foes can't laugh off. Those who would like a chance to see union self-destruction are puzzled by the membership figures. Let 'em be puzzled and damned.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What was the first offcial recognition of Labor Day as a legal holiday?

A.—The day was recognized by municipal ordinances adopted in 1885 and 1886. From them came the movement to secure state legislation.

Q.—Did New York pass the first Labor Lay law?

A.—The first bill was introduced in the New York legislature but the first to become law was passed by the Oregon legislature on Feb. 21, 1887. The law, however, designated the first Saturday in June as Labor Day. It was amended in 1893 to set aside the first Monday in September, which by that time was widely accepted .

Settlement of Strike Brings Reopening of Big Oil Refinery

Wood River, Ill.—The Shell Petroleum corporation plant here, largest refinery in the middle west, resumed normal operations on Aug. 18 with the end of a five weeks' strike of operating engineers. The plant had been shut down for four weeks.

The 2,200 employes of the plant returned to work under an agreement, reached by the Operating Engineers' union, the company and thirteen other unions whose members are employed by the company, providing for the reopening of the plant pending settlement of disputes.

The controversy between the Engineers' union and the company is to be submitted to an arbitration board consisting of a representative of the American Federation of Labor, another member representing the company and a third member chosen by them.

The agreement also provided for another arbitration board, composed of American Federation of Labor officials, to settle disputes among the fourteen unions. Both boards will meet within thirty days.

Chattanooga Label League meets Friday night at 7:30 in Roosevelt Hall at 114 West Seventh street. There are many new questions to be discussed. President Ina Green is back and has asked that a large crowd be present for the meeting.

Being one of those little country gals who hasn't been around much, I still do not like to get into those self-operating elevators. When I start pushing buttons I just never know whether I will be able to stop that little cage, or not.

I always go through The Vogue when I go from Market to Broad. Of course, I enjoy getting cool as I go through—but that's just one reason I stroll down the aisles. While I'm cooling I look around me to see if there are any new bargains. And this week I found that they had a few pairs of Phoenix hose in summer colors at reduced prices. I got two pairs for 67 cents each—they were the regular 79-cent hose. And there's a lot of summer left around yet, so I can use the lighter shades.

The American Legion is always the lookout for "reds," but I'll bet that some of the folks in their own ranks were seeing definitely pink-tinted elephants prancing around last week, judging from the beer bottles flying around the Patten.

Back to School—

And I wonder how many of "us" will go to the University of Chattanooga. Mr. Lonnie Carpenter has a son there . . . Mr. J. C. Cox' daughter, Miss Cox, is there . . . and I rather think Brother George Forbes has a daughter in school at "our" university. Anybody else?

Says It's True!

(From the Baltimore Sun)

The reasons for the apparent defeat of Representative Tom Blanton in the Seventeenth district of Texas may be as many and various as Tom thinks they are. His opponent may or may not be an improvement. But it is certain that if the primary and the subsequent run-off should result in the elimination of Tom from national public life, there would be very few mourners, indeed. He has engaged in a wide variety of rabble-rousing and witch-burning activities, the most recent being his effort to frighten Washington school teachers into answering a lot of silly questions, apparently as part of a build-up for a "reds in the schools" scare.

If his Texas district has become tired of this kind of nonsense and decided to end his services in congress, that will be good news everywhere, not merely because Tom has become a bore and a nuisance, but because his defeat would indicate a public reaction away from witch burning and red hunting. Other statesmen will not be slow to get the idea that "teachers' oaths" and impertinent questionnaires are not such real politics as one might think. With that kind of tub thumping out of the way, it would be possible to discuss the various differences among us somewhat more rationally. The possibility of Tom Blanton being in Washington as instead of in Washington is a first start in that desired direction.

CHISELING PICTURE SHOW HIT BY KANSAS CITY LA[BOR]

Kansas City, Mo.—Seventeen "neighborhood" picture theaters in Kansas City and its suburbs, who have refused thus far to employ union operators, are reported as feeling the effects of a campaign by organized labor, directed against movie chiselers and in favor of fair employers. Local Union No. 170, Moving Picture Machine Operators, is directing the campaign, in which they are being supported by labor in general.

ABOR LEAGUE TO SHOW SWEEP OF RECOVERY UNDER ROOSEVELT

rganizatoin Supporting President for Re-election to Issue News Service for Labor Papers, to "Debunk Calamity Howling of Landon Forces," Major Berry Announces.

Washington.—President George L. rry, president of Labor's Non-par- an league, has announced that the gue will furnish the labor papers this country a news service, con- ing of facts which show why they uld support President Roosevelt re-election.

"We are going to keep labor in- med with fresh and accurate di- ts of conditions as they directly ect the workers," sid Major Berry. his informational service will pret- thoroughly debunk the calamity wling of the Landon forces.

"The stupid insistence of the Lan- forces that we must make a nge in order to return healthy nomic conditions is one of the t amazing anomalies of this whole mpaign. It may fool a few people, t we are going to see to it that it es not delude American labor.

Facts Called Astonishing.

"With the help of my associates have just assembled authentic and up-to-the-minute statistics that show the broad sweep of recovery. The deeper we go into the facts, the more astonishing they become. The very latest official information presents this picture:

"Nearly five and a half million men and women who were jobless and panic-stricken in March, 1933, are working again and drawing their weekly pay regularly in private industry. The contents of the weekly pay envelopes of factory workers alone have risen from $77,083,000 to $164,363,000. Approximately 4,000,000 men and women, aside from those re-engaged by private employers, are at work on useful federal, state, county or municipal projects which will add greatly to the nation's wealth.

Big Output Gains.

"The output of all manufacturing industries has increased 65 per cent, with practically every major group of industry producing more now than four years ago. The output of automobiles, iron and steel, and plate glass has expanded more than three times; the production of soft coal and of all textiles has increased by more than 50 per cent. Electric power production, an excellent indicator of industrial activity, has increased by 30 per cent.

"For each 100 workers employed in manufacturing industry four years ago, 132 workers are employed today.

"Payrolls have increased even more rapidly than employment. For every $100 paid to labor four years ago, $159 is being paid today by all manufacturing industries taken together.

"Farmers Have Shared."

"Farmers have shared with wage-earners, manufacturers, merchants and investors in the benefits of our economic program. During the first quarter of this year American farmers received a cash income of some $1,540,000,000, quite apart from rental and benefit payments. This was a 30 per cent increase over the income of farmers in the same months in 1932.

"Building construction has kept step in the advance. For eight years prior to 1933 the value of new building permits declined. During the last two years the tide has changed. Building permits issued in April in 342 cities had a value of $90,000,000, a 66 per cent increase over April, 1932.

National Income Jumps.

"Our national income in 1932 had dropped to the tragic low of $39,500,000,000. By 1935, it had climbed back nearly $14,000,000,000, or to $53,000,000,000. The estimate for 1936 was first placed at $60,000,000,000, but, with the accelerated progress of the last few months, the Alexander Hamilton institute estimates it will be $63,000,000,000."

San Diego, Cal.—Meat Cutters and Butchers' Local No. 229 is conducting a vigorous campaign to have markets close at 6 o'clock on weekday evenings and 8 o'clock on Saturdays and evenings preceding a holiday, and to stay closed on Sundays. The co-operation of all organized labor in this community is being solicited by the meat cutters and butchers, who request that everyone look for the union market card.

BIG TOBACCO FIRMS' BUSINESS SCORES LARGE GAINS, BUT THEY MAKE NO MOVE TO BOOST WAGES

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Factory workers of the United States turned out last year 138,656,000,000 cigarettes, worth, wholesale, f. o. b. the factory, $717,676,120. This is a 23 per cent increase in number and a 29.7 increase in value over the figures of the same industry for 1933.

At that rate, it shouldn't be so long before the Big Four tobacco companies begin paying decent wages to their workers, even to stemmers. Also, it should be possible for tobacco towns like Winston-Salem to spend a little more civilized allotment of money on their schools.

As for wages, according to the department of commerce, the total amount paid for wages in the cigarette industry in 1935 was $18,238,690, an increase of 31.8 per cent over the wage payments of 1933.

The glad surprise of the reader on learning that Big Four workers actually are getting better wages should be restrained until the reader gets a few other facts. This is an increase in wage payments, not in wages; and since employment in the cigarette industry increased 8 per cent in the two years from 1933 to 1935, it is obvious that wages increased by a much smaller per cent than the figures might indicate.

Wage Base Miserably Low.

Next, percentages of increase don't mean much in the pocketbook when they start from a sufficiently low base. Ten per cent of a nickel won't buy anything. The tobacco industry has the bad eminence of being the only large industry that pays worse wages than textiles.

> Improvement in tobacco wages started from so far down the scale that it would take a hundred per cent increase to get them to a proper level.

For example, take the stemmers, who separate the leaf of tobacco from the stalk and ribs. The women's bureau of the department of labor found that in 1934, when part of this much-advertised "raise" must have been in effect, 83 per cent of the stemmers in cigarette factories got less than 30 cents an hour. That wage, 30 cents an hour, was made the minimum wage in the textile industry when the code was adopted, as being the lowest on which a worker could live. So it appears that in one branch of tobacco workers, four out of every five are getting less than a living wage.

Average Yearly Pay 'Way Down.

For that matter, the report of the department of commerce is an indictment of the Big Four when you analyze it. It says that 24,346 persons were employed in the cigarette industry last year. Figures of total employment are always too small; they mean the number of workers busy on certain days of the week or month; and take no account of the considerable number who work at the industry but happen to be absent when the count is made.

However, let us take those figures at face value. Divide total wage payments for 1935, $18,238,690, by the number employed, 24,346; and you come out with a little less than $760 as the average yearly income of the cigarette worker.

But Dividends Keep Up.

And all the time, the Big Four are paying dividends on stock that is not merely watered, but made from the thinnest air; stock that represents nothing but the ability of the Big Four to gouge tobacco farmers, tobacco workers, tobacco users. And all the time, too, big bonuses are being paid to the insiders while stemmers in some parts of their plants are working for wages as low as 10 cents an hour.

Metal Miners Advocate Roosevelt's Re-Election

Convention Nominates Officers for Election by Referendum.

Denver, Colo.—The thirty-third annual convention of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, concluded here, adopted a resolution indorsing the re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was declared that the president, "in view of the detrimental and reactionary forces which have combined against him, deserves the support of all organized labor."

Most of the convention was devoted to routine internal matters. The union, which already has 33,000 members in the United States, Canada and Alaska, plans an extensive membership campaign for the near future.

Officers were nominated, to be elected by referendum of the entire international membership, Oct. 1. Robert C. Brown and Reid Robinson, both of Butte, Mont., were nominated for president, one of whom will succeed the retiring president, Thomas H. Brown, also of Butte. Dan Orlich, vice-president, was renominated, along with John Clark, of Great Falls, Mont., and Paul Peterson, of Park City, Utah. John M. Sherwood was the only nominee for secretary-treasurer. It was decided to also hold the next convention in Denver in 1937.

A man is said to have entered the fish market and said to the clerk:

Man—Just stand over there and throw me five of the biggest fish you've got.

Clerk (in amazement)—Throw 'em! What for?

Man—So I can tell my friends I caught them. I may be a poor fisherman, but I am no liar.

What Next!

A revolver more than twice as powerful as the standard police service revolver and firing with sufficient force to demolish an automobile engine block, soon will be placed on the market commercially, the United Press says. It shoots a special .357 caliber shell so heavy it would kill an ordinary revolver to hits. Cost of the new gun will be approximately $60. Officials believe only a few police departments can afford to purchase ample quantities of the weapons.

Prominent Citizens Invited to Welcome Green to Knoxville

Central Labor Union's General Committee and Sub-boards Completing Titanic Task for Celebrating National Day of Rest at Chilhowee Park September 7 — Busy Program of Events Being Planned.

The general committee of the Central Labor union, arranging for the celebration of Labor Day on Sept. 7 with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as principal guest and speaker, this week will ask a representative group of business and professional men of Knoxville to serve on the reception committee in welcoming and honoring the distinguished leader of organized labor in America.

Plans for the celebration were making with rapidity and practically all details of the great program at Chilhowee park next Monday, Sept. 7, labor's holiday, were receiving the finishing touches.

Following the mammoth parade a splendid program has been planned for Chilhowee park, including a big free barbecue for members of organized labor and their families. Lawrence Dukes, chairman of the barbecue, announces that preparations have already been started to feed at least 10,000 people, and he assures everyone there will be plenty to eat.

The athletic features of the afternoon's program have also been well planned for.

The parade is to march down Gay street from the Knoxville High school, Main to Henley and then proceed to Alcoa and Maryville. President Green will lead the parade. He will also make a brief address from the steps of United States postoffice in Maryville, where the citizens of the Blount metropolis are planning to give him a royal welcome.

Edwards Stores Still "Unfair"

Mack Ball, business agent for Local 600, Meatcutters, informed The Labor World this week that S. J. Edwards, operating some five grocery stores, is still employing non-union meatcutters. Edwards was formerly union, but recently broke off friendly relations with the union. The groceries have been placed on Central Body's "unfair" list.

Candy Workers Sign Another Manfuacturer

Bakery and Confectionery Workers, Local 25, report this week that a signed closed shop agreement has been secured from Monson Candy company, 618 Georgia avenue. This company is in competition with the non-union Bennett-Hubbard, now operated by scabs and strike-breakers.

LABOR DAY STATEMENT

JOHN L. LEWIS

President United Mine Workers of America,

Chairman, Committee for Industrial Organization

TO ALL WORKERS IN THE UNITED STATES, WHETHER ORGANIZED OR UNORGANIZED:

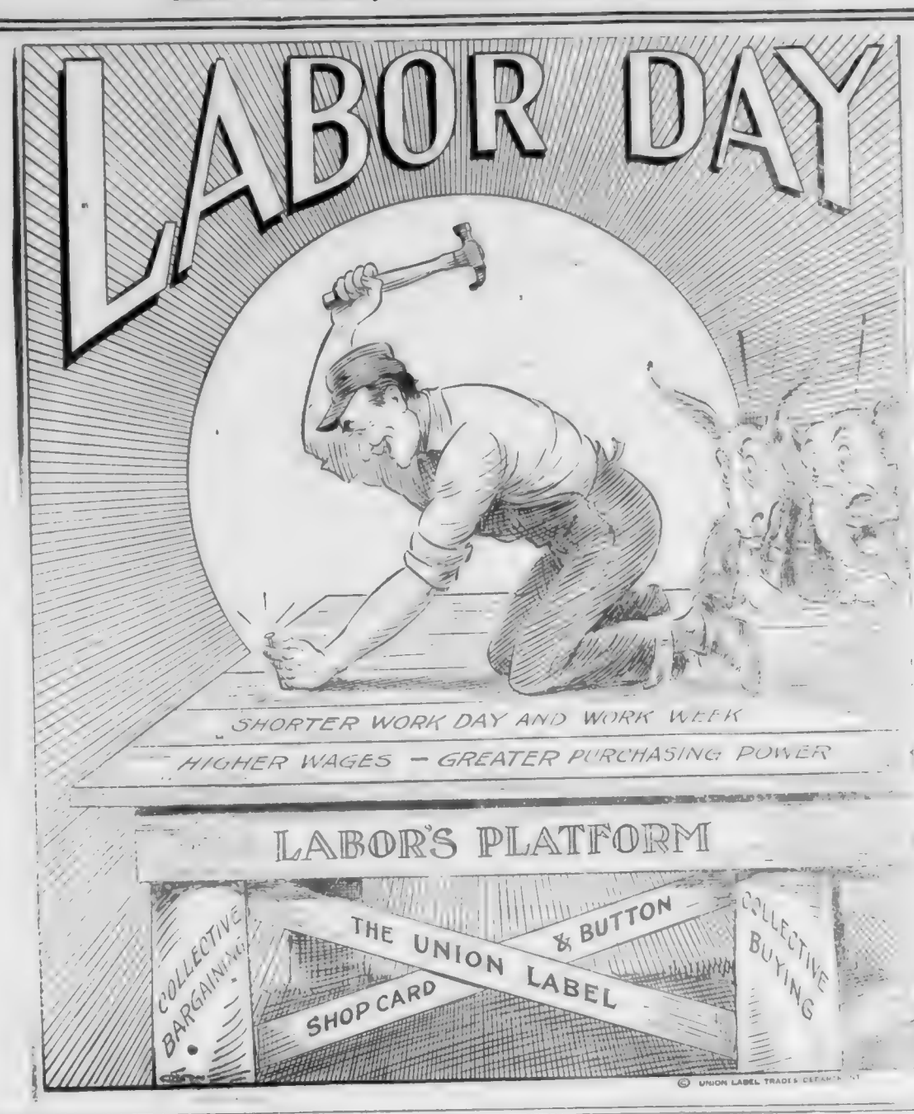
There is today a most vital question confronting you. It is a question upon which may hinge not only your destiny, but the destiny of this nation. I refer to the organization of the workers in the mass-production industries of the United States, upon which organization of the workers in smaller industries and businesses must depend.

Organized labor in the United States numbers today a little more than three million men and women; this is, roughly, only one-tenth of the workers who are eligible for organization. There are twenty-seven millions of persons in these United States who are devoid of the benefits of organization.

What can a strongly organized labor union do for its members It can raise their wages, lessen their hours, and improve their working conditions. It can be made an instrument for expressing and securing the social, political and economic needs of its members. A member of a labor union is no longer wholly at the mercy of his employer, of this topsy-turvy economic structure, or of some unforeseen blow of fate. He has a protection beyond that which his own efforts can afford him.

Those who are in possession of such benefits must desire to retain them; those who lack them must yearn to obtain them. To achieve such aims the unorganized workers of this country must be organized, for it is my belief that the three million members of organized labor will not for many years longer be able to withstand the continuous pressure of the masses of unorganized workers. Moreover, we owe it to ourselves to assist our brothers.

Organization of the mass-production industries, followed by organization of all other industrial workers, will mean a more stable economic structure and a more democratic government. It may save us from a catastrophic political upheaval, which would surely cause great suffering and might cause the loss of all our cherished liberties. I urge all the workers of the United States to do their utmost to assist in this great endeavor.



Enormous Crowd Expected at Warner Park Labor Day

Plans Completed Which Will Provide Amusement and Pleasure for All Ages, Young and Old.

Director of Recreation Hargraves Setting Up Annual Championship Awards in Tennis and Track Events —Legion Drum Corps Will Raise and Lower Old Glory.

Labor Day at Warner Park this year will be greeted by one of the largest crowds yet experienced in Chattanooga's largest playground. The celebration is sponsored by Chattanooga Central Labor Union, and with the aid of Mr. Ed Hargraves, director of recreation under Commissioner R. M. Cooke, a program of athletic events has been drawn up that will attract each year all lovers of sports.

Handsome medals and prizes have been purchased by Central Body to be given to winners in all events. The annual 100-yard open championship was established last year, and this year the same kind of prize, a handsome cup, will be awarded to the champion in the women's class.

Tennis eliminations have already been started, the finals to be played Labor Day to decide the ranking tennis players in the city.

The American Legion Drum and Bugle corps will open the day at 9 o'clock by raising the American flag. In the evening the corps will lower Old Glory in the required ceremony.

A complete program is set forth on another page of this issue of the Labor World.

A. C. Hester, well loved "old-time" unionist, is resting from a broken leg received in an automoble wreck last Sunday. Mrs. Hester received a severe scalp wound and is not yet entirely out of danger. A young daughter suffered minor bruises.

POCATELLO UNIONS BACK STRIKE OF WAITRESSES

Pocatello, Idaho.—Twenty unions, representing as many crafts, have pledged cash contributions and other effective support for waitresses on strike here. Culinary Workers' Alliance No. 510, in charge of the effort to improve the lot of cafe workers, is backed not only by the Central Labor union, but by local affiliated unions. Strike headquarters have been opened in the Labor Temple, and a "finish fight" is reported in the offing.

12,000 Painters Strike in Gotham To End 'Kick Back'

Employers Agree to Raise Wages and Improve Work Conditions, But Balk at Measures to Kill Racket Exploiting Workers.

New York City.—Twelve thousand members of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America walked out on Aug. 27. In negotiations with employing contractors, the union demanded three things: increased wages, better working conditions, and the end of the "kick back." The contractors agreed to the wage and working conditions demand, but balked at the measures taken to end the kick back, so the strike was called.

The method proposed by the union for eliminating the kick back was an agreement by which at least half the employes in these trades should be hired through the union. Louis Weinstock, secretary-treasurer of District Council 9, explained the opposition of the contractors to this clause.

"The employers have particular objection to the 50 per cent hiring clause," said Mr. Weinstock, "because it would deprive them of the means of beating down the union scale, and mean the virtual eradication of the kick back racket in the building industry.

"Union painters and decorators have been cheated out of more than $2,000,000 a year through the employers' vicious kick back racket. Employers' chiseling has taken an aggregate toll of more than $10,000,000 a year from all workers in the building trades. They are fighting to keep us from smashing their kick back."

A "kick back," it may be explained, is the requirement by the bosses that a worker drawing a given wage must "kick back" to the bosses a certain percentage of his pay. Cases have been found in which the kick back was more than 40 per cent of the nominal wages.

Low-Wage Dairy Fought By Long Beach Unions

Long Beach, Cal.—Notwithstanding threats of bodily injury reported as made against members of the Truck Drivers' union by gunmen allegedly hired by the company, and the arrest of newsboys selling the "Labor News," setting forth the facts of the fight, the strike against the Richmaid Creamery here continues with increasing determination.

Union recognition, with a very reasonable scale of wages, is asked by the union. Management of the firm, which has long refused to recognize union conditions, has refused to confer with representatives of the Central Labor council of San Pedro or Long Branch.

Many stories are current of abuses heaped upon the drivers, and organized labor is apparently determined to render every possible assistance to enable the Truck Drivers' union to

State-Use System Urged For Kentucky Prisons

Washington. A law providing for a state-use system for employing prisoners and a comprehensive building program to relieve congested conditions in the state's penal institutions, is a crying need of the state of Kentucky.

These needs were emphasized as a result of an investigation requested by Gov. A. B. Chandler, the results of which were announced by the prison industries reorganization administration.

"A mass of sullen men milling about aimlessly, with nothing to do except make trouble," was the administration's description of the existing situation. Extensive idleness has been caused in the prison population of Kentucky by legislation curtailing the market for goods produced in prisons of the state under the contract system, without as yet providing the state-use system, which many agree to be inevitable.

Strikebreakers Imported In R. C. A. Strike, Is Charge

CAMDEN, N. J.—Following an investigation by the Essex Trades Council, charges of probable violation of the recently enacted Byrnes law, prohibiting the importation of strikebreakers across state lines, was charged in a letter submitted by the council to Federal Judge William Clark and United States Aatorney John J. Quinn.

This allegation was made against the management of Radio Corporation of America, whose Camden plant was tied up with a strike of thousands of employes, until the recent settlement.

The council stated that strikebreakers with criminal records had been recruited by a private "detective bureau" in New York, and an "industrial service" in Newark, N. J. These men are said to have been taken from New York to Camden during the course of the recent strike to interfere by violence with peaceful picketing, which is specifically prohibited by the Byrnes Act.

Judge Clark, in replying to the council's letter conveying the charges, told of following the passage of the Byrnes Act through congress and quoted from the House Judiciary Committee's report denouncing the business of providing strong-arm men in labor disputes, and added that this report "seems to indicate the evil intended to be remedied." What action, if any, will follow was not immediately indicated, other than the statement that there would be "such action as the facts warrant."

William Turnblazer, State Chairman of Labor League, for Re-election of President Roosevelt, Urges Conference of All Interested Labor Members Sept. 8.

Arrangements are under way in Washington, D. C., for the meeting of the Non-Partisan League for the Re-election of President Roosevelt, it was announced by Chairman William Turnblazer, of the United Mine Workers of America. The meeting will be held in the Labor Temple, 9th and F streets, N. W., Washington, D. C., on Tuesday, September 8, at 10 a. m., it was announced.

Mr. Turnblazer also announced that Dan Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, have been invited to address the meeting.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, who is expected to Knoxville to deliver his annual Labor Day message on Monday, will be urged to remain over for the Tennessee Labor league's meeting on Tuesday.

"Certain politicians are claiming the state of Tennessee for Landon," Mr. Turnblazer says, "therefore, let us assemble and adopt such policies that our wisdom will show these politicians that the masses and good citizens of the state of Tennessee are going forward with Roosevelt."

The Sept. 8 conference of Tennessee labor interested in the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt is in keeping with plans adopted at a meeting of Labor's Non-Partisan league held at the Willard hotel at Washington on Aug. 10, when plans for such organization meetings to be held Labor Day or immediately thereafter, were adopted.

Cecil C. Arthur, president of the Knoxville Central Labor union, is secretary of the Tennessee league.

Civil Service for State Employes

Organized labor of Tennessee is pleased to read a statement by Capt. Gordon Browning, democratic nominee for governor, in which he said that he proposed to pass through the next legislative assembly a complete civil service bill for state employes. While visiting Chattanooga this week Mr. Browning assailed with much feeling the time-honored political custom of "to the victor belongs the spoils."

Most political leaders are for civil service only at the end of their political careers, but prefer to retain the spoils system while they themselves are in power. Since Mr. Browning is about to go into the governor's mansion himself, his sponsorship of civil service indicates sincerity on his part when he says that he wishes to hire employes of the state on merit rather than vote-getting abilities.

Mr. Browning, since his nomination and virtual election, has also indicated that he intends to clean up the state's penal institutions by placing them under efficient supervision.

Labor can joyfully uphold both of these measures proposed by the nominee. With the utterances he has made thus far we have cause to feel optimistic that he will go still further in reforms that have been advocated by labor for many years.

Taxi Ordinance Needed

Commissioner Eugene Bryan has indicated through the press that he is in favor of an ordinance which will regulate the operation of taxicabs on our streets. The ordinance proposed will eliminate the bloody and senseless price wars indulged in by rival companies every two months or so in an effort to destroy a competitor. It will enable these companies to make a legitimate profit, and pay living wages to their drivers.

By lifting the level of cab driving as a means of making a decent living it will be inevitable that the type of driver will be improved, and our police judge will not have so many cases coming up before him.

The ordinance would and should require taxi companies to carry liability insurance so that the public will be protected while using these conveyances.

We commend Commissioner Bryan for his indorsement of the taxi ordinance and, with his indorsement, we can see no reason why the city commission should not concur unanimously.

Mrs. Crabber—And you have the nerve to ask $5 a bottle for this nerve tonic?

Clerk—Certainly, madam. It shows what it will do. I take it regularly.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Nineteen power companies operating in the Tennessee valley have filed a plea in the federal court at Knoxville for an injunction against TVA. The companies want to hold the TVA at its present status, and prevent its further development. If TVA is allowed to go on, runs the plea, the companies are "faced with the complete and rapid destruction of their entire businesses."

There are about a dozen answers to this plea. For one, the power companies, through propaganda in newspapers, magazines, schools, colleges and the lecture platform, have been telling the people that private operation of electric utilities is much more efficient than government operation. Were they lying then; or are they lying now, when they complain that they cannot meet public competition?

Either their propaganda for years, or their wild squawk now, must be absolutely false. Let them take their choice.

Another pertinent question is this: If social inventions, such as the advantages of public ownership of pulic utilities, are to be enjoined by the courts, why not enjoin mechanical and chemical inventions, too? Why not close the laboratories where scientists are studying to find better methods of doing the things which humanity wants done? Why not shut up the patent office, and penalize the inventor, instead of rewarding him?

It is interesting to look backward and see what might have happened if this plan had been followed in the past. The makers of scythes and grain cradles would have got out an injunction against McCormick and his reaper. The pony express riders would have sought to enjoin Morse from introducing the telegraph; and, back of that, the Conestoga teamsters certainly would have enjoined the first railroad. When that came, the teaming industry, as it stood at the time, was not only faced with complete and rapid destruction, but experienced it.

Spanish wars have a way of lasting for indefinite and disconcerting periods. Most people think of the Thirty years' war in Germany, from A. D. 1618 to 1648, as the ultimate limit in long drawn conflicts. Spain was in that war, too; and she went down to a century of impotence when Marshal Conde, 22 years old and head of the French army, threw his baton of command into the Spanish trench, climbed in after it; and his soldiers followed in a whooping charge that crashed through all opposition.

But before the Thirty Years' war began, Spain had been fighting for forty years to crush the revolting Netherlanders, with no lasting successes. Before that were the long and varied wars of Charles Fifth. And still farther back lay almost eight centuries of virtually unceasing conflict to drive out the Moors.

It is hard to believe that the present civil war in Spain will endure for long; but word comes that the Spanish people expect it to last for years. If it does, the Peninsula will be a desert; and the fault will lie with the Spanish fascists, and their co-fascists in Italy and Germany.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

DATE CHANGED FOR BOARD MEETING

Due to the fact that the Labor Day festivities at Warner park are scheduled to extend into the evening next Monday the regular September meeting of the board of directors has been changed to next Thursday night, Sept. 10. The hour will be 7 o'clock, and the place will be announced by postal card early next week.

In addition to discussion of the salary situation and the mapping of plans for the coming year this meeting has extra importance due to the fact that reports will be heard from our delegates to the recent A. F. of T. convention, one of whom is a newly-elected vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, Mrs. Nancy Lea Smith.

COUNTY CONTRACTS

The executive committee is working with the board of education on the project of drawing up a contract for county teachers which will specify the compensation while at the same time conforming to and securing teachers' rights in the tenure law. Communication will be sent out advising members as soon as a suitable agreement is arrived at.

COMMITTEE SUPPORTS LOCAL 428

The executive committee of Local 246 on Thursday night voted unanimously to support the contention of Local 428 that there should be no differential between the salary scales of negro and white teachers. It was pointed out that "equal pay for equal work" is a fundamental principle of both the American Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of Labor.

THE CITY SITUATION

A committee has been appointed to confer with the city commission to request that a special city school tax be levied so as to establish the right of the city to operate its school system independent of the county and in order to secure a sufficient school appropriation to satisfy the provisions of the city salary law.

SEEK EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION

A subcommittee of the executive committee has been conferring with members of the county board of education with a view to arranging an equitable distribution of the salary increases planned for the coming year. Negotiations on that score bid fair to be successful.

WOMEN ON WPA JOBC

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Works Progress Administration announced that of the 2,563,185 employes on WPA projects on May 15, 2,152,690 were men and 410,495, or 16 per cent. were women.

Presbyterian Group Urges Production for Community Services

Labor Day Message Holds Industry Is Mainly Concerned With Human Beings and Insists That Profit Should Not Be the Major Motive.

A strong declaration that the Christian church should support the principle of operating industry essentially as a community service, with profit relegated to a secondary position, features the Labor Day message for 1936 of the board of national missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. The message, signed by T. Guthrie Speers, chairman, and John McDowell, secretary, was issued from the office of the committee on social and industrial relations of the board in New York City.

Social Welfare Is Stressed.

In discussing the "present tragic industrial situation," the message holds "that the Christian church must have a gospel that is concerned with men's bodies as well as their souls, a gospel for this life as well as the life to come, a gospel that is as deep as human life itself and as wide as human need," adding:

"There is an ardent, consuming passion for social welfare among the masses today, and that passion is essentially religious. It is not mere greed for a larger share of the wealth they help to produce which causes the widespread social unrest that prevails among the people of every land. The great social movements of our day for social reconstruction, whatever we may think of their economic and political programs, are in heart and spirit deeply religious, though perhaps unconsciously so. What they need, and need desperately, is a spiritual interpretation and the guiding motive of the Christian spirit and the Christian faith, and the Christian church as the organ of this spirit and this faith ought to meet this need and supply this demand."

Human Interest Is Paramount.

Contending that the "Christian church must welcome every social and industrial effort which makes in any way for the development of men, which ministers to human need, which gives greater scope for personal initiative, and which discovers and confirms personal capacities, the message gives the following analysis of our industrial system and the position which the Christian church should take in regard to it:

"All human relationships in industry should be regulated in accordance with the supreme moral principle of the Christianity of Christ, namely, equal love to self and neighbor.

"It is evident that as Christians we cannot for a moment concede the claim which is sometimes made that in the economic sphere the ethical should be subordinated to economic laws. Over against this claim the Christian church must in the name of Christ assert His sovereignty in the economic as in every other sphere of life and labor. The church must everywhere contend that human interest comes before financial, that character is more important than wealth, that whatever injures the least of Christ's brethren injures Him.

"When we wrong men, we wrong God; when we serve men, we serve God; when we treat men as the children of God, we are co-operating with God to create a new worthful world of justice and righteousness and love.

"The Christian church cannot believe in the stability of any social order, however imposing its economic triumphs, if it cripples the personality of its workers or deprives them of that control over the material conditions of their own lives, which is the essence of personal freedom.

Industry Operated as Social Service.

"The Christian church should no longer hesitate to recognize that industry is primarily something human and not merely something mechanical or material or financial. It is not first of all an undertaking for gain, but it is first of all an undertaking in which human beings work together for purposes of joint and common interests.

"Leaving land aside, the essential elements in the production of wealth are all human beings and not dead abstractions to be spelled with a capital letter and treated as if they were neither flesh nor blood.

"It is now apparent that sound economic and industrial policy will so organize industry that every co-operating element shall have a personal interest in its success and a personal share in its gain.

"The elements that enter into productive industry are three-fold: first, the man who works with his hands; second, the man who works with his head; third, the man who works with his money. Sometimes there is an overlapping of two of these classes, or in some cases, of all three of them, but in general each class represents a special group in the industrial system. Each member of every such group, therefore, should be made to have a common interest in the joint product.

"Why should we not leave off living on the edge of an economic and industrial volcano, waiting in fear and trembling until the next destructive and uncontrollable eruption shall occur, and accept the conception of industry as a co-operative enterprise in terms not of profit only, but of service of and to all the factors in industry and in the entire community.

Christian Spirit Must Guide Industry.

"Conscience in an industrial society will look for moral guidance on economic matters. Economic science does not give this guidance but as Christians we believe that Christ, our Master, does give such guidance and therefore under Him the Christian must in a measure do the same. The church as the moral guide of society is not an authority on any o fthe physical, or chemical, or mechanical, or technical processes of industry. These matters are in the realf of mechanics, not dynamics, and as such are not in the church's peculiar field.

"The deepest and most effective function of the Christian church in industry is moral instruction and inspiration, not technique administration. The church should be the boiler and not the engine, by which we mean that the church should be the creator of power rather than the deviser of machinery in the realm of industry.

"It is obvious that the Christian church must be competent to give instruction in the moral laws which govern our social, industrial and political life. Our day requires this instruction, the people desire it, and the Christian church as the moral guide of society should give it. To whom else can the men of industry look for instruction in the moral principles of a true social order if not to the Christian church?

"The minister who does not discover laws of social life in his text book, the Bible, has studied it to very little purpose. The minister who does not teach these laws does not follow the example of either the Old Testament prophets, the New Testament Apostles, or the Divine Master—both."

Community Service Is Fundamental Principle.

On the position of the church with regard to specific groups which advocate definite plans for changing the political and industrial organization the message said:

"As churchmen we cannot afford to place the churches of America at the disposal of any political party or economic system. The attempt to identify the church with any theory of individualism or collectivism is wrong, for the church is not bound to any economic theory or political system. As Christians we ought to remember that while our textbook, the Bible, contains the fundamental laws of the Kingdom of God, it does not contain the by-laws. Christ has not given us a code of laws. He has given us instead a compass by which to find our direction. Our quest, therefore, must not be for a static solution but for principles which may guide us in seeking some rational control over the relations of men to one another."

LABOR DAY MESSAGE

By FRANK MORRISON

Secretary-Treasurer, American Federation of Labor

In this presidential election year national interest is focused on political activities. It is timely to draw attention to the political policy of the American Federation of Labor. The formation of the American Federation of Labor developed out of the desire of workers to model an organization on principles which experience proved best suited to their needs. The immediate objective was to organize workers and to affiliate them to the union of their trade and calling, to enable them to carry on collective bargaining relations with their employers for the purpose of negotiating agreements, regulating wages and working conditions. The objective further comprehended demand for the enactment of legislation by the federal and state governments for the protection and benefit of wage workers and of the masses of the people.

With the passing of time the American Federation of Labor was brought face to face with the necessity of adopting a political policy which would enable organized labor to bring about the election of representatives in state legislatures and the congress of the United States who would support legislation demanded by the American Federation of Labor. At the same time it was necessary to avoid the danger of dividing the membership in a cleavage between the political parties. The 1897 convention of the American Federation of Labor declared for the "independent use of the ballot by trade unionists and working men united regardless of party." Later the non-partisan principle was emphasized in declaration "we will stand by our friends and administer a stinging rebuke to men or parties who are either indifferent, negligent or hostile." In the successive election campaigns the American Federation of Labor has adhered strictly to the non-partisan character of its political policy, with the result that increasing numbers of members of different political faiths are being elected to congress and the state legislatures who are supporting the legislative demands of the American Federation of Labor.

The question might be asked what progress are we realizing when legislation sponsored by the American Federation of Labor are set aside by courts and laws that stand the test of courts fail to protect workers in the right to organize in independent unions because of the defiance of antagonistic employer interests. We encounter opposition because we live under a free government and because it is free the labor movement has the right to enter on the struggle for realization of its ideals. Notwithstanding sebacks the persistent and insistent promulgation of labor legislation in the United States is creating a more enlightened public conscience in regard to human values and inherent rights of a free people as against purely materialistic considerations and these principles are attracting ever widening recognition and acceptance.

'GUIRE, ORIGINATOR OF LABOR DAY, TELLS STORY OF ITS BIRTH

st Secretary of American Federation of Labor Says "Inspiration of This Holiday Came From Men in the Ranks of the Working People."

J. McGuire, the originator of r Day, in an article of the Octo- 1897, issue of the American Fed- ionist, the official journal of the erican Federation of Labor, gave nteresting account of the birth of r Day in the Central Labor Union New York City, emphasizing the that the idea took root among n active in uplifting their fellows leading them to better condi- ."

view of Mr. McGuire's intimate nection with the establishment of first Monday of September as a legal holiday for workers by every state in our Union and the United States government, his story of the origin of Labor Day and his interpretation of its meaning are always titmely.

Mr. McGuire's article, entitled "Origin and Significance of Labor Day," follows:

"On this day the hosts of labor shout their Hosannahs!

"From a thousand groves and hillsides, by rippling brooks and gurgling streams, comes the glad acclaim.

"No festival of martial glory or warrior's renown is this; no pageant pomp of warlike conquest; no glory of fratricidal strife attend this day.

"It is dedicated to peace, civilization and the triumphs of industry. It is a demonstration of fraternity and the harbinger of a better age—a more chivalrous time, when labor shall be best honored and well rewarded.

Honors Working People.

"Pagan feasts and Christian observances have come down to us through this century, and for the American people, to give birth to Labor Day. In this they honor the toilers of the earth, and pay homage to those who from rude nature have delved and carved all the comfort and grandeur we behold.

"More than all, the thought, the conception, yea the very inspiration of this holiday came from men in the ranks of the working people—men active in uplifting their fellows, and leading them to better conditions.

"It came from a little group in New York City, the Central Labor union, which had just been formed, and which in late years attained widespread influence.

Birth of Labor Day.

"On May 8, 1882, the writer made the proposition. He urged the propriety of setting aside one day in the year to be designated as 'Labor Day,' and to be established as a general holiday for the laboring classes.

"He advised the day should first be celebrated by a street parade, which would publicly show the strength and esprit de corps of the trade and labor organizations. Next the parade should be followed by a picnic or festival in some grove, and the proceeds of the same be divided on this semi-co-operative plan, viz.:

"Each union or organization should get as many tickets as it desired to sell; the more sold the greater would be the profits to the society selling them. Each society should be allowed to keep all the money realized by sale of tickets through its members. In the end each of the bodies participating should contribute to the expenses in proportion to its membership.

First Monday in September Selected.

"It was further argued Labor Day should be observed as one festal day in the year for public tribute to the genius of American industry. There were other worthy holidays representative of the religious, civil and military spirit, but none representative of the industrial spirit—the great vital force of every nation.

"He suggested the first Monday in September of every year for such a holiday, as it would come at the most pleasant season of the year, nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving, and would fill a wide gap in the chronology of legal holidays. Many were the cogent reasons he advanced, and at once the idea was enthusiastically embraced.

"The first Labor Day parade and festival of the Central Labor Union of New York City on Sept. 5, 1882, was simply an imposing success. From that day on, it became a fixed institution in the land.

"The plan was next indorsed by the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor and the general assembly of the Knights of Labor. It spread rapidly from city to city, and from town to town.

"City councils and state legislatures took it up, and made it a legal holiday, until finally, June 29, 1894, it became a national holiday, by act of congress.

Trade Union Power.

"There was a time, and it is not many years ago, when the trade union and the labor movement in America were too insignificant for presidents, governors, mayors, city councilmen or public men to consider, much less honor.

"Trade unions were of no consequence; trade unionists were harmless fanatics. Now, they are of more weight, more influential, more powerful. No longer can they be sneered down or cajoled; they must be met, they must be recognized.

"What mighty portent is in their movement? In their hands rest the weal of the worker, his welfare and improvement.

Can Free Workers from Oppression.

"With hands and hearts together, with united funds and united interests, to stand for one another, day after day, year in and year out, in good times and in bad, who dare say what can they not accomplish? In the workshop and on the forum, at the ballot box and in every field of endeavor, they can right every wrong, and eradicate every evil oppressive to the working people."

Wisdom

Differences of opinion, when permitted to purify themselves by free discussion, are as the clouds overspreading our land transiently and leaving our horizon more bright and serene. — Thomas Jefferson.

What Next!

Sunshine cabs are the latest in the field of taxi transportation. A fleet of 2,200 taxicabs has just been put into service in New York, featuring a sliding roof which opens to admit sunshine and permit rubbernecking by passengers on fair days. New York borrowed the idea from Europe.

Leisure: Leisure is time not devoted to labor on the part of one who has work. One who does not have work can have no leisure. He is idle, and idleness is not leisure.

The two words are in no degree synonymous. Idleness is the hardest kind of work. Millions will testify to that fact—unproductive work that is destructive to morale.

Leisure may be a blessing or a curse—idleness is generally a curse.

LABOR DAY, 1936

By WILLIAM GREEN
President, American Federation of Labor

Labor Day 1936 records a year of new achievements and new problems which progress has developed. During the year unions have increased in membership. The trend toward business recovery is unmistakable.

The administration of the social security act is in process of organization while the judiciary threatens to nullify our efforts to assure workers' rights by legislation. The social security act is a recognition of society's responsibility for providing security from another source than property ownership. There are many who have no opportunity to acquire sufficient property to achieve security. For this large group income for emergencies must be provided if they are to be relieved of the burden of insecurity.

The spectre which haunts the wage-earner through his productive years is loss of job. This spectre takes on blacker terrors as the worker grows older and faces inability to secure other jobs. The social security act attempts to relieve the major emergencies; it provides!

Federal old age benefits to which employers and employees contribute jointly in addition to federal subsidies to matching state old age pensions provisions up to $15 per person;

Federal financial incentives to states to enact unemployment compensation laws;

Federal plans for public assistance to widows and dependent children, crippled children, and for blind persons;

Federal grants to states for public health work. As a result, fifteen states now have unemployment compensation acts, thirteen of which have been approved by the social security board, and every state has increased the security provided its residents, taking advantage of at least one opportunity afforded by the social security act. This is a remarkable achievement for so short a time. It is labor's hope and ambition to secure legislation to enable every state to participate fully in all types of federal aid offered by this measure. These constructive legislative enactments constitute the beginning of a constructive plan to assure to every citizen an income to provide the necessaries of life under all eventualities. When there is a measure of economic security so that persons are sure of shelter, food and clothing, freedom takes on new meaning.

It would be well if our Labor Day celebration included plans for a development of a fully rounded security program in every state efficiently administered with labor's co-operation. Labor should take the initiative in the legislative program and then must be ready to follow closely administrative policies and procedure. Unless this program is administered as a right of labor it becomes a mere relief program which does not make for freedom.

In addition to our opportunity to advance social security, we face a responsibility to all unemployed wage earners. It is obvious that recovery for business is at hand, but re-employment of the unemployed is not keeping pace with the increase in business activity or the recovery of profits. For those who are employed we must secure higher wages and shorter hours. The steady rise in business activity and profits indicates the opportuneness of demands for higher standards. The rise in the costs of living make such demands imperative.

We face, in addition, the serious problem of extending our provisions for unemployed so that there may be normal opportunities for those excluded from existing business by technical progress. There again the labor movement must insist upon equal opportunities for all in our new economic environment.

We face another phase of labor's age-long struggle for freedom under all conditions. Unless the labor movement does its part, the result will be serious for our nation, for the labor movement is essential to balance in both our economic and our political progress. We have have seen in other countries that the downfall of free labor movements has always presaged the loss of civil liberties.

We are upon a critical period in world affairs as well as in our own country, so that our first concern should be the strengthening and advancement of our organized labor movement, that the workers as well as all society may be safeguarded and bettered. Organization is the first step in progress and is essential to maintain existing gains. Maintenance of organization be our continuous concern. Upon the rank and file of workers as well as union officers rests the responsibility for taking advantage of opportunities and of solving our problems. May each and every member of organized labor be ready and willing to do his full part for our common advancement.

Women buyers can make America safe for labor unions if they will buy only union-made goods and use services.

The strongest union labor platform any economic platform is: "Demand the Union Label, Shop Card and Button."

PHOTO ENGRAVERS' UNION BACKS A. F. OF L. ON C. I. O. CONTROVERSY

New York City.—Delegates to the thirty-seventh annual convention here of the International Photo-Engravers Union of North America voted support of the American Federation of Labor Executive Council in its order to member unions to withdraw from the Committee for Industrial Organization by Sept. 5 or be suspended. The photo-engravers pledged financial aid to the federation if it carried out the plan for organization of steel workers which it had before the CIO entered the field.

The convention acted after Matthew Woll warned them that the CIO issue was one of "order or chaos," and declared that the forces of labor will survive whether they belong to the A. F. of L. or not.

"The unfortunate thing for the future of labor is that if the CIO policy is to dominate, it sets the precedent that minorities at no time need be ruled by a majority," he added.

Woll, who is first vice-president of the photo-engravers, and vice-president of the A. F. of L., said he did not blame John L. Lewis for seeking to organize steel workers, but that he did believe their work would prove Union Head Sees A F L Surviving Split With C. I. O.

Majority Decisions Must Be Observed, President E. J. Volz Tells Photo-Engravers' Convention.

New York City.—Edward J. Volz, president of the International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America, promised to support the American Federation of Labor suspension of the committee for industrial organization.

Opening the thirty-seventh annual convention of the union, President Volz said photo-engravers has seen the failure of industrial unionism in the international union.

The union head expressed the belief that the A. F. of L. will survive any final split with the committee for industrial organization and that the committee, like other dissident groups in the past, will ultimately disappear. He condemned the C. I. O. for, what he said was its seeking to assume functions delegated to the federation's Executive Council at the Atlantic City convention last October.

Woll Hits Compulsion.

"This usurpation of power and carrying on of activities contrary to the adopted policy of the federation by a minority group cannot be condoned if the federation, as such, is to continue to exist," Volz maintained.

"The first requisite of any organization worthy of the name must be insistence upon full observance of majority decisions, by all its affiliates, in all instances where such decisions are recognized as adequate and binding. Any other course or policy would be weakening and suicidal."

Matthew Woll, first vice-president of the organization and third vice-president of the A. F. of L., set forth the view in his report that "neither compulsion on the part of the C. I. O. nor compulsion on the part of the American Federation of Labor will solve the present unfortunate cleavage in the ranks of American organized labor."

"All Labor Bound to Suffer."

"Indeed," Mr. Woll continued, "each of the respective affiliated organizations may exist independently of each other and all may by one way or other strive singly or in combination to defeat or submerge the other. But in this process of antagonism or of lack of unity, of co-ordination and of co-operation, all labor is bound to suffer."

George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, told the convention he was supporting the re-election of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman as a "friend of organized labor."

more effective if they remained within the federation.

Speaking to the convention, Gov. Lehman said that the state of New York "must and will" find some way to enforce minimum wage laws for women and children.

The action of the U. S. supreme court in invalidating the New York minimum wage for women law was a "particular disappointment" to him, Gov. Lehman said. He had always regarded this law as the proudest achievement of his administration in the way of social legislation, and would not give it up. He expressed the belief that it would be "only a very short time" until the entire social security program which he laid before the legislature will be enacted.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, called on the convention to stand by the American Federation of Labor and "see to it that the labor movement is not wrecked" by the controversy over industrial organization. A policy of caution toward the formation of a labor party was urged by John B. Haggerty, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders. Any formal alignment might cost labor its "strategic position" in seeking major party support for legislative proposals, he declared.

Canadian Cooperative Federation Favors a 30-Hour Week for All

Also Votes for Adequate Old-Age Pensions and Public Ownership—Rejects Overtures of Communists for United Front — Socialist Party in Canada Affiliates with C. C. F.

Toronto.—A resolution in favor of the 30-hour work week was adopted at the annual convention here of the Canadian Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (the farmer-labor party). A number of well-known trade unionists who were delegates argued that a declaration for a 40-hour week would be more practical, but were overruled. There were also suggestions that since it was desirable to keep machines in operation long days in order to produce more wealth to be shared, shortening of the giving the workers long vacations working time should be affected by and thus an opportunity to plan good use of their leisure.

Other immediate methods of relieving the unemployed situation, which were approved, included: adequate old-age pensions at 60; retraining of displaced workers; an extensive program of socially needed public works; reorganization of direct relief with larger grants by the Dominion to assure the maintenance of the physical stamina of the unemployed.

With war clouds lowering, the convention declared for a policy of neutrality on the part of Canada in event of another European war.

Another resolution adopted called for the public ownership and control of all banks, and condemned the liberal government for failure to carry out its pre-election promise to nationalize the Central Bank of Canada.

It was announced that the socialist party of Canada would affiliate with the C. C. F. and the executive was instructed to seek the support of the co-operative societies in the maritime provinces as well as in other parts of Canada.

The convention rejected overtures of the communists for a united front for immediate political objectives, and reaffirmed the policy of no truck nor trade with any other political party. But it was recommended that the C. C. F. organizations should cooperate with other organizations in struggles for the protection of civil liberty, for better wages for workers, better relief for the unemployed, the preservation of peace and resistance to fascism.

The convention declared that all wage-earning members of the C. C. F. to be consistent upholders of the cause, should be members of the unions of their trade.

In view of drought conditions in the west, the Dominion and provincial governments were urged to adopt an adequate scheme of crop insurance.

Labor Spying Data Seized by Senate

Records of Five Detective Agencies Subpoenaed by La Follette Committee for Investigation; Pinkerton and Burns Offices Included in Those Notified to Surrender Papers.

Acting simultaneously in a number of different cities, the La Follette subcommittee of the United States Senate Committee on Education and Labor authorized to investigate labor spy systems and other agencies interfering with the rights of the workers to organize in labor unions began a nation-wide effort to determine the extent of such activities.

In New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Atlanta and New Orleans agents of the government subpoenaed records of five nationally known detective agencies or corporations, requiring them to submit all their records and office documents within five days to the investigating committee sitting in Washington.

The subpoenas were served at the direction of Senator Robert M. La Follette, chairman of the investigating committee.

In New York City the files of the following concerns were demanded: William J. Burns Detective Agency; Pinkerton National Detective Agency; Railway Audit and Inspection, Inc.; Forrest C. Pendleton, Inc., and Central Industrial Service.

Branch Offices Included.

The subpoenas included in their scope the thirty or more branch offices of the Pinkerton agency, the twenty-four branch offices of the Burns agency and all of the "subsidiaries, affiliates and branch offices" operated by the five respondents.

Offices of the detective agencies in the six principal cities where the main branches are located were also served with subpoenas.

The action of the government agents, timed to occur simultaneously in New York and the five other cities, represented a preliminary step in the La Follette committee's probe of industrial espionage and related matters.

The serving of the subpoenas was directed in New York City by Robert Wohlforth, secretary of the committee, assisted by Richard Watts, general counsel, and about ten investigators. Other government employes who have been active in helping the committee's investigators, aided in the procedure. Mr. Wohlforth and staff established temporary offices in New York to superintend the requisition of the documents. He denied the story sent out by the Associated Press which said that "after the subpoenas had been served a committee agent was stationed at each of the offices visited, presumably to prevent any efforts to remove documents in which the investigators were interested."

Records Will be Studied.

The committee's next step, Mr. Wohlforth said, would be a study of the subpoenaed records and that the committee would resume its hearings some time this month. He stated that further groundwork for the inquiry would probably require the issuance of additional subpoenas.

The La Follette subcommittee, appointed by Senator Hugo L. Black, chairman of the Senate Education and Labor Committee, consists of Senator La Follette and Senator Elbert L. Thomas, of Utah. The third member, Senator Lewis Murphy, of Iowa, was killed recently in an automobile accident in Wisconsin.

The Senate Education and Labor Committee held preliminary hearings on the spy system last April, at which testimony was given by labor officials and others implicating the detective agencies in strike-breaking and associated activities, but no records were introduced. The head of the Burns agency testified briefly, but none of the officials of the other detective agencies testified.

LABOR

WITH the return of better times, it is only fiitting that we congratulate labor for the spirit of loyalty and helpfulness it has shown during the trying times through which we have passed. Today the clouds have rifted, and through them comes the promise of returning progress.

As Labor pauses on this, their day, to recount the events of the year, so do all men and women pause to recall the great achievements in the march of Labor's progress. That the months which follow will bring prosperity and greater comfort to Labor, through the unfolding of a great National program, is the hope and wish of this institution.

Kyle, of South Dakota; Rep... ... Amos J. Cummings, of ... and Representative Robert ..., of Connecticut, introduced ... apart Labor Day as a ... holiday. The bills introduced ... Kyle and Representative ... carried the same text. The ...-Kyle bill read:

"... enacted by the senate ... of representatives of the ... States of America in con... assembled, That the first Mon... September of each year be... day known and celebrated ... holiday, is hereby made ... public holiday, to all intents ... purposes, in the same manner ... "The Kyle bill was referred to the ... committeen on education and ..., of which Senator Kyle himself ... chairman. The committee fa... the enactment of the measure. ... took it up for considera... and passed it on June 22, 1894, ... short discussion.

Senator Kyle Explains Measure.

Senator Kyle made the following ... explanation of the bill:

"I should like to say, for the in... of those who do not know, ... something like twenty-five states ... United States have now settled ... the first Monday of September ... the first day of October. In order ... the observance uniform, that ... may enjoy vacation privilege upon ... day, the labor organizations ... country have united in asking ... that the first Monday of September be set apart as a holiday."

Senator Cockrell Wanted Date Changed.

This explanation of the bill was followed with a brief discussion participated in by Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa; Senator Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri; Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, and Senator John Sherman, of Ohio. The only objection raised was by Senator Cockrell, who believed that for the sake of "symmetry" in national holidays Labor Day should be fixed for the first day in September instead of the first Monday.

Senate Passes Bill.

Senator Sherman observed that if the labor organizations had fixed the first Monday in September in twenty-five states congress had better follow suit. He said that the first day in September suggested by Senator Cockrell might fall on Sunday, adding: "I do not myself like to encourage holidays on Sunday. There is too much old Presbyterianism in me for that."

The senate did not consider Senator Cockrell's amendment seriously. The bill was passed as reported by the committee on education and labor and sent to the house of representatives, where it met a peculiar parliamentary situation.

Quick Action in House.

The Cummings Labor Day bill was already on the house calendar where it would probably not be reached for a number of weeks. Chairman McGann, of the house labor committee, therefore decided to place the Kyle bill, which had the same text as the Cummings bill, before the house of representatives as a substitute for the Cummings bill. This was done on June 26, 1894, and the house passed the Kyle-Cummings bill without discussion.

Signed by Cleveland.

It was signed by Speaker Crisp, of the house of representatives, and by Vice-President Stevenson, president of the senate, on June 27.

President Grover Cleveland affixed his signature to the measure on June 28, 1894.

And thus, twelve years after Peter J. McGuire suggested to the Central Labor Union of New York City that one day in the year, the first Monday in September, should be set aside as a special holiday for working men and women of the United States, congress enacted and President Cleveland signed the Kyle-Cummings bill making the first Monday in September of each year "a legal public holiday."

In his annual report to the 1894 convention of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, announced labor's victory in the following brief statement:

"National Labor Day—It affords me pleasure to be able to report that the demand made by the American Federation of Labor for making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday passed congress and was made a law on June 28, 1804."

48 STATES HAVE LABOR DAY LAWS

First Law Making Labor Day Legal Holiday Was Passed by Oregon in February, 1887—Colorado, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts Also Enacted Labor Day Laws During That Year.

Wyoming Passed Last Law in 1923—Now Every State in the Union, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands and Puerto Rico Have Labor Day Statutes.

The Central Labor Union of New York City started Labor Day on its way as a general holiday on May 8, 1882, when the council adopted the plan presented by P. J. McGuire, founder of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, that one day in each year should be set apart as a special holiday for working men and women.

On the first Monday in September, 1882, the Central Labor union sponsored the first Labor Day parade, which was reviewed in Union Square by prominent labor leaders and ended with a celebration and speeches in Elm park.

Following the New York celebration several municipal councils passed ordinances making the first Monday in September a municipal holiday, but it was not until 1887 that the states initiated the movement to make Labor Day a legal state holiday.

First Law Enacted by Oregon.

Oregon enacted the first state law in 1887. The legislature fixed the first Saturday in June as Labor Day, but in September, 1893, changed the date to the first Monday in September.

The action of Oregon was followed in quick succession by the legislatures of Colorado, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts, all of them enacting Labor Day laws in 1887.

The forty-eighth state to come under Labor Day influence was Wyoming, whose legislature enacted a Labor Day law in 1923.

Dairy Workers Show Progress

The Chattanooga local union of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America (known locally as the Dairy Workers') is rapidly becoming one of the larger local unions in Chattanooga. Their membership now stands at 130, and they are signing up new dairies every week.

All the large dairies except the Southern Dairies have been signed and the following dairies have closed shop contracts: Cream Top, Grant-Patten, Kay's Koons, Meadowbrook, Morning Star and United Dairies.

No wonder this comparatively new local is growing so fast—just look at the difference in the wages and hours since this local was organized three years ago:

Before the union was organized the drivers were working seven days a week, ten hours a day, and their wages were set at just any figure the employers decided they could pay. On their first and second contracts the drivers worked six days a week, ten hours a day with a minimum guarantee of $15.00 per week and a commission on sales, or collections. Under their present agreement the drivers work six days a week, ten hours a day with a minimum guarantee of $17.50 a week and a 10 per cent. commission on collections.

The inside men worked seven days a week, with unlimited hours and with a salary of $1.00 to $1.25 per day—that was before they became members of the union. Under their first contract they worked seven days a week, ten hours a day and received $15.00 a week. Under their present agreement the inside men in the dairies work six days a week, eight hours a day and receive $15.00 a week. That is just one example of what a local can, and does, do, for its individual members.

This active local meets twice monthly at the Labor Hall, and is presided over by President Joe Gill. Brother B. Z. Cooley is Secretary-Treasurer and Brother Frank Norman is business agent.

FOUR UNION SHOP PACTS WON BY DALLAS TAILORS

Dallas, Tex.—The 40-hour week and prevailing union wages were obtained by Journeymen Tailors' Union No. 168, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, in agreements signed here with four tailoring establishments.

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

LEGAL NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals for the construction of fifty (50) one-way traffic signals for the City of Chattanooga, Tennessee, from a Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works Grant, will be received by City Commission, Department of Fire and Police, of the City of Chattanooga, Tennessee, at the office of Eugene J. Bryan, Commissioner of Fire and Police, Room 10, City Hall, until 11:00 A.M., on the tenth day of September, 1936, and will be immediately publicly opened and read.

P. W. A. Docket No. Tenn. 1029-R

Copies of the proposal, contract documents, drawings, and specifications may be obtained from the office of William L. Williams, Assistant City Electrician, Chattanooga, Tennessee. A charge or deposit of five ($5.00) dollars will be required of eligible bidders for procuring specifications, drawings and contract documents. The deposit for plans and specifications will be returned to all, except the successful bidder, tendering a bona fide bid on the return of plans, contract documents, and specifications in good condition.

A copy of the plans and specifications may be examined free of charge at the office of William L. Williams, at the office of the Honorable E. D. Bass, Mayor, and at the Chamber of Commerce.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or bidder's bond executed by the bidder and a surety company satisfactory to the Public Works Administration in the sum of ten (10%) per cent of the amount of the bid. The bond is required as a guarantee that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be immediately entered into and the performance of it properly secured. The successful bidder will be required to execute a labor bond as required by Public Works Administration. He will also be required to execute a performance bond in the amount of one hundred (100%) per cent of the contract price.

Proposal form must be properly filled out and must not be detached from specifications. No qualifying letters or statements will be considered.

All bidders must be licensed contractors as required by Chapter 70 of the Public Acts of 1931 of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee. Section 1. Bidders' name and license number must be placed on the envelope containing these documents.

WAGES: Attention is called to the fact that no less than the minimum rates as set up in the specifications must be paid on this project, as prescribed by the City of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and approved by the State Director of the Public Works Administration for the State of Tennessee.

WITHDRAWAL OF BIDS: Unless contrary to statutes of the State of Tennessee, including local charter provisions, no bidder may withdraw a bid submitted for a period of thirty days after the date set for the opening of such bids.

In bidding on projects financed in part or in whole with P. W. A. funds, the bidder MUST execute the certificate that he fully understands the penalty clause as set out in Penalty for False Certification included in the specifications.

All work executed and all materials furnished shall conform to the Rules and Regulations of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works.

This project is being financed from funds to be furnished by the United States Government and failure of the City of Chattanooga to receive the requisite funds from the Government, relieves said City and its officials and representatives from any responsibility, damage or loss due to the taking of bids.

The funds available for construction purposes of this project are $26,310.00.

Award will be made on the lowest bid, if awarded.

All work must be completed in a manner satisfactory to the City Engineer.

The City reserves the right to reject any and/or all bids, and to waive informalities therein.

Any bid received after the scheduled closing time for receipt of bids shall be returned to the bidder unopened.

ATTEST: E. D. BASS,

the committee to appear at the first hearing with the company's records and documents.

Not only did the six officials flout the authority of the committee by refusing to appear before it, but, according to testimony submitted by the committee's agents, officers of the company began a wholesale destruction of the documents as soon as the subpoenas were served on them.

These astounding facts were revealed at the hearing held here by Senator Robert La Follette, chairman of the subcommittee authorized by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor to make the investigation.

Court Ban Sought

The determination of the company to resist the authority of the committee was made known by its counsel, who declared he had advised his clients that the Senate resolution under which the inquiry was being held was unconstitutional and exceeded the Senate's power.

During the hearing it was learned that Justice James M. Proctor in the United States Court for the District of Columbia had acted on the request for an injunction, made by L. Douglas Rice, of Philadelphia, a stockholder of the company, restraining the officials from appearing before the committee. Although Justice Proctor did not issue the injunction, he directed the defendants to appear in court four days later and show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted.

Bales of Torn Documents Salvaged.

Despite the refusal of the company's officials to appear, Senator La Follette continued the hearing by placing the committee's agents on the stand to tell how they had in part circumvented the destruction of the company's documents by requisitioning from building superintendents the waste paper from the concern's various offices and patching the fragments together. Twelve pieced-together letters and memoranda were submitted showing the spying activities of the company, while bales of other torn bits of paper have still to be fitted into complete documents.

"First-Class" Man for "Hooking."

One of the patched-up letters was from W. W. Groves, at Pittsburgh, addressed to G. E. Ivey, the Atlanta manager of the spy concern. Much of it concerned the placing of "hooked men," a term to describe active spies masquerading as workers who go into industrial plants with a view to learning labor secrets and making friends with labor leaders so as to ascertain in advance what is going on.

The "hooked man" in this case was Mr. W. H. Gray, whom Groves said was "experienced in hooking and does a first-class job along this line.

La Follette Sees Contempt of Senate.

When the testimony regarding the destruction of the documents was concluded Senator La Follette declared it "disclosed the grossest kind of contumacy ever witnessed under a Senate subpoena," adding:

"It shows the grossest and most flagrant contempt of the United States Senate. As far as the chairman of the committee is concerned, every legal remedy that can be taken to punish this flouting of the Senate will be prosecuted with greatest vigor."

The officers of the industrial espionage organization thus described by Senator La Follette are W. W. Groves, president; W. B. Groves, vice-president; L. Douglas Rice, vice-president and general manager; J. E. Blair, secretary-treasurer; Robert S. Judge, former counsel, and J. C. Boyer, alias O'Keefe, an employe in the Railway Audit and Inspection central offices in Pittsburgh.

What Next!

Last word in use of electricity to bring farms up-to-date is to be found in the Rosedale Farm, Verndon, Va., which is so wired that even flies are electrocuted when they try to get into the barn. Now open for exhibition to the public, through co-operation of the REA, the National Eletrical Manufacturers' association, and Virginia Public Service company and several private firms, the farm is a model for the world power conference to be held at Washington in September. Comforts of the average city home are obtainable at first hand in this model farm—air conditioning, dishwasher, stove, refrigerator, etc. Electric woodchoppers, feed grindings, milkers, haw hoisters, water system, and other devices combine to lighten the well-known chores.

ORNBURN WILL BROADCAST LABOR DAY ADDRESS

I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer, Union Labor Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, will broadcast over the national network of the Columbia Broadcasting system from Washington on Labor day, Sept. 7, from 3:30 to 3:45 (Eastern Standard time). His subject will be, "The Union Label—the Emblem of Labor Day." All central labor bodies are urged to request local radio stations of the Columbia Broadcasting company to carry this message. Arrangements have been made to pick up the address by means of loud speakers at many Labor day celebrations. The Union Label Trades department has requested all members of organized labor to notify their friends by telephone or otherwise to listen in.

LUGGAGE WORKERS STRIKE

New York City.—About 1,000 workers employed in seventy-five plants went on strike at the call of the Luggage, Case, Bag and Portfolio Makers union. The strike was declared following a break in negotiations between the union and the Luggage and Leather Goods Manufacturers' association.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. O. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for billiousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Central Body Meets Monday

LOCAL UNIONS HAVE BIG TIME WARNER PARK

Over 10,000 Attend Celebration Sponsored by Central Labor Union.

Athletic Events Take Limelight as Many Trophies Are Awarded—Ray Edmundson Principal Speaker.

Chattanooga labor had a wonderful Labor Day at Warner park this year when nearly 15,000 workers thronged the city's playground to see what the Central Labor union had prepared for their fun and amusement.

None went away disappointed. Every age was given an opportunity to take part. Tennis champions for the city were decided upon, the annual 100-yard dash trophy was awarded to the fastest boy and girl, there were medals galore for dozens of athletic features, and the carpenter-painter ball game, with a score resembling a football game, saw the nail-drivers nose out the daubers.

Starting the day with a flag-raising sponsored by local legion bugle corps arranged by William Bundschu, of Tennessee-Georgia Motor company, the festivities wound up late in the evening with a fine display of pyrotechnics.

Ray Edmundson, president of District 12, United Mine Workers of America, made a stirring call to organized labor to re-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt as he delivered the Labor Day address.

All during the day hundreds of families and groups enjoyed basket lunches and tried out all of the concessions.

This year's Labor Day committee was headed by Erskine Mabee, secretary of Central Body, and included C. C. Peek, Ed Hargraves, Joe Dobbs, J. B. Campbell and Curtis Sims.

Central Body owes particular gratitude to Ed Hargraves, recreational superintendent for the department of parks and playgrounds, for his splendid cooperation in handling athletic events.

Union Shop Laundries Prosper in San Jose

San Jose, Cal.—As a result of an intensive organizing campaign, there are now enough union laundries to serve this entire community, and for the others it may be "just too bad."

As an example of the active support which organized labor in general and a goodly portion of the public is giving to the laundry workers, the Sainte Claire laundry was completely swamped with work immediately after signing up with the union.

Two-thirds of the union laundry workers who went out on strike some time ago are reported as gack to work under agreements already.

It also happens that the business of the union laundries is now growing so fast that employment is expected to soon be available to the balance of the workers on strike from plants that are still fighting the union. It is said to be plain that the union laundries are "getting the business."

Rubber Workers' Local Hits Sit-Down Strike

AKRON, O.—The "sit-down" strike has been outlawed by the Goodrich local of the United Rubber Workers of America. An experiment of the so-called "liberal" group within the union, the "sit-down" strike has been employed on a number of occasions. The resolution adopted by the local banning this form of strike declared the union's policy is to settle grievances through the regular channels of negotiation.

His defeat will give Mr. Talmadge unlimited time to make some more Rotary club speeches against our great president, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The election campaign was marked with sluggings on the part of some of Gene's strike-breaking gunmen, who were jailed.

CIO Unions to Remain in State Federations and City Central Bodies Until Further Notice

Statement From A. F. of L. Head Instructs Subordinate Bodies to Take No Action Regarding Suspension of "Outlaw" Industrial Organizations

Those international unions who are holding membership in the C. I. O. and who were suspended in September by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, are to remain in city central bodies and state federations until further notice, according to a statement received from William Green, president of the federation.

Mr. Green's statement says:

"On Aug. 5 the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor called upon the organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization to make their choice within thirty days as to whether they would withdraw from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor or discontinue their membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"These organizations which make up the Committee for Industrial Organization have made their decisions. Their representatives have chosen to continue membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization and to withdraw their affiliated relationship with the American Federation of Labor. They have exercised their freedom of choice. The American Federation of Labor accepts it as a determination on the part of the organizations involved to leave the American Federation of Labor and to maintain the Committee for Industrial Organization. This organization was classified by the Executive Council as a dual organization functioning as a rival to the American Federation of Labor.

"In view of the choice made by the organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization the charge which has been repeatedly made that the Executive Council lacked authority to take action against these organizations falls flat. Instead of suspending these organizations through formal action the Executive Council accorded them an opportunity to make their own decision. This is in accordance with the voluntary principles and policies which have been applied and followed by the American Federation of Labor.

"The plan of those who originated and established the Committee for Industrial Organization has unfolded during the past ten months since the adjournment of the Atlantic City convention. Apparently the developments which have taken place have been in accord with policies which were formulated and adopted when the Committee for Industrial Organization was conceived and formed. Undoubtedly, the next step will be to officially and formally admit the existence of this new organization and to proclaim it as a definite rival movement to the American Federation of Labor. It is generally expected by the representatives of the American Federation of Labor that these further plans of those who were the originators and organizers of the Committee for Industrial Organization will unfold and in due course of time become publicly known.

"Notwithstanding the failure of all the efforts which have been put forth to compose the differences which have arisen and to heal the breach which was created by action of the Committee for Industrial Organization the officers and members of the Executive Council earnestly hope that an understanding will be ultimately reached, differences adjusted and unity restored. In its efforts to accomplish this purpose the Executive Council asks nothing more than the dissolution of the Committee for Industrial Organization. The unions holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization can return and assume their former status as affiliated unions with the American Federation of Labor when they withdraw from affiliation with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"In the meantime no action will be taken by the Council against local unions chartered by organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization which are affiliated with city central bodies and state federations of labor. These organizations will be advised to maintain the status quo until further notice. When it seems necessary and advisable the Executive Council will formulate and apply a policy dealing with the relationship of affiliated unions with city central bodies and state federations of labor.

"The withdrawal of the organizations holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor will in no way affect its organization and administrative policies. Through the 102 International Organizations affiliated with it the American Federation of Labor will carry on aggressive organizing work in all fields and among those employed in all industries.

LABOR GOVERNMENT PASSES NEW HEALTH LEGISLATION

New York. — A wireless dispatch from Wellington, New Zealand, to the New York Times says that the Labor government of New Zealand is making a vigorous start at redeeming its campaign promises. It has put forward a national health insurance plan which will supply medical and surgical care to all who need it. Pensions for widows and the aged are to be increased.

To meet the expenses of these projects, the income taxes on which New Zealand depends are being revised upward in the higher brackets. It is held so confidently that the taxing plan will meet all expenses that no provision is made for securing a foreign loan.

Labor Must Re-Elect FDR, Delegates Say, As They Raise Fund

P. T. Fagan, Pennsylvania Leader, Rouses Crowd With Resume of What Roosevelt Has Done for Labor

Labor's Non-Partisan League for the Re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt held its first convention in Knoxville on Tuesday, Sept. 8. Over 200 delegates from all over Tennessee heard P. T. Fagan, state chairman for Pennsylvania, and president of District 5, United Mine Workers of America, state that in Pennsylvania labor had already qualified over 350,000 workers who will vote for Roosevelt. Fagan made the principal address of the day when he followed a sort of testimonial offering of the delegates who swarmed to the rostrum with five, ten and twenty-dollar bills in their hands to contribute to the league's effort to combat the Liberty League and other reactionary forces trying to defeat the greatest president ever in the White House.

William Turnblazer, chairman of the league, roused the cheering assembly to their feet when he thundered, "Why shouldn't we be for Roosevelt? He fed us when we were hungry, he raised our wages from $1 per day for twelve hours a day to a minimum of $5 for seven hours. He recognized the working man's needs, and he saved this country from revolution. We will re-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Already laboring people of Tennessee have formed Roosevelt clubs over

LABEL LEAGUE STAND AT WARNER PARK ON LABOR DAY DID WELL

Chattanooga Label league did a good business at Warner park on Labor day. They sold hamburgers and union-made coffee, as well as soft drinks. A nice profit was cleared, which will be divided between the league and the candy workers.

The stand was under the supervision of Mrs. J. B. Campbell and Mrs. Elmer Crosby for the league, and numerous candy workers did yeoman work all day long.

Administration Is Planning Government Crop Insurance

Washington. — Rumors going the rounds for weeks that the Roosevelt administration is planning for government crop insurance became a practical certainty in the last few days. Details of the plan are not all certain as yet; but the main outlines are clear.

Every farmer will be offered government insurance against crop failure, not as a gift, but as something to be paid for on an actuarial basis like life insurance. The premiums in durable crops, such as grains, will be paid in kind, and the grains thus collected will be stored against seasons of scarcity.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace understands perfectly that crop insurance could be ruined by over-production. The Hoover farm board ran into a big crop, and at the same time into a depression which made millions of people tighten their belts and buy smaller quantities of food. As a result, despite the purchases of grain by the federal farm board which Hoover sponsored, prices went lower and lower till in 1932, farmers sold their wheat at 25 cents a bushel; and many, offered less, let the grain rot in the field.

The means of preventing overproduction under the new plan are not entirely clear. The present conservation program, adopted as a stopgap after the supreme court killed the AAA, is to be turned over to the states after 1937. Whether the states will line up for crop control is by no means certain; but anyway, the insurance plan will be tried.

N. Y. JOB PLACEMENTS GAIN.

Albany, N. Y.—Elmer F. Andrews, industrial commissioner, reports 13,370 persons placed in fairly permanent jobs in private industry, more than 2,000 placements in governmental service and public works, and more than 16,000 emergency, temporary placements during July. This is a decline of 8.6 per cent from the number placed in June, but a rise of 21.5 per cent from the placements in July last year.

Matt Robinson Hurt In Automobile Wreck

Paul Aymon Escapes Serious Injuries When His Car Strikes Pedestrian.

Matt J. Robinson, veteran member of the Machinists union, is at Newell sanitarium after having his right arm broken and receiving severe bruises about his head and body Tuesday on the Lee highway. Mr. Robinson was riding with Paul Aymon, another popular unionist, on their way to Knoxville to greet President Roosevelt, when John M. Keith, cosmetic salesman, crossed the road in front of them. In attempting to avoid hitting Mr. Keith, Aymon ran off the road and wrecked the car, as it turned over several times.

Mr. Aymon was bruised slightly, while Mr. Robinson was rushed to Chattanooga for first aid. He is resting as well as cuold be expected, and is able to receive visitors.

PRINTING TRADES FIGHT ILLEGAL USE OF LABEL

Detroit, Mich.—The Allied Printing Trades council here, in line with councils in other leading centers, is conducting a relentless drive against the illegal use of the union label by "scab" printing concerns, with a determination to definitely wipe out this nefarious practice. The fight is regarded as part of a campaign to increase the use of the legitimate union label on printing.

As a result of victorious prosecution, three violators of the union label law, prohibiting the use of the union label by unauthorized shops, have found themselves on the well-known "hot seat." A list of union shops, together with the rules governing the union label—"what union shops can and cannot do"—has just been issued for wide distribution.

The High-Pressure Racket

The Labor World is suggested to see that some action is contemplated against roving bands of high-pressure artists who promote dances, ticket campaigns, etc., using the name of some reputable organization as a cloak and victimizing merchants who believe that they are entering into a transaction which will benefit such an organization.

These promoters usually call a merchant, telling him that the "Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise" are giving a benefit ball, that tickets are $1 each, and that a messenger boy is on his way over with ten tickets. In many instances the business man is "easy" enough to accept the tickets and shell out ten bucks. The dance is really put on, the sponsors receive probably $100 and the promoters leave town the next morning with thousands in their pockets.

The Labor World has leaned over backward in not appearing to "slug" advertising from merchants. We do not have an ad solicitor on a commission basis. The only one who solicits ads is the editor, who is paid a weekly salary for his duties as solicitor, editor, bookkeeper and office boy.

Frequently the editor has approached business men for legitimate business, only to be turned down. The same merchant will answer the phone when it rings and accept the fly-by-night promoter's pronouncement that he has allotted the said business man ten dollars worth of tickets.

It appears that the merchant is as much to blame as anyone. He turns down legitimate home-town advertising media but falls all over himself in being a sucker for the out-of-town high-pressure telephone promoter.

Pin-Headed Opposition

Press reports say that one of Chattanooga's prominent anti-union building contractors opposed the passage of a city plumbing ordinance before the city board of commissioners last Tuesday. His stated reason for his opposition was that he was against the proposal because "Joe Dobbs and his henchmen were for it."

How proud anyone must be of himself when he publicly states that in matters of public welfare his decisions are based upon prejudice rather than upon logic and reason. Only little people make their decisions in that manner.

The plumbers' license ordinance was submitted by the master plumbers, and not by the unions. Undoubtedly there are sound and logical reasons for not passing the ordinance, just as well as there are equally good reasons why it should be made a law. It so happens that union plumbers are in favor of the measure. It is also true that a few non-union plumbing contractors favor the measure. Debate pro and con is to be expected when any public welfare ordinance is proposed. Neither side loses dignity when the debate is waged with logic and intelligence.

To oppose any principle, person or cause simply because a hated enemy has announced himself to be favorable only indicates a pin-headed brain and a disposition not unlike the cobra snake, which sprays its venom at the slightest provocation.

"Is it true what they say about unions?" Yes, if the members buy

The Constitution Was Made for the People

The Constitution was made for the people of the United States, not the people for the Constitution. This is the fundamental fact which economic and political Tories overlook in the howling that accompanies the conflict between the progressive social legislation recently enacted by Congress, and the reactionary majority of the Supreme Court.

It is along this line that Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, who is usually found in the progressive minority of the Supreme Court, sounded a call for common sense and a broad consideration of the rights of the masses in interpreting the Constitution in his address at the Harvard Tercentenary Conference on the future of the common law.

Justice Stone said:

> We are coming to realize that law is not an end, but a means to an end—the adequate control and protection of those interests, social and economic, whihch are the special concern of the Government and hence of law; that that end is to be attained through reasonable accommodation of law to changing economic and social needs.
> Just where the line is to be drawn which marks the boundary between the appropriate field of individual liberty and right and that of Government action for the larger good is the perpetual question of constitutional law. It is necessarily a question of degree which may vary with time and place.

It is apparent to all sincere citizens that the aims of the framers of the Constitution and those responsible for the Federal social legislation enacted by the last two sessions of Congress are the same—both desire a just balance between individual liberty and the authority of the Government.

Those who framed the Constitution were not confronted with child labor, starvation wages paid to large groups of workers, denial by many employers of the essential right of their employes to organize for the protection of their economic liberties, and an industrial system so managed that millions of toilers are thrown into the unemployed army.

In these directions it is clear that the spirit of the Constitution confers on the Federal Government the duty to enforce the intent of the Constitution in protecting the general welfare of the people.

In discussing the guarantees of the Constitution relative to personal liberty and property rights, Justice Stone said:

> The chief and ultimate standard which they exact is reasonableness of official action and its innocence of arbitrary and oppressive exactness.
> There is need for a continuity not of rules, but of aims and ideals which will enable government, in all the various crises of human affairs, to continue to function and to perform its appointed task within the bounds of reasonableness.

As Justice Stone views the question, the text of the Constitution always means the same thing, but in translating its ideals into Federal law Congress should take into consideration the social needs and institutions of the time.

Justice Stone has hit the nail squarely on the head by directing public attention to the fact that the Constitution was meant for living people—that it is not a set of static rules by which men long since dead sought to hamper the legitimate aspirations of succeeding generations and impose servitude and poverty on a large portion of our citizens and their dependents.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Some folks think the labor movement is going to the bow-wows. They're all wet. It isn't. The labor movement seems to be in for a mess of trouble, but it isn't going to the bow-wows. The reason is just this: Workers need unions; unions form the labor movement; while workers need unions they will have them—the labor movement is destined to grow a great deal and to be much more powerful than it is today. More power means more results for workers, less pillaging by special interests. More human rights; less corporate power; more human interests; less power for vested interests.

Workers may run their unions so as to lose some of their effectiveness, but they cannot do away with unions, because they can't get along without the unions. So, we shall have unions and a labor movement. Those that think the labor movement is going smash are, mostly, those that would like to have it go smash. By and large, men think in line with their interests. Andy Mellon doesn't think the way William Green thinks. Charlie Schwab doesn't think the way John Lewis thinks. J. P. Morgan doesn't think the way George Berry thinks. Policemen and firemen don't think the same way, usually.

The world will have to be a lot better than it is now before workers quit belonging to unions—and even then they will belong. Labor movement going blooey, Wall Street, maybe, but not labor.

* * *

Take a look at the business picture right now. Profits piling up. NRA is dead. Dividends getting fat. Unless there is restraint from somewhere we are heading again for a high place from which to drop. We have to have unions. Even if we can get restraints by law, we have to have unions. Unions are the best and the realest enforcement agents of good law. Of course there are plenty of saps who think they don't need a union. There always will be some like that. They are encouraged by the special privilege apologists who say unions are going to smash. Maybe they don't know it, but it's true. Anyway you look at it, it's a funny world. And the human race is probably the funniest thing in it. But it isn't always funny, or foolish.

So be it, and here are some questions for pondering upon through the week:

For whom will Pearl Bergoff and the other strikebreaker big wigs vote this fall?

For whom will Mr. Hearst vote—and why?

Who remembers Hearst's famous cable to Frederick Remington in Cuba: "You furnish the pictures, I'll furnish the war?"

If the National Association of Manufacturers OK's something, is that OK good with labor?

If a sparrow killed Cock Robin, is it fair that a sick chicken killed NRA and what shall we do about it?

Who was it said "you can't fool all the people all the time" and who is it today who thinks it can be done?

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What international union is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary?

A.—The International Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers of America, organized in Baltimore, Aug. 29, 1886. Ten delegates attended the convention, representing five local unions.

A.—When did the American Federation of Labor first urge support of the labor press?

A.—At its first convention, in 1881, when it was declared that all labor papers were considered a special help and mouthpiece of the federation.

Q.—Does labor believe that better war vessels can be built in government yards than in private yards?

A.—Yes. In 1903, the A. F. of L. declared that the evidence shows that better work can be done in government than private yards. This opinion has been frequently reiterated since then.

Injunction Stops Big St. Louis Project

Property Owners Secure Writ Holding Up Work on $30,000,000 Jefferson Memorial Along Mississippi River Front.

St. Louis.—That grand old reliable obstructor of public works, the injunction, got in its work here the other day, and stopped work, probably for months, on the Jefferson memorial.

Plans have been made for a $30,000,000 memorial along the river front, commemorating the Louisiana purchase and the various exploring expeditions that fitted out in this city while it was a little frontier town. On account of the work it would supply, the federal government allotted it $6,750,000, to which the city of St. Louis added $2,250,000, making $9,000,000 ready to start.

Property owners who for various reasons object to the project went into the federal district court in Washington, D. C., in June to get an injunction stopping the work. Judge Joseph W. Cox, of that court, denied the injunction, saying that the government was clearly within its powers under the historic sites act; and also that he doubted whether the people had any right to ask an injunction because the federal government had not given its consent to be sued.

Undeterred, the property owners took their case to the District of Columbia court of appeals and on Aug. 17 got an injunction, forbidding Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and National Park Service Director Arno B. Cammerer from doing anything whatever on the project until the validity of the 1935 relief act, appropriating $4,880,000,000, has been tested in the courts.

The lawyers for the property owners contended that this act was an unconstitutional delegation of powers vested in congress.

Steel Workers Back Organization Campaign

Chicago.—Rejresentatives of 40,000 steel workers in the Calumet region have indorsed the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, Van A. Bittner, regional director of the committee, announced here.

Bittner said the indorsement was voted by eighty-five employes' representatives, qualified to speak for the 40,000 members of company unions in the steel manufacturing center. The meeting, he said, was held in the office auditorium of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation at Gary.

"The unanimous action of representatives of the employes representation plan of the Calumet region in joining with the steel workers' organization committee," Bittner commented, "is the most important that has taken place in the drive to organize steel workers."

The action was taken, Bittner said, by men representing workers of the Illinois Steel company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, Inland Steel corporation, Joliet works Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, south works Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, Gary Screw and Bolt company, Gary Sheet Mill company, Gary Tin mill, American Bridge company and Universal Atlas Cement.

A resolution adopted by the employe representatives and signed by Joe Goin, chairman, and George A. Patterson, secretary, said:

"The employes' representation plan which is sponsored and maintained by the employers and of which we are the representatives is not a bona fide labor organization, it has utterly failed to improve the economic and social standing of steel workers and their families. There is no hope for such a plan to benefit the steel workers in the future. It is purely a set-up to continue exploitation of the workers and against the welfare of the nation.

"We firmly believe in the democratic form of government and its institutions. Knowing of the world-wide economic and political disorders, the situation of our nation calls for an immediate action for the establishment of an industrial democracy by means of collective bargaining.

"Therefore, be it Resolved, that we join with the steel workers' organizing committee, whose purpose is to perfect a powerful industrial organization of all steel workers and pledge ourselves to assist in securing a legitimate collective bargaining in the steel industry of the land."

TOLEDO UTILITY STRIKERS ACCEPT SETTLEMENT PACT

Toledo.—The Gas Employes' union on Aug. 20 accepted a plan for settlement of the 10-day-old strike at the Ohio Fuel Gas and Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas companies and voted unanimously to return to work. The agreement was drawn by union representatives and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor.

Full Right of Labor to Organize Urged by Fed. Church Council

Labor Sunday Message Condemns Opposition of Many Employers to Collective Bargaining—Criticizes Our Economic Order for Its Creation of the Few Who Are Rich and the Many Who Are Poor.

Strongly worded criticism of a number of the anti-social aspects of our industrial system and emphasis on the importance of mobilizing Christian influence for the elimination of many recognized ills and in support of measures having in view the realization of a better social order feature the Labor Sunday message for 1936 issued by the department of the church and social service, Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, from the council's headquarters in New York City.

Among outstanding evils which Christians should not tolerate the message includes the "widespread denial of the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively," economic conditions which create wealth for the few and poverty for the masses, unemployment, undernourished children in families on relief, sweatshops, child labor and underpaid sharecroppers.

The text of the council's message follows:

On a day in the spring of this year this wireless message came from London: "Edward VIII, after visiting the great new liner, 'Queen Mary,' and the squalid Glasgow slums, turned to someone near him and asked, 'How do you reconcile a world that has produced this mighty ship with the slums we have just visited?'"

That question has to do with more than an accidental contrast. It focuses the drastic interrogation which the Christian mind and heart must direct to our whole civilization now.

"Soft Compromise" Must Be Avoided.

How can we reconcile a world which provides, on the one hand, luxury and freedom for the few, and a sordid, drab and pinched existence for the many? For the Christian conscience there can be no reconciliation while these facts remain. We cannot merely look the other way. Rather, we must look straight at the harsh reality and never be at rest until we have set in motion redeming social purposes which can change old facts to new ones, juster, fairer and more kind.

Our danger today is that the discontent with social and economic evils which these recent tragic years have roused may try to satisfy itself with soft compromise. We are in danger of looking at the ship and forgetting the slums. As the first signs of industrial recovery begin to appear and men's energies launch out with a reviving boldness, we may think that we can leave behind us the dark record of the depression years. We may imagine that unemployment, poverty, the disintegration of families and the disillusionment of millions of people, old and young, will somehow take care of themselves. The ships of our economic fortunes are on the high seas again, we think. Never mind the cost at which they were put there.

End "Cramped Existence" for Masses.

But this cost we must mind. It is intolerable to the Christian spirit that we should forget the human havoc which economic depression has caused, and which no haphazard business revival can possibly cure. Out of the crucible of these recent years, one iron purpose should be forged, namely, the will that nothing shall divert us from the continuing effort to find those necessary ways of readjustment—whether through voluntary co-operative organizations, through taxation, or through other practicable social controls—by which those who are now doomed to a cramped existence may be set free into larger life.

Compassion for those Who Suffer.

The Christian influence ought to bring to our contemporary world three things:

First, a compassionate heart.

Christian individuals and Christian churches must be sensitive to the need of all who suffer. We must not allow ourselves to forget, nor let the community forget, the men and women in industrial towns reduced to a bleak and almost hopeless existence through unemployment; the undernourished children in families where relief budgets are too small; the sweatshops and child labor in some industries; the wretchedness of those who live round the shafts of idle coal mines; the exploited sharecroppers and homeless migrants in many of our agricultural areas; the negroes denied equal justice; and all others upon whom the bitter pressure of unfair conditions fall. We are bound to remember that it wias with such as these that our Master identified Himself when He said: "Inasmuch as ye did it not unto the least of these my brethren, ye did it not unto Me."

Curtailment of Freedom Assailed.

Second, a courageous mind.

The Christian conscience does not make us any more nearly infallible than other men in technical details. It does not equip us to speak dogmatically on precise political or economic programs. But it ought to, and does, give a clarity of central judgment. It turns upon all questions the light of one supreme consideration. Because it believes that all men are the children of God, it believes that the only right ideal for any community is one in which there shall be freedom for all men to develop in thought and in action the best that is in their personalities.

Therefore, the Christian spirit must stand like a flaming sword against all frightened attempts to bring upon America that shackling of human thought and that stifling of independent speech which lie like a dark shadow on those lands where dictatorship prevails.

The teachers' oath bills introduced in many legislatures and passed in some, the "gag laws" introduced in congress, the vicious assaults upon academic freedom, and ultimately upon academic honesty, the widespread denial of the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively, which have been launched by sinister influences under the mask of patriotism, are denials not only of political democracy, but of the Christian faith in the dignity of the human soul; and with them, therefore, the Christian church can have no part nor lot.

Peaceful Methods Urged.

Third, a faith in the will of Christ as the one and only way for the world's redemption.

In these immediate days when the conditions of our world have become so ominous, we need the heroic confidence of this faith. There is too much bitterness already in our domestic affairs. There is too much bitterness between the nations. The conflicts of economic interest and the antagonisms between economic classes are turning away from patient reasonableness toward forcible repression on one side and violence on the other.

Many today believe that our social unrest will lead to revolution, and that the old hatreds between the nations are leading inevitably to new war. But those who follow Christ will yield to no such impotent fatalism. In thought, in conversation, and in our influence on public policy, we must se forward and persistently support those measures of co-operation and constructive service through which a better social order may be peaceably achieved.

We must resist the policy of increased armaments and the growth of military control, and unflaggingly urge the participation of the United States in study and adjustment among the nations of those inequalities, political and economic, from which wars take their rise.

Christians should follow the pioneering example of those who, like Kagawa, make love the controlling principle in personal, economic and international relationships. Such men may be hated, misunderstood, persecuted, executed even; but they can be the seed for the future. Though the pathway lead to a cross we remember that the cross is the sign not of defeat, but of final triumph.

Senator Norris Agrees To Run for Re-Election

Washington.—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, has consented to be a candidate for re-election, largely that he may be a power in the campaign to re-elect President Roosevelt. There has been a split in the democratic ranks in Nebraska; but so far as the presidential contest is concerned, the gain from the influence of Norris may quite possibly overmatch the loss from division.

Norris has been known for many years as "dean of the progressives." He has always fought for farmers and workers, and has been one of the most dangerous opponents of legislation favoring corporations. He is the only man alive who has fathered an amendment to the constitution of the United States; the Twentieth amendment, which does away with the "lame ducq" session of congress, and provides that the congress and president elected in November shall take office the following January. Labor supported this amendment.

The One Test for Recovery:

"WILL IT PUT MEN TO WORK?"

... the student of American his... there can be no sadder page ... the demoralization in Washing... which reigned during the first ...s of the Civil war. Lincoln had ... "racketeers," "chiselers" and ...gsters." These politicians—who ...r Lincoln, had taken over the ...ernment in the bankrupt Buch... administration had apparently ... perception of the need for a ...le objective and a concentrated, ...ing, aggressive plan to meet it. ... looked as though each politician ... each general were setting out to ... the war in his own pet way. ...re was no basic plan. When a ...ory was won, as at Gettysburg, these undecided leaders did not even know what to do with it—and Lee escaped to fight almost two years longer before the decision at Appomattox.

It was not until long after the simultaneous victories at Gettysburg and Vicksburg that Lincoln turned the war over to Grant and spent the rest of his administration keeping the politicians off Grant's back.

The decisive contribution which Lincoln made in this crisis in the nation's history, was his setting up of a single paramount objective—"Will it save the Union?"

Thereafter Lincoln made this "paramount object" the test of every question that confronted the federal government. If doing something would help to save the Union, that was done. If refusing to do it would help to save the Union, the proposal was rejected.

We need to recognize such a paramount object today. The principal test of every issue in the present campaign should be, "Will it put men to work?" Unless employment is restored to twelve million workers, how can they purchase the normal production of the nation's industries and thus restore prosperity?

Since the United States supreme court has nullified the principal laws that have been enacted by congress to bring about industrial recovery, the best channel through which workers can obtain economic freedom and industrial justice is organization into labor unions. And even then, no substantial advancement can be made unless organized workers buy their own products and services, which are designated by the union label, shop card and button. Above all else, workers must become labor union-minded and must be union label-conscious.

TRIMMINGS

By HAM-BURGER

Labor has had its annual holiday and what a day and what a crowd. There was such a crowd that we didn't even give the greased pig a chance to show off or run. Too bad we had to forego that fun.

* * *

Another sad feature of the day was that Brother Caniff was so busy making hot dogs for the crowd that he didn't get a chance to come out, but then he had his vacation some time ago.

* * *

Brother Brewer has gotten some new kind of gas. I think it must be rural gas—it won't bring him to town to attend our meetings. I wish Bro. Ball would tell him what kind he uses in his coffee grinder so that we can have the pleasure of seeing him. We had a very good meeting last week, lots of business was transacted in short order and we were on our way home by 9:30 o'clock.

* * *

The meat business is a little slow yet, but Dan Cupid sure has been busy amongst the butchers of late. Here are some of the names of the brothers that have become enslaved by him: Brother Forrest Kidwell, Brother J. C. Bobo and Brother A. W. Bradberry. Here's wishing them all good luck and a happy future.

* * *

We are glad to hear that Brother Paul Sorick is able to crawl around again after his attempt to get a coat of tan down on the river a few Sundayss ago. I don't think Brother Sorich has much of a chance to change his color.

Refreshing Relief When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

COSHOCTON GLOVE WORKERS KEEP UP UNION SHOP FIGHT

Coshocton, O.—Striking Coshocton glove workers refused the employers' offer to return to work without discrimination at the low wages paid when the walkout occurred over four months ago, with the provisions that he would deal with a committee made up of union and non-union employes and try to apply the 40-hour week until the end of the present year.

The strikers, all girls, firmly refused to accept a lower wage rate than was in effect before the strike, and refused to deal with the employer unless the union was recognized as the sole bargaining agency and their elected committee, without change, negotiated for them.

The union girls have picketed the plant from the inception of the strike and are determined not to return to work until their demands for the union shop and higher wages are met.

The Labor World Reaches Thousands of the Highest Paid Workers in Chattanooga

Mr. Advertiser, This Should Mean Something to You

Think It Over!

More Reductions In Long Distance Rates

For the seventh time in the past ten years, long distance rates have again been voluntarily reduced.

Effective September 1, the rates for both person-to-person and station-to-station inter-state long distance calls were reduced to points 235 miles or more distant. The amount of the saving on calls ranges from five cents to $1.50 depending upon the distance.

Also on inter-state person-to-person calls the charges for overtime after six minutes of conversation are reduced. (Overtime charges begin after three minutes conversation.)

It is estimated that these reductions will save Bell telephone users $7,350,000 annually.

the state, over 10,000 members being on the rolls already signed up.

The following telegram was sent to W. L. Hutchinson, president of an international union, who is supporting the republican candidate against Roosevelt:

W. L. Hutchinson,
Chairman Labor Bureau,
Republican National Committee,
Chicago, Illinois.

Labor's Non-partisan League in convention assembled instructed us to reply to your misleading statements in your press release of Sept. 2 and your Labor Day declaration in support of Landon, these statements having been given consideration by 200 delegates representing the labor movement of Tennessee.

(1) Governor Landon did send troops into the zinc strike and his military representative declared martial law, and the strike was broken and the responsibility rests on Landon.

(2) Governor Landon is paying his oil workers $50.00 per month, based on a 12-hour work day, and the men are forced to pay their transportation between wells, notwithstanding the fact that the oil code provides a 36-hour work week. Junk boilers are shipped in from Oklahoma and used in Kansas.

If Governor Landon is such a friend of the Child Labor Amendment, why did he not force ratification. He had four sessions of his legislature to accomplish this and has failed to do so.

The average wage of school teachers in Kansas is $37.79. You as president of an International Labor Organization, should feel proud to support a man that stands for such a wage for school teachers in Kansas.

Mr. Walter L. Morris, who for the past two years has been president of the Kansas Federation of Labor, says: "No patriotic member of organized labor can possibly vote for Landon; neither can any intelligent patriotic citizen." Mr. Landon plainly shows to the thinking people that he knows nothing whatever about the problems which are confronting the people of this nation or what the present administration is doing to untangle these problems. Mr. Morris has denounced Governor Landon as utterly unworthy of labor's support in the coming campaign.

Representatives of the Typographical Union suggest that you have Mr. Goodspeed, Treasurer Republican National Committee, in sending out his appeal for funds to have their printing done by Union Workmen and to have the Union Label placed on their stationery and in doing this provide work for members of the International Typographical Union.

Labor's Non-partisan League,
Wm. Turnblazer, Chairman.

ALABAMA MINE STRIKE ENDS.

Birmingham, Ala.—An eleven weeks' strike of Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company miners ended on Aug. 19. It was reported that only three of twenty-four union officials who have been employed by the company for fifteen to twenty-five years were called back to work.

The miners struck when the company adopted an "incentive plan" wage scale. The union charged it was a "stretch-out."

Under an agreement fostered by Gov. Bibb Graves the miners voted to work four months under the "incentive" plan while a commission appointed by the governor, the company and the union studied the plan.

You can always tell a wise man by the smart things he does not say.

was built by one of the members); the boilermakers had a miniature shop on a truck and the sounds of the riveting added to the excitement of the parade, and there were numerous other floats.

The parade was led by a motorcycle escort furnished by the city of Knoxville and the state, and by a band furnished by the Musicians' local of Knoxville. It wound down Gay street to the courthouse, where President Green stopped to see it pass in review. From there it advanced to the Henley bridge, stopping long enough to put the marchers into cars and busses, after which the entire parade proceeded to Maryville, sixteen miles away. Here the marchers were joined by a thousand aluminum workers, who paraded down the dent Green made a short address. street to the postoffice, where Presi- Then the procession proceeded through Alcoa and back to Knoxville for the rest of the entertainment. The thousands of Knoxville citizens who were lined along the streets saw a really big parade.

At Chilhowee Park, Mr. J. C. Anderson, chairman of the games and contests, was waiting with an interesting program of amusement for young and old.

About 4 o'clock Lawrence Duke, of the Musicians, called "Soup's on" and a hard-working group of cooks began to serve barbecue plates to the visitors. They had prepared 7,000 pounds of barbecue, 10,000 sandwiches and 1,500 pounds of potato salad. It was impossible to estimate how many people were served, except that the committee had bought 25,000 paper plates and when they gave out of food, there were just 3,000 plates left.

But the day was not yet over. At 7:30, following a band concert, Mr. Green was welcomed by Mayor Elmore and talks were given by Dr. A. E. Morgan, of the TVA; John O'Conner and J. Will Taylor, after which Mr. Green delivered his Labor day address, which was broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up.

And the big day of festivities reached the climax when Mr. Green led the grand march at the ball with Queen Lena Baker for a partner. Approximately 2,000 people attended the dance.

Enterprising Knoxville unibnists arranged to have a full length movie made of the day's entertainment and it will be shown soon in Knoxville and other cities.

Maynard Baird, of the Musicians, deserves unstinted praise for the splendid work he did as general chairman of the entire celebration, as does Miss Lucille Thornberg, of the government employes, who was assistant chairman of arrangements. Organized labor in Knoxville really entertained for labor's chief!

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

ELECTION THIS MONTH

The annual election of directors will be held this month. Instructions have already been sent to all district secretaries as to the method of holding the elections. Some careful thinking should be done in the meantime in order that the best representatives in the various districts may be selected.

TEACHERS NOT SATISFIED

The $50,000 asked for by Commissioner McMillan would offer practically nothing to city teachers in the way of raises due to the fact that most of this increase will be swallowed up by new teachers' salaries and various new courses—much needed, by the way—that have been inaugurated. The federation had requested that more consideration ge given to the plight of the teachers before the general teachers' meeting. The executive committee has a subcommittee working on the matter of getting fair consideration of teachers' interests before the budget is adopted.

COUNTY CONTRACT O. K.

The contract which will soon be sent out to county teachers will definitely not invalidate teachers' rights under the tenure law. Its purpose is merely to fix the annual salary in the absence of salary legislation. The contract form will bear the following stamped phrase upon it:

"It is agreed that said teacher does not waive any rights he or she may have under Chapter 257, private acts of Tennessee of 1935, and all acts amendatory thereof."

'Builders' Exchange' Uses Defamation In Attempt to Destroy Labor Union

ABEE PLEADS FOR MORE PAY TO TEACHERS

Central Body Spokesman Tells City Dads School Budget Should Add at Least $100,000.

ALL OTHER DEPARTMENTS ARE STARVED TO DEATH

Workers Do Not Object to Added Taxes When Spent for Better Municipal Services—Suggests Elementary Tax Tax to Provide School Operations.

Erskin Mabee, secretary of Chattanooga Central Labor Union, appeared before the city Board of Commissioners Tuesday to present organized labor's plea in behalf of city teachers whose pay average is now about $900 per year.

While admittintg that the mayor and commissioners have done the best they could with the small amount of money budgeted, he contended that all departments of the city should be adequately financed in order that complete public service might be rendered Speaking of a possible tax increase in order to give teachers a decent wage, Mr. Mabee, in speaking for labor, said:

"The people who toil are not afraid of taxation, Mr. Mayor and commissioners. What we want is a good return on our money.

"Especially do we believe that it is to the best welfare of the children and community for teachers to be paid salaries of $600 to $800, which keeps them in constant fear of the wolf at the door. I don't know what Commissioner McMillan (education department) is asking, but we've figured that he should have at least $100,000 more.

"We're not playing sympathetic—we think that sympathy for children has been overplayed, but we feel that the department of education deserves more money."

Then Mabee reiterated that "we urge you will enlarge the budgets in every department" and "if it takes an elementary school tax to run our own schools, we'd prefer it that way."

Mabee, in referring to Commissioner R. M. (Bob) Cooke's department, parks and playgrounds, asserted that Mr. Cooke was given sufficient funds "he will give use the best recreation program in the South."

Waitresses' Union Shop Drive Gains in Pocatello

Pocatello, Idaho.—Pocatello Culinary Workers' Alliance, Local No. 0, has lined up a number of cafes and restaurants in its drive for union shop conditions. Nine food-serving places have already signed agreements with the alliance. Three cafes, whose proprietors are foolish enough to hold out against the just demands of the waitresses, are said to be losing considerable trade because of the picket lines in front of their establishments.

Organized labor here is giving enthusiastic assistance to the waitresses. It is believed that before long the cafes and restaurants will be 100 per cent organized. The Manhattan cafe, which refused to apply union labor principles, closed up and offered its fixtures and equipment for sale.

FURNITURE WORKERS STRIKE CLOSES PLANTS IN TACOMA

Tacoma, Wash. — Between five and six hundred members of the Furniture Workers' union came out on strike here in four factories, following failure of negotiations carried on since last April and brought to a head by refusal of employers to meet a committee from the central labor council.

Business Agent Bennett reported a 90 per cent response. The plants closed without attempting to operate with strikebreakers, but were apparently surprised that the strike was made so effective.

Lewis Visions Day Of $2,500 Annual Pay for Workers

United Mine Workers' Chief Urges Organization as Labor's Guarantee of Obtaining Better and Richer Life.

Washington.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in his Labor day speech over the radio visioned a day when even unskilled labor would be getting a minimum income of $2,500 a year.

"Able economists," said Lewis, "have already shown that the entire scope of American life—social, economic, physical and spiritual—may be vastly improved.

"Under proper planning and regulation, American industry, after generous returns have been distributed to invested capital, could easily pay a minimum income to unskilled labor of $2,500 a year.

"Organize for Protection."

"Let labor organize," he said. "It will prove the best guarantee of the institutions we prize and the best insurance against the spread of alien and subversive doctrines.

"Let labor organize for its own protection. Let it ask itself how individual units may expect fair consideration in the labor market. Let it consider the elaborate associations of capital, the centralized power of management, and brush aside the hypocritical plaudits of labor's rugged individualism.

"Let the worker decide that his job shall be the basis of his independence, and not the condition of his servility.

"Organize for Freedom."

"Let him organize that the workers of our nation may attain civic dignity and economic freedom; that the industrial spy may no longer terrorize the factory, mine or mill; that the awful dread of management shall no longer shadow the home; that there may be a fairer distribution of the national income; that the millions of our toilers may be more closely heard in the councils of our nation."

Tri-State Fair Brings Famous Carnival Shows

The announcement of the coming engagement of the Rubin and Cherry exposition — the "Aristocrat of the Tented World," will be awaited with interest by patrons of the Tri-State fair in Chattanooga during the week of Monday, Sept. 21st, since it means that the finest ensemble of shows and riding devices in all the world will be seen on the augmented midway.

For twenty-three years Rubin and Cherry exposition management has enjoyed the distinction of presenting more and better midway attractions than any other touring amusement organization. For this season's tour the management announces 24 high class feature shows combined with 17 of the latest and most attractive rides.

Among the many unique attractions announced will be the "Havana Rhumba," revue, a pretentious offering of merit, direct from Havana, Cuba; the Godino Siamese twins, male and married, joined together brothers; the "Flaming Youth" musical comedy revue; Daredevil Zeke Shumways "Hell Drivers" Mottordrome; the Congress of Freak Oddities; "Diamond Kitty," buxom 714-pound fat girl from Boston; "Mysteria," illusion revue; "Life Begins"; Colonel Welliver's giant reptile exhibit; the crystal maze; Julien Brothers' monkey circus and Simian speedway; "Miss America" posing girl revue; the Joy Ship; "Public Enemies" crime exhibit, and many others

EDWARDS STORE FORCED TO MOVE FROM MKT. HOUSE

Business Said to Be Falling Off as Customers Resent Non-Union Attitude.

Meatcutters Thank Public for Co-operation in Their Efforts to Convince Edwards That Living Wages Pay.

S. J. Edwards, big-shot grocery chain operator on a small scale, is moving out of the municipal market house, it is reported. Some months ago Mr. Edwards sales took a tumble when he locked out the union meatcutters in his markets and refused to renew an agreement with them.

Careful check on his five or more stores indicates that the closing of the market house branch, formerly one of his best profit-makers, was done for economic reasons.

Officials of Local 600, Meatcutters, extend through The Labor World their appreciation to the public for their tangible aid in their fight to maintatin a living wage in the meat handling industry.

Molders' Union Reminds Unionists That Mascot Stove Is Made by Scabs

Internaational Molders Union, local 53, this week brought back memories to the labor movement of some ten or more years ago when the Mascot Stove company locked out the union, and one of the most bitter and prolonged fights started. The Mascot plant has recently re-opened with additional equipment and is still employing scabs.

Now that stove season is one us, every unionist should remember that the Mascot stove and range is a notoriously unfair product.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE

OF

CHAMBERLAIN BUILDING

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 10, 1936.

Name of Building Trades Worker,
Chattanooga, Tennessee

Dear Sir:

With further reference to the effort being made to establish a common laborers' union, we wish to point out to you some of the objections to your lending support to the movement.

The movement is being sponsored by Joe Dobbs and other paid agitators for the purpose of creating a mob and not a union. When strikes result from the attempt to foist this gang on the public, Joe Dobbs and his henchmen will be drawing their fat salaries while you and others are suffering from the loss of your job and in the end nothing but a loss to you and your family will have been accomplished.

Winter is coming on and with it a fair prospect for continued employment. Unless these racketeering and misleading directors of common labor obtain the support of skilled labor, their efforts will not be felt. If they do obtain the support of you skilled mechanics, strikes will result in the shut down of every job affected, because the building interests of this city are unanimously agreed that no common labor group shall dictate the terms or methods of doing business.

We again repeat that there is no basis for a common labor union, and we will not recognize such an outfit on any basis whatever.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE OF CHATTANOOGA,
Executive Committee.

UNSIGNED LETTER MAILED TO MOST BUILDING CRAFTS

Effort Made by Master Contractors to Turn Skilled Workers Against Laborers' Union.

Threat Made to Shut Down Every Job Rather Than Recognize Workers — Letter Thought to Be Libelous —Prosecution Hinted.

A new phase in a desperate attempt by building contractors in Chattanooga to stave off organization of the common laborers in the building industry was introduced last week when a letter was mailed to most every building trades craftsman in the city which made an effort to create a selfish hatred for the common laborer organization. This was done by a threat of a general shutdown of all building projects because "building interests of this city are unanimously agreed that no common laborer group shall dictate terms or methods of doing business."

The communication was mimeographed on a letterhead which read "Builders' Exchange of Chattanooga, Chamberlain Building," and aside from a typewritten signature, was unsigned. On the side of the scandal sheet is a list of some fifty-three contractors and building supply houses.

Not being contented with threats, the letter stoops to what many believe the courts would hold to be plain libel in that it boldly asserts that the common laborers' union "is being sponsored by Joe Dobbs and other paid agitators for the purpose of creating a mob and not a union."

They say further that "Joe Dobbs and his henchmen will be drawing their fat salaries while you and others are suffering from the loss of your job," and the usual line of attack on any union representative.

LABOR SPIES IN ROCKFORD MUST TAKE OUT LICENSES

Rockford, Ill. — Labor spies, masquerading as private detectives, will hereafter have to secure a license, and pay a fee, as a result of an ordinance passed by city council at the request of labor officials. Each private detective agency must register and pay a fee of $100, while the fee for each "private detective" will be $50.

It is believed that this action will bring into the light the activities of so-called detective agencies, often active when there are labor troubles.

Referee Outlines Plan for Settling Building Disputes

Dr. Lapp Says All Decisions Will Be Given After Thorough Study of Points at Issue Between Unions.

Washington.—Dr. John A. Lapp, newly appointed referee of jurisdictional disputes in the building trades, said that all his decisions will be based on careful consideration of opposing claims, in a statement outlining his plans for settling controversies. Decisions will be made after presentation of case and submission of briefs by disputing unions, he said.

Dr. Lapp is also director of labor relations of the public works administration.

"I have accepted the position of referee for the building trades unions because I believe that a great service can be rendered to labor," he declared, "to the employers and the community in bringing about the settlement of jurisdictional disputes on the basis of fair play and justice to all. I shall enter upon the duties of the position without any preconceived ideas and without a single prejudice on any matter that may come before me in the future.

"No Snap Judgments."

"My decisions will be based upon the most thorough-going hearings of the cases which come before me. There will be no snap judgments in any case and I shall expect the unions involved to be most thorough in the presentation of their claims. Only after full hearings and the study of briefs will a decision be made in any case.

"According to the agreement of the unions no case will be opened which has already been settled by union agreements or by proper jurisdictional award.

"It is my conception that agreements between international unions are better than arbitrational awards and it will be my hope and expectation that such agreements will be concluded on a wider range of jurisdictional disputes.

Dr. Lapp Noted Mediator.

"It would be a great satisfaction to me if, as an outcome of the work of the referee, there would be many cases of mutual settlement between the unions involved to one case where an award should become necessary."

The appointment of Dr. Lapp, who is a labor mediator with a distinguished record, was the result of a special meeting of the building trades department, American Federation of Labor, held in Washington last March. The meeting brought settlement of a long-standing controversy in the building trades department.

Southern Chivalry?

Yellow journalism reached a new low in Chattanooga Tuesday. Using its news and editorial columns as a medium for red-baiting and anti-labor propaganda, The Free Press until Tuesday has created sufficient contempt to satisfy even the usual stripe of sensational editorialism, but the lowest stunt of all was when it overreached itself in a round-about attack on one of the finest ladies in Chattanooga, Mrs. Nancy Lea Smith.

In its stories this erstwhile weekly propaganda organ has by innuendo and other devious and studied attempts tried to discredit the teacher's union and the labor movement in general. Usually the cowardly streak in the editor of that paper confined itself to attacks on men, and Stanton E. Smith, president of the teachers' union, has been subjected to many futile but exasperating barbs.

In his insane desire to destroy, the poltroon editor went too far when he either wrote or was responsible for a "news" story that Mrs. Smith might be ousted from her position as teacher on Lookout Mountain. He admitted at the beginning that there was no basis for the story, but went so far as to print certain "allegations" of "several" mountain citizens which reflected on Mrs. Smith personally, and in the last sentence made his usual insinuation when he said that she "denied" being communist.

We believe that decent Southern people will not allow such Hearstian journalistic efforts to continue here.

Praise should go to our newly-elected member of the county court, Mr. Hays Clark, for requesting a complete report on the financial condition of the county. We are glad to see Mr. Clark evidencing a business man's acumen. For him to assume responsibility for the largest business in the county without knowing what he will be responsible for in equivalent to signing a blank check. With Mr. Clark's known doggedness in backing up his ideas, we are hopeful that ere long the taxpayers of Hamilton will be told just where the county is in a financial way.

OAKLAND TEAMSTERS BUILD THEIR OWN MEETING HALL

Oakland, Cal. — A fine new $50,000 two-story building will be erected here at Ninth and West streets by Teamsters and Auto Truck Drivers' union, Local 70.

Plans have been approved and work started. Local No. 70 is the largest local union in Alameda county, with 2,200 members in good standing. The building will be used as general headquarters for the union, which outgrew its former quarters.

For Bad Feeling
Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Thedford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

First Year of Social Security Achieves Benefits for Masses

Over One Million Aided by Public Assistance Grants—Unemployment Compensation in 14 States and District of Columbia Covers 45 Per Cent of Our Industrial Ppoulation—Federal Old-Age Annuities Are Designed to Protect Indigent Aged Estimated to Number More Than One-third of the People.

By JOHN G. WINANT
Chairman, Social Security Board

A year ago the President of the United States signed the Social Security Act, which provides aid for the needy and dependent and protection against the hazards of unemployment and old age. Both Houses of Congress had passed this measure by overwhelming majorities. The vote in the Senate was 77 for passage and 6 against passage. Thirteen Democrats voted against the act in the House and one against it in the Senate. More than three times as many Republicans in Congress voted for the Social Security Act as voted against it. It was viewed as a non-partisan humanitarian measure.

Planned by Economic Security Committee.

Prior to the introduction of this legislation in Congress, a committee on economic security, appointed by the President, surveyed the subject. The committee was assisted by a staff of experts and by 14 advisory groups of more than 100 persons. These included economists, experts in social science and social insurance, and men trained in government and business, all of whom were selected on the basis of competence and without regard to political affiliations. This group spent six months exploring this field of human need.

Before the final measure was reported out, two ranking committees of congress, the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee in the senate, had this legislation under consideration for over four months. The reports of these hearings contain a combined total of some 2,500 printed pages.

Three-Member Administration Board.

The administration of the major provisions of the act is vested by law in a board of three members. Not more than two of the members of the board may be members of the same political party. The members appointed to the board required confirmation by the senate. Appointments made by the board are subject to civil service law. Lawyers and experts are excepted, but under the practice of the board, lawyers are certified by the civil service commission, and the civil service commission passes on both positions of experts and the individuals appointed to fill such positions.

As of July 31 there were 971 persons working for the board. Of this number 810 have been taken from civil service lists, and the others have been qualified as experts or attorneys by the civil service commission. All salaries are approved by the civil service commission. All initial salaries are fixed by the civil service commission. Increases in salary must conform to the classification act. A small exempted fund has been used to employ a single actuary of high standing.

Grants-in-Aid.

There are those who have criticized this act. That has been true of all social welfare legislation. In order to get a clearer understanding of the objecitves sought in relation to the particular legislation enacted, it may be well to suggest certain underlying principles and factual information that motivated those responsible for the development of the social security act.

The ends sought under this measure are set out under three major categories. Public assistance is accomplished through grants-in-aid to the states to assist needy and dependent persons. This method of procedure was necessary because of the inadequacy of state revenues to meet the increasing obligations with which the states are charged. It was necessary to supplement state moneys with federal grants so that the aged, the blind, and dependent children might be protected wthout overloading state budgets. This method of grants-in-and had been used in developing our highway system. It seemed reasonable to use it in protecting human life.

Unemployment Compensation.

Another major section of the measure deals with unemployment compensation. The cost of unemployment in industry is charged back to industry. The precedent for this is found in the long-established practice in accident compensation. The practice of looking upon work accidents as an expense of production and charging the cost against the commodity produced is now almost universally accepted throughout the United States.

There is, however, an element of cost which differentiates accident compensation from unemployment compensation, particularly in relation to the incentives to accept protective legislation. In the case of industrial accident, the njured man has common-law rights. In workmen's compensation the legislation is merely providing a more just and efficient system in respect to a cost which already lies upon the employer. In the case of discharge or loss of his job, the employe has no legal rights, and in unemployment compensation the legislation is creating a new direct obligation.

Therefore, the social security act does not permit the industrialist operating within a state that has adopted approved unemployment compensation legislation to be placed at a disadvantage in sellng his goods in a common market on a cost basis as against a manufacturing competitor who is operating in a state which has not adopted approved unemployment compensation legislation.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

When people have nothing very important to say and still have to fight some kind of a fight, they lay great store by trifles.

Thus, we find certain persons making a great hullabaloo about whether the skull of a steer in a certain drought photograph was a fake or not.

The photographer tells his superior officers that he took two pictures and that he moved the skull about ten feet so that it would show in the second picture.

But newspapers grab the silly issue and maul it all over page one.

Now it appears that the pictures were just what they purported to be, except that that steer skull was moved ten feet.

At this point the overwhelming temptation is to laugh.

Probably not a newspaper that has printed these silly stories about the genuineness of the drought pictures is GUILTLESS of printing pictures that were in one sense or another faked.

There is still a good deal of the Royal Northwest Mounted about news photographers. "Get the picture" is generally the idea.

Now the criticism of these drought pictures comes mainly from GOP supporters. The main newspaper supporter of the present GOP candidate is Mr. Hearst. Does anybody in the whole country think Hearst photographers haven't faked pictures right and left?

Ask any newspaper reporter, editor OR PHOTOGRAPHER!

Some faking is "good clean fun," while some is vicious.

And often the moving of "props", such as the steer skull, is not faking at all, but is legitimate help to bringing out truth, just as exclamation marks often help at the end of a sentence!

Here is an example: During the great textile strike Francis J. Gorman was either on duty or on call almost 24 hours a day. He was under terrific strain. He got to catching winks when possible.

During a press conference, at which there were some 25 reporters and a half dozen camera men, one of the camera men said, "Frank, lean back in that chair, put your feet on the desk and close your eyes."

Frank obliged. The bulbs flashed. It was a picture and it was printed in reputable newspapers all over the United States as a picture of Francis J. Gorman catching a nap in the midst of the strain of the strike.

Twenty-five newspaper reporters and a half dozen camera men knew the picture was technically a fake, yet everyone of them thought it a "good stunt" and while technically a fake, true to the broad realities of the situation. It was a lot like moving the steer skull ten feet.

Gov. Landon was pictured picking berries at his babyhood home.

That was pure baloney and nothing else but, like the pictures we used to get of Calvin Coolidge riding a dump hayrake. They represent NO reality.

President Roosevelt has been pretty careful about what can be called at best unreal, unnatural or artificial photographs.

A partisanship that is driven to such carping as we have read about the steer skull is itself a drought victim—an idea drought.

It was infinitely worse, for example, to offer that distorted and poisonous untrue picture of indirect taxes, which Mr. Landon utterly neglected to specify the rise in such taxes under Hoover.

It would be nice if everyone kept the truth and relied on truth to win the day.

But until everyone does that, do not the kettle go picking on a little one-egg size skillet.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Molders' Local No. 56 has declared strikes at two local plants, Jacob Frey, district representative of the Indiana Molders conference announced.

At the Meier Electric company [illegible] men are seeking an eight-hour day and a slight increase in the wage rate. At the Indianapolis Brass and Aluminum company plant two union men were discharged, allegedly without cause. When demands for their reinstatement were ignored a strike resulted.

It is also reported that Molders Local No. 177 at Muncie is still on strike at the foundry division of the American Lawn Mower company.

FIVE TAMPA FLOGGERS GET FOUR-YEAR TERMS

Ex-Policemen Denied New Trials, But Are Freed Pending Appeals.

Bartow, Fla.—Four years each at hard labor was the penalty meted out here to five former Tampa policemen who were convicted of kidnaping Eugene F. Poulnot, labor organizer, on the same night that Joseph Shoemaker was flogged so severely that he died as a result. The maximum penalty for the offense charged is ten years.

Following denial of a new trial by Judge Robert Dewell, defense attorneys announced they would appeal to the Florida supreme court. The five defendants were allowed 120 days to prepare the appeal and the judge reduced the bail bond of each from $7,500 to only $2,500.

The five men sentenced to four years each are: John Bridges, C. A. Brown, Sam Crosby, F. W. Switzer and C. W. Carlisle. They had been convicted by a jury, May 23, after a trial lasting six weeks that attracted national interest. Two others charged with the same offense were cleared by the jury.

Poulnot, whose kidnaping was charged in this particular case, and two companions, Joseph Shoemaker and Sam Rogers, were snatched from a meeting in a private home Nov. 20, 1935, by Tampa policemen, raiding with warrants. After being taken to police headquarters, ostensibly for investigation, the victims were turned over to a gang of floggers, many of them later identified as Klansmen. Later they were spirited away to a wooded spot and beaten unmercifully, with straps and chains, their lacerations being later daubed with tar and smeared with feathers. Shoemaker died of his injuries received in the flogging, the other two victims finally recovering.

Man—Is it true that your wife has brain fever?

Why, no; but she's got the next thing to it.

Man—What's that?

Friend—Hat fever.

Shortly after the brutal flogging was reported, William Green, president of the A. F. of L., demanded immediate and unrelenting prosecution of those responsible for the outrage. He also indicated that, unless satisfactory action was taken at once by officials, the A. F. of L. would consider withdrawing the 1936 convention from Tampa.

Although action has been taken, the case threatens to be rather long drawn out. The five convicted men and four others, who are also under indictment, still face charges of flogging Poulnot, of kidnaping and flogging Rogers and second degree murder in the death of Shoemaker.

MORE ABOUT

SOCIAL SECURITY

tion the social security act conforms to the traditional administrative approach of state and federal co-operation. The federal government establishes certain general standards for protection, uniformity and convenience; and the administration of these measures is intrusted to the jursdiction of the several state governments.

The act was devised to provide some safeguard against the insecurity of modern life through co-operative action by the federal and state governments, thus making possible fullest consideration for the local economic and social problems exsting within the states, while maintaining a national unity of program and purpose.

Federal Old-Age Benefits.

The nature and scope of the prolem of insurance againet old-age dependency—that is, prevention rather than alleviation of dependency—demanded a different type of approach.

A national system rather than a federal-state system is essential. Two of the more important reasons for this are, first, that satisfactory actuarial bases for forty-eight different state systems are impossible and, second, constant migration of individuals who would retain rights under several state systems for long periods of years would involve great difficulties.

The need for retirement benefits is due to the fact that more than a third of our population today 65 years of age or older is dependent.

The modern problem of old-age security is growing, as the percentage of our population in the old-age group is rapidly increasing. The span of the average human life is lengthening. Yet as the years in which a man might work are increased, rapid changes in technology take from the worker skills he has depended upon for hs livelihood, and the speeding up of industry because of physical strain cuts down effective earning years. And yet, if long life is to be a blessing to mankind, expectancy of longer life must carry with it a sense of security.

It has been stated that this section of the act could be simplfied. No one who understands the magntude of the administrative problems of dealing with millions of people would deny it presents a difficult task; but the reason for dealing with millions of people is because millions of people need old-age protection and their families need the accruing protection from death benefits.

Scope of Public Assistance.

The public assistance section of this measure deals with dependency. It recognizes a present emergency need and attempts to meet it. The object of the federal old-age benefits plan for those covered is to lift old age from dependency for future citizens of the United States. It is not a simplified dole system. It was bult up on the assumption that a man would receive benefits under it as a matter of right, since what he received was related both to his contributions and to his life earnings.

The weighting of the benefits during the early years in favor of older people is in accordance wth the generally accepted principles of social insurance. No younger man, however, whatever his age, could at the same cost, purchase equal benefits elsewhere. And since we are a nation of families, many young people will find that the benefits paid to older persons may be collected by the older members of their own families.

Over One Million Already Aided.

In measuring services rendered to date under the social securty act it should be remembered that congressional appropriations have been available only in the last six months, and that 1936 is an off-legislative year. Most state legislatures meet in the odd years.

Under the public-assistance provisions of the social security act, the federal government, in co-operation with the states, is now aiding more than a million individuals with federal grants totaling $48,000,000.

There are approved old-age assistance plans now operating in thirty-six state, the District of Columbia and Hawaii. There are approved plans for dependent children operating in twenty-two states and approved plans for the blind in effect in twenty-one states. Increases in assistance to needy aged, dependent children and the blind have been possible because of this act.

Under the unemployment compensation section of the social security act, fourteen states and the District of Columbia have adopted unemployment compensation laws covering 45 per cent of the industrial population of the country. Only one of these states had adopted legislation prior to federal action. Fourteen additional states will consider such laws when their legislatures convene next year.

Besides the activities that fall under the jurisdiction of the social security board, there is coverage for health, consideration for crippled chldren, the industrial worker injured in accidents, and other phases of federal and state nntegrated welfare assistance.

Widens Government Welfare Work.

The social security act attempts to set up a community method of self-protection. No man can live by himself alone; economic misery in one group undermines economic stability in other groups. The experience of the last years has taught us that awareness of the inter-relationships of individuals and social groups is a requisite to successful living in a modern world.

To reduce the hazards of old age, to meet the needs of dependent children, to aid the blind, to mitigate the casualties of unemployment, and to stabilize consumption, the program for social security has been initiated and advanced.

We recognize that security is relative. We are not asking that life be stripped of its challenge; we want to lift life from the hazards of enforced idleness and man's last years from the risk of poverty. We want to give the child a chance.

The social security act is the first constructive effort by the federal government to join with the states in ths widening field of human welfare. Time and experience are necessary to perfect legislation and to insure orderly procedure and effective administration. Within the act itself is the direction for study and change; and the congress made effective this direction by providing funds to make such studies and recommendations for change as time and experience may warrant.

We want to improve—not to destroy. The social security act, in my judgment, is the most humane document written into law in this century.

CALIFORNIA SUGAR WORKERS PICKET ANTI-UNION PLANT

Tracy, Cal.—The Sugar Workers' union maintains an effective picket line at the plant of the Holly Sugar company here. The strike was called after the management refused to recognise and deal with the union for an agreement on wages, hours and work conditions.

WASHINGTON BAKERY DRIVERS STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

Washington. — Twenty-six driver-salesmen, employed by Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., here, members of Bakery Salesmen No. 33, are on strike to enforce union recognition and union pay of $38 a week. Any settlement, it is announced, must also include provision for the employment of union bakers, members of Bakers' Local No. 118, in the plant.

Trouble has been experienced with the firm since early in 1935, at which time an "impossible profit-sharing" scheme was offered to workers in lieu of wages. This offer was repeated at the beginning of the present strike, but promptly rejected.

It is pointed out that there are a large number of union bakeries in Washington, all of them paying the standard union wage scale. To permit anything less than definite union recognition and the actual payment of the established union wage scale by Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., would amount to discrimination against several large employers who have always been fair to their employes and the public alike.

All of the District's 100 labor organizations, with 106,000 members, are lining up in support of the bakery salesmen on strike, which has the formal approval of the Washington Central Labor union.

CENTRAL BODY HEAD INDICTED IN BENNETT CASE

Grand Jury Sets Bond on Five Others as Lingerfelt Is Held for Slugging.

Attempt To Be Made to Implicate Unionists on "Conspiracy" Charge—H. G. B. King to Defend.

A true bill charging felonious assault was returned by the Hamilton county grand jury Wednesday against Murrell Lingerfelt, coal miner, who is charged with slugging Sanford Bennett, low-wage candy manufacturer, on July 27.

In an attempt to implicate leaders of the Bennett-Hubbard strike, Joe Dobbs, president Central Body; Curtis Sims, business agent of Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union; Anne Lafitte, striker, and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Dorsey, former candymakers, were indicted for "conspiracy" with Lingerfelt. Bonds were set at $2,000 each. All are said to have had bonds arranged.

Bennett was slugged by parties unknown with a baseball bat in a most brutal manner, it is said. Lingerfelt was picked up later and charged with the deed, which he denied. It is presumed that the five unionists indicted will be accused of aiding whoever is guilty of the slugging, or something.

H. G. B. King, labor attorney, will serve on the defense.

Joe Dobbs has only recently been released from the hospital, where he was recovering from nearly fatal wounds inflicted by the father of a scab working in the candy plant. The employes have been waging a strong fight against terrible odds to win the right to earn a living.

From the start of the dispute Bennett has consistently refused to arbitrate, although his attorney made a proposal to arbitrate, but after his proposal was accepted, the offer was withdrawn.

Labor Thugs in Chattanooga

The make-up of the Chattanooga News' first page Wednesday was very appropriate, we think. There were two stories featured. The News probably did not realize a possible connection with the story of senate investigations, which have brought out that manufacturers employed strikebreaking agencies to provoke or even instigate violence, with the other story that Joe Dobbs and others were indicted in the slugging of Sanford Bennett, candy manufacturer.

Chattanooga has had lots of experience with labor spies bought and paid for by local manufacturers. Many years ago one of these paid spies was placed in our Central Body, and he missed being elected president of that organization by one vote before he was finally exposed.

During the street car strike professional "finks" were imported, machine guns were set up at the car barns, and the spies in our ranks tried their best to inflame our people into marching on the car barns to be shot down.

In this same strike the recording secretary of Central Body was offered a large sum by the detective agency to turn over to them the minutes of the organization and to give daily reports of all that happened or was contemplated by the strike committee.

Only two years ago a detective was found in a local textile union. Letters of instructions from his employers fell into our hands and he was exposed. This same "gentleman" approached several unionists with a proposition of dynamiting a hosiery mill.

Less than one year ago a president of a labor union here confessed that he was employed by a local detective agency to break up the union, which, by the way, is an old organization.

While we know that Joe Dobbs is not implicated in the Bennett slugging, it is not unreasonable to wonder to just what extent labor spies and violence instigators have been used in the candy strike.

A few years ago there was a little dispute between a negro theater and the movie operators. A bundle of dynamite was "found" by the theater with an unlighted fuse. The chief of "deetecatives" in this great city told the papers he "thought" the union placed the explosives. A short time later in the strike against the Wilbee theaters here some of the strikebreakers were arrested for driving while drunk. A letter was found on them instructing them concerning the use of stink-bombs, etc. Our great chief of detectives "mislaid" the letter, but after sufficient hullabaloo was raised by the unionists, the letter was "found" and held for evidence.

We wonder just what might be brought out in the case in which Joe Dobbs himself was deliberately shot and barely escaped death when Jeff May attacked him. We wonder if the Jeff May case will receive the same relentless prosecution toward justice that the Bennett slugging is receiving?

We are very interested in the final outcome of the deliberate pistoling of Joe Dobbs by Jeff Mays as well as the hearing of the case against Lingerfelt who is charged with slugging Bennett.

Roosevelt Thanks Tennessee Labor For Its Support

Non-Partisan League Receives Personal Letter from President.

Says He Appreciates Confidence Labor Expressed in His Administration.

William Turnblazer, chairman of labor's Non-Partisan league for Tennessee, has received a letter from President Franklin D. Roosevelt which expresses appreciation on behalf of our great president's administration as well as personally the confidence implied in him.

Practically every state in the Union has organized a Labor's Non-Partisan League to Re-elect Roosevelt. These organizations are composed of representatives from local unions in the states who are actively mapping out a clear-cut program to defeat Landon, reactionary candidate and enemy of the working people.

President Roosevelt's communication says:

Sept. 17, 1936

My Dear Mr. Turnblazer:

Please accept my thanks for your letter of Sept. 14. The assurance of support and loyalty which it conveys in behalf of Labor's Non-Partisan League of Tennessee are indeed encouraging. While I prefer to regard your message, first, as a pledge of support to the administration, I desire also to assure you and your friends and co-workers of my personal appreciation of the confidence in my leadership which your action implies.

Very sincerely yours,

Signed,

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Textile Workers To Move Offices To Washington

Convention Enlarges Executive Council to Include Representatives of Each Department—Officers Are Re-elected.

NEW YORK CITY.—The biennial convention of the United Textile Workers of America, in session here, enlarged the executive council to include representatives from each department of the union.

The convention also voted to change the main office of the union from New York to Washington, D. C., to locate the organization centrally, especially in view of the fact the union had reaffirmed its stand for a labor party and in favor of concentrating upon progressive legislation.

The following officers of the union were elected to the executive council: Thomas G. McMahon, president, Providence, R. I.; Francis J. Gorman, first vice president, Providence, R. I.; George Baldanzi, second vice president, Paterson, N. J.; John A. Peel, third vice president, Greenville, S. C.; Horace A. Riviere, fourth vice president, Lancaster, N. H.; Joseph R. White, fifth vice president, Cohoes, N. Y.; James Starr, secretary-treasurer, Paterson, N. J.

Additional members of the executive council are: John H. Powers, Pawtucket, R. I.; Alexander McKeown, Philadelphia; Abraham Binns, New Bedford, Mass.; Emil Rieve, Philadelphia; Harry F. Company Sucked Eggs and Failed To Hide Shells

Activities of Railway Audit & Inspection Gang Revealed in Exhibits Before La Follette Investigating Committee.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

"Suck the eggs, but hide the shells;
This is the late experience tells.
Men are punished, the Prophet taught,
Not for doing wrong, but for getting caught.
So, heed what the Book of Wisdom tells,
And suck the eggs—but hide the shells."

The Railway Audit & Inspection company thought it had hidden the shells of the labor-spying eggs it had sucked. It even mashed the shells. But the La Follette committee looking into labor spying found the fragments and pieced them together; and the officials of R. A. & I. are having a very unpleasant time.

Salaries and Profits Big.

The La Follette committee reopened its hearings on Sept. 22 in the caucus room of the senate office building, with "Young Bob" in the chair. The first witness was Robert Wohlforth, secretary of the committee, and his chief task was to put in exhibits. These showed the officers and stockholders of the R. A. & I.; the profits—which reached nearly $700,000 in the one year of 1935; the salaries of the officials. The Central Industrial Service company and the R. A. & I. are two sides to the same spy organization, and all high officials drew salaries from both.

W. W. Groves, president, drew $8,640 from the Central in 1932, and $2,587 from the railway. In 1933, he got $7,840 from the Central and $6,680 from the railway. In 1934, he got $14,800 from Central, but his pay slip from the railway seems to have been lost. In 1935, he drew $14,400 from the Central and $6,000 from the railway.

Manager "Doesn't Know."

As a sample of the care and effort with which this investigation is being conducted by Senator La Follette, several of the exhibits are photostats of corporation and individual income tax returns.

G. Eugene Ivy, manager of the R. A. & I. office at Atlanta, was the next witness; a stocky, blaick-haired, heavy-jowled individual, who inspired a lack of confidence at first sight and went on to confirm it.

Washington Plasterers Receive $1.75 Per Hour

Washington, D. C. — Plasterers and Cement Finishers, Local 96, recently concluded an agreement with the local plastering contractors' association, providing for an increase in wages of 25 cents an hour, thus restoring a cut accepted during the depression, and bringing the rate to $1.75 an hour.

Business Agent James Buckley reports 98 per cent of the employers began paying the new rate as arranged, August 15, although some trouble was experienced with two out-of-town contractors, resulting in strikes, of short duration, on two construction jobs.

Plasterers here work six hours a day, five days a week.

"Ed" Hargraves

It's an old saying that you "can't make a silk purse from a sow's ear." Our city playground and park department since the election of R. M. Cooke to head that office, has almost completely disproved the old maxim.

The department of parks and playgrounds in the city administration has for many years been treated as an orphan child. Its budgetary allowance has been ridiculously inadequate. Formerly the department, because of lack of nutrition, has staggered around, doing nothing and accomplishing nothing.

It has been different lately. Commissioner Cooke was fortunate in securing Mr. Ed Hargraves as superintendent of recreation. That man should be quintuplets. He gets around. He dreams about his job, and since he has been employed as superintendent he has taken the sow's ear and made of the recreation program a beautiful silk purse.

Mr. Hargraves was just about personally responsible for the wonderful program at Warner park on Labor day. No one else could have given organized labor the cooperation needed on that day that "Ed" cheerfully and efficiently contributed.

In compiling the list of assets in the department of parks and playgrounds Ed Hargraves should be set down in figures with at least four zeros following.

Dr. Tom McCallie

To attempt to write an obituary notice for Dr. Tom McCallie is a difficult task because the usual type of tribute upon the passing of a public man is in his case insufficient almost to the point of futility. Dr. McCallie was indeed a rare type, possessed of a wonderful personality, a kind, generous, loving and happy disposition. He in truth "scattered sunshine" wherever he went. His religion and philosophy encompassed what may seem to some as paradoxical. He was tolerant, liberal, reverent and devout. He was at home in any company which his station as minister or civic leader might have thrown him, and he abhorred intolerance in any form.

Dr. McCallie's earlier life and environment was not such that he could easily grasp the philosophy of organized labor, but his sympathies, his talents and his substance were always at the call of the "under-dog" or the man in distress from whatever source his trouble might have come.

Chattanooga and Chattanoogans will miss the radiant happiness and influence of Dr. Tom, and The Labor World joins all good citizens in expressing sincerest regret at his passing and heartfelt condolences to those he leaves behind.

R. J. REYNOLDS TO MAKE FAT PROFITS ON STOCK THIS YEAR

Insiders to Benefit Heavily on Estimated Gains of $3.15 Per Share—Company in Position to Pay Decent Taxes for Support of Winston-Salem Schools.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C. — The New York Journal of Commerce estimates that R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., makers of non-union cigarettes, will have clear profits this year of $3.15 a share.

R. J. Reynolds has ten million shares outstanding; so that $3.15 a share means a total of $31,500,000 of net profits for this year of 1936. The par value of the Reynolds shares is $10, so the profits this year come to 31 per cent on present capitalization. But so far as anyone can discover without an exhaustive study of all the books of all the companies that go to the making of the Big Four, the $10,000,000 of Class A common stock of Reynolds represents every penny ever invested in this business, and the $90,000,000 par value of Class B common stock is just plain water.

On that basis, R. J. Reynolds this year is making 315 per cent profit on its actual investment; and feels itself badly used because its profits last year were only $2.39 per share, or 239 per cent on investment.

Two considerations occur to the student of tobacco affairs at such a report as that in the Journal of Commerce.

"Gravy" Fat This Year.

One is that the "gravy" of the Reynolds company this year will be unusually fat and salty. All the Big Four tobacco companies have schemes devised to turn as large a share as possible of profits to the insiders; but the Reynolds scheme is quite different from others.

Under the Reynolds scheme, the holders of the original Class A shares get a special dividend of 10 per cent of the amount by which net profits in any year exceed the net profits of Reynolds in 1910. Reynolds profits in 1910 were $2,219,000. Subtract that from the $31,500,000 of net profits expected for the present year and you have $29,281,000.

Big Profit for "Insiders".

Ten per cent of that sum—$2,928,100—will be paid as a special dividend to the insiders—Clay Williams, the Gray family, the Reynolds' themselves, for these shares which get a special profit are very closely held. Fat gravy? The thing is positively dripping with it.

The next consideration that occurs to the student is that the Reynolds company ought to be able for a year, at least, to pay decent taxes for the support of Winston-Salem schools. Winston-Salem, N. C., is the home town of the Reynolds Tobacco Co., and the sign of the camel is all over it. It is the town where the stemmers who work for Reynolds live in wooden shacks, two families to four rooms, the shacks built on brick or wooden piers so that the winds of winter have a good chance to cool the floors; shacks without lights or water, and with walls so rickety that a half-grown kitten could crawl through the cracks.

Ought to Help Schools.

Winston-Salem is almost the same size as Wilkes-Barre in Pennsylvania. But Wilkes-Barre spends 55 cents per day for every pupil in her public schools; and at the last report I could get, Winston-Salem was spending 24 cents per day per pupil. With $31,500,000 profits in prospect, not to mention nearly $3,000,000 in gravy, the Reynolds people ought to kick in something for the schools.

What Next!

A new automatic coal-firing stoker for residential use eliminates all shoveling and provides for taking the coal directly from the bin to fire through a tube that can be laid on or under the cellar floor. The revolving worm which carries the coal along inside the tube is operated by a small electric motor. Stokers made for anthracite coal are equipped with automatic ash removers.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

PROPOSITION TO CITY

The executive committee, acting through President Smith, has made a proposition to the city commission which, if adopted, will provide somewhat more substantial increases in salaries than the present budget plan calls for. This proposition, which is subject to the approval of the board of directors, contains the following stipulations: That the city shall levy a special elementary school tax and operate an unequivocally independent school system; that $100,000 be appropriated for increasing salaries for teachers: that the appropriation for teachers' salaries be increased by $100,000 each succeeding year until the full requirements of the salary law have been met; and that when the above stipulations have been agreed to by the city commission the teachers shall withdraw their suit, together with all claims for back salaries under the salary law.

WORK ON DISTRIBUTION OF INCREASES

The executive committee is working on an equitable method of distribution of salary increases for city teachers. The present $25,000 increase, however, cannot be distributed so as to give anyone adequate relief. This amount would allow an average increase of $32 per teacher. In many cases teachers have been forced to pay twice as much more for rent as that. With food and clothing costs rising proportionately it looks as if city teachers will be worse off economically than last year under the present budget proposals.

MAKE THE FORUMS WORTH WHILE

Teachers should enter wholeheartedly into the public forum programs now in operation. These meetings depend for their success on intelligent participation. The leaders and panel members cannot make a good discussion alone. Teachers have a marvelous opportunity to lead discussion from the floor. We federation members can put forward the principles of our union and can serve in general the cause of liberalism and progress.

FERRYBOATMEN WIN TWO DISMISSAL WAGE PACTS

San Francisco.—When and if the Golden Gate bridge, now under construction here, results in suspension of ferryboat operations, throwing employes out of work, the workers will be paid a "dismissal wage," the amount to be set by negotiation.

A threatened strike of nearly 1,000 members of the Ferryboatmen's union was narrowly averted when the Southern Pacific Golden Gate Ferry company and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad company definitely agreed to negotiate with the union.

The union had submitted its original proposition on the sixth of last January, but no progress was made with the two firms named until it was decided to strike. An agreement with the Southern Pacific was announced recently and a similar agreement with the Key system is reported in process of negotiation.

Washingto Unions Want Daily Papers To Give Both Sides in Labor Disputes

Washington.—The Washington Central Labor union at the last meeting unanimously adopted a motion instructing the secretary to communicate with all local daily newspapers, requesting them to present "both sides" in all labor disputes arising in this community.

The request is expected to apply to advertising as well as news coverage. For example, if any employer with whom organized labor is having difficulty wants to run an advertisement, stating a one-sided version of the case in point, papers will be expected to refuse to run such an advertisement until the union concerned is notified and given an opportunity to run an advertisement stating the union's side of the controversy—in the same is-

Union Longshoremen Win Wage Boost in New Pact

New York Shipping Association Agrees to Pay $1 an Hour and $1.50 for Overtime.

New York, N. Y.—Officials of the International Longshoremen's association and the New York Shipping association signed a new agreement, effective Oct. 1 and lasting one year, providing for the continuance of the 44-hour work week, with wages of $1 an hour for the regular week and $1.50 an hour for overtime. Under the expiring agreement they were paid 95 cents an hour and $1.35 for overtime.

The contract represents a compromise, the union having originally demanded a 40-hour week in addition to the pay increase.

The agreement also covers wages of freight checkers employed on the piers and holding membership in the longshoremen's association. They will receive $7.75 a day, an increase of 50 cents over the old contract, and $1.50 an hour for all overtime in excess of the 44-hour week.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Longshoremen's association, expressed satisfaction with the new contract. Although it affects only the port of New York, its completion was said to mean almost automatic settlement of the longshoremen's wage demands in all Atlantic coast ports, it being the custom for other Atlantic ports to follow the action of the New oYrk shipping interests. Mr. Ryan said that about 40,000 men would be affected.

A. J. McCarthy, vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine company and president of the New York Shipping association, of which the deep-water lines in New York are members, also expressed satisfaction with the new contract, which he described as "another act in our record of twenty-one years of peaceable negotiations with the longshoremen."

New York Truckers Win 10% Increase in Wages

Strike of 15,000 Drivers Averted by Agreement Boosting Pay From $7.50 to $8 Per Day—New Weekly Wage Is $48.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The agreement of the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau of New York to grant the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffers union here a 10 per cent. increase in wages and other concessions averted a threatened strike of 15,000 truck drivers which had been impending for three weeks. A vote by the union fixing a date for the strike was held up at the request of Mayor La Guardia, who urged the representatives of the employers and truckers to resume negotiations in the endeavor to find a way out of the impasse.

Employer and union representatives first met with the mayor at the City Hall and then held conferences there daily until the settlement committee of forty members and the Truckmen's Bureau by its full wage scale of twenty members.

While certain details covering working conditions remained to be worked out, the conferees announced that the agreement provided for a 50-cent increase in the daily wage of truck drivers, from $7.50 to $8, making the weekly wage $48. The week will include five eight-hour days and a seven-hour day on Saturday. Overtime will be paid for at the rate of time and a half based on the increased wage.

The union had originally demanded that the 48-hour week under the old contract should be reduced to forty hours to spread employment among one-third of its 40,000 members who were said to be unemployed.

Michael J. Cashel, international vice president of the Teamsters' Brotherhood, thanked Mayor La Guardia for his interest in adjusting the controversy.

"Without the Mayor's aid," he said, "I am satisfied there would have been a general strike in New York City. All credit is due to him."

Hugh E. Sheridan, chairman of the wage scale committee of the Truckmen's Bureau, also expressed appreciation of the mayor's intervention. He said the settlement was due to the mayor's patience.

Mayor La Guardia replied that "credit was due to both sides."

MORE ABOUT

GOP LABOR VOTE

have been trying for many years to straighten out our publicity department, but we have been unable to do a darned thing about it."

And there you have the whole story in a nutshell. "The fellows who put up the money" rule the roost.

The present manner in which the republican national committee is handling the labor end of the campaign is simply by following the pattern in vogue for many years.

Curtis Knows G. O. P. Policy.

Arthur M. Curtis, republican national committeeman from Missouri, and his chief lieutenant, Robert Kratky, former St. Louis pawnbroker, are handling the labor end of the campaign not because they know anything about labor, but because Curtis knows and is in hearty accord with the policy of the committee during past campaigns.

Ordinarily it would be considered a dumb trick for a man smart enough to become a national committeeman to come to Chicago from Poplar Bluff, Mo., and set up an alleged union labor bureau a block away from the republican national headquarters, and then go ten blocks in the opposite direction and set up a bureau to cater to the "open shop" element.

Trick Not Considered Dumb.

But that is not considered dumb by the republican high command. It is considered smart and adroit. Maybe it is and then again maybe it is not. At any rate elections have been won despite such maneuvering, and elections have been lost, too.

Curtis and Kratky are going on the assumption that all of the unorganized workers, or at least a majority of them, will vote as the bosses tell them. That is not true by several jugfulls, as I have good reason to know through several practical demonstrations. A lot of company union men undoubtedly will yield to such pressure, but the majority of the unorganized workers will resent it as quickly as any trade unionist.

How Labor Vote Is Wooed.

The customary modus operandi of the G. O. P. national committee in approaching the labor vote is to employ a horde of mercenaries to scout about the country in an attempt to corrupt the leaders directly or by promises. Many of the men thus employed are not members of organized labor, but have a gift of gab and a brass front. There were 3,000 of these gumshoe men on the pay roll of the republican national committee during one campaign.

A republican national chairman propositioned me as follows a few years ago:

"Cross your activities on the labor press and come along with me. Use your personal influence and forget the labor press. I'll give you a good job, pay you a good salary and allow you a liberal amount for expenses, but you will have to do what I tell you to do."

Proposal Turned Down.

I could not see the gentleman's proposition and said so. He then said:

"Oh, come along and let us get what we can out of it for ourselves."

I made a grab for his throat, but he ducked and yelled for help. To the men who came in a rush from adjoining rooms, he said:

"I want you men to be witnesses to what is going on here."

That chairman had the right viewpoint in one respect at least. He has made a fortune as a result of his political activities, while I am still as poor as a church mouse. I would hate to have his conscience, however, when he reads this story, as he certainly will have a chance to do. Perhaps I shall name him later. Every one has read of him.

MORE ABOUT

LABOR SPIES

"Did you tear up this document?" asked Senator La Follette, handing the witness a letter which had been pieced together from the fragments found in the waste basket.

"No, sir."

"Who did?"

"I don't know."

Makes Damaging Admission.

Sheet after sheet of these rebuilt letters and reports La Follette handed to the witness, who professed almost total ignorance of all of them. Finally, squirming and dodging, he said that he was afraid of incriminating himself or the Railway Audit & Inspection company if he answered. He admitted that the torn-up documents came from his office, that no one in his office but himself would dare to tear them up, but still insisted that he couldn't remember anything about them.

Ivy was excused—temporarily—and W. H. Gray took the stand, "undercover" operative and "contact man" for the R. A. & I. An under-cover man is a spy, of course, but it appears that a contact man is a superintendent of spies.

Big Companies Use Spies

Gray testified that the General Electric company, the Duquesne Light and Power company, the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, and, in fact, "most other railroads," patronized the Railway Audit & Inspection spy agency.

The District of Columbia grand jury has indicted six officials of the R. A. & I. company for contempt of the senate, for refusing to appear before the La Follette committee. They are W. W. Groves, president; W. Boone Groves, vice-president; James E. Blair, secretary-treasurer, and J. C. Boyer, all of Pittsburgh; besides L. Douglas Rice, vice-president and general manager of the Philadelphia office, and Robert S. Judge, of New York. If convicted, the maximum penalty is a fine of $1,000 and a jail sentence of one year.

STEEL COMPANIES HIRE GUNMEN AND ATTEMPT TO COERCE VOTERS IN WAR ON UNION ORGANIZATION

Washington.—Two stories, both telling of actions typical of the steel industry, have reached Washington from Pennsylvania.

First is the hiring of gunmen by the Standard Steel Spring company, Coraopolis. The workers at the plant are striking for higher wages and shorter hours. Before the strike had been in progress two days, the company hired twenty-five "watchmen," and took them into the plant between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Officials of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee went to the sheriff of Alleghany county to charge that these hired men were gunmen, and that there was no possible use for them except to shoot strikers. The sheriff was absent. His chief deputy said that the company was "within its rights" to hire "watchmen," but that they had not received any authority from the sheriff, and so could exercise no functions outside the plant.

Political Coercion Charged.

There is hope that the prompt discovery of the trick and the vigorous protest against it may make the company cautious in using its hired thugs.

The other typical steel proceeding is the pressure which several of the steel companies are putting on their workers for political purposes. David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman of Pennsylvania, made this charge publicly at the party headquarters in New York.

"The steel companies," he said, "are forcing their employes to register as republicans. Otherwise, they will lose their jobs."

Inquiry Is Asked.

Mr. Lawrence called on the national democratic committee to probe his charges; but what he really wants is a congressional inquiry. It is clear that the threats of the steel companies are losing their terrors; for in some of the steel towns around Pittsburgh, three and four voters are registering themselves as democrats to one who registers as a republican.

Most of these towns have given republican majorities of two to one or more until the past two years. What the steel worker who registers as a democrat really means is that he is going to vote for Roosevelt. The extent to which this will help the rest of the ticket is still very uncertain.

PAINTERS BREAK NEW GROUND IN AGREEMENT ENDING STRIKE

New York City. — The strike of 12,000 painters in this city has been settled by an agreement which breaks new ground in such compacts.

The men struck to get enough control of the hiring of painters to enable them to put an end to the kickback which has been costing New York painters $2,000,000 a year. They demanded that 50 per cent of all painters on a job be hired through the union. The agreement, running for a year, provides that 25 per cent must be hired through the union. If this measure is not enough to stop the kickback, the painters will renew their original demand at the close of the year.

The new ground is a clause in the agreement providing that of every ten painters hired, at least one must be 55 years old, or more. This measure of social security is hailed by all as a long forward step.

Tampa Trades Assembly Opens War On "Unfair" Collier Chain of Hotels

Tampa, Fla.—The Central Trades and Labor assembly has started a fight on the Collier Coast Hotels in Florida for employing non-union musicians. The grievance committee called on George Mason, general manager of the Temple Terrace hotel, but received no consideration. This is the hotel that has been tentatively selected for the headquarters of the A. F. of L. convention to be held in Tampa in November. The hotel company controls seven hotels here and at other points in Florida.

R. E. Woodmansee, secretary and treasurer of the Labor Press, has written the local labor body of his intention of giving the utmost publicity to the unfairness of the Collier hotel management and already arrangements are under way to take care of delegates and visitors at the large hotels in nearby St. Peterburg in case the Collier management remains on the "unfair" list.

Previous to the American Federation of Labor annual convention the labor press will carry special articles, all of which will be instructive to local unions of the country before they select delegates to the convention. Results of that campaign will mean a direct loss of patronage to the Tampa hotels, and the refusal of patronage will extend to all hotels in the Collier chain, as delegates travel over Florida before and after the convention.

Representatives of various trade establishments which have direct connection and support of union labor have already shown their loyalty to the cause by refusing to patronize the Collier hotels.

ENTRAL BODY'S "NO!" REJECTS OFFER TO QUIT

e Dobbs, President Central Labor Union, Offers Resignation After Being Indicted in Bennett Slugging.

ABOR DELEGATES AY HE IS NOT GUILTY ill Not Allow Him to Resign imply Because Labor-Haters Are Trying to Railroad Him on False Charges.

"No, no, a thousand times no!" undered the unusually large gathring of delegates Monday evening at e regular session of Central Body en Joe Dobbs, president, tendered resignation of the chair to labor's ngress in Chattanooga.

"I have been indicted for complicity the Bennett slugging," Dobbs told e delegates. "I do not ever want cause our labor movement the least barrassment in any way. Although I am not guilty, the fact that am under indictment might cast a d light on this organization. I offer my resignation. You are free to cept it without the least danger of rd feelings on my part. You are titled to it, and I am giving it."

Delegates from various parts of the rge hall clamored for the floor. ey denounced any suspicion of obbs' complicity in the crime arged to Lingerfelt. "We know Joe obbs is innocent. He is our elected esident. We do not turn down our ficials simply because some laborating boss turns him down. We will ve to have real evidence against obbs before we accept his resignaon."

Muskegon Workers Get 5% Wage Increase

Muskegon, Mich.—Increasing prosperity for industry gained a degree f formal recognition here when a "prosperity dividend" in the form of 5 per cent wage increase to employes was granted by the Brunswick-Balke-Collander company, one of Muskegon's largest industries. The aise will affect 1,300 workers, effective Oct. 1. The increase is additional to the wage boosts of from 5 o 10 per cent given to certain groups f workers following a meeting between the management and representatives of A. F. of L. Federal Labor Union No. 19635, on June 22.

President R. F. Bensinger, of the company, in announcing the raise, tated that for the first time in seven ears of losses, "the company's books howed a profit for July and it was robable that August might also be profitable month." Bar equipment nd other new products have been dded to this old firm's standard line, which includes the famous Brunswick-Balke-Collander billiard tables.

BARBERS PLAN BIG BLOW-OUT

Journeyman Barbers' Local 415 has announced that their next regular meeting on Monday, Oct. 5, will be a general get-together affair after regular business is transacted.

Refreshments and other attractions will be featured, and it is predicted that there will be more barbers together at that time than has been experienced in Chattanooga for quite a while.

CENTRAL BODY GIVES SUPPORT PLUMBING LAW

Objectionable Features Removed and Will Be Presented Again to City Dads.

Growing Public Sentiment Demands Sanitation Protection from Jack-Leg Plumbers.

Some weeks ago a group of master plumbers presented to the city commission an ordinance which would require that all plumbing work in the city must be done by registered and licensed plumbers. Due to the strenuous opposition of office building managers, the ordinance failed to receive consideration, although Commissioner Cooke made the motion to pass first reading.

Opposition was based on a belief that building maintenance men, although not licensed plumbers, and who did not do a plumbing business other than to care for one particular building's repairs, would not be allowed to continue to make such minor repairs.

Local Union No. 43, Plumbers and Steamfitters, has a new ordinance which eliminates this one objection, but which requires that anyone who represents himself to be a plumber to the public and who hires out for plumbing work, must pass an examination that will insure to the public that he is an expert in sanitation work. This ordinance was placed before Central Body Monday and received approval.

It appears that the new proposal will receive favorable consideration from the commissioners when it will be presnted for first reading next Tuesday.

Tacoma Labor Supports Furniture Union Strike

Tacoma, Wash.—Furniture Workers' Local Union No. 1719 is quietly but effectively conducting a strike against four local furniture factories, in a manner that augurs well for victory and is receiving commendation from other trades unionists. The Tacoma Central Labor council has appropriated $100 to aid the strikers and instructed the secretary to issue an appeal to all unions in this community to support the furniture workers.

Regarding demands of the union, a representative stated: "We desire to establish our union on a firm basis. A wage increase is not so material to us as sound working conditions which will give us some job security and in which we will share with other unions on the job. We have proposed and intend to stick by a blanket agreement to secure industrial peace and harmony in the industry and for the well-being of all concerned."

ALUMINUM WORKERS STRIKE.

New Kensington, Pa.—The aluminum seal plant of the Aluminum Company of America was shut down on Sept. 4 by a strike of 500 employes. The company said the workers objected to "disciplinary action" against a girl employe who, the management said, used "coercion" while in the plant.

Map Before Senate Labor Spy Inquiry Committee Shows Gas Warfare Is Waged on Strikers

SALES OF TEAR OR SICKENING GAS REVEALED IN NEARLY 1,000 PLACES

Professional Strikebreakers Confess to Use of Live Steam, Electrified Fences and Other Barbaric Tactics in Fighting Workers Striving for Better Conditions.

Washington.—The first poison gas map of the United States ever made was shown to the senate civil liberties committee by Robert Wohlforth, the committee's secretary. It was an ordinary map, with nearly a thousand pins stuck in it. Each pin represented the sale, at that place, of $500 worth of tear or sickening gas "for industrial purposes."

For Mr. Wohlforth, in his oral testimony, said that in the three years 1933, 1934 and 1935, $466,913 worth of these gases had been sold to corporations to use in industrial disputes. The sales were made by three companies: Federal Laboratories, of Pittsburgh, probably the most viciously busy of the lot; Lake Erie Chemical company, of Cleveland, whose agent staged a demonstration of the power of his gas on political prisoners in Chile; and Manville Manufacturing company, of Pontiac, Mich. Ohio was most thickly set with pins, because the steel and rubber companies in that state like to argue with their employes in this fashion.

Hoped Strike Would Be Had.

When the textile strike started two years ago, one gas agent wrote to his home office:

"I hope this strike will be a damned bad one. We need the money."

A. F. Aisles, of Lake Erie Chemical, defended the "moral right" of munitions companies to sell gas for use in industrial disputes. The Buick Motor company bought long-range gas guns in 1934. The chief of police of Flint, Mich., bought arms from a munitions company in 1933, and sent this cautioning letter:

"Do not bill the city of Flint for this shipment. Instead, bill the Manufacturers' association of the city of Flint."

Savage War on Pickets.

E. J. McDade, of Chicago, professional strikebreaker of many years standing, told how the Wisconsin Light and Power company, during a strike in 1934, connected steam hose to boilers.

"So they could turn live steam on pickets?" inquired Chairman La Follette.

"Yes, sir," said McDade.

"Were wires concealed in fences to electrocute pickets?" asked La Follette.

"Yes."

"Anyone hurt?"

"Yes, one young man was killed."

"By this wire?"

"Yes, sir."

McDade was working for the unspeakable Perl Bergdoff when that happened, and had recruited 700 strikebreakers by advertising and going around to cheap hotels.

Many "Finks" Criminals.

He testified that no effort was made to look up the character of these "finks" and that 20 per cent of them had police records. He said that one official of the power company was nervous after the killing of the young man by a charged wire, for fear that sympathizers would wreck the plant.

Leather Workers Close Two Plants

Muskegon Unions Claim Eagle-Ottawa Company Violates Labor Relations Act in Refusing to Recognize Union.

Muskegon, Mich.—Local Union No. 81, International Leather Workers of America, recently called two strikes of employes of the Eagle-Ottawa Leather company, of Muskegon, affecting about 1,100 and causing a shut-down of both the Whitehall and Grand Haven units, near here. Union officials said wage adjustments are not involved at this time, the strikes being called merely to enforce recognition of the joint union, in accordance with the terms of the national labor relations act.

In commenting on the strike, the Tri-City Labor Review, indorsed by the Greater Muskegon Trades and Labor council, said:

"If the Eagle-Ottawa Leather company management has the interests of both the Whitehall and Grand Haven communities at heart, if the management does not wish to stand accused of breaking a federal law, if the management has any real concern for the welfare of its workers—it will grant them their simple demand for collective bargaining as defined by the congress of the United States."

Labor Goes On Air For Pres. Roosevelt

Labor's Nonpartisan league of Washington, D. C., has closed a contract with the National Broadcasting company and has taken over the period covered by the "March of Time" program, beginning last Monday, Sept. 28. They will broadcast five days each week until the end of the campaign.

This program is sponsored solely by Labor's Nonpartisan league and is paid for by the league exclusively. All members of organized labor are urged to tune in on this "March of Time" program nightly so that they may have direct reports of the progress being made by labor's league for the re-election of Roosevelt.

1,400 Strike, Closing Big N. C. Hosiery Mill

Winston-Salem, N. C.—The largest seamless hosiery plant in the world is shut down as a result of an effective strike of 1,400 of the plant's normal 1,800 employes. The strike is being conducted by the American Federation of Hosiery Workers against the Hanes Hosiery mills here.

The strike started in the dyehouse, as a result of a reported attempt to increase the machine load of kettlemen, then spread into all other departments of the mill. A previous strike was settled on the basis of a return to the 40-hour work week, and an increase of 10 per cent in wages, which was partial restoration of a 20 per cent wage cut made when the mill went on 50 hours.

Petitions circulated by the management among strikers, asking them to return to work, are reported to have been largely ignored by the strikers. Although the company had claimed that 1,000 workers had signed the petitions, no attempt was made to operate the mill. A "singing mass picket line" blockaded the plant pending settlement of the strike. Union officials believe that a speedy settlement can be effected.

The average expenditure in America per person for candy, ice cream and confections is $18.15. The average expenditure for books is $1.10.

SQUIRES' DEMAND TO SEE REPORTS OKEHED BY LABOR

Hays Clark Told by Central Body "Stockholders" in County Should Know Their Condition.

Requested to "Keep At It" Until Details Are Made Public. Other Members of Court Commended for Supporting Him.

Newly-elected Hays Clark, member of the Hamilton county court, was upheld Monday evening in regular session of Central Labor union when a resolution was adopted which praised him for his businesslike action in calling for a complete report of the county's financial affairs.

Members of the county court were likened to a board of directors in a business corporation and the citizens of the county the stockholders. Discussions brought out the fact that court members, as directors of the corporation, the largest in the county, would be answerable to the public for the welfare of the county government. Mr. Clark's stand has been that since he and his colleagues would have to answer to the public, they are rightfully entitled to know just what they are to manage.

A short time ago Clark called on the county auditor to submit to the court a complete list of expenditures and receipts and other assets. To date this has not been forthcoming.

The resolution said:

Whereas, it is a sound custom of all business concerns that a complete set of books is kept, and regular audits are made and submitted to its stockholders for their information concerning their invested rights; and,

Whereas, such corporations or businesses usually appoint a

Agreement Between Sinclair Companies, Oil Workers, Renew

Pact Just Signed, Providing for 36-Hour Week, Protection of Seniority Right, Vacations With Pay and Settlement of Disputes, Is Held One of Best in Industrial Field.

New York City.—Articles of agreement have just been signed between the Sinclair Refining Company, the Sinclair Prairie Oil Company and the Sinclair Prairie Oil Marketing Company on the one side and the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers on the other. This agreement also embraces all subsidiary companies of the Consolidated Oil Corporation. The period of agreement beings Oct. 1, 1936, and ends March 31, 1938. It may be terminated by either party on written 30 days' notice, but both parties are bound to consult in that 30-day period to see if the agreement may not be extended instead of terminated.

The agreement is in large part a renewal of one already existing. The Sinclair companies have been pioneers among the major oil companies in recognizing the rights of labor.

Pact Warmly Praised.

The agreement is regarded by trade union leaders as one of the best in the whole industrial field and as continuing the pioneer spirit which led the Sinclair companies to be the first of the major companies to unionize for thorough-going and amicable collective bargaining. The companies are solidly unionized in all of their operations and have been since their first agreement with the Oil Field and Refinery Workers became effective. The direct inspiration for the companies' union policy is, union leaders declare, Harry Sinclair, the head of the entire operation.

The work week is 36 hours, with the privilege to the employer of varying it not to exceed 72 hours in two weeks if occasion arises. Time and a half pay is provided for overtime. The man summoned to work but not put to work shall be paid for four hours; or if summoned to work and employed for three hours, he shall be paid for a full day. All these matters are new and they are a distant goal to most industrial workers.

Seniority Rights Guarded.

Seniority rights are as carefully guarded in this agreement as they have been by the railroad unions. For instance:

"It is agreed that whenever an employe is transferred from one

Washington Bakers Win Strike for Union Shop

Washington.—One of the most notable labor victories to be gained in the nation's capital within recent years has just been consummated, with the signing of an agreement by Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., with Bakery Salesmen's Local Union No. 33 and Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Local Union No. 118.

The firm, which sells from house to house, had started on the proverbial "shoe string," with no plant, and built up a fairly large business, then erected a plant and continued to grow on a non-union basis. Neither union bakers nor bakery salesmen had been employed. Finally, the salesmen were organized and became members of Local No. 33, which had over 500 members in other plants. Then the firm started "firing" the union men, resulting in a strike of twenty-nine bakery salesmen in early August.

Bakers No. 118 started picketing all trucks of the firm, house to house, as calls were made, and the entire local labor movement got behind the strikers. Seven pickets were beaten up during the strike and on one occasion the president of the firm brandished a revolver before several pickets, firing one shot. But the bakery salesmen and bakers kept up the good fight, assessing all of their local members $1 each week to "carry on," providing a strike fund of about $1,000 a week.

The new agreement provides for a "closed shop" throughout, including bakers, bakery halpers and bakery salesmen (drivers), an adjustment of hours, substantial wage increases and the check-off system of dues collecting. The settlement is hailed as a hard-fought, clean-cut victory for organized labor.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD MEETING NEXT MONDAY

The first meeting of the Federation board of directors since the annual elections will be held next Monday night at 7 o'clock. Newly-elected directors will be obligated, and the program of action for the year will be hammered out. Members will be notified by mail of the place of meeting.

TAKING STOCK

Now that we are entering on a new Federation year it may behoove us to draw up a credit and debit sheet for the life of the Federation. To a fair weather soldier in the ranks of the Federation who may look superficially at the immediate situation it may appear that most of the decisions should be recorded on the debit side of the ledger. It is true that we lost the county salary suit and that we are facing a terrific fight with the city suit.

But let us look at the situation that teachers lived and worked under before the advent of our union. Teachers were wholly at the mercy of the whims of politicians. Salaries were fixed arbitrarily. Dismissals were summarily. Furthermore, any voice of protest from the teachers was stifled almost before emergence.

Naturally we had no real respect from the public. We were considered a genteel, well behaved army of political henchmen. Of course orators praised our self-sacrifice and devotion, but in their inmost hearts they considered us a spiritless bunch of sissies.

Today the situation is very different. Today we have the real respect of the public. It is true that some reactionaries do not love us. But their former condescending benevolence was obnoxious to us. We prefer their fear and hatred to their contemptuous patronage. The average citizen likes us better because he can respect us. We are now men and women and citizens, and the people know it.

The tenure law was the lever that lifted us to our present status. It has built our morale to such a point that if we were to lose our tenure law we should still have the strength to hold what we have without it.

What of salaries? During the depression practically every school administration in the country handed out a series of devastating cuts to its teaching force. Our Federation not only kept the cuts far below the average for the country, it took the aggressive and got the salary schedule bill passed. It is true that this law has not been put into effect in either city or county system. But if the Federation had not waged its aggressive fight the question now would not be raised on our present salaries, but whether we should be raised from 50% to 60% or 70% of our pre-depression salaries. The Federation has held the forces of retrenchment at bay and, in the case of the county, has wrested small gains at a critical time.

So, all in all we may well "count our blessings" in these "times that try men's souls" and resolve to be no fair weather soldiers, but to fight harder than ever in our great battle for self-respect and security.

American Tobacco Co. Fighting to Bar Union In Its Reedsville Plant

Biggest of Big Four, After Putting Obstacles in Way of Labor Board Election, Refuses to Recognize Vote of Employes in Favor of Tobacco Workers' Union.

Washington.—The American Tobacco company, biggest of the Big Four, is running true to form in dealing with its workers.

Between 800 and 900 persons are employed at the American Tobacco plant at Reedsville, N. C. A large proportion of them belong to the Tobacco Workers' International union; but the company refused to deal with the chosen representatives of that union. The matter was taken to the national labor relations board.

Company Hampers NLRB

The board ordered an election, to determine whether the union represented the majority of the workers in the plant. The company immediately began to put obstacles in the way of this election. It refused to give access to its payrolls, so that the workers entitled to vote could be known and it started a campaign of intimidation.

When the election came, only 470 of the workers voted—and 463 of them voted for the Tobacco Workers' International union as their represenative in bargaining with the company. It made a clear majority of the workers. But up-to-date, the company has made no move to recognize the result of the election which it tried to prevent.

The simple fact is that the Big Four object to unions because unions interfere with their pet particular graft. This is especially true of the American Tobacco company. Ten per cent of the profits above a certain sum are divided by that company among certain officials. George Washington Hill, president of American Tobacco, collected more than a million dollars a year for two years, and a slightly smaller "squeeze" before and after.

Fairer Profit Division Feared.

The tobacco business is a profitable business; the experience of the independent companies, which deal with unions, pay union wages, and still make money out of good cigarettes which retail at 10 cents a package proves that.

> But good profits are not enough to satisfy the insiders of the Big Four. They want it all. The bureau of labor statistics has shown that only two per cent of the income of the Big Four is paid out in wages—two cents on the dollar.

If—or when—the plants of the Big Four are thoroughly unionized, the unions will demand a fairer division than that—and they will get it. That is why the American Tobacco company refused to give a list of its employes at Reedsville, and why it is sulking now.

Shirt Makers Win Union Shop Strike

Seven Women Jailed in Delaware for Violating Anti-Picketing Ordinance, But Public Sentiment Compelled Their Release.

Harrington, Del. — Following a strike lasting eight weeks, sixty women shirt workers, employed by the Kent Shirt company, finally won an agreement.

The long strike was marked by many efforts to defeat the women workers, but their perseverance and practical, peaceful tactics, together with assistance rendered by the organized labor movement of Wilmington and surrounding territory, eventually resulted in a well-earned victory.

Pickets being something new for Harrington, an ordinance prohibiting "gathering" on streets was passed by the city council, requiring a permit from the city manager. The union asked for such "permission," but it wasn't granted. The Wilmington Central Labor union took an active interest and sent its secretary to advise with the women on strike and to consult with the mayor and council.

Seven women jailed at Dover, because they refused to pay fines for violating the "anti-gathering" ordinance, were promptly released. There was a public demand that the women's right to picket be recognized. Public sentiment changed to their favor and the arrests failed to stop the picketing and the strike continued in full blast.

Finally, through Mayor Jacobs and others, conferences between the contending parties were arranged and, when both sides "got their feet under the table," it was soon clear to all that co-operation is better than antagonism and an amicable settlement resulted.

The union women showed that they can conduct a winning fight decently, respecting the rules of fair play, gaining the support of the entire community and, through the effectiveness of their organization, advance their economic well-being.

MAILERS LAND AWARD GIVING HIGHER WAGES

San Francisco.—Mailers' Union No. 18 has just won a signal victory, through an arbitration award handed down by Prof. Paul Douglas, by previous agreement of the union and the San Francisco Newspaper Publishers' association.

Included among the gains are additional pay for extras working less than four days a week, priority on extra work, a differential for night work, extension of the rest period between shifts, with wage increases ranging up to $2.08 a week, retroactive to January 15, 1936. Present wage rates are $7.35 for day work and $7.50 for night work. There had been no differential for night work heretofore.

The union members of the arbitration board included Joseph P. Bailey and H. I. Christie, while Leo Ihle and Lewis E. Haas represented the publishers on the board, with Prof. Douglas as arbitrator. Special briefs and evidence were prepared for both sides.

Cincinnati Clothing Firms Attacks Rights of Strike

Cincinnati. — High-priced lawyers, representing clothing firms whose employers are on strike, are attacking the strikers in the courts, attempting to stop the Cincinnati joint board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, from publicizing the story of their 11-month-old battle to the labor press, and to salesmen connected with the strike-bound Robert Tailoring company, Brighton Tailoring company, Hamilton Tailoring company, Lauer Tailoring company and the Ohio Custom Garment company.

The court action comes as a climax to the successful campaign of the clothing workers' union, to enlist support both from organized labor and from company salesmen, for union made men's garments bearing the Amalgamated label. Should company lawyers successfully gain a court decision against the strikers, it would curtail constitutional rights of the Cincinnati local organization to publicize industrial disputes in the city.

New banners for banner carriers to replace weather-beaten ones, and renewed militancy on the picket lines encircling strike-bound tailoring firms was the answer to company lawyer activities by strike leaders, as plans were made to continue the strike until victory for unionism is achieved.

Oakland Unions Plan $125,000 Labor Temple

Oakland, Cal.—A magnificent new Labor Temple will soon grace the city of Oakland, bring to realization a dream of many years, nurtured and brought to fruition by leaders of the local labor movement.

The new Labor Temple will be erected by the Labor Temple association, fully controlled by labor, and will be located at the corner of Eleventh and Grove streets. Plans and drawings have been completed for a structure that will involve an investment of about $125,000.

According to W. W. Patterson, president of the association, local unions are liberally subscribing to the building fund, and it is hoped that actual work on the new Labor Temple will get under way soon.

SINCLAIR OIL

property of the Sinclair Prairie Oil company to another, his service seniority shall be retained."

The management is to consult with the union if there is any deviation from the principle of promotion by seniority. When an employe is shifted from his usual place of work, his transportation is paid for by the employer.

Paid Vacations Given.

The new agreement on vacations with pay, somewhat changed from the last one, is worth quoting here in full:

"All employes, upon completion of one year of continuous service, shall be entitled to one week's vacation with full pay, based on full time weekly pay in the three months prior to vacation time. After completing two years' service, employes shall be entitled to two weeks' vacation with full pay computed as above. Any employe laid off through reduction of forces or for any other reason beyond his control and re-employed within 120 days shall be considered a regular employe as regards vacation rights, but shall forfeit one-twelfth of his vacation pay for each month lost during the year."

Adjustment of Disputes.

The employer will collect union dues on the written request of the employe. The employer will place a bulletin board on each property where it can be seen by workers entering the plant, and this board can be used by the association.

The provisions made for settling disputes are too long to quote. They cover almost every conceivable difficulty that could arise; and are eminently fair if fairly used. It should have been said earlier that work on holidays or Sundays, except where specially provided for, is paid for at time and a half rates.

In conclusion, the Sinclair oil interests didn't have to be driven into collective dealing with their employes. They saw the need of such collective dealing, and went out to meet it.

400 STRIKE AT CLOCK PLANT.

Thomaston, Conn.—Incensed over a new time piece-work system, about 400 employes of the Seth Thomas Clock company here struck with so much unanimity and effectiveness that the plant was practically closed. The clock company is the community's principal industry.

4 HELD FOR ATTACK ON UNION ORGANIZER

St. Joseph, Mo.—Four employes of the Strutwear company have been bound over to the October term of circuit court on chages of felonious assault. They were released on bond of $1,000 each. They are charged with attacking Don Harris, Des Moines union labor organizer, two weeks ago.

The Strutwear company moved here after a nine-month strike in Minneapolis.

The workers, Tim Riordan, Gordon Smith, Clarence Kelly and Malvin Pickering, also face a charge of inciting riot.

MORE ABOUT
TEAR GAS

The Railway Audit & Inspection company hired McDade to take twenty-one "guards" to Lake Charles, La., where a longshoremen's strike was in progress. These guards were armed with machine guns and tear gas bombs from Federal Laboratories, Pittsburgh. Three of these thugs, he said, were killed in a battle with the strikers.

Federal Laboratories, it may be remembered, was exposed by the Nye munitions investigation as a firm that deliberately fomented trouble at home and abroad to increase the demand for its merchandise of death.

Sought to "Frame" Workers.

McDade told, apparently with pride, how guards hired in a strike dynamited plants, fired on each other, daubed paint on company officials' houses and did other tricks to be laid to the labor leaders.

Sam Cohen, better known as "Chowderhead," has been arrested fourteen times and convicted several times on charges of burglary and larceny. But he has been a strikebreaker for twenty years; he will work for anyone who will pay him his price, he said; and boasted that he "ran the job" of strikebreaking during the elevator strike in New York, and that he is now employed by Remington-Rand.

These are only samples. It is impossible to give all the testimony, though all of it is revealing. A. E. Lawson told how he organized company unions; he belonged to an agency that kept company union constitutions on hand and would furnish them to anyone for a consideration. Michael Casey told of a speech made to strikebreakers by Rand, of Remington-Rand, who promised them a bonus and gave them only $5 apiece.

Sells Out to Old Friends.

John Davidson owned that he had written to the Railway & Audit Inspection company a letter in the hands of the committee in which he said:

"George Ferguson, who is a movie operator, and an officeholder in the local union, and Darrell Kepler, movie operator of the local union, are personal friends of mine. I have known Ferguson for twenty years and Kepler for ten years and now I am selling them out, as they tell me most anything."

Sixty-seven firms were listed as getting the services of the Railway Audit & Inspection company. The good old open shop Western Union is one. Uncle Andy Mellon's Aluminum Company of America seems to be another, though the name is twisted. Consolidated Gas Company of New York and Toledo Edison represent the utilities, Frigidaire is there for General Motors, Carnegie-Illinois Steel and H. C. Frick Coal and Coke are subsidiaries of U. S. Steel, and the Pennsylvania railroad brings along its Greyhound subsidiary.

The only reason a great many families do not own an elephant is that they never have been offered an elephant for a dollar down and easy weekly payments.

CONNECTICUT LABOR ATTACKS POLICE BRUTALITY IN STRIKE

Bridgeport, Conn. — The Connecticut Federation of Labor convention here adopted a resolution criticising the use of state police in the Remington Rand Middletown strike after Raymond Sage, an alternate delegate, described "unnecessary brutality" in suppressing a demonstration at the plant.

Sage told the convention that state police clubbed strikers and threw tear gas bombs, precipating a condition which, he said, caused closing of a silk company near the typewriter factory.

Another resolution approved the action of the Seattle, Wash., trades council in the newspaper strike in that city and condemned the attitude of William Randolph Hearst, publisher of the Post-Intelligencer, where the strike is in progress.

Cincinnati. — A dynamite bomb, believed to have been hurled from a nearby lot, broke 30 windows of the Norwood Remington - Rand plant, where employes have been on strike since last May. The bomb exploded about a foot from the building. There were 70 men in the plant, dismantling machinery.

Typos Call Carter Back as Secretary In Annual Election

After Year's Rest Goes Back to Post When Worthington Declines to Run Again.

Cuthbert Goes to Presidency. All Delegates to Central Body Re-elected—Local Stronger Than Ever Before.

Sunday was election day for Typographical Union No. 89. The incumbent secretary, L. M. Worthington, who served for one year, told the membership that he did not care to stand for the post again, whereupon C. F. Carter, who has served as secretary for several terms, was elected to the job.

Mr. Carter has a long history of service to his union. He has occupied the president's chair for several terms, the secretaryship for three terms, has been delegate to the annual convention several times and is the author of perpetual chairman of the typographical paper scale committee.

Speaking of the scale committee, Commissioner R. M. Cooke was drafted back with Carter to act as the union's two arbitrators in the present scale proceedings, which is now up for arbitration. Mr. Cooke has served with Mr. Carter numerous times, and the two together make a swell team.

R. Cuthbert was named to succeed J. Martin Peyer, who has held the post for two terms, declining to stand himself for the third term. J. E. Brenkworth will help Cuthbert hold down the chair as vice-president.

Delegates to Central Body will consist of T. J. Davie, R. M. Cooke, T. R. Cuthbert, Arch Underwood, Harris Hix, W. L. Gardner and R. E. Smoot.

The report from the retiring secretary shows that No. 89 has the strongest treasury ever enjoyed as well as the largest membership roll.

The executive board this year will consist of T. R. Blanford, H. S. Mauldin, J. E. Brenkworth, M. M. Beavers and H. D. Hix.

Arch Underwood will have charge of the apprentices as usual as chairman of the apprentice and application committee.

Suspension of Union Approved

MILWAUKEE.—The International Association of Machinists' convention has sustained its Grand Lodge action suspending Lodge 284 in Oakland, Calif., for conducting an unauthorized strike. The charter of the Oakland lodge was revoked by the convention in executive session after long debate. The suspended lodge originally had about 1,000 members. They will be absorbed by a new machinists' lodge in Oakland, No. 149, if they desire to join in the union, convention officials said.

Raincoat Workers Win Union Shop

Boston, Mass.—Following a one-day general strike in the raincoat industry here recently, in which every raincoat worker in Boston is reported to have taken part, a collective agreement for the Boston raincoat market has been signed.

The local union, Raincoat Local No. 1, is reported to have gained about 1,000 members through the settlement which is regarded as especially significant because Boston has been the center of non-union rainwear production.

COMPANY UNIONS HELD ON WAY OUT OF STEEL PLANTS

Chairman Murray, of Organizing Commiteee, Declares Workers Are Fast Going Toward Free, Independent Unionization.

PITTSBURGH. — "The company union is on its way out of the picture," declared Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. "The employes show that they now want a real, independent union, not dominated by the employer.

"Out of the company unions are coming future leaders of the new steel workers' organization. The creature of the steel corporations, the employer created organizations formed in the steel industry three years ago to circumvent the collective bargaining provision of the NIRA, is providing a Frankenstein that is riding over its creator."

Company unions, Mr. Murray said further, are revolting "all along the line." Of the many hundreds of company union representatives with whom the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee has made close contact, a decided majority have either joined the movement or expressed themselves in favor of doing so.

Thousands of Organizers.

As an evidence of how the organizing of the steel workers is progressing, Murray stated that there are now 158 field directors and staff organizers on a full-time basis, 80 part-time organizers, and 5,000 volunteer organizers.

"When we started the job of organizing the steel industry," continued Murray, "we found the men in the mills shot through with fear. They were afraid of their bosses and of their jobs. To a large extent we have broken down this fear. However, the day we completely banish fear from the steel industry our job will be done."

William Mitch, in charge of steel organization in Alabama, gave a vivid picture of the amazing conditions there in his report to the committee.

"Conditions are so bad in Gadsden," he declared, "that when the Central Labor Union wants to hold a meeting, its officers wire the governor, who sends in state police to protect the meeting from mob outrages inspired by the employers. The last time such a meeting was arranged, it was broken up because the union officers had forgotten to wire the governor."

Central Body Meets Next Monday Nite

Chattanooga Central Labor Union will hold its regular meeting Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All delegates are requested to be present.

UNION TRUCKMEN WIN RAISE IN WEEKLY PAY

Yonkers, N. Y.—The New York truckmen's strike will not extend to Westchester county. Milo Morgan, business agent of Local 445 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Stablemen, has announced that the Truck Owners' association of Westchester county has consented to an increase in the pay of all its union truckmen of $2 a week.

Under this agreement, truckmen and teamsters will get pay ranging from $33 to $40 a week, depending on the size and weight of the truck. The 48-hour week is retained.

LABEL LEAGUE MEETS FRIDAY

Regular session of the Chattanooga Label league will be held at the Labor Temple Friday, Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m.

By INA GREENE, President.

I wonder how many members of organized labor really know what the Chattanooga Union Label league is and what it is attempting to do for members of the labor movement. For those who can't or don't attend our meetings the following has been written with the hope that locals not now affiliated with the league will do so at once, and help us carry out this important phase of the labor movement.

The Chattanooga Label league is really a "union of unions," whose chief aim and purpose is to make members of organized and their friends more "union labeled" conscious. For we feel that in the matter of spending money for union labeled products, the real fight is with our own people.

When members of organized labor unite in demanding the union label on products they purchase, and spend their union earned money only with merchants who carry these products, then, and then only, will all merchants fill their stores with "union labeled" products. Of course these union labeled products are made only by members of organized labor, so one can readily see the benefits we would derive from demanding the label.

The league also sponsors dances and entertainments for the workers and their friends and at a price anyone can afford to pay.

Women who are members of organized labor and wives of trade unionists should take an active part in some part of the labor movement and the Label league offers this opportunity to these women.

Let's make our next meeting, which will be Friday, Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Roosevelt hall, a success by having a large crowd present.

A membership drive, under the direction of J. B. Campbell, is now under way and we hope every local in the city will affiliate with us. Affiliation fee is one dollar and dues are fifty cents per month. Each local is allowed two delegates.

CIO Leaders Ask Move for Peace In Labor Ranks

David Dubinsky and Max Zaritsky Make Overtures for End of Internal Conflict in Talking to Millinery Workers.

New York City.—Overtures of peace between the committee for industrial organization and the American Federation of Labor were made here on Oct. 3 by the chiefs of two important unions—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, and Max Zaritsky, president of the cap and millinery department of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union. Both men are prominent in the C. I. O., and both made peace conditional on continuance of the campaign to organiez the steel industry. They spoke before the convention of the cap and millinery department.

"There is a lot of talk about peace," Dubinsky said. "I, too, would be only too happy to see peace between the two contending forces. But peace is possible only on condition that the organization campaign of the steel workers continues uninterruptedly.

Steel Drive Must Go On.

"To stop that campaign would be treason. The C. I. O. will never agree to that. But in behalf of my own union and other organizations affiliated with the C. I. O. I can say that we will give up the C. I. O., we are ready to do that, we are ready to submit to the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"What we want, however, is that the other side present a plan of action that will assure continuance of the organization of the steel workers. I know a great deal depends upon the convention at Tampa. I know the delegates at that convention will be for peace in the labor movement. We, too, are for peace and unity. I am hopeful that all those loyal to the American Federation of Labor, loyal as we are loyal, will cooperate in a great common effort to achieve unity

DALTON MILL OUT WHEN PAY BOOST DEMAND REFUSED

American Thread Mill Paid $12 Per Week for Doffers. $2 to $4 Raise Asked.

Walkout Monday of Doffers and Twisters Shuts Down Entire Plant — Mass Meeting Planned Next Sunday.

After waiting on the management of the American Thread company, Dalton, Ga., to grant a small increase in pay, and receiving replies that there was nothing to offer, the employes in the twisting department of the plant walked from their jobs Monday in protest.

Twisters and doffers have been receiving $12.00 and $12.80 per week of forty hours. They have been asking from $14.00 to $16.00. Three months ago they secured several conferences with the management concerning a raise in pay. The management admitted, it is said, that an adjustment was needed, but that they were averse to granting it because other departments in the mill might ask for a raise also if twisters and doffers got a boost. The other departments are said to average from $14.00 to $16.00 per week now.

Action by the twisters and doffers, numbering 75, caused the rest of the mill, employing 500 in all, to shut down. Picket lines are about the plant.

"Gov." Talmadge, it is believed, is chagrined that the strike did not happen two months ago so that his "boys" could have gotten in a last bit of bayonet practice.

At a meeting of Textile Union 1983, held Wednesday, the walkout was indorsed, and the union is said to be in favor of backing them up as far as possible.

C. D. Puckett, Chattanooga representative for the United Textile Workers of America, and S. A. Hollihan, of Atlanta, are in charge of the situation, and they announce that next Sunday at 3 o'clock there will be a mass meeting which will be attended by several prominent labor executives.

The other large textile cotton mill in Dalton is the Crown mill, whose employes are practically solidly organized. The strike affects only the American Thread company at present.

KNOX, HEARST AND McCORMICK REFUSE TO SIGN NEW PAY SCALE

Attitude of Big Publisher Supporters of Landon in Line With Republican Policy of Catering to "Open Shop" Vote While at Same Time Appealing to Union Labor.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—There is a growing discontent among republicans over the mismanagement of the labor end of the republican national campaign by Arthur M. Curtis, republican national committeeman from Missouri, and Robert Kratky, former St. Louis pawnbroker, who is chief assistant to Curtis.

This discontent, however, has not sufficiently affected John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman, or Gov. Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago, or any of the other leaders of the present republican high command.

Run "Open Shop" Bureau

There is not a republican leader of importance who does not know that Curtis and Kratky have set up an alleged union labor bureau at 310 South Michigan Boulevard, one block south of the republican national headquarters, and have gone ten blocks north of the headquarters, at 208 West Washington street, where they have established a very large and very active "open shop" bureau.

Salt Co. Executive Is "Open Shop" Chief

Sterling Morton, head of the Morton Salt company, whom Curtis and Kratky have placed in charge of the "open shop" division, addressed a meeting of 200 "open shop" employers at Detroit recently. Morton advised the "open shop" employers to "lay on" their employes to vote for Landon "or else."

Detroit daily newspapers supporting Landon thought that was great stuff and featured the story. Jno. J. Woods, editor of the Union Leader, official publication of the Chicago street car men, was at the international headquarters of the street car men at

Locomotive Firemen Ask Roosevelt's Re-election

Delegates From Three States Hear Brotherhood Head Declare Administration Works For Interests of People.

PHILADELPHIA. — The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, at a meeting in this city of delegates from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, adopted the following resolution:

"In view of the policy of our Brotherhood to defeat our enemies and elect our friends, therefore,

"Be it resolved: That this meeting in session indorse President Franklin D. Roosevelt for re-election."

David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood, made a stirring appeal, which many have gained in force by the knowledge of all present that Robertson grew up a Republican, and stays with that party when he can.

"Only when the present administration took hold of things," he said in his address preceding the vote, "was any effort made to stem the tide of the depression. Our Brotherhood is doing all it can to keep in Washington an administration which has shown for four years that it is working in the interest of the people, and that it has a program for putting the country back on its feet."

Mr. Robertson said that this indorsement will be duplicated in every state where the Brotherhood has a lodge.

The women's auxiliary of the B. of L. F. & E. also indorsed President Roosevelt. The Brotherhood has about 72,000 members and the auxiliary about 59,000.

Peggy—Good heavens, Gert! Ain't you ever been out with a marine?

Remington-Rand Violence Not Caused by Strikers

Syracuse, N. Y. — The continued arrogant refusal of the Remington-Rand company to deal with the duly authorized representatives of their organized workers, along with clever retaliation against those on strike, is assigned by labor officials as the real cause of violence that has occurred.

Following a disorder here, in which two policemen and two others were injured by iron balls thrown at them, twelve persons were arrested and charged with inciting to riot and expressions of city officials indicate that they support the labor-baiting concern which manufactures office equipment.

As indication of the trickery involved, affidavits were given out by Clifford H. Searl, attorney for the striking workers, in which it was charged that the trouble was precipitated on a signal by a "guard" of a private "detective agency," several of whose men are employed by the Remington-Rand company.

Strikes are under way in different plants of the company and disorders of a similar nature have been reported from different localities. It is stated here that the company is moving some of its special equipment from the plant at Norwood, Ohio, Cincinnati suburb, to Ilion, N. Y. While the company is attempting to operate its plants with strikebreakers, the organized workers are holding firm in their demand for union recognition and collective bargaining.

Silly and Dangerous

We cannot believe that the members of the county court gave their usual careful consideration to resolutions proposed before that body last Monday when they unanimously concurred in a resolution calling for a "loyalty oath" by all county employes, particularly teachers.

The purpose of the measure, as stated, is to require all employes to swear to uphold our American government and constitution, both national and state. Its object, obviously, is to weed out traitorous elements who would overthrow our country.

How simple it is! Much better than guns and bullets. All one need do now is to require a communist or other form of anti-Americanism to swear to God to uphold Americanism. Presto, chango! Our enemies' hands are tied. Scotched before they can start. Of course, Benedict Arnold swore an oath of allegiance, but he did not play the game like our modern traitors would undoubtedly do. A modern traitor would never think of violating an oath even though he would murder and kill if not bound by an allegiance vow.

One wonders, on the other hand, if such a pledge to uphold the national and state constitutions prevents any criticism and proposals to modify or change certain parts in them.

We wonder, too, how a good American will feel when called upon to swear to be a good American? If such oaths are guarantees of continuation of red-blooded Americanism, why not stop wife-beating, dishonesty and chicanery by forcing every one to swear to refrain from such?

Loyalty oaths are naive if honestly proposed, but we are inclined to believe that they are usually offered with an insidious trap underlying them to persecute difference of opinion in governmental affairs.

While taking "loyalty oaths" to insure Americanism, it might be well to remember that "Americanism" incorporates the right of free speech and petition. Even the craziest fool in the country has a right to appear before our county courts to make his plea according to his right.

Landing on Landon

The great big bakers, most of them non-union and union-hating, are trying to tell Americans there are fifty-eight separate taxes on bread.

A lot of money is being spent to spread misrepresentation. Of all the fifty-eight taxes only two are federal taxes. These are the excess profits tax—which don't tax unless there is EXCESS profit—and the income tax, which everyone helps to pay.

But the great big bakers try to have the people believe all these fifty-eight taxes go to Uncle Sam. What cheapness! What hokum!

There are a lot of questions to ask the bakers. One is this:

If the great big bakers are so anxious about the plain people, why haven't they allowed unionizing? Why have they fought the workers with all their power?

Remember the big bakers are enormous corporations. And the only place where a corporation is a person a human being—is in court.

And the packers—remember the packers—. Oh, yes, they're the boys about whom Upton Sinclair once wrote "The Jungle." They've never been good until they were forced to be good.

The packers spent two years and much, much gold to fight the anti-trust laws.

Now they get out nice blackboards to be set up in butcher shops to tell the people that one-third the price of meat goes into taxes.

The republican national committee distributes the blackboards, but the legends are packing house legends. A nice little partnership.

Here again we have labor haters doubling in brass to land another sock on the public jaw. The packers want Landon; why should we want him?

In 1933 Landon said he was all for the Roosevelt program. He said he intended to go all the way and he was red hot for dictatorship in the oil business. Today Landon is saying just the opposite of everything he said then. But that was before a lot of Liberty league campaign managers got hold of him. Beats everything what these city slickers will do to a feller.

Civil service in Kansas is as dead as the dodo. There's a law but there's no enforcement.

Strange how the things that are NOT done in Kansas are the things workers need.

No civil service.
Schools a wreck.
No boiler inspection.

State aid for schools in Kansas is 1.7 per cent. The average for the country is 23 per cent and in California it runs up to 60 per cent.

No civil service means the spoils system right down the line to the last janitor.

No boiler inspection means that ancient boilers, not allowed in other states, can be shipped into Kansas to blow up. Kansas oil fields require a lot of boilers. Did somebody say Landon had a labor record?

Does he know of silicosis,
Does he care about the schools?
Or does Wall Street call him Whozis,
And make all his funny rules?

Rumor is that Knox Knox is being taken out of the campaign by the republican high command.

Well, they ought to take out old Hullaballoo and a lot of others before they lose all their votes.

The real trouble is that the G. O. P. is sold down the river to the Liberty leaguers and is trying to talk to the people while tied to Wall Street.

It's one of those impossible things and consequently it makes the elephant look like a monkey.

Violence in Strikes

Alleged violence in strikes is a favorite theme on which anti-labor employers, the police and daily newspapers are united in making public and deploring. Hardly a day goes by in times of labor unrest without the newspapers featuring headlines like these:

"Paint Thrown on Employer's Home."
"Violence Flares in Transit Strike."
"Two Killed as Guards Battle Pickets."

After reading such headlines and the articles written to bear them out, many readers are likely to blame striking workers and their friends for the violence.

But the real source was disclosed in testimony before the La Follette Civil Liberties committee in its investigation of labor spies in industrial disputes, with Railway Audit & Inspection company as its subject. Here is a summary of some of the testimony:

E. J. Dade testified that he had been hired by the Railway Audit & Inspection company for the express purpose of creating disorder in strikes and thus discrediting the strikers in the eyes of the public.

There was a milk strike in Cleveland. Frank Tabor was the head of the Tabor Ice Cream company, whose employes had walked out. In order to stimulate resentment against the strikers and arouse sympathy for Tabor, who was the client of a spy service for which Dade was working, the latter and his strike-breaking associates daubed red paint on Tabor's home.

In the same strike, in order to make it appear that strikers were firing on the company guards, the guards fired on themselves. This emphasized the apparent necessity for more guards and more business for the concern that furnished these thugs.

In the strike of the employes of the Pittsburgh National Dairy company last year, guards were ordered to slug members of trade unions and thus induce a counter attack.

Seven hundred strike-breakers were recruited during the Wisconsin Light & Power company strike in Milwaukee. The company provided them with ax handles to slug the strikers and turned live steam on the picket lines.

Double dealing is the regular practice of these spy concerns. The Railway Audit & Inspection company sent one of its spies into a refrigerator strike in New York City. He posed as a friend of the strikers and became the union's publicity agent and at the same time furnished the company with daily reports on union activities.

The testimony also revealed that the R. A. I. and other spy services make a regular practice of using bribery and threats to persuade union members to become spies.

Federal Laboratories, Inc., is a subsidiary of the Railway Audit & Inspection company. According to the testimony this concern sold tear gas bombs, machine guns and other weapons to both companies and police for use in labor disputes. Therefore it is easy to see how one branch of the business helped the other. It worked like this. The more spies and company guards there were to create violence, the more gas bombs and guns were required—and the more workers killed.

During the depression this un-American business netted the spy concern a profit of $1,300,000, after paying its officers large salaries. The money was contributed by concerns which refused to pay their workers enough wages to prevent strikes.

Firemen and Engineers Sign Up Detroit Hotel

Detroit, Mich.—Firemen and Oilers' Local Union No. 32 and Operating Engineers' Local Union No.5 have won a new contract with the Book-Cadillac hotel here, by the terms of which the unions gained formal recognition and an increase of 36 per cent in wages. Also, "no discrimination" against strikers.

Settlement followed a 22-hour strike, conducted during the convention at the hotel of the American Federation of Government Employes. Considerable credit for the brevity and success of the strike is given by union officials to Hon. Frank Murphy, democratic candidate for governor of Michigan, and his brother, Recorder's Judge George Murphy, who acted as arbiters.

NEW CHILD LABOR LAW IN EFFECT IN NEW YORK

New York City.—The new child labor law, which advances the age at which a youngster can begin working in a factory from 14 to 16 years, is now in effect. This is one of the measures on which organized labor supported Gov. Lehman so heartily that the recalcitrant New York legislature passed it.

"This law, in effect," said Gov. Lehman, "carries on in New York the child labor standards of the NRA which were so universally acclaimed. With the improvement in business conditions, I am particularly happy that the legislature adotped my recommendations in regard to this law, as it will remove a substantial amount of competition in the labor market between younger and older workers."

Cleveland Unions Favor Roosevelt's Re-Election

Cleveland, Ohio. — The re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt has been approved by an overwhelming majority of Cleveland local unions that participated in a recent referendum, submitted by the Cleveland Federation of Labor.

While some unions did not make returns, due probably to prohibitions in their national or local constitutions against political action, it was made clear that Cleveland union labor is quite solidly behind the president. Out of 108 local unions making returns, 105 favored the re-election of President Roosevelt and only three were opposed.

Minneapolis Sheet Metal Workers Win Big Strike

Sixty-Five Firms Sign Union Contract — General Drivers Union Also Wins Pay Boost Pact.

Minneapolis, Minn. — The strike of sheet metal workers here has resulted in the signing up of sixty-five out of seventy-eight firms, with the other 13 expected to capitulate, even though backed by the so-called Citizens' Alliance.

The Sheet Metal Employers' association was reported as voting complete settlement of the strike, but it is said that the thirteen recalcitrants, alleged to be members of the Alliance, decided to buck their own organization. With 65 shops signed, and with the solid support of other union workers, the sheet metal workers' union was prepared for a "finish fight" with the remaining thirteen. The settlement with the 65 shops, granting wage increases and improved working conditions, is regarded as a distinct victory for the union.

Another notable victory here was won by labor when General Drivers and Helpers No. 544, signed an agreement with the Chippewa Springs Corporation. By the terms of the new agreement, some of the corporations' drivers received wage increases of as much as $36 a month. The good feeling engendered by the agreement has made effective "boosters" of members of organized labor generally for the firm's product.

AGREEMENT POSTPONES WALKOUT OF TRUCK
